more enjoyable. As we said before.
Having just returned he knows how the veteran feels and he is most anxious to serve them.

The other night at the Band Fair at the High School a mighty sweet young lady complimented us on a little piece we had written which she had used for several years when the occasion presented itself. We called the piece "Morning Prayer" and it flatters us to think that we were the instrument used to create the short verse. However, we did not write it at the age of 12, as some folks think. It was written in Oneonta, Alabama in 1936 for the wife to use when she was Councillor for a Sunbeam Band at the Baptist Church there. The late Ben F.
Dykes was pastor of the church at that time. His home was in Chilton County and many of his relatives and friends are here. It's a long story, but thanks anyway, lady, for those kind words about some of our writing.

This possibly could have happened here—but it didn't. She was awakened by a series of uneasy shivers and sweats in the room below. Hurrying down stairs she found her husband, with bleary eyes, bending over the radio frantically twisting the dial.
"What on earth is the meaning of this," she demanded angrily? "Go 'way! Don't bother me!" he hissed desperately. "Somebody's locked in the safe and I've forgotten the combination."

Iroquois 'Calico Treaty' Develops Inflation Angle

EVEN THE PRICE of peace should increase in times of inflation, Indians of the Six Nations decided recently.

Occupying their own lands in central New York since before it was New York State, they protested the shrinkage in the latest federal payment of cloth. An annual allotment of cloth keeps them at peace with Uncle Sam under the terms of the 187-year-old "calico Treaty."

Nowadays, yard goods of more fashionable chambrays and flowered seersuckers instead of calico and muslin make up each year's payment of the New York Indians' portion of the $4,500 under the Treaty of Canandaigua signed in 1794.

In that fixed figure lies the present catch in the durable treaty. Through boom and bust, the yard goods have shrunk and stretched with the dollar. The 1951 payment is shared by 5,700
Indians. It threatens to leave some of them short-skirted and short-shirted.

In return for "clothing" and other items, to be distributed "yearly forever," the Iroquois confederacy or Six Nations agreed never to make war on or claim the lands of the young American nation. General Lafayette negotiated with the chiefs. George Washington, himself, guaranteed that the Indian lands in the Finger Lakes region of New York would not be violated.

While they were not always friendly in colonial days, several members of the Iroquois league later aided the cause of the American Revolution. When Washington's army was starving at Valley Forge they came to the rescue with 600 bushels of grain from their own scanty stores. This service Washington never forgot.

A bill currently before Congress would authorize annual settlement in cash in lieu of bolts of cotton.
The Oneidas, now living in Wisconsin, for years have taken their allotment in cash. The New York Indians, however, have rejected previous offers, preferring to hold to the "calico" provision of the treaty.

Prosperous for the most part today, the Iroquois have many fine homes and well managed farms.
To them the annual "calico day" symbolizes perpetual peace and friendship. But with prices what they are in 1951, the Indians have made it plain they could use a little more calico—and a little less symbolism.

Do More Than Is Necessary

TWO AND ONE HALF YEARS ago, Clyde Randall Krech, Nashville, Tenn., began working for an air line, and a hint that one of the local officials gave him almost ruined his career. That hint was, "You just can't make mistakes and last long."

Nine months after he started, he was sent to the New York home office in regard to a promotion. He didn't get it. Last summer, he was again sent to New York, after thoroughly being screened in Miami for the same promotion. He didn't get it. He had a third chance.
He remained just where he was.

He began retracing his work in an attempt to find out what was holding him back. The company has progress reports that go to New York every six months. He reviewed the reports for information and could find only one thing that could possibly have caused him to fail.

There was one column that was always checked on him. "Does the necessary amount of work, but no more." He wasn't ashamed of that because he knew that he had worked very hard for the company.
And he didn't make mistakes. He couldn't see how this could be the answer. He just let the thought linger in his mind for a few days.

It then dawned on him that in his progress report was the answer. "Does the necessary amount of work but no more." He had been worrying about making a mistake in his work and was spending as much time checking his work as doing it.

He listed the things that could happen if he made a few mistakes and the worst thing he could find was they could fire him. He began immediately to do the best he could and not check it. Now he turns out a lot more work and he doesn't make the mistakes he was worrying about.

Two weeks ago the column that was checked on him was,
"Does the necessary amount of work and more." He got a promotion.

STANTON NEWS

MISS RUTH HICKS

H. T. Rogers who is employed in Waukegan, Ill., has returned to his job after spending several days with his relatives in this and adjoining communities.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Carter and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Pet Carter in the Isabella Community Sunday afternoon.

The welcome mat is out for Mr. and Mrs. Houston Smith and Robert Hicks. Mr. and Mrs. Houston Smith (Lovice Lawrence), moved Saturday, from Selma, to the house owned by Mr. Willie Stuart. Robert Hicks moved from the Tabernacle Community, near Lawley, to a house owned by O. V. Harrison.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernie Burnett returning from a vacation trip to Edgewater, Maryland, where they visited their brother, Douglas Burnett and wife stopped over with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Burnett; for the night before returning to their home in Selma.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Claud Friday and family of Selma, accompanied by their son James, had Thursday night supper with Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Carter and family. James has been on 15 day leave with his parents. He is stationed in Georgia.

Mrs. Mary Gregory Walker of Selma spent Friday night in the Frank Reynolds home. She came to visit her childhood friend, Mrs. Mattie Reynolds Blehl.

Mrs. Ide Reynolds Moore and her daughter, Lois, of Wetumpka, spent one day last week with their brother Frank Reynolds and their sister Mrs. Mattie Blehl.

Mr. and Mrs. Jie Ed Bearden and children and Mr. and Mrs. Ely Parnell visited with the J. D. Langston's in Greensboro, during the week-end.

A study course for the W. M. U. was held Monday starting at 10 a. m. at the Baptist Church. This study was presented by Miss Florence Thomas, to if Birmingham, who is State Field Worker for North Alabama District. Miss Thomaston's subject being "Pilgrimage to Spanish America." This teaching was religious history of the work going on in Central and South America. Miss Thomaston is a very able teacher and a very interesting person. For several years she has taught study courses here in Stanton and it is indeed a happy and inspirational privilege to hear her teach these courses.

Saturday Mr. Glenn Woolley of Arkansas, now employed in Allentown, S. C., was pop calling in his relatives and many, many friends. He came Friday for a visit with his mother, Mrs. Mattie Woolley. Mrs. Woolley is in Selma with her daughter, Mrs. Elbert Cooper and family. Glenn was born and reared in this community and it is always a pleasure to have him back in this section.

Mr. Joseph Dennis returned to his home here from the Schma Hospital last Monday. He is doing fine at this writing.

Mr. Thomas Martin, Jr., of Plantersville, and Miss Dorothy Nell Cole are having a swell-ing time. They are confined to their homes with the mumps.

We wish for them a speedy recovery with no complications. Miss Elsie Schurter of Birmingham Southern College at Birmingham spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. Alma Schurter, and other relatives.

Miss Ruby Durdan has accepted a position with the Southern Bell Telephone Co. in Selma. Miss Durdan has room with Mrs. McKinney at 419 Lauderdale St.

A sadness and one that I am sure this community shares was the death of Oliver Wendall Dyer, Jr., age 11, Saturday morning, September 29, 1951, at the Children's Hospital in Birmingham. Wendall was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Wendall Dyer, Sr. This child together with his playmate, were bitten by a rabid dog. Wendall died 21 days after being bitten. The other child having suffered no ill effects from the bite. The grandfather, Mr. Wendall, Jr., was the late W. C. Dyer who owned and operated a woodworking shop in Stanton, some years ago. His grandmother, Mrs. Ethel Fitts Dyer now resides in Birmingham. Mrs. Alma Schurter of this place being a sister of Mr. W. C. Dyer.

Funeral services were conducted from the South Highland Baptist Church of which Wendall Dyer, Jr., was a member Sunday afternoon. To the mother and father and loved ones we offer our deepest sympathy.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Marshall, D. T. Cole and Ernest Cole spent Sunday with the Will Eaves' in Columbiana.

Mrs. Cora Fuller is visiting her sister Mrs. J. R. Stone (Bessie Osburn), and Mr. Stone in Sprout.

We were distressed to learn early this morning that John L. Sherrer of Plantersville entered a Selma hospital late Saturday night suffering with blood poison. Mrs. Sherrer is at her husband's bedside. Reports from the hospital this morning are encouraging. He is showing signs of improvement.

P. T. A. meets every First Monday night in each month. Mark this date on your calendar. You're needed to make this year a very successful one. Rev. and Mrs. Joe Davis and Raymond drove to Tuscaloosa and picked up Mr. and Mrs. Carter Davis at the University of Alabama, and went to Birmingham to spend the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Hicks and family. Returning Sunday afternoon via Tuscaloosa they visited with Rev. and Mrs. Clayton Gilbert, Pastor of the Hopewell Baptist Church. Rev. and Mrs. Gilbert have a host of friends throughout this section and who are very pleased to hear much about the nice work they are doing in their church there.

Mrs. Dick Lovelady and family. Mrs. Lelia Sample and Mr. and Mrs. Louie Barnes spent Sunday in West Blocton, with Mr. and Mrs. Preston Milling.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Sample and Brenda spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lovelady and family at Cox Station.

One of the nicest get-togethers of the season was at the home of Mr. Frank Reynolds Sunday, Sept. 30, 1951. This was a reunion of his sisters and some of their families. Only one sister was absent, Mrs. Daisy Connell of Tuscaloosa. She was ill and could not attend.

At the noon hour a bountiful dinner was spread in the dining room. (Each family brought a picnic basket and all the food was put on the large dining room table. Each individual serving his or her, own plate).

Present to enjoy this get-together were: Mrs. Xyr Reynolds Wilcox, Miss Jean Wilcox, Mr. and Mrs. Mabe Donald, and daughter Jeannie, of Mobile, Ala., Mrs. Ellaine Reynolds Stuart of Brent, Ala. Mr. and Mrs. Foy Rollins of Tuscaloosa, Ala., Mrs. Mollie Reynolds Broadhead and son Reynolds of Tuscaloosa, Ala., Miss Lou Reynolds of Tuscaloosa, Ala., Mrs. Mattie Reynolds Blehl of Williamsport, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Moore of Wetumpka, Ala. Mr. and Mrs. Milton Cawthon. Mr. and Mrs. Dock Ellison, Don and Jean of Wetumpka, Ala. Dr. T. M.

Dated this 29th day of September, 1951.

W. L. Parrish,
Judge of Probate.

A GOOD BREAKFAST STARTS DAY RIGHT

The right breakfast pattern assures a family of the correct amount of nutrients at the beginning of the day when they are needed most. If this is kept in mind, breakfast planning becomes quite simple. Just remember to include each of these food groups in every breakfast: fruit, cereal, milk, bread, butter or margarine, and a beverage.

Men and teen-age boys require more food at each meal than women and girls. For this reason they should eat larger portions of each food or should eat additional eggs and breakfast meats that contain viable supplies of protein and minerals.

Martin of Plantersville, Ala. Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Lane, Sr. and Henry of Auburn, Ala. Captain and Mrs. H. M. Lane, Jr. and Skipper, of Auburn, Ala. Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Daniel, Nancy and Frank of Maplesville, Ala. Millard Reynolds, Mrs. Alice Reynolds of Plantersville, Miss Walter Francis Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Hall Hines, Bob and Betty of Camden, Ala. Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Gay, Mrs. J. W. Gay, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Barnes and Miss Ruby Durdan.

This day was highlighted by the return of Captain H. M. Lane, Jr. who has seen much action in the Korean (medals) speak for themselves. Captain Lane has a 10 day leave with Conflict. His decorations, (ribbons & his wife and son who have made their home with his parents in Auburn, during his absence.

Mrs. Mattie Blehl returned to Mobile, Ala., with her sister, Mrs. Xyr Reynolds Wilcox late Sunday afternoon. She will return to her brothers home, Frank Reynolds, late Thursday. Funeral services for Charlie L. Moore, 45, Cedartown, Ga., were held from the Vine Hill Presbyterian Church at 3 p. m. last Tuesday. Rev. F. E. Bagby officiating. Interment in the adjoining cemetery. Mr. Moore was a native of Plantersville. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church, and the American Legion. As a young man, he entered military service, but failing health necessitated a long period of hospitalization which eventually resulted in his discharge. Upon his return to civilian life 10 years ago he was employed by the Nopco Chemical Co., in Cedartown, Ga., and was in constant service with the company until his death.

Surviving are 4 brothers: S. B. of Cedartown, Allen of Marion, E. O. of Ventura, Calif., and J. C. of U. S. Navy. One sister Miss Willie L. Moore of Selma. Mr. Moore has a large circle of relatives in this and adjoining communities. To the loved ones we offer our sympathy.

ALABAMA BAPTISTS TO LAUNCH "ADVANCE PROGRAM" AT ANNUAL CONVENTION

Alabama Baptists in their annual convention at Montgomery during November will launch their "advance program." A new method of dividing their mission monies will be proposed, to provide for "capital needs" of their several institutions.

This announcement came this week from their bureau of press relations in Mobile, Rev. H. H. Harwell, director.

Dates of the annual session are Nov. 13-15, with First Baptist Church in the capitol city as meeting-place. Rev. Dr. Brady R. Justice, Enterprise, is president of the convention.

A new feature to be introduced at this year's gathering is to have the opening devotions at every session given by an outstanding out-of-state minister. He is the Rev. Dr. Fred F. Brown, pastor emeritus, of Knoxville.

The Rev. R. A. Tuck, Boaz, executive board chairman, will preach the annual convention sermon. George W. Koski, Howard College professor of music, will direct the music of the convention.

Prominent churchmen from outside Alabama slated to appear on the three-day program include Dr. Charles Wellborn, radio preacher, Ft. Worth and

POPLAR SPRINGS

We were proud to have each one that came to church Sunday but there are still many in our community who are hoping to see at church regularly.

We are glad to learn that Mrs. Charlie M. Smith and children have safely reached Port Mason, Calif. From there they will soon sail for Okinawa to join their husband and father who is stationed there.

Miss Janette Wilson spent the week end with Mrs. Frank Gardner. They attended the home coming at Liberty Hill.

Pic. Earskine Duke has left for overseas duty again, after being home for thirty days during the illness and death of his grandfather, Mr. John Cox. We hated to see him leave for more overseas duty but wish him good luck and hope he will soon return home safely.

We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Steve Pate, parents of Mrs. N. E. Cook, visitors at church and in the community Sunday and Sunday night. Please remember and come to prayer service each Wednesday night.

PLENTY OF RAINFALL IF WE COULD KEEP IT

During the past several weeks farmers over the state have been realizing the importance of water in the production of crops and livestock.

But droughts occur nearly every year in Alabama despite the fact our annual rainfall exceeds 50 inches. Too often much of this water is permitted to run off sloping land or go to waste in other ways — water that may be sorely needed if dry weather follows.

Doughty says the following practices will help insure crops against drought damage: Don't try to grow row crops on lands that are suited only for sod crops; increase the supply of organic matter in the soil so it will soak up and hold water; use crop rotations that include more close-growing, water-holding sod crops; and control run-off water by spreading it onto meadows and pastures or store it in farm ponds.

MINOR FAMILY REUNION

Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Minor, their children and grandchildren, had family reunion at Log Cabin Beach Sunday, Sept. 23. Everyone enjoyed the delicious barbecue dinner and cold drinks.

Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Minor and son of Montgomery; Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Minor and daughters of Childersburg; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hilyer and children of Birmingham; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Amerson and daughters of Phenix City; Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Bearden and daughter of Birmingham; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Edwards and children of Alexander City; Mrs. Harold Lanier and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Minor of Verbena.

4% Farm Loans Farmers! Use Your Own Credit System

FARMERS HAVE REASON TO BE PROUD OF THEIR LAND BANK SYSTEM

Farmers of Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana are proud of the Federal Land Bank and the 79 National Farm Loan Associations in the three states. The banks and the associations have a net worth of over 26 million dollars. They are owned entirely by the farmers who use them.

The bank and the associations are operated for the sole benefit of farmers. The long-term loans and small annual payments make it easy for members to repay their loans. If the member has a crop failure or some other disaster, the National Farm Loan Association—with a local board of directors—neighbors in many cases—will lend an attentive ear to the member's problems.

Local servicing of a member's loan affords many advantages. Consider now consolidating your debts into a land bank loan, or borrowing for any necessary agricultural purpose. Visit, Telephone or Write the Secretary-Treasurer of your

The following letter will be appreciated by our readers:

Dear Friends in Christ,

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you of Thorsby for the many kindnesses shown me during my stay in your community. As Student Pastor of Concordia Lutheran Church I was blessed with the greatest experience of my life. Learning to know you and to be one of you, I also learned to love you very much. Though in the days to come I shall not be with you in body, in spirit I shall remain, as I now have a part of my heart devoted to you, and your cause through Christ.

Words are so inadequate when one wishes to express something in his heart, but sincerely I thank you of Concordia Lutheran Church as well as you of the community, for making my summer a living experience as well as a cherished memory.

May the Grace of Our Lord Jesus Christ and the love of God, and the Communion of the Holy Spirit, be with you all.

Yours in Christ Jesus,
 -s- Luther Fulmer

deGRAFFENRIED ANNOUNCES DATE OF EXAMINATION FOR ENTRANCE TO COAST GUARD ACADEMY AT NEW LONDON

Congressman Edward deGraffenried announced today that the nation-wide examination for entrance to the United States Coast Guard Academy, New London, Connecticut, will be held on February 18-19, 1952.

The number of cadets selected each year depends upon the needs of the service. In 1952 approximately 200 young men will be appointed; therefore, to gain admittance to the academy, a candidate must not only pass the examination, but must pass high enough so as to be assured of selection. Examinations will be held in Alabama at Birmingham, Montgomery, and Mobile.

"Graduates of the Coast Guard Academy's four-year course," Mr. deGraffenried stated, "receive a commission as ensign in the United States Coast Guard and a Bachelor of Science degree in Engineering."

Mr. deGraffenried urges all young men who are interested to write to Coast Guard Headquarters as soon as possible, since the necessary papers will have to be completed by January 1, 1952. He stated there is no limit on the number of candidates coming from any single area, as there is with reference to the Military and Naval Academies.

"Young men who take the examinations must be between the ages of 17 and 22, American citizens, and in excellent physical condition. They must show proof of their good moral character and standing in the community," the congressman said. "Minimum educational requirement is a high school diploma, although high school seniors who will complete their course at the end of the year are eligible to take the competitive examination, if they will have the necessary credits upon graduation." These credits include mathematics, English, physics, and other high school subjects which are standard.

The examinations, which are given over a two-day period, include achievement tests in English, social studies, mathematics, science, and aptitude tests.

The Tuscaloosa congressman said that applicants who are interested in careers as commissioned officers in the Coast Guard should write to the Commandant, U. S. Coast Guard, Washington 25, D. C., requesting further information.

Randy is Eight—

Monday, October 1, was a happy day for Randy Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Williams. He celebrated his eighth birthday with a neighborhood party at the home on eighth street.

Games pertaining to school were played during the afternoon. The pink and white birthday cake, holding eight candles and the inscription, "Happy Birthday, Randy," was served with ice cream to the following little playmates:

Kay Miller, Patricia Matson, Linda Carroll, Mildred Knowles, Butch Carter, and Dian Williams. Others present were: Peggy Carroll, Mrs. Cecil Carter and Mrs. Hughey Carroll.

Julie's Party—

Julie Wade was eight years old Friday, September 28, and she celebrated the occasion at a birthday supper given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Wade, at their home.

It was a thrilling time when the little honoree opened each gift wrapped package brought by her little friends.

Supper was served on pretty birthday plates and on each plate there was a favor for the guest to take home. A large birthday cake held eight burning candles for Julie to blow out.

The children came to the party at 4:30 o'clock and enjoyed the television before supper. Then they were off to the Drive-In Theatre with Mr. and Mrs. Wade.

Guests were: Susan Elsilver, Jennie Lee Polk, Miriam Golden, Mary Kate Tucker, Mary Mell Martin, Sharon Brooks Hubert, Linda, Kathie and Jim Wade.

Shower for Miss Myra Crocker—

Mrs. M. H. Lane entertained recently at a kitchen shower complimenting Miss Myra Crocker before she left Clanton for her home in Thomaston to be married to Harold Torbert of Atlanta, Ga.

Artistic arrangements of Autumn flowers splashed with fern were used to adorn the Lane's home.

After a period of games and contests, the group was invited into the dining room where gift wrapped packages were on display. The honoree enjoyed opening each package for her friends to see.

Several piano numbers were rendered by Miss Jean Lake during the party hours.

Coffee and cake was served by the hostess.

Mr. Thompson is Seventy-Three—

Sunday, September 30th, was the seventy-third birthday of Mr. John Thompson of Clanton, and he celebrated with a Dutch Dinner given by his children and grandchildren in the house of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thompson.

A big time was had by those present who were: Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Thompson and Barbara; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Johnson, Mary Paul; Mr. and Mrs. J. Reid Thompson, Katie, Don and Betty Jo; Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Zimmerman; Mr. and Mrs. Royal Coggins, Jr., Joe and Ellen; Mr. Richard Thompson; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thompson, Debbie, Rosalind and Peggy; all of Clanton.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dickerson, Eddie and Ann, of Goodwater, Ala.

Club News—

The Pilft Club of Clanton held the regular monthly meeting at the Dixie Cafe on Tuesday night, Sept. 24, with the club president, Miss Margaret Lee, presiding.

The devotional was brought by Miss Jean Lake. Miss Euna Powell, program chairman, introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Leo Thompson, Chairman of the Hospital Board of Chilton County.

Mr. Thompson gave a most interesting and informative talk on the plans for the new hospital to be located in Clanton. Showing drawings of the hospital grounds and blueprints of the building and what each would be used for, etc.

The meeting was adjourned. There were twenty present. Visitors were Mrs. C. Delle Cobb, Mrs. Ade Wyatt, Mrs. Gladys Jones and Mr. Thompson.

Mrs. M. C. Henley Hostess to Sunday School Class—

On Tuesday evening of last week, the Loyal Builders Sunday School class of the First Methodist Church met in the home of Mrs. M. C. Henley.

A lovely devotional was given by Mrs. R. W. Williamson. This was followed by the program period, with Mrs. L. E. Diefenderfer in charge. The secretary and Treasurers report was given. It was voted that the class buy a rug for the Sunday School nursery room and also some toys for the nursery.

The hostess served delicious refreshments to the following class members: Mrs. Annie Mae Popwell, Mrs. Clifford Popwell, Mrs. T. J. Hunter, Mrs. A. H. Armstrong, Mrs. C. D. Messer, Mrs. Sullivan, Mrs. R. W. Williamson, Mrs. Wright, Mrs. L. E. Diefenderfer, Mrs. T. C. McSwain, Mrs. Maggie Wilson and Mrs. A. A. Bazel.

The October meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Annie Mae Popwell on Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 24th.

Fellowship Dinner for YWA's - GA's. The Young Women's Auxiliary of the First Baptist Church of Clanton,

MT. PISGAH

We were proud of the attendance in Sunday School Sunday.

Sunday was promotion day and several were promoted to higher classes. Mr. and Mrs. Jim Cleckley of Pascagoula, Miss. spent last week-end here with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. George Smith entertained the following guests Sunday afternoon: Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Baker and children, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Carmichael of Opelika, Ala., and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Bryant and children.

Several from here attended conference at Pleasant Grove last Sunday.

Miss Mary Davis is attending Nurses School in Birmingham. We wish was hostess at a Fellowship Dinner, sponsored by the business women's circle of the Women's Missionary Society on Tuesday evening of last week.

Mothers of the YWA members and members of the Intermediate Girls Auxiliary were guests at the affair which took place in the church dining room. Low arrangements of fall flowers centered the dining tables. The YWA colors of Green, white and gold were emphasized on the printed programs and the dinner napkins.

The program opened with the group singing, "A Zion Haste." Invocation was by Dr. J. Gilbert Hutchinson.

Mistress, Mrs. P. D. Ellison, YWA Counselor, Welcome was given by Miss Barbara Lowery, YWA president. Response by a mother, Mrs. B. E. Reeves. Response from GA's by Miss Nanette Nivens. The YWA Watch Word, Daniel 12-3 was repeated in unison. A lovely solo by Miss Jettie Fay Ellison was enjoyed. Dr. Hutchinson showed colored pictures of his recent trip to California and Canada. These were very educational and were enjoyed very much by the twenty-six members and guests present.

Dr. Hutchinson offered the benediction prayer.

West End Baptist News—

The ladies of the West End Baptist Church met Monday, Oct. 1st, at the church for the installing of new officers of the Women's Missionary Society for the coming year.

We were happy to have Mrs. Russell Williams to preside at the installation service. She gave an inspirational talk to each incoming officer.

After this service was completed the meeting was turned over to our new president, Mrs. J. D. Williams, to discuss the business and new plans for the new year.

We feel that with our new officers and cooperation of all the members doing all the good they can for the Lord, we will have a grand and glorious year working together.

BEST WAYS TO REMOVE MILDEW FROM LEATHER

It's nice to know that mildewed leather can be brought back into service in short order.

One way to do the job is to wipe leather with a cloth wrung out of diluted alcohol. Use one cup denatured alcohol to one cup of water. Then, if necessary, wash with thick suds of a mild, neutral soap or saddle soap; wipe with a damp cloth; and dry in an airy place. When dry, polish leather with a good wax dressing.

To kill molds that have grown into leather goods, use formaldehyde candles. Fumigation will kill any molds present at the time, but it will not protect against future attacks.

Our last quarter of 1951 begins in our Sunday School next Sunday let us all work and pray to make it the best of the year.

We are all so glad to know little Helen Tucker is able to go to school and she is always happy to come to church. We are all thankful she is so much better. We're looking for you next Sunday.

HEALTH QUESTIONS

Dr. Marshall L. Ware
Chiropractor

Q—What is the difference between sciatica and lumbago? What are the results of adjustments for these diseases?

A—In sciatica there is inflammation of the sciatic nerve and sometimes swelling of the sheath which adds to the pressure and intensifies the pain. If the nerve substance is affected chiefly then there is less pain and some times signs of paralysis. The on-set of the disease is sudden with pains in the hip and thigh, which at first may be dull and aching but later may become very severe. Sometimes there is noticed a red streak down the thigh just over the sciatic nerve.

Lumbago is a form of rheumatism in which the pain is located in the nerve endings of muscles of the loins. If the disease is located in the muscles of the ribs, it is called pleurodynia. If in the hip it is called myalgia. As in sciatica the appearance of the disease is sudden. Acute cases are accompanied with slight fever. Often the pain in lumbago is so severe the patient is unable to roll over in the bed. The urine is found to be scanty and highly acid, the perspiration has an acid odor and the patient is often constipated.

Adjustments are given for both the above named diseases and with results that are generally satisfactory.

Q—Do spinal adjustments cure headaches permanently?

A—Most headaches are symptoms of some organic disorder. They might be stomach headaches, liver headaches, kidney headaches, etc. Many headaches are symptoms of constipation. In which case the adjustment would be given to remedy the constipation. When the cause is duly corrected and the headache entirely cured it is not intimated that another subluxation could not be produced later which would, of course, cause more headaches, or a different type of headaches.

Q—After driving my car for some distance I suffer with a pain in the back of my neck. Do Chiropractors adjust for this trouble?

A—Yes. The strain in one position has affected the lower cervical (neck) or upper dorsal nerves and that is why you have the distress.

MINUTES OF THE BOARD OF REVENUE AND CONTROL OF CHILTON COUNTY, ALABAMA, OF SEPTEMBER 19, 1951

Board Meeting
September 19, 1951

The Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama, met in special session at the county courthouse at Clanton, Alabama, on September 19, 1951, at 9:00 o'clock, and at the call of the Chairman. The following were present: W. L. Parrish, Judge of Probate and Chairman of said Board, and the following Associate Members of said Board: V. O. Lenoir, A. H. Smith, Welch Roebuck and J. M. Dunlap; absent: none. Judge Parrish presided as Chairman of the meeting and, a quorum being present, declared the meeting open for the transaction of business.

WHEREUPON, the Clerk of the Board read the minutes of the meeting of the Board of County Commissioners of Chilton County held on September 10, 1951, whereupon the Chairman asked for correction or additions to said minutes, there being no corrections or additions to said minutes and the same being correct, Mr. Dunlap made a motion that said minutes stand adopted as read, whereupon Mr. Roebuck seconded said motion, which motion was unanimously carried, and all members of the governing body of Chilton County affixed their signatures to said minutes in the presence of the Clerk.

WHEREUPON, the Clerk of the Board read the minutes of the meeting of the Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County held on September 11, 1951, whereupon the Chairman asked for corrections or additions to said minutes, there being no corrections or additions to said minutes and the same being correct, Mr. Smith made a motion that said minutes stand adopted as read, whereupon Mr. Lenoir seconded said motion, which motion was unanimously adopted, and all members of the governing body of Chilton County affixed their signatures to said minutes in the presence of the Clerk.

WHEREUPON, the Clerk of the Board read the minutes of the meeting of the Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County held on September 13, 1951, whereupon the Chairman asked for corrections or additions to said minutes, there being no corrections or additions to said minutes and the same being correct, Mr. Lenoir made a motion that said minutes stand adopted as read, whereupon Mr. Dunlap seconded said motion, which motion was unanimously carried, and all members of the governing body of Chilton County affixed their signatures to said minutes in the presence of the Clerk.

Mr. Lenoir offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Smith:

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That the Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama, does hereby employ Harold H. Smyer as Clerk of Chilton County, Alabama, effective this date and does hereby determine that he shall receive as compensation for his services as such clerk, and his salary is hereby fixed by said Board at $300.00 per month, payable monthly at the end of each month.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That said Harold H. Smyer, as such clerk, shall make and enter into a surety bond in the amount of $10,000.00, as provided in Section 14, of Act No. 872 enacted by the Alabama Legislature, 1951 Regular Session.

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of the members present.

Mr. Smith offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Dunlap: That where as there is no gasoline to operate the road equipment of Chilton County, and

Whereas, there exists an emergency with reference to the operation of road equipment of the County, BE IT NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That Judge W. L. Parrish, Chairman of said Board, forthwith purchase, without bids and without obtaining information from the Division of Purchases and Stores of Alabama, approximately 1,000 gallons of gasoline @ 21c per gallon, with State Tax of 6c per gallon included in price, F. O. B. Clanton, Alabama.

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of the members present.

Mr. Roebuck offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Lenoir:

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of the members present.

Mr. Dunlap offered the following preamble and resolution for adoption; which were duly seconded by Mr. Roebuck:

WHEREAS, on the 12th day of September, 1951, the Governor of Alabama approved Act No. 872 enacted by the Alabama Legislature, 1951 Regular Session, and

WHEREAS, it is impracticable to appoint a Road Supervisor for a short period of time, and

WHEREAS, the Board of Revenue and Control is endeavoring to acquire a County Engineer approved by the State Highway Department, and

WHEREAS, it is necessary that said County Engineer when acquired, execute a bond as required by said Act, before entering upon his duties under said Act, and

WHEREAS, it would be detrimental to the citizens of Chilton County that all road work cease until said County Engineer is acquired and qualified, and

WHEREAS, it is contemplated that a County Engineer be acquired and qualified on or before October 1, 1951, NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That the county employees now engaged in the building and maintenance of public roads in the county continue their duties at their present salaries until such time as said County Engineer shall qualify and assume his duties under said Act.

The above stated preamble and resolution were adopted by a unanimous vote of the members present.

Mr. Lenoir offered the following preamble and resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Smith:

WHEREAS, Section 24, of Act No. 872, 1951 Regular Session of the Legislature of Alabama, approved September 12, 1951, provides that the Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama shall set aside a sufficient portion of county funds for this current fiscal year until October 1, 1951,

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: In compliance with said Act and in order to comply with the provisions thereof, the Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama hereby adopts the following budget for the period from September 19, 1951 through September 30, 1951 in words and figures as follows:

Things We See And Hear

-by Tuck

As I sit here, people, looks like we lost another; but, personally, I think that experience I was telling you about did help out a lot.

Billy Powell and I were sitting in the movie house the other day and the picture was a rather uncheerful one. (The wind was cutting up pretty bad and dust blowing everywhere). The little girl sitting behind Billy and I, apparently sitting with her sister, said, "Oh, look, they're going to have another torpedo." (There was at least one laugh in that movie).

Looks as if Vera Easterling can't stop a fellow one way, she does it another. Last Sunday she saw a carload of boys coming towards her so she just side-swiped them. I guess that's effective, but don't you think it's a little expensive and costly on the car, Vera?

Seems amazing, but this is the fifth week of the first six weeks. I don't know what they'll grade us on because it doesn't seem like we've been there long enough to do anything. They'll think of something. That's for sure!! For Dang Sure!!

Miss Blalock (in typing class the other day) said she didn't care whether we won or not over Montevallo. How's that for loyalty? Miss Blalock, you better get out there and root for the Tigers against Wetumpka or we're gonno' wonder how come.

Looks like the judges did pretty well in the Miss Chit-Chat contest last week, didn't they? As far as popularity with the student body was concerned, Shelby won by a large majority. And personally, the decision came out dog-gone good.

The State Fair is gonna' make a lot of money off of just Clanton folks this week. Looks like everyone in town is going. What with the FFA, FHA, and a few others, not to mention the individuals, we don't hardly have enough to continue school. (That's a hint, too).

Oh, that Joe Grooms and Bobby Kinney!! Weren't they just utterly handsome in the Miss Chit-Chat contest last Wednesday? They did seem to enjoy their work though, didn't they? (Did I say work!!)

A GOOD BREAKFAST STARTS DAY RIGHT

The right breakfast pattern assures a family of the correct amount of nutrients at the beginning of the day when they are needed most.

If this is kept in mind, breakfast planning becomes quite simple. Just remember to include each of these food groups in every breakfast: fruit, cereal, milk, bread, butter or margarine, and a beverage.

Men and teen-age boys require more food at each meal than women and girls. For this reason they should eat larger portions of each food or should eat additional eggs and breakfast meats that contain viable supplies of protein and minerals.

Sprinkling a cake with a little flour when it first comes from the oven, helps keep icing from running off.

Fire Prevention Week

RURAL fires will take a toll of 3500 lives and $102,000,000 in property this year unless farmers take immediate steps to eliminate the causes of these tragic fires.

In announcing the observance of Fire Prevention Week, October 7-13, the National Fire Protection Association pointed out that rural fires are occurring at the rate of one every five minutes. The NFPA asserts that 90 per cent are due to carelessness and negligence, and are preventable.

As evidence, the NFPA says that invariably there is an abrupt and a sharp drop in the number of fires during and immediately following Fire Prevention Week. Then, the fire loss zooms upward once again.

The eight major causes of farm fires are careless smoking habits, accumulations of trash, improper storage and use of gasoline and other flammable fluids, careless handling of matches, flammable wood shingle roofs, improperly cured hay in barns, and defective lighting, chimneys, heating plants, lamps, lanterns, engines, and electrical appliances and cords.

Mrs. Pearl Yates of Lineville, Rt. 1, in Randolph County, had no idea of becoming a nurserywoman in 1906. It all started as a hobby when she began rooting boxwoods just for the fun of it. By 1936 she had about 400 of the small dark green bushes, but she sold all of them and moved away.

In 1945 she returned home and took up where she left off, only more in earnest this time. The hobby soon developed into a thriving business, and now Mrs. Yates is making a living from only two acres of land with boxwoods.

She has about 6,000 plants ranging in size from small twigs in the rooting boxes to large boxwoods two feet high. The farm woman sells to retail buyers only, and for the past few years she has made the family living from her green bushes. She still doesn't consider herself a nursery owner though. "If I were 16 again I'd really go into the nursery business," she declares. However, with 6,000 plants valued at several thousand dollars, it looks like Mrs. Yates already has a successful nursery. At least making a living on only two acres of land looks a lot like success.

Plans For Father-Son Farming Agreements

By FOY HELMS

A.P.I. Extension Agricultural Economist

A big problem for many Alabama farmers is the job of setting up father and son farming agreements. There has been a great need for new ideas and workable plans that farmers and their sons or sons-in-law might use in dividing the farm business so that both parties can stay on the land and still make a good living.

In many counties and communities farms are small. On these, division is a difficult job. In the first place, it is harder today for a young man to start farming than it was a few years ago. At the same time, many farmers are reaching an age when it is too hard for them to operate the farm alone. They need the aid of a younger man to help manage the business. Furthermore, it is always desirable for the son to start farming at home so that he can help the father and at the same time gain experience and build up his own farm business.

To help in solving these problems a bulletin on father-son farm agreements has been published. It contains a lot of helpful ideas for the average farmer because it is based upon the experiences of hundreds of southern farm families. The bulletin is also helpful in making adjustments on farms where the father and son are already farming together.

This 24-page bulletin contains ideas that will help young farmers to partially overcome the problem of limited capital. Agreements suggested in it are designed to help the father slow down his pace as his age advances and still maintain his farm operations at a high level of production.

The bulletin is not only concerned with the development of operating agreements, but also in providing a way of keeping the farm in the family as a productive unit, when the father reaches retirement age or dies. Suggestions for successful agreements, solving of problems, legal considerations, and recommendations on transferring property to heirs are also covered.

The bulletin was prepared and published by Extension workers in twelve southeastern states with the help of the United States Department of Agriculture and the Farm Foundation in Chicago.

If you have problems of this kind, contact your county agent and he will gladly furnish you a copy of the booklet and discuss the contents with you. (Ask for Southern Farm Management Extension Publication No. 1.)

MODERN COMMUNITY CENTER—Until recently the Manchester community in Walker County had no community meeting place. But now, thanks to the initiative of the Manchester Home Demonstration Club, they have one of the most modern community centers in rural Alabama. Members of the Manchester Home Demonstration Club have sold everything from canned food to what-nots to raise funds for the building.

Men of the community donated all of the necessary labor except for the carpentry work. Community functions that were formerly held in overcrowded homes are now in the 42 x 72 foot concrete block community center.

Residents are rightfully proud of their new building because it is a convenient place for meetings and elections and, best of all, a place where a supervised recreational program can be held for the youth of the community.

Hog Business Expands In Fayette County

THE hog business is growing up in Fayette County. It has grown from almost nothing to big business in only five years.

In 1946 when Fayette County farmers began concentrating on hog production as another form of income there were practically no commercial hog growers in the county. This year, however, farmers in the county will realize almost a quarter of a million dollars in hog sales.

County Agent P. R. Pettis attributes this to the general trend toward more livestock farming, but he adds that the livestock auction in Fayette has had a large hand in bringing this about. Prior to the time when the market was started there was no satisfactory method of converting hogs into money. Now the farmers can sell livestock any week in the year through the local market.

Some three hundred farmers are now realizing a sizable part of their cash income from hogs. And these producers range from the men with one or two hogs to a few men who will sell fifty or a hundred hogs this year. These hogs will be marketed at no more than six months of age.

W. F. Mitchum, Sam Webster, and Harkins Garrison are only a few of the farmers who are finding that hogs pay off. Harkins Garrison is sold on the idea of hogging corn. By accurate records he proved to himself that hogs make good corn salesmen. His farm corn that was sold through hogs brought almost three times as much as corn sold by the bushel.

County Agents Pettis and S. L. Davis see more expansion for the future. "A market is handy and many farmers have realized that the hog business is a good thing." And they add, "We are sticking with this year-around income program."

B. H. Gravelle, left, Fayette, Rt. 1, and County Agent P. R. Pettis are shown looking over a group of four and one-half month old shots on the Gravelle farm. These shots weighed more than 200 pounds each at six months of age. At right, Leon Mitchum and his dad, W. F. Mitchum, look over the Mitchum herd boar. Both Mitchum and Gravelle are taking advantage of the marketing facilities made available by the new weekly auction market in Fayette. This year hogs will bring in a sizable part of the yearly income to 300 Fayette County farmers.

Much of the increased pork production is due to the increasing corn yields Fayette farmers are now making. The use of hybrid corn varieties and heavy fertilization is steadily pushing county corn yields upward.

Along the Way

with R. O. DAVIS
DIRECTOR, APL EXTENSION SERVICE

A sharp drop in the price of cotton since last spring is disturbing to the entire cotton industry, especially to growers. It's now down about $50 a bale from the ceiling price last spring.

The main reason for this drop is the anticipated production in excess of 17,250,000 bales. It is distressing that farmers would be penalized so severely in price.

The best immediate solution is more cotton in the loan at 90% of parity. The main advantages are immediate cash and the opportunity to take advantage of any price increase between now and next July 31. No one knows, of course, that higher prices will come but many believe that they will.

THE American Farm Bureau has insisted all along that the best antidote for inflation is full production, or enough for everybody to have all he wants. The accuracy of this position has been demonstrated by cotton. Last spring there was much ado about a ceiling for cotton prices at around 45 cents.

It was made known, however, that a crop of at least 16 million bales was needed. Farmers responded with 17,250,000 bales. Inflation disappeared immediately. In fact, it became deflation. Farmers turned to a price floor instead of a price ceiling.

So the Farm Bureau is right. Full production is the answer, the only real answer to inflation.

People of Argentina have gone to extremes in being controlled from their national capital—highly centralized government. Two facts about it are indeed impressive. One is that labor unions controlled by the government are sponsoring a candidate for president and another for vice-president—a man and his wife. The other is that thousands of them attended a national meeting on passes by railroads owned and operated by the government.

So individual freedom is about gone in Argentina. He or she is a mere chattel in the claws of the man at the top of the national government. Not in our time can they hope to regain their freedom.

I mention this because we in the United States should keep asking ourselves this question: What is happening and what can happen to us?

Our constitution is a most liberal document. Individual freedom is its primary aim. Let's keep it by and for wise use.

Production of meat, milk, and poultry is now at a high level but this level can't be maintained beyond 1952 without serious depletion of reserves of grain, unless there is a substantial increase in the production of feed crops.

This is why we're talking about more fall plantings in Alabama for grazing and soil protection this winter and grain next spring and summer.

An increase in the production of certain vegetables is needed too. The list includes beets, cabbage, carrots, green peas, green peppers, and spinach. On the other hand, a reduction of snap beans, lettuce, and shallots is wanted.

For St. Clair Farmer

Sericea's The Top Crop For Grazing And Hay

"THERE'S no magic in sericea—it's just a mighty good crop to grow if you really want feed for your cattle," exclaimed Hubert Jones the other day as he prepared to make another cutting on his 35 acres of the crop.

What the St. Clair farmer had to say about the grazing crop wasn't hearsay, either. Sericea is an old friend to this producer. He settled on sericea as the main crop for his grazing system when he began to work into the cattle business three years ago. And he is still planting a few more acres of the crop each year.

Like many other Alabama farmers, Jones has gone into the beef cattle business on a small, but steadily growing, scale. He began preparing for the change from straight row crops to a combination of row crops, pastures, and hay fields in 1948. That year he put in a few acres of sericea and began cleaning up land to be put in other grazing crops.

The beef herd was started on a small scale too. Jones started with a couple of family milk cows and began buying beef-type heifers as his pastures began to grow. The second year of operations the cattleman added more acres of sericea and more land was put in shape for winter grazing and permanent pasture. For the past two years he has continued his expansion program in the same manner.

Although Jones now has a number of different grazing crops on his farm, sericea is still his number one crop. "Where else can you find a crop that will keep cattle fat all summer and still furnish a good supply of hay for winter use?" is Jones' query.

County Agent H. L. Eubanks points to Hubert Jones' farming system as a good model for other farmers interested in beef cattle to follow. "Jones not only has plenty of summer grazing and hay crops, he also has winter grazing in abundance," says Eubanks. He explains that Jones' sericea fields furnish three crops. In summer the cows graze the sericea, and hay is also cut from the pastures. The fields are also planted to crimson clover for winter grazing.

MORE HAY—Hubert Jones of Springville, Rt. 1, is shown at left adjusting the mower mounted on his jeep as he prepares to clip a sericea hay field. The plot is used for grazing when the growth in other pastures is short and for hay when not in use as a pasture.

Cattleman Jones now has 35 acres of sericea, 20 acres planted to straight crimson clover and rye grass, and 30 acres of other pasture, about half of which is improved. He is planning to put in 10 more acres of improved pasture this fall and has a choice three-acre plot scheduled to go into white Dutch clover and fescue.

The beef herd on the farm now numbers 57 animals. Thirty-five of these are cows and bred heifers. "I'll stop expanding," explains Jones, "when I have all of my land except a few acres for corn, planted to a year around grazing system, and when I have enough cows to keep up with the pastures."

Stretch The Short Corn Crop

THIS fall many livestock producers will gather a short corn crop. Dry weather during the critical periods of the growing season cut the yield per acre and six per cent fewer acres were planted.

This situation emphasizes the need for hog producers to make their available supplies of corn go as far as possible. "Corn stretchers," unlike "coffee stretchers" used during the last war to make a pound of coffee go further, are not available. But good feeding practices will stretch the corn crop.

Fed alone, 11 or more bushels of corn are needed to make 100 pounds of hog meat. Six to seven bushels will make the same gain when a little protein supplement and green grazing is included in the fattening shots' diet. One bag of 100 pounds of protein supplement will, on the average, save 10 bushels of corn and result in faster and more uniform gains.

Any livestock producer would spend $1 to make $6. And that's about how much the use of protein supplement for fattening hogs pays off. A good protein supplement for pigs hogging down corn is made by mixing equal parts of tankage or meat scraps (50 per cent protein), cottonseed meal, and either peanut or soybean meal.

RECIPE FOR OCTOBER

OCTOBER is the month for the sweetpotato. Columbus found it here in America—carried it back as proof of the wonders of the New World. The first settlers in the South soon made it one of their favorite foods.

Today we know the sweetpotato as a prize package of food values. A rich source of vitamin A, it also provides worthwhile quantities of vitamin C and small amounts of the B vitamins and minerals. It is a good provider of food energy, too.

There are many ways to serve the sweetpotato. One of the best ways is in puddings. This recipe will tempt the appetite.

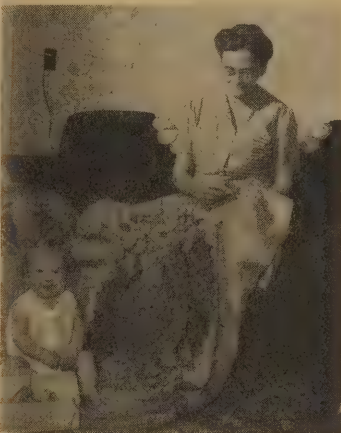

Grated Sweetpotato Pudding

4 c. grated, raw sweetpotatoes	¼ t. cloves
1 c. sorghum syrup	½ c. butter, melted
¾ c. milk	½ c. chopped nuts
1 t. nutmeg	½ t. salt
	2 eggs, well beaten

Combine sweetpotatoes, syrup (one-half cup sugar and ½ cup syrup may be used), milk, nutmeg, butter, cloves, nuts, and salt. Add eggs and pour into buttered shallow pan. Bake in a moderately hot oven (370°F.) 50 to 60 minutes.

LABOR SAVER—A big job on many cattle farms is the task of rounding up and confining cattle for vaccination, inspection, spraying, and other close-work jobs. One of the best ways of solving this problem is to construct some type of catch-pen or squeeze-pen that will eliminate the trouble of having to chase, rope, and throw the animals. Collier Dees, of Tibbie, says he has found the answer to the problem in a version of the Auburn type cattle-squeeze that he recently constructed on his farm. He is shown at right operating the lever that holds the captured cow in place. Watching the operation is Washington County Agent Howard Moss. (Blueprints for building squeeze-pens can be obtained from your local county agent. Ask for blueprint number MG-1.)

HOOKED RUGMAKER—Whenever she has a few odd moments to spare Mrs. O. B. Lovelady, of Lawley, can be found working on her favorite hobby, making hooked wool rugs. And a lot of the time she has a helper nearby—her eight-month-old granddaughter, Dianne Tibbs. Mrs. Lovelady usually draws up her own patterns for the rugs and many times she just starts out and lets the pattern develop as she goes along. Material used is old woolen clothing, woolen socks, and any wool castaways that can be revealed out to make wool yarn. Although she has a house full of rugs, Mrs. Lovelady says that she isn't interested in turning the hobby into a paying business. With the time and patience she puts into a finished product she just can't seem to part with her rugs. She is shown above working on a new rug while her granddaughter, Dianne Tibbs, helps out.

Something In Common

ALTHOUGH their eyes aren't as good as they once were, there's still a twinkle in them as Mrs. Guy Sudduth, 81, left, and Mrs. Ola McCoy, 84, right, talk over their sewing. As they rock along they recall many happy times of the past.

Mrs. Sudduth is the knitting expert, but Mrs. McCoy has about given up the idea of learning to knit. She is content to spend her talents on quilt making. But they still have a lot in common—mutual friends from childhood days.

Both of these ladies have watched almost a century of progress in Randolph County. And they have taken part in many of the forward steps. Both live in the Taylor's Cross Roads community of Roanoke, Rt. 3.

Foods Distribution Is Major Problem For Alabama Farmers

By AUSTIN EZZELL

A.P.I. Extension Distributor Marketing Specialist

(Editor's note—Mr. Ezell is working in a new Extension Service project aimed at better understanding between farmers and food distributors. He is now assisting Alabama county agents with training retail merchants in up-to-date methods of handling fresh fruits and vegetables.)

HOW foods are distributed once they have been produced is one of the most important problems facing many farmers today.

Any modern farmer is closely coupled to a very rapidly moving world that is only a few transportation hours from him, regardless of whether he buys food or sells it.

Not many years ago farmers considered their food jobs virtually completed when they finished harvesting their crops. Most farmers in Alabama had few food distribution problems that extended beyond their farm boundaries. They produced most of the foods they consumed and consumed most of the foods they produced.

There are still many farms, of course, that do not produce much food for sale. But practically every farmer looks to outside sources for more and more of the foods he and his family consume. On the other hand many farmers now produce much more food than they consume on their farms. In one way or another, therefore, food distribution problems are increasing for most Alabama farmers.

The successful farmer of the 1950's will recognize these facts and do everything in his power to keep up with the times in relation to them. His greatest contribution to the way these changes may go, no doubt, lies in his willingness and ability to apply scientific methods to the jobs of producing and marketing his crops and livestock in response to market demands.

County farm and home agents will be working with farm people and groups of farm people to help them keep abreast of best methods of food production and marketing. The wise farmer and farm homemaker will deal closely with these highly trained leaders in this work. Together they can learn about the changing demands, and can adapt the methods needed for meeting these demands to individual farms and communities.

First effects of changing market demands are felt by farmers planning the crops or livestock to grow in order to fit most profitably into this present-day commercialized type of living and farming. A crop, or a variety of a crop, that once was ideal for home consumption may not be adapted at all to marketing. The same is true of livestock.

Then the matter of producing the quality in crops and livestock demanded by market outlets is another important field in which farmers are facing changes from a few years back. This, coupled with changes necessary in selection (or grading), packaging, and transporting foods to market just about completely revolutionizes the food distribution problems that farmers must solve themselves.

Besides the changes of recent years in farming methods wrought by distribution changes, there are several important changes which occur after foods leave the farmer that greatly affect his welfare. The use of refrigeration in transportation and storage, pre-packaging foods before they finally reach the consumer, chain and other concentrated buying practices, and an ever-increasing consciousness on the part of consumers as to freshness and nutritional values are some of them.

The challenge, then, is great. But already farmers are proving their ability to fit themselves into the changing pattern. And, along with ever-increasing know-how in producing foods, farmers are keeping step in better marketing and distribution of them.

This Month on the Farm by A.P.I. EXTENSION SPECIALISTS

A good supply of high quality planting seed is the first step toward a successful cotton crop in 1952. Farmers who planted breeder or certified seed should save a good supply of seed for planting next year's crop. Planting seed should be of a recommended variety, not over two years from the breeder, and should have a germination of 80 per cent or above.

OCTOBER is the month in which to finish planting winter legumes for soil improvement. It sounds like an old story to keep on talking winter legumes, but winter legumes have helped meet a lot of emergencies. Again it is most imperative to make the fullest use of winter legumes because of the war situation. Then, too, tests of the Experiment Station and experience of farmers for more than 30 years show that it is a sound investment to grow winter legumes in the cropping system.

NOW is a good time to apply lime and fertilizer to old Bermuda sod; disk it and prepare it as well as you can. Seed reseeded crimson clover on uplands and white clover on lower areas and cover with some type of roller. You can get more out of your Bermuda grass pasture by doing the above.

HOW much corn will you average per acre on your farm? You can get your yield measurement by a very simple process. All you need is a basket or pick sack, a pair of cotton scales, and a yardstick or tape. You merely measure 100 feet on each of three rows in representative areas of the acre, pull the corn and weigh it. Send the weight and row width to your county agent and the yield will be calculated.

CONTINUE fishpond fertilization through October. Most pond owners during this month should be placing their tenth application of fertilizer in the water. Every pond owner should realize that the yield of fish in his pond is directly dependent upon the growth of plankton, which in turn is influenced by the fertilizer material. Good fertilization this year means good fishing next year.

THIS is the last month that pine tree seedling orders can be submitted with any assurance of their being filled. Be sure to submit orders now before the supply is exhausted.

OATS furnish good fall and winter grazing for hogs. Young, tender, green oats are almost as good as alfalfa for grazing with hogs. Oats can be grown by more Alabama hog producers than any other fall planted grazing crop. Fall planted oats put on good land and properly fertilized will supply lots of cheap hog feed in the late fall, winter, and early spring.

YEAR in and year out cattle are cheaper in October than in any other month of the year. Therefore, this is a good time to buy some medium steers to winter on grazing crops. Normally, a farmer can expect to almost double his money by buying steers this month, running them through the winter on green grazing and a little hay or roughage, and selling them the first week in June.

FRIENDLY COMMUNITY—Friendliness is something people of the Equality Community pride themselves in. They are proud of their town and have a hearty welcome for all travelers who pass their way. One of the most recent neighborly projects sponsored in the area was the erection of welcome signs on State Highway 9 which cuts through the town. The signs were put up by members of the Equality Home Demonstration Club. This group always takes an active part in any community betterment work. Shown looking over one of the signs that greet passing motorists are, left to right, Mrs. Vaughn Waites, community activities chairman; Mrs. Arthur Johnston, club president, and Coosa Home Agent Joyce Levins.

FOLLOWING THE TREND—Etowah County farmers like many others throughout the South are rapidly expanding the production of beef in their area. Established cattlemen are enlarging and improving the quality of their herds and many other farmers are adding beef production to their diversified farming systems. Five years ago only 21 farmers were raising beef. There are now over 135 commercial and pure-bred beef growers in Etowah.

The pictures above were made on three of the many farms on which beef is now a major farm income producer. At left, Larry Adams, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Adams, of Keener, shows Assistant County Agent H. J. Jackson some of the Adams' herd of high grade and registered Hereford cattle. Adams has 14 brood cows, a registered Hereford bull, and 15 calves and heifers that are being saved to build up the herd. Serices, 50 acres of Dallis grass, white Dutch clover, and lespedeza, eight acres of kudzu, and 25 acres of crimson clover and ryegrass furnish almost year-round grazing for the herd.

At center, D. V. Thacker, left, and his son, Wallace, spray the polled Hereford herd sire on the Ralph Boman cattle farm near Murrycross. Farm manager Thacker says that future plans for the Boman farm include a grade herd of 300 brood cows when all of the pastures on the 909-acre farm are well established.

The big, blocky, registered Hereford bull at right is co-owned by J. L. Welch and W. C. Kidd, both of Glencoe. Both producers use the bull as sire for their small purebred and grade Hereford herds. Shown with the bull are 11-year-old Billy Kidd, left, and Assistant Agent Jackson.

Here Are The Facts On Clovers For Alabama

By P. B. GIBSON, Associate Plant Breeder
A.P.I. Agricultural Experiment Station

AS a crop becomes more important named varieties appear. Clovers are no exception. The expansion of the livestock industry and the corresponding increase in the use of clovers have been accompanied by the appearance of named varieties of the important clovers.

For several years the Agricultural Experiment Station has conducted tests to determine the value of different clover varieties. In these tests, the varieties of a clover are grown side by side under as nearly identical conditions as possible. This type of testing is necessary to determine if new varieties are superior to the older accepted varieties. Results and observations made by the station are given.

Crimson Clover Varieties

There are two general types of crimson clover—reseeding and common or non-re-

Donnie Dodd, 11-year-old member of the Grassy 4-H Club was one of the first boys to receive a gilt in the new Marshall County 4-H Club pig chain. He is all set to make a success of his project because he has plenty of green grazing—a pig raising essential. He is shown with his gilt in a field of alfalfa which furnishes plenty of the right-type legume grazing for hogs. Donnie is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norwood Dodd, Jr., of Guntersville, Rt. 3. Along with Lamearl Spann, Junior Clemons, and Wayne Martin, all of Arab, Rt. 1, Donnie received his registered Duroc gilt from the Guntersville Chamber of Commerce which is sponsoring the new chain.

seeding. There is no difference in the appearance of the plants or seed of either type. The difference is in the type of seed coat. The reseeding type produces seed which will remain in the soil without germinating during the dry, hot summer. These seed germinate in the fall and give a volunteer stand of clover, thus the name, reseeding. The seed of common crimson germinate whenever moisture is available. The young plants usually die during the hot summer months. Therefore, common crimson does not reseed.

Seed of named varieties of non-reseeding crimson usually are not available in Alabama. There are a number of named varieties of reseeding crimson. Of these, four have been tested by the station. These are Autauga, Dixie, Auburn, and Talladega. Limited testing has revealed that the main difference is in dates of flowering. Autauga produces flowers early and is followed by Dixie and Auburn which produce flowers at about the same time. Talladega or Watson is later. Seed from a number of foreign countries have been tested and have made satisfactory growth. However, there are no data to indicate that foreign crimson clover will volunteer.

Red Clover Varieties

There are a number of red clover varieties. Kenland has been most satisfactory in the tests conducted in Alabama. Seed of this variety are available at most seed stores. Most varieties of red clover adapted to northern states have made unsatisfactory growth in Alabama.

White Clover Varieties

White clover is of three general types as related to size of plants—large, intermediate, and small. The large type is represented by Ladino. Under favorable growing conditions, Ladino plants are much larger than plants of the other types. This difference may not appear on a dry soil of low fertility. The intermediate type is represented by Louisiana white and the small type by English wild white. The latter type is of little importance as a forage crop in Alabama. It is used to a limited extent in lawns. An occasional small type plant can be found in most white clover pastures.

Results of comparative tests indicate that Ladino under favorable growing conditions

Fertilize Strawberries Now

IF the strawberry patch is to produce a good crop next spring, the plants should go into the winter in a healthy, vigorous condition. The fruit buds for next year's crop will be developed through the fall and winter months. To give the plants the necessary plant food to make this growth and develop many strong fruit buds, fertilize them with 500 pounds of 6-8-4 per acre. This should have been done in September in North Alabama but now is the time for fertilizing in the southern part of the state. Thinning the plants to not more than four to the square foot will help in developing good strong plants.

will produce more forage than Louisiana white. This is true especially after the Louisiana white begins flowering. Ladino produces very few flowers and should not be planted in Alabama for seed production or on soil where white clover behaves as an annual. On dry soil of low fertility the plants may die during the summer and since Ladino produces few seed, it may fail to volunteer. Ladino seed is more expensive than other white clover seed. Unfortunately, all white clover seed look alike. Therefore, the Experiment Station recommends the use of certified Ladino seed.

Most white clover in Alabama is the intermediate type. Louisiana white, improved Louisiana white, and Ala-Lu are named varieties of this type. No important differences in these clovers have been detected in tests conducted by the station.

White Dutch clover is a term frequently used in referring to any white clover of the intermediate type or a mixture of the intermediate and small types.

Mother clover is a term that has appeared recently. In New Zealand, Mother seed is a class of seed comparable to foundation seed in this country. The term, "Mother," as used in New Zealand means that the seed were produced in a field properly isolated from other white clover and according to other restrictions for the production of this class of seed. Such seed have been shipped into this country, increased, and sold as Louisiana white Dutch clover. In tests this clover has performed very similar to other intermediate type white clovers. The term Mother clover should not be used to refer to strains or varieties of white clover.

In addition to irrigating his pastures, Meadows, who operates a 300-acre dairy farm, also irrigated some of his corn. The difference in the corn plots was even more pronounced than the clover comparison shown above. Meadows says that it costs around $8 per day to operate his irrigation unit. The system is designed to put two inches of water on 10 acres in a full day of operation. According to his observations, Meadows states that irrigating pastures brings in more returns than the irrigation of row crops. "The extra water on pasture land makes more feed for my cows—and that means more milk in the pail, so I plan to use my irrigation system mainly on pastures," the dairyman says.

Boon To Livestock Production

Permanent Pastures---The Foundation For Forage Systems

By R. M. PATTERSON, Assistant Agronomist
A.P.I. Agricultural Experiment Station

PERMANENT pastures are those areas in a more or less permanent sod of grass and clovers which furnish grazing during a major portion of the year. This type of pasture is the foundation of a forage system and the basis of a sound livestock program.

During the past 15 years the importance of pastures has been recognized by farmers and other leaders in the agricultural program of Alabama. Approximately two million acres of permanent pasture land have been improved by fertilizing, seeding, and other practices. This expansion has been accompanied by increases in other types of forage crops and a greatly increased livestock industry in Alabama.

A large number of experiments in many different locations have been conducted in an effort to learn the correct amounts and kinds of fertilizers needed to grow good pastures in all parts of the state. In general, these studies have shown that the clovers are the most important part of the pasture sod because they furnish high quality early grazing and increase the growth of grasses through added nitrogen. While the fertilizer requirement of both the grasses and the legumes must be considered, the major efforts of the pasture fertility studies were to find out what fertilizers were required for the establishment and maintenance of clover in the sod.

Lime, phosphate, and on most soils, potash are needed for the successful growth of white clover which is the principle pasture legume.

Practically all pasture lands in Alabama except the lime soils of the Black Belt need lime. Results from a rate-of-lime study conducted at eleven widely separated locations in Alabama have shown that white clover pastures respond favorably to lime. Clover growth has generally been stimulated by the following rates of lime: two to three tons per acre on heavy-textured acid soils, one to two tons on alluvial creek-bottom flood plain soils, and one to one and a half tons on sandy soils. Lime applied to pasture plots that were fertilized with adequate phosphate and potash increased the amount of forage by an average of 63 per cent with increases ranging from 11 to over 100 per cent.

Soils vary considerably from field to field and consequently, their need for lime also varies. For good results from the use of lime, it is advisable to have the soil tested to determine the approximate amount of liming material needed.

Phosphate studies with permanent pastures have shown that the yield and quality of forage has been greatly improved by use of phosphate fertilizers. Results have shown that superphosphate and basic slag are superior to colloidal and rock phosphate as sources of phosphorus. From 600 to 800 pounds of superphosphate per acre are needed for establishing clover-grass permanent pastures and 300 to 400 pounds per acre are required annually for maintaining a productive pasture. If basic slag is used, the rate of about two to two and a half pounds of slag for each pound of superphosphate will give equal results and should furnish the necessary amount of lime needed except on extremely acid soils.

The results of thirty-five pasture experiments have shown that white clover responds to potash. Increases in yield of forage were obtained on thirty of these tests. Some of the Community Feeders Save Labor

LABOR saving devices are not new in the poultry business. There are dozens of them—but few will save more time than the new feeding system J. D. Guy, of Weogufka, has devised. Guy says his system cuts broiler feeding time by 600 per cent.

For his flock of 14,000 broilers, the Weogufka producer has substituted "community" feeders for the conventional types.

The feeders are simply large box-type containers 10 feet long and two feet wide. A whole sack of feed is emptied into the box—and the broilers jump in and help themselves. The Coosa County poultryman says feed waste is no greater with the community system.

"And best of all, it takes only a fifth as much time to feed my broilers," says Guy.

There is little cost involved in making the feeders. Four pieces of lumber, either one by sixes or one by eights, are used for the sides and ends of the feeders. The planks are nailed to the bottom which is a piece of galvanized roofing 10 feet long and two feet wide. The planks are used for the ends and sides.

One of these community feeders is used for every 375 birds.

Watch your lespedeza sericea and harvest seed exactly when they are ready to harvest. If you seed crimson clover on sericea do this close to the time you expect the first killing frost. The crimson clover must be grazed down and managed right next spring or else it may, in many cases, injure the sericea stand.

Equipped with modern processing machinery, the plant is now turning out nearly 400 cases of top quality fresh eggs per week. Officials estimate that weekly shipments will rise to around 500 cases when the remainder of the 80 flocks in the area come into production. At present over 50 producers in Etowah, DeKalb, and Marshall Counties are selling eggs through the Co-op.

Early turkeys should be marketed this month. This may call for packaging and freezing. Turkeys with good management will mature at 24 to 28 weeks of age. Turkeys, like other livestock, should be put on the market when they reach prime condition. Weight gains beyond this point are slow and expensive.

1. ELECTRIC POTATO BED—Wallace Hathcock, Cullman, Rt. 6, checks the new plants in one of his thermostatically controlled potato plant beds. The four beds, each 20 feet by 60 feet, produce 1,500,000 potato plants a year.

2. MECHANICAL TRANSPLANTER—Wallace Hathcock, left, and E. O. Elliott, assistant county agent, demonstrate the mysteries of a mechanical potato transplanter. Two men on the machine can transplant four acres per day. The machine plants, covers, and waters in one operation.

3. PUSH BUTTON POLISHING—Wallace Hathcock, left, and E. O. Elliott examine some No. 1 sweet potatoes that have been run through the processing machine. The machine washes, grades, and puts a thin coat of wax on the potatoes in one operation. This treatment helps to improve the looks and preserve the life of the potatoes.

One Of The Best

Curiosity Started Business---Management Made It

CURIOSITY may have killed the cat, but Wallace Hathcock's inquisitive nature has made him one of the best sweetpotato growers in the South.

A few years ago Hathcock decided to give potatoes a try at bolstering his small farm income. He believed that local grocery stores would be able to handle a few bushels of sweetpotatoes and he could certainly use the money.

So he started selling a few potatoes to Cullman grocers. And then his curiosity began to get the better of him.

"Why couldn't a man build a good business by producing sweetpotatoes?" he wondered. "Not just plain ordinary potatoes, but smooth, attractive, tasty potatoes that would be easy to sell at a premium."

It was a good pipe dream, but putting it into practice was something else. And then one day while digging potatoes Wallace Hathcock found the answer to his problem.

"At first it looked like a coincidence," he says. But further checking proved that he was on the right track. More No. 1 potatoes were coming from the hills where two plants were accidentally dropped. All through the fields the same thing had happened. And another thing, vine cuttings produced more uniform potatoes than plants. Hathcock decided to check further with some experiments in his own fields.

The next year he planted a one-acre experimental field, putting two plants per hill. When harvest time came this field more than doubled the average yield of No. 1 potatoes.

Next on the list came hill selection. He had been putting strings and culls in the plant beds, but now he started bedding potatoes from hills having a large number of No. 1's. When these plants bore potatoes he found that his yield had jumped again. Successive experiments proved that hill selection paid off.

"When I first began hill selection, three No. 1 potatoes was the most I could find," he says. "Now hills with 12 to 15 choice potatoes are not uncommon."

In the past four years Hathcock has doubled his yield per acre and he's producing a better product than ever. This year he expects to dig about 9,000 bushels of sweetpotatoes from his 30-acre crop.

Hathcock is still improving his produce and his yields by experimental work. He says that the one-acre testing plot is the most important acre on his farm.

Spacing, fertilization, and management practices are all perfected on this plot before they are put into general practice. And Hathcock religiously follows the potato growing recipe he has developed.

To save labor he uses a two-man mechanical transplanter which can set out four acres of plants per day. The machine plants, waters, covers, and fertilizes all in one operation. He puts 1,000 pounds of 4-10-7 fertilizer under the potatoes at planting time or a couple of weeks before.

Then to get the young plants off to a quick start he applies one gallon of 5-10-5 in liquid form at transplanting time. Then 100 pounds of nitrate of soda is applied as a side dressing.

The Hathcock farm is now a complete business. He sells everything from plants to cured and treated potatoes ready for the consumer. Plants are grown in electrically heated, thermostatically controlled beds. The four beds, of 1200 square feet each, produce 1,500,000 plants annually.

The latest addition to the farm is a packing shed. Here potatoes are washed, graded, covered with a thin coat of wax, and boxed ready for shipment.

Wallace Hathcock isn't worried about finding a market for his potatoes; the market comes to him. He can easily sell all of his potatoes because top quality produce is always in demand.

And he's expecting the potato business to be better than ever this year. With national production 35 per cent below normal this year, he's betting on a good price for his entire crop. And with his estimated yield of 9,000 bushels the potato business look mighty sweet to him.

How Destructive Are Fires?

DID YOU KNOW that every day 100 farm fires take the lives of 10 farmers—that one farm fire in 10 results in death?

DID YOU KNOW that the total fire loss this year will be about equal to the value of every productive acre and every farm building in the State of Washington?

DID YOU KNOW the farm fire loss this year would build 50,000 $2,000 barns?

DID YOU KNOW that forest fires this year will burn over an area as large as the State of New York, destroying enough timber to build 200,000 five-room homes?

DID YOU KNOW that the total estimated loss threatens to exceed $700 million, enough to give every man, woman, and child in the U. S. $5?

DID YOU KNOW you can prevent 90 per cent of all these fires by living sensibly . . . and being forever on the alert?

These facts are reported by the National Fire Protection Association in observance of Fire Prevention Week, October 7-13.

Harvesting time is about over and most farm machinery will be stored until next season. All farm implements should be brought in, cleaned, repaired, and painted. If implements are not painted, they should be cleaned thoroughly and all moving parts greased. The faces of plows and other cultivating implements should be covered with a heavy grease or rust preventive. After the cleaning and servicing job, the implements should be placed in the storage shed for protection from the weather.

Invisible Stitches

Shelby Seamstress
Fashions Masterpieces

DID you ever see a beautiful handmade garment and wonder how it was made or who made it? Well, there's an outside chance that it came from a small Shelby County community where a quiet unassuming mistress of the needle and thimble plies her art.

She is Mrs. E. A. Turner of Calcis, a small community near Harpersville.

One day, about 35 years ago, Mrs. Turner was reading the paper when a classified item caught her attention. "Some garment company wanted seamstresses to do specialized handstitching at home," she recalls. "So I answered the ad and began sewing."

It wasn't as simple as all that though. At first Mrs. Turner's work came back. It didn't meet requirements so she would have to do the job all over again, sometimes putting in hours and even days on a small job. But gradually, by studying techniques of successful sewing artists, she developed her own original style of stitching that is almost impossible to imitate.

For example, one of Mrs. Turner's specialties is invisible hemstitching. "It isn't exactly invisible," she explains, "it's just rolling and whipping with very small compact stitches." Anyway, it's awfully hard to find the stitches without a magnifying glass.

The Shelby County artist—the way she sews is definitely a fine art—has been sewing commercially since 1917. And during all those years she has turned out many a masterpiece.

Although she now does many kinds of special work including monogramming, apron making, and embroidering, making baby clothes is her favorite. Many of her patrons wouldn't think of getting the layette anywhere else when expecting a blessed event.

Probably the most amazing characteristic about Mrs. Turner is her keen eyesight. For 34 years she has done tedious, eye-straining work for several hours each day, yet she started wearing glasses only two years ago.

So the next time you see a handmade masterpiece perhaps you can see the neat and distinctive stitching that can only come from the talented needle of Mrs. Turner.

Permanent Pastures

deep sandy soils in the state and the gray lands of the Tennessee Valley showed the greatest need for potash while the acid soils of the Black Belt needed the least amount. In general, about 125 pounds of muriate of potash are needed for establishing and 50 to 75 pounds annually for maintaining clover pastures. The need for potash varies with the type of soil and specific recommendations should be obtained locally from the county agent.

The correct amounts of phosphate and potash can be obtained by using a mixed fertilizer such as 0-16-8 or 0-14-14. On most soils, results have been just as good by using higher rates every two or three years instead of the annual applications. This is particularly true of the heavier soils.

Properly fertilized permanent pastures are more productive, give earlier grazing, extend the grazing season, and return a greater profit on use of the land. Results have shown that as the fertility of the land is built up, the value of the pasture also goes up.

AN EXPERT AT WORK—Mrs. E. A. Turner, of Calcis, puts the finishing touches to a special handmade apron. The Shelby County home demonstration club member has been doing delicate needlework for almost 35 years. Her exclusive clientele reaches from New York to the Mississippi River.

Blackwell Kitchen Goes Modern

By LUCILLE HAWKINS
Morgan County Home Agent

KEEPING the four C's in mind, cleanliness, convenience, comfort, and cheerfulness, Mrs. G. A. Blackwell, of the Austinville Home Demonstration Club, has transformed her old-fashioned kitchen into a modern and convenient room.

Because so many home activities centered about their kitchen, Mr. and Mrs. Blackwell took several months making their plans and changes. They realized that good kitchens do not just happen but are achieved only through careful planning.

A chimney in the center of one wall with a door to one side which opened into a bedroom constituted their biggest problem. It was decided to petition across the entire wall thereby forming a closet for the bedroom on one side and a storage closet which opened into the kitchen on the other side of the chimney. All the old fixtures were removed so that the floor could be sanded and covered with rubber tile of beige with a green border. Yellow wainscoting tile with black trim and light green paper was used on the wall.

Because of dining space and doors, the refrigerator, stove, and new sink were placed in an L shape. Cabinets were installed with adjustable shelves, roll away room drawers, and floor and meal bins.

The sink is a double compartment piece with swing spout and spray with plenty of storage space underneath. Cabinet tops are of black customized with stainless steel finish. To complete the L, an automatic washer and a built-in ironing board were installed, making both washing and ironing a pleasure.

A green and white table and chairs were put in the dining area of the kitchen. Two red whatnots also add a cheerful note in the room.

The curtains finish off the attractive room. They are of white organdy with a stenciled vine of green leaves with small red and yellow flowers.

Mrs. Blackwell is completely happy with her new kitchen and feels that all of the long hours of planning and work were well spent. Her kitchen is a model for other homemakers to follow.

Research Results

in brief
from A.P.I. AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION

DIXIE 18 HYBRID CORN has had consistently fewer weevils at harvest and after several months of storage in the shuck than varieties with poor husk cover, such as U. S. 13. For minimum damage from weevils, supplies of the most susceptible corn varieties should be used first as the least susceptible varieties will withstand longer storage.

HALF OF THE RURAL FAMILIES that sell eggs in Alabama sell them only once a week and a third sell at even less frequent intervals, according to a recent study of egg marketing methods. Most Alabama farm-produced eggs are seven to 10 days old when sold; thus, buyers often receive an inferior product, and producers often get a low price for their eggs.

NEW PONDS STOCKED WITH BLUEGILLS during October have given best results. The bluegill bream grows most rapidly in Alabama ponds during October and November in the fall and March to May in the spring. Bass are added in early spring.

WILD FIRES KILL SMALL TREES and leave unproductive open spots in a forest. What is less noticeable, they scorch large trees at the base of the trunk and invite rot to enter. On experimental plots burned repeatedly, over 90 per cent of large trees are rotten at the base. They occupy growing space and waste it by not producing sound wood.

FARM PONDS WILL PRODUCE GOOD FISHING during the winter months if fish are baited at one spot in the pond, beginning about the first of October. Approximately one pound of bread, soybean cake, or cottonseed cake should be fed several times weekly at a convenient place to fish and where the water is about 5 feet deep.

JERUSALEM ARTICHOKEs grown about the home for human consumption should not be harvested until they are to be used. When taken from the soil, they usually shrivel and spoil within a short time. If allowed to remain in the soil, they are more likely to stay sound over winter.

RESEARCH WITH FLOWERING ANNUALS at Auburn has shown that a wide choice, including the following commonly desired ones, may be safely planted in late October or early November for effective spring flowering: bachelor's button, calandula, calliopis, candytuft, dianthus, gailardia, larkspur, pansy, Drummond Phlox, Star Phlox, California Poppy, stock, sweet-peas, snapdragon, and verbena.

CHINESE CHESTNUTS MAY BE PRESERVED by curing the nuts for a few days, shelling, processing in open jars for 20 minutes in steam under 10 pounds pressure per square inch and sealing. Chestnuts may also be kept by heating for 10 minutes in steam under 10 pounds pressure per square inch and freezing. The life of a chestnut is short when stored under natural conditions without processing.

Senior High School Students Have Only 4 Days To Register

Senior High School students who are interested in the valuable prizes to be given away through the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce for information pertaining to the county, have only until Monday, Oct. 15th, to fill out the blanks which enable them to enter the contest.

Many valuable prizes, among which is a television set, gold watch, one-hundred seventy five dollars in Defense Bonds, one-hundred gallons of gasoline, free annual, semi-annual and quarterly pass to Clanton Drive-In Theatre, and others, will be given to the senior high school student who sends in the most complete report on the county's assets which would encourage industry to settle here.

Blanks with all the information required will be furnished by the Superintendent of Education office. Closing date of the contest is December 7th.

Notice To Gas Pipe Fitters and Plumbers

We have been rather liberal, and possibly lax, in requiring strict compliance with the rule and law of making installations for use of Natural Gas and Plumbing. There has been and is yet great demand for your work, and we desired very much not to unnecessarily delay your progress in meeting this demand. However, this is to kindly advise you that beginning October 15, a thorough inspection will be made of your work and if found defective the job will be rejected.

You are required, by law, to have a license before doing this class of work. Gas Pipe Fitters must file with the City Clerk a $2.50 bond furnished by a responsible surety company. Work performed by a gas pipe fitter without a bond will not be accepted. I am sure, as good citizens, you will comply with the law, and cooperate with the city officials in our effort to give our people the very best water and gas system possible.

We are asking the people to first ascertain from the City Clerk if the person offering to do the work for them is qualified, if he has license to do plumbing, and license and a bond to do gas fitting. This is a protection to honest workmen who live in Clanton. Any one failing to comply with the law are subject to a heavy penalty.

Respectfully,
C. Fenn Jones, Mayor

Clanton Elementary P.T.A. Sponsoring Drive For Sidewalk

The Clanton Elementary School Parent-Teachers Association is sponsoring a project to build a sidewalk from the school to the highway in cooperation with the City and the property owners. The traffic along this street is very heavy just before school dismisses. Immediately after the school dismisses the children are now forced to walk in the street along with the traffic, not to mention the mud in bad weather. The P.T.A. is hoping for further improvement to the street to care for the increased traffic that has occurred in recent years. The P.T.A. is asking the City to make a careful study of the traffic situation and to place a traffic light or other regulations deemed necessary for this hazardous intersection at the highway.

Mr. U. H. Abrams is chairman of this committee, with Mrs. Clifford Traywick, Mrs. L. H. Blanton and Mrs. R. C. Williams serving with him.

Clanton Tromps Wetumpka In First Win Of Season

On Friday night, the Clanton Tigers walked over the Wetumpka Indians in a 23 to 7 victory. In the first quarter of play Earl Smith went 15 yards around right end for Clanton, and the game's first touchdown. Blankenship for the Indians racked up their first T. D. by running 55 yards around left end. The game tied up 7 to 7 with Lawrence (Tigers) and Knight (Indians) kicking the extra points.

This ended Wetumpka's scoring but it did not end their fighting spirit. The Tigers had a tough time of it. Tom Frank Scott went over right tackle for the Tigers and Lawrence failed to kick the extra point. The game ended the first half with Clanton leading by 6 points.

No one connected during the 3rd quarter but in the beginning of the 4th quarter a pass of 30 yards from Blair to Smith made the score a little safer looking for Clanton. In the last few minutes of the game and on Wetumpka's 4th down the Indians tried a sneak pass that backfired. Joe Popwell playing line backer cuddled and ed 60 yards up the field for Clanton's interception under his arm and crisscrossed 4th T. D. The game ended 25-7 and the Tigers really raised a yell for their first win of the season and are fairly confident in themselves about the game this week.

The game this week will be against Montevallo and will be played on the local field.

Game starts at 7:30.

Rochester Post-Bulletin Carries Story Of Local Men

An item clipped from the Rochester, Minn., Post-Bulletin of October 2nd, should be of interest to Clanton and Chilton County Readers:

TIMES-AND PRICES—HAVE CHANGED HERE, ALABAMA MEN FIND

The son of an Alabama man who visited here 45 years ago, dropped into the Post-Bulletin office yesterday with a letter from his father telling of hotel prices that prevailed here in 1906.

William A. Reynolds of Clanton, Ala., 81-year-old real estate man, wrote his son, Hoyt B. Reynolds, who is in business with his father in Clanton, that when he was here he stayed at the Cook Hotel for $60 a month room and board, American plan. "I got the best service I ever had before or since," the elder Mr. Reynolds said. The Cook Hotel, which was torn down a couple of years ago, stood at the corner of Broadway and Second street SW.

Negro Jailed After Killing Of Wife And Small Daughter

Sam Howard is in county jail charged with the murder of his wife, Mariah Howard, and small daughter, Elizabeth. A three months old baby, Dianne, was also injured when Howard, during a family argument grabbed a 22 automatic rifle and shot to death his wife and daughter.

The tragedy took place Saturday night last, at their home in West End. While the Sheriff's Deputies were searching for Howard he surrendered to State Highway Patrolmen at county jail.

Dodge To Be Presented By Polk Brothers In Mid November

The 1952 Dodge car will be introduced in mid-November, it was announced today by W. M. Polk of the Polk Brothers Motor Co., Clanton, Ala. Mr. Polk has just returned from a regional dealers meeting at Birmingham where plans were made for the 1952 model year.

"The new Dodge will be better than ever", Mr. Polk said. "It will have attractive changes inside and out, and there will be a new type of heat reducing and glare reducing window glass as an optional feature at a very low extra cost. All 1952 models will be available with Gyro-Matic time-proven transmission.

"With all the refinements and improvements this car is going to have I think the 1952 model will be the biggest value car Dodge has ever built," he said.

He said he expected to have the new cars in his showrooms sometime in mid-November and would begin demonstration rides for the public immediately following the first showing.

NOTICE!

The Fidelis Sunday School Class of The First Baptist Church of Clanton, will meet Monday, Oct. 15, at 7:30 p.m. in the basement of the church with Mrs. J. B. Atkinson hostess. An interesting program has been planned. All members please attend.

Addressed Lions At Recent Meeting

AUBREY D. GREEN

Aubrey D. Green, York, District Governor of District 34-B, Lions International, addressed the Clanton Lions Club at their regular meeting on Oct. 4th. He stated that the Lions organization had become the largest service club organization in the world, and that today's problems throughout the world provided a challenge to the Lions to uphold the ideals of Lionism in keeping with its slogan, "Liberty, Intelligence, Our Nations Safety". The District Governor praised most highly the activities of the Clanton Lions Club, pointing out the many benefits the people of the area had received through the efforts of the Clanton Lions Club. President of the local club C. R. Morrison. Among the projects sponsored by the Clanton Lions Club have been sight conservation, safety patrol, annual horse show and many others.

CELEBRATES FOURTH BIRTHDAY THURSDAY

Linda Gale is four years old and she celebrated the occasion with a party on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 4th, at the home of her mother, Mrs. Mack Littlejohn at 1016, 2nd Ave. N. Clanton. Inflated balloons in many bright colors dangled from the ceiling and the chandelier of the dining room. The dining table held the beautiful birthday cake of white embossed in pink roses with just a touch of green, bearing the inscription, "Happy Birthday Gale". Miniature baskets filled with candy and surprise gifts wrapped in pink and blue paper were for each little guest. The little honoree got a big thrill as she opened the gift wrapped packages brought by her little friends. There was lots of fun playing the games Mrs. Littlejohn had planned. As the birthday cake was cut, the guests sang Happy Birthday to Gale.

Ice cream and cake was served to the following: Billy and Sharon Williams, Billy Wayne and Jimmy Hardman, Pat Henry, John Edward Sanson, Fran Smith, Ray Mims, Lynn and Theda Windham, Wayne and Allen Headley, Emily Abernathy, Douglas Collins, Jerry and Perry Fulman, and Doris Tyndal.

LAYMAN'S DAY AT CONCORD

Next Sunday, Oct. 14, will be layman's day at Concord Baptist church. The laymen of the church will conduct the morning worship service without the help of the pastor. We will have a male choir with a male Quartette to render special music. Bill Taylor will serve as master of program instead of the pastor, Carl McDowell will speak on "My Church and it's Finances", Allie Easterling will speak on "My Church and it's Prayer Life", Latham C. (Pete) Wilson will speak on "My Church and it's Bible Study". We want all the men and boys of the Church, and all the men and boys who visit with us on that day to come and occupy the front seats. The pastor will act as one of the ushers and will do his best to make you comfortable and to feel welcome. We will do our best to make this truly a man's service that will honor God.

We invite you to worship with us Sunday and meet one of the finest of all churches in spirit, in love and in truth.

REGULAR MONTHLY MEETING CHAMBER OF COMMERCE THURSDAY NIGHT 8 O'CLOCK

The regular monthly meeting of the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce will be held Thursday night of this week at the City Hall.

Time of the meeting is 8 o'clock and all members, prospective members and friends of the Chamber are urged to attend.

OCTOBER MEETING OF HIGH SCHOOL P.T.A.

The Chilton County High School P.T.A. held their regular meeting in the library of the school Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. James Parr presided, calling the meeting to order introducing Rev. J. M. McKinney, who brought the devotional message.

The program chairman, Mrs. R. M. Tucker, presented a group of girls from the girls C. C. Club, who gave a very delightful and enlightening program.

Led by the president of the club, Miss Judith Ann Williams, the group, Lenore Oglesby, Ruby Nell Crew, Nanette Nivens, Alice Deramus and Joan Scott, gave a round-table discussion on "Training Youth For Responsible Citizenship". Another member, Miss Bobby Gray, gave a lovely piano solo.

The program was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

DIFFICULT FEEDING PROBLEM

STEP TOWARD TYRANNY

President Truman has just put into the hands of all federal officials a favorite weapon of tyranny — the power to censor. He undoubtedly believes this in necessary for security reasons, and he declares it is not censorship. But it is the power to censor.

In extending to other departments of government the authority—hitherto exercised only by the Defense and State Departments—to withhold information on security grounds he is opening the way to serious abuses. He recognizes that there is danger, for he warns officials that the purpose is to keep information out of the hands of potential enemies, not to "withhold non-security information or to cover up mistakes made by any official."

But what adequate means are provided for preventing these very abuses? The chief damage may be done by officials who merely wish to "play it safe." But if one should wish to "cover up," what chance has the public or the press of preventing him? Mr. Truman rejected a proposal to permit appeal to the courts against an official's refusal to give information.

Bureaucratic government has been growing apace. The complexities of modern society and political pressures have led to a situation where administrative agencies enjoy very great discretionary and arbitrary power. Their decrees are "law" for multitudes. These agencies already exercise one form of control over information—they have an army of public relations officers to give out a favorable account of their activities. To hand them power also to clamp the lid on unfavorable facts is indeed dangerous.

The scandals now coming to light in connection with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Internal Revenue Bureau underscore the point. They lift a corner of the curtain on continuing efforts to influence official actions by gifts and political pressure. Surely there are ways to tighten legitimate security requirements without taking this long step—unconscious that it may be—toward tyranny.—Christian Science Monitor.

A VALID PROTEST

Senator Robert S. Kerr (D) of Oklahoma can be applauded for his protest of plans by the Atomic Energy Commission to open a retail liquor store in one of the buildings at the Los Alamos, N. M., Atomic Energy Plant. His protest also asserts that similar stores are to be opened at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

The AEC has a rule against drinking on the job. The contradiction in effect between this rule and the AEC offering a concession for the sale of liquor on its own premises is apparent. Yet the AEC would receive a percentage of the gross sales.

Senator Kerr further notes that churches and other worthy institutions have a hard time obtaining material for building purposes, while the AEC would use critical materials in a new building for the selling of liquor.

Some residents of Los Alamos and Oak Ridge may argue that intoxicants should be no less accessible to them than in other towns of those states, but any inconvenience on this score is not an unreasonable adjunct of government employment on specialized work. And the senator's statement is well grounded that the AEC (or any other government agency) "has no business in the liquor business."—Christian Science Monitor

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

We certainly know what Mr. Samuels was talking about last week when he mentioned motorists stopping in the highway and streets of Clanton to talk, or apparently sometimes, for nothing at all. This, mind you, without a signal of any kind. Delivery trucks from Birmingham and Montgomery are especially bad about this. No doubt on occasion, there is need to stop on the streets when there is no parking space available, but the least a motorist could do is to signal his, or her, intentions to the driver following so that he could be prepared to act accordingly. It is impossible to understand the rudeness and thought of some motorists.

Mrs. Cecil (Amy) Murrah, has returned to her desk at Chilton County News. She replaces Mrs. R. M. Tucker who has done the office work since Mrs. Charles (Hazel) Cox, resigned to accept a position with Selective Service last Spring. Mrs. Murrah has had several years experience in newspaper work having been employed at the News some five years ago. We welcome her to the force and hope she will enjoy her stay with us here.

While our local Chilton County Chamber of Commerce is busy promoting new ideas to get industry into our county wouldn't it be a good idea, also, to promote a weekly Chamber of Commerce "stunt" for attracting more people from the trade area? What's more it could be accomplished with practically no investment and create more business, probably, than some industry.

The parking lot, or that is, the lot that has been used for parking, between John Studdards Service Station and the Chilton County News, isn't so popular any more. Several cars lately have been banged up on that pricing lot and those who parked there are hunting other places to park their automobile. Friday a car started at the top of the hill and banged Wendie Murrah's car, knocking it against Willie Claud Baker's car, denting four fenders in all, before you could say, "sorry, no brakes." The lot is a gentle slope but when a car starts rolling down that gentle slope it isn't gentle any more. There's plenty room, however, on the lot behind the News. Course you'll have to take third row, front. They're already two deep out there.

Rev. James Baker on Clanton Route 5 has a hen that is a hen. Week before last she laid him an egg within an egg. The thing was a whopper and had a complete egg that is, a white and a yolk in the big egg surrounding a complete smaller egg which also contained a white and a yolk. The whole thing, we know, is confusing but that's the way it was and if you want it straighter you'll have to contact Rev. James Baker's hen.

Did you hear about the fellow who had been married for 25 years and went to his boss to ask the day off for the celebration? His boss told him, "No. You see we can't make a habit of that sort of thing. When you are married 50 years you'd want another day off to celebrate that anniversary."

When his health began to fail, an easterner decided to go west to the wide open spaces. In a small town in Arizona, he approached an old man sitting on the steps of a local store: "Say, what's the death rate around here," he asked. "Same as it is back east, brother. One to a person."

U. S. EMPLOYMENT DROPS WHEN STUDENTS RETURN TO CLASSES

With the return to the classroom of students holding summer jobs, United States employment in September dropped below August, according to the latest Census Bureau figures released today by District Supervisor, Mary L. Griffin.

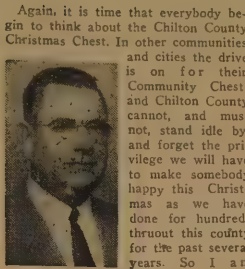

Estimated at 61,580,000 in the week ending September 8, total civilian employment was about one million under the August level. Non-agricultural employment fell to 54,054,000 in September from 54,942,000 in August. Agricultural employment, estimated at 7,526,000 in September, showed relatively little change from August.

Unemployment, estimated at 1,606,000 in September, remained almost unchanged in total from the previous month.

Today's report is based on information collected in the Current Population Survey which is condensed every month by the Census Bureau in Chilton-Perry Area and in 67 other areas throughout the country. The October survey will be carried out in this area during the week of October 15.

The Christmas Chest

A. T. HICKMAN dropping this thought in plenty of time to cause every one to think about this all important matter.

Jimmie Bell, who is Chairman of the Christmas Chest, says that he is soon to get the ball rolling for the biggest and the best, all-out, Christmas Chest drive that this county has ever had. And believe me, Jimmie is the very man to do just that. He is a man who has the welfare of others at heart. He is a good citizen of this city, and county; also a good Kiwanian, and he has flowing through his blood streams just what it will take to do a fine job with our Christmas Chest program. Very soon now, we will hear the Bell ringing the Christmas bell, and it will be time for every good neighbor of this county to fall right in line with his program to make Chilton County Christmas Chest the biggest, and the best.

Chairman Bell says, "We are going to make it more 'county-wide' than ever before. This is to be done on two features; first, county-wide with the contributions, and then county-wide on the distributions. We think this to be a good idea. For the past few years hundreds of boxes of valuable gifts went into almost every nook and corner of Chilton County; these boxes met a great need. They made people happy because of receiving something they needed and wanted otherwise they would not have had. Hundreds of children's hearts were filled with joy, had it not been for the good neighbors of Chilton County, and the Christmas Chest, their eyes would have been filled with tears. Now is the time to start laying aside something for our own Chilton County Christmas Chest program. Within a few weeks now, Jimmie Bell, Chairman, will start the all-out drive. Everybody be ready, when he says, "Go," let us be ready."

Difficult To Change Acquired Personality

KATHERINE HAYS, Cambridge, Mass., began worrying at the age of seven, and with reason. Her parents separated and she went to live with an aunt. Shortly after her parents' separation, she was told by her mother that one day she would be called into court to tell a judge which parent she wanted to live with. This troubled her young mind no end, for she loved both parents and she had never admitted even to herself which parent she preferred.

Carnegie

So she tossed about in her sleep at night wondering how she would settle this weighty matter. Young as she was she knew it would affect her entire future. Both parents would want her, and she was bewildered about the decision she had to make. It would be better, she thought, if neither of them wanted her. That gave her an idea. She would be so naughty and so disagreeable that no one would really want her. She went to work on this idea and was as successful as she had hoped to be.

By and by, she was dubbed a problem child and was packed off to boarding school where she became very unpopular with the other pupils. More than that, every teacher there looked at her askance and seemed glad when rid of her. Of course, she was a very unhappy little girl.

But this attitude of hers continued until she was 15 years old. Then her father died and her conscience began to trouble her. She wanted her mother's love, but her mother didn't seem to understand her. And she yearned for friends.

Shortly after her father's death, she learned that the divorce had been granted her parents soon after their separation. Then she realized that all her worry over the important decision had been for nothing. She had not been called into court. She realized, too, that both parents had loved her and wanted to save her from all unhappiness.

Now she set about to undo what she had done, to gain her mother's confidence, and to make friends among her classmates. She watched the other children and attempted to emulate the happy ones. She found that little acts of friendship worked. But it was a hard pull and she says that even now, after 20 years, she still finds she has to struggle to undo what became so ingrained in her nature.

HEMORRHOIDS

Hemorrhoids, or piles, are enlarged veins, like varicose veins in the leg. They occur in two forms, external and internal, depending on whether they develop on the inside or outside of the muscular ring at the outlet of the bowel. Frequently, because of false modesty, hemorrhoids will be neglected until the pain becomes intolerable or bleeding excessive.

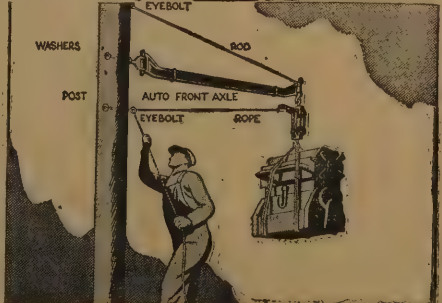

Internal hemorrhoids may bleed or protrude or do both; while external ones may be noticed by the sudden appearance of a painful swelling, varying in size from that of a pea to a cherry. They often come in suddenly with a sharp stinging pain after coughing, lifting or other straining and are in appearance much like blood blisters.

Many causes account for hemorrhoids, but any condition which interferes with the flow of the blood in the vessels surrounding the rectal area may be responsible. An extremely sedentary or inactive life may cause them; constipation is often a factor as in the excessive use of laxatives and cathartics. People who are on their feet for long periods of time may develop the condition, and very often the condition is associated with pregnancy.

Persons suffering with hemorrhoids are the targets for quacks and vendors of ointments guaranteed to cure. There are various ointments that may relieve the trouble temporarily, but they do not cure the condition. Suppositories are of even less value than salves and ointments because they melt and lose contact with the protrusion.

Various electrical treatments are used, some of which are of value and some are not. And then too they are not always painless as claimed and serious hemorrhage may follow. In some instances good results may be obtained by injecting certain medicines into the hemorrhoids, but when this procedure is used the condition quite commonly recurs.

Generally internal hemorrhoids should be removed surgically. When this is well done, the results are usually permanent and satisfactory. Surgery alone must be used in treating externals hemorrhoids.

CIRCLE NUMBER TWO MET WITH MRS. PAUL MURRAY

Circle No. 2 met with Mrs. Paul Murray Monday afternoon. The meeting was opened with the Lord's Prayer led by the chairman, Mrs. G. T. Murphree. The minutes were read and dues were paid, collected by Secretary and Treasurer, Mrs. A. B. Windham. Business was discussed and the circle was visited by Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Niblett to discuss plans for the bazaar. A donation was given to help one of Clanton's less fortunate who is unable to work. An interesting program was given. Reading of the scripture and the topic of Friendship was discussed by Mrs. S. A. Jones. Jacob and the Well was discussed by Mrs. G. T. Murphree; Foreign problems by Mrs. Lucille Bean and Home problems by Mrs. B. N. Studdard. The circle was dismissed with prayer. Sandwiches, cake and tea were served by the lovely hostess, Mrs. Paul Murray, to the following: Mesdames Lucille Bean, L. C. Bean, G. T. Murphree, B. N. Studdard, S. A. Jones and Mrs. A. B. Windham. The circle will meet in November with Mrs. S. A. Jones.

CIRCLE NUMBER ONE MET WITH MRS. HOLLIS JACKSON

Circle No. 1 met at the home of Mrs. Hollis Jackson on Monday afternoon with ten members and three guests present. Mrs. Joe Edgar presided over the business session. Mrs. Minnie Brown was elected treasurer for the remainder of the year, and Mrs. Wilbanks was elected coupon chairman. Mrs. O. D. DeLoach was in charge of the program. And during the program Mrs. Houston Nivens gave a very beautiful meditation. A very interesting discussion on Prayer week which will be October 23-31, was held. After the program the hostess, Mrs. Hollis Jackson, served refreshments to the following members: Mesdames Omar Reynolds, T. C. McSwain, Burt Miami, O. D. DeLoach, H. H. Glenn, Florence Wilbanks, Minnie Brown, Joe Edgar and Annie Ree Traywick. The guests were Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Niblett, and Mrs. Houston Nivens.

CHILTON COUNTY OFFICE
STATE OF ALABAMA
Department of Veterans' Affairs
Cohen E. Stapp
County Service Officer

The Chilton County office is operated for the benefit of Veterans of all wars, members and non-members of all Veterans' organizations and dependents of veterans. In addition to work with the veterans of the county, your service officer has aided the dependents of many of the men, who are now in service, in preparation of information relative to allotments for the dependents.

During the period from October 1, 1950, to October 1, 1951, we have interviewed and rendered service to some 1900 claimants at the Clanton Veterans' Affairs Office. These services included preparing affidavits and filing 183 claims for compensation and or pensions; 65 death claims and 17 burial allowance claims; Arranging for hospitalization of 96 veterans and securing authorization for local medical and dental treatment of some 127 veterans.

We helped secure 233 births, marriage and death certificates for the veterans and their dependents when the certificates were needed in the processing of claims through the Veterans Administration. 154 veterans were aided in qualifying for training under the G. I. Bill of Rights; 1433 letters were written and 451 affidavits were prepared and notarized for veterans or their dependents in our county office during the past year. Many of these affidavits pertained to allotments and were made for dependents of boys who are in service now.

We aided veterans in getting $75,000.00 of National Service Life Insurance re-instated and $28,000.00 of term insurance converted to permanent plans.

It is very difficult to say specifically what monetary returns the county office was responsible for bringing to veterans and their dependents in the county during the past year, but we know the figure is many thousands of dollars. This money has been awarded through the Veterans Administration by the Congress of the United States. Our office has been of much help to many veterans who are not familiar with intricate government forms.

The county veterans' affairs service officer has taken an active part in civic affairs of the county. Presently he is serving as service officer of Clanton Post 6 of the American Legion, Steward and assistant Superintendent in the Methodist Church, Chairman of the Agricultural Committee of Clanton County Chamber of Commerce, Chairman of the County Red Cross Blood Donor Recruiting Committee, member of the Board of Directors of the Huse Committee of the Clanton Kiwanis Club.

ROBINSON SPRINGS BAPTIST

We will have our regular Sunday School next Sunday, and prayer meeting Sunday night. We hope to have preaching also. Everyone is invited to come and be with us. A number of our members attended the Good Samaritan Baptist Association at Carroll County, Ga., at Cross Plains Church, Oct. 5, 6, 7. Those attending were our pastor, Rev. SHOULTS NEWS

Rites for Miss Fannie Moore—

Last Saturday morning at 11:00 o'clock funeral services for Miss Fannie Moore were conducted at Pleasant Grove Baptist Church No. 2, by the pastor, Rev. Joe Davis. Rev. Evan Johnson pastor of Maplesville Baptist Church and Rev. Paul Oden of Clanton, with burial in the adjoining cemetery, with Speigner Funeral Home in charge.

Miss Moore was 70 years old. At the time of her death she had been living with her nieces and nephews, the children of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McAfee, with whom she made her home until their death several years past. Her death occurred while visiting with her niece, Mrs. Sara Mitchell, at Maplesville. She was ill for only a few days.

Everyone who knew Miss Moore loved her, for she was kind and sweet, a devout Christian woman who loved her church. The Pleasant Grove Baptist. She will be greatly missed. We extend to her loved ones our deepest sympathy in their bereavement.

Miss Moore is survived by one sister, Mrs. Lena Belvin of Lawley; two half-sisters, Mrs. Adell Harrison of Selma, and Mrs. Lilly Frith of Woodstock, Ala.; four brothers, Mr. Noah Moore of Albany, Ga., Mrs. Otis Moore, Mike Moore and Huey Moore of Lawley.

Serving as pallbearers were grand-nephews of the deceased; with grand-nieces as flower girls.

Goings and Comings—

Tech. Sgt. and Mrs. Charles Shoults and two children of Selma were here last week visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Shoults. Sgt. Shoults has been transferred from Craig Air Force Base to an Air Force Base in Denver, Colo. His family will join him there as soon as he is able to find a house.

M-Sgt. and Mrs. Otis Moore and three children of Ft. Benning, Ga., were here last week-end to attend the funeral of his aunt, Miss Fannie Moore.

The Shoults Home Demonstration Club met last week with Mrs. George Shoults. Our new agent, Miss Crocker, will resign her work here to be married and Miss Wright will take over the Club work. It seems that if any young lady wants to get married, get a job as Home Demonstration Agent. We extend to Miss Crocker our best wishes.

Tech.-Sgt. Lindsey McAfee who has been in Korea for nearly 15 months, was given a leave to come back to the States due to the illness and death of his aunt, Miss Moore. Reports are that he will not return to Korea, and will be assigned to an Air Force Base here.

Visiting here last week-end with Mrs. John Foshee (Ollie Shoults) was her sister, Carrie, and husband from Flint, Mich. Sorry we did not learn their name. She was before her marriage, Miss Carrie Lawrence.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Lee Smith and baby of Piper, Ala., were recent visitors here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Smith.

S-Sgt. and Mrs. Layden Hicks, two children of Craig Air Force Base at Selma visited here last week with their mother, Mrs. Willie Hathcock, before Sgt. Hicks left for Denver, Colo., where he is now stationed. His family will join him there soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Shoults received word last week from their son, Sgt. Allan Shoults, of Randolph AFB, Texas, that he was recently married to a Texas girl. They were married in the First Baptist Church in San Antonio, Texas. We didn't learn the full details of the wedding. We wish for them many years of happiness.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Shoults spent a few days this week, in Selma with their daughter-in-law and children, Mrs. Charles Shoults. Little Vicki Shoults had her tonsils removed Monday of this week.

Tech. Sgt. and Mrs. Philip Hicks and son, Corky, spent several days last week here with relatives. They were en route from Craig Air Base, Selma, to Moody Air Base, Valdosta, Ga., where Sgt. Hicks is now stationed.

Mr. Willard Lawley of Bessemer is spending a few days here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lawley. Mr. and Mrs. Quinton Mitchell and Mrs. Willie Hathcock spent Sunday at Forest Homes, Selma, with their daughter and sister-in-law, Mrs. Layden Hicks. Mrs. Hicks is soon to leave Selma to join her husband in Denver, Colo.

It's a Girl—

Mr. and Mrs. Felton Shoults of Flint, Mich., formerly of this community, announce the arrival of a fine baby girl last week. Felton is the son of the late Mr. Brooks Shoults.

The people of this community are very happy and grateful for the work now underway on the road through this community. We will soon have a much better road. However, it is unfortunate that one land owner of this community will not permit the road supervisor to cut through a very dangerous curve on his land which caused a wreck a few months past injuring several persons. It is beyond our imagination how any good citizen could be so unconcerned about making a community road safe for the public, making a community more progressive and more beautiful. A committee of men should condemn these curves as the law provides and straighten these curves in our roads. Everyone hopes that

This 1/2-ton pickup will never let you down!

Model L-110, 115-in. wheelbase, 614-ft. International pickup body 4,200 lbs. GVW. Pickups in L-120 and L-30 Series offer 127 and 134-in. wheelbases, 8 and 9-ft. bodies, GVW's to 8,600 lbs. Specifications subject to change without notice.

When you choose an International pickup—you're picking a truck that will never let you down.

Like every one of International's 115 basic models, this 1/2-ton pickup gives extra long life, operating economy, and greater riding comfort.

Features that pay off on performance include the new Silver Diamond valve-in-head engine. Built for a steady diet of heavy work, it has a beautiful balance of pep and power... is designed to cut engine operating and maintenance costs.

A steel flex frame combines greater strength for heavier loads with the right flexibility for the roughest roads.

And in the COMFO-VISION cab, you get "the roomiest on the road". Deep-cushioned seats give firm support. "Sweep-sight" windshield gives a full view of the road. Longer, stronger "cradle-action" springs cushion you over the bumps.

Come in and get the full story about International pickups. Or if you need multi-stop delivery trucks specialized to fit your business—ask us about Internationals with Metro or panel bodies. Whatever your hauling problem, we can give you an International Truck to do it better, at lower cost.

STANTON NEWS

MISS RUTH HICKS

Mr. Frank Reynolds and his sister, Mrs. Mattie Blehl, visited Valley Creek Cemetery last Friday afternoon. They recalled many happy memories at the old Valley Creek school house and when entering the cemetery went to every grave; read the name of those buried there and commented on members of each of the families resting there. They told where their parents had lived there; the house in which Mr. Frank Reynolds having been born very near the cemetery. Mrs. Blehl being born at Mrs. Shelby Barnes' home place now, however, the house was blown away in the tornado in '32. Mrs. Blehl attended her first school at Valley Creek and had not returned to this section in many years. She commented several times during the drive to Valley Creek that so many of the roads, houses, etc., looked just as they used to look. She seemed happy and surprised to find so many memories unchanged.

On this afternoon they stopped by and visited with their childhood relatives and friends and school mates. Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Gay. This was indeed a happy visit. Mr. and Mrs. Gay have lived in that section through all the years and if there is any information that they can supply regarding Ole' Valley Creek it is a real joy to them. Many seek their information and their knowledge of those that have lived in and around that section.

Rev. and Mrs. Joe Davis went to Center Hill, near Jemison, Sunday where Rev. Davis filled the pulpit at both morning and evening services. This was the first of his messages at this church since he accepted as pastor of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Hicks and family of Birmingham, spent the week-end with Rev. and Mrs. Joe Davis. Rev. and Mrs. Davis had the real joy of having all their children with them for the day last Saturday with the exception of Mr. Herman Davis and family of Scottsboro, Ala.

Mrs. Rush Burnett, Mary Frances and Kenneth went to Montgomery over the week-end to visit with relatives there. Mr. Rush Burnett motored down for the day Sunday and the family returned home with him.

Miss Vera and Irene Atchison from Selma, spent the week-end with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Atchison. Mr. Joe Friday, father of Mrs. Manley Parnell and Mrs. Hershal Parnell, underwent an appendix operation in a Selma hospital several days ago. Mr.

in celebration of his birthday. Mr. McFarland hasn't been enjoying good health recently.

The P-T-A met October 1st, with the president, Mrs. Jimmie Green, in charge. A large crowd attended this meeting. Mrs. Alma Huff's school children had charge of the program which was enjoyable. Rev. Edmund Crowe led the devotional. Guest speakers were Mrs. Georgia Billingsley and Miss Louise Foshee of Bapleville. Refreshments of cookies and Coca Colas were served by the teachers of the school.

The P-T-A will sponsor a chicken supper at the Stanton Jr. High School October 24th, (Wednesday night). Plates are 50c each with an additional 5c for drink and 10c for dessert. This supper will start at 6 p.m. There will be additional entertainment during the evening. (This entertainment is in the charge of the Entertainment Committee). These chicken suppers are always something to look forward to as Stanton School is known afar for the good chicken they serve at these suppers. The public is cordially invited.

P-T-A meets 1st Monday night in each month. Parents of every child in school are urged to attend these meetings. Your president wants every mother present at these meetings and certainly wants each of them to take a part in the P-T-A.

Mrs. Mary Benton is secretary of the P-T-A. If you are not a member send your 50c to Mrs. Benton and join your local P-T-A. They need your co-operation and support.

Thomas M. Rasberry, a native of Chilton County, who was connected with the mining industry in Jefferson County for many years, died at an advanced age at an early hour Saturday morning at 802 Church Street, Selma.

Mr. Rasberry was reared near Stanton where he has a family connection. Surviving are three daughters and 3 sons.

Funeral services were held at 2 p.m. Sunday from the Stanton Baptist Church. The body lay in state from 1:30 p.m. to the funeral hour. Interment followed in the Stanton Cemetery. Braslin Service directing.

Surviving children are: Mrs. Lena May McGraw Clanton; Miss Lucy Rasberry; Miss Helena Rasberry; Clyde C. Rasberry; Percy C. Rasberry and William LeGrande Rasberry, all of Birmingham.

Friends of Dr. Eugene Callaway will be glad to learn that he is showing some signs of improvement in the Vaughn Memorial Hospital, Selma, where he has been critically ill the past week.

Dallas County Road Commissioner, Tom Martin, Jr., has been admitted to the Selma Baptist Hospital after having been confined to his home with mumps for several days. We wish for him a speedy recovery.

A turkey supper with all the trimmings was held at the home of Mrs. Jim W. Gay last Tuesday night. Those enjoying this courtesy were Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Pierson and Gary of Plantersville; Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Eiland of Selma; Mr. and Mrs. William Gay and Martha Lynn of Plantersville. Of interest in this and adjoining communities is the announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Patricia Guthrie to Cadet Gary E. Sparks of Craig Air Force Base. Miss Guthrie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Guthrie of Plantersville, where she is a student in the Dallas County High School. Cadet Sparks is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Sparks of Keokuk, Iowa.

The wedding of the couple will be an event of October 28th following by two days the graduation of Cadet Sparks from the pilot training school at Craig Field. The ceremony will take place in the late afternoon in the Methodist Church at Plantersville.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Gay (Lou Ella Fulford) and children of Birmingham, spent the week-end with their

SURVEY OF ALL SCHOOL ATTENDANCE TO BE MADE IN OCTOBER

Current information regarding national school enrollment will be obtained in October as part of the Census Bureau's Current Population Survey, according to District Supervisor, Mary L. Griffin. A similar survey last year revealed a record number of 30 million persons, ranging from five to 29 years old, enrolled in school or college in October, Miss Griffin said.

The questions on school enrollment will provide information on the number of persons attending schools of all kinds, including kindergartens, elementary and high schools, colleges, and trade and other special schools. Information resulting from the survey will provide facts for measuring the need for new school facilities. Miss Griffin pointed out. Only national figures will be available, she said.

The October survey will be conducted in Chilton-Perry Area by a small number of Census interviewers during the week of October 15.

The usual questions on employment and unemployment will be asked as well as the school enrollment inquiries. Miss Griffin said.

mother, Mrs. J. W. Gay.

Mrs. Minnie Barnes of Selma, is spending the week with the Earl O'Neals and Mr. W. M. D. O'Neal and other relatives.

The infant of Mr. and Mrs. Olan Capitina has been ill. It is under the care of a Clanton doctor.

Pic. Bobby Eddy, seeing service in Korea, has been injured. He has undergone two or three operations since his injury and writes his wife, the former Peggy Ruddick, that he hopes to be able to return to service very soon.

Mrs. William Gay and daughter, Martha Lynn, are in Birmingham with Mrs. Gay's parents for several days.

BOWLES

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Meeks and children of Talladega, Mrs. A. A. Colburn and children of Ashley, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. De Freeze and Mr. Louis Gibson of Brighton were visitors in this community last week-end. Fair in Birmingham Wednesday were Among those attending the State Willie Pearl, Myra Fay and Gordon Ray Chandler, Betty Jo Friday and Charles Jackson.

Mrs. Louis Gibson spent last week-end with Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Williams.

Reddy Kilowatt

Helps Your Movie Theatre Provide Good Entertainment at Moderate Cost

FROM the brilliant lights which illuminate the movie sets in the studios and "on location" to the tiny exit lights in your local theatre, Reddy Kilowatt helps the movie industry supply generally good entertainment at a cost that all can afford.

The next time you go to a movie, look about you and see how many different uses there are for Reddy Kilowatt's service there. First you'll notice the lights in the sign or lobby. Perhaps you'll observe that there's an electrically operated ticket vending machine. Of course you'll know without looking that the projector is electric-powered, and that the high intensity light comes from electricity. Reddy Kilowatt provides the means for amplification of the sound of the film; the air for the organ and, if in a large theatre, operates the hydraulic lift which raises and lowers the organ.

Whether indoor or outdoor, your local movie offers you rest, relaxation and entertainment away from home. Reddy Kilowatt, because he works for so little, helps make it possible for the movies to provide you with clear visual comedy, drama, thrills, news and education at little cost. In your home, too, Reddy does many things for only a few dollars a month.

Hydraguide Power Steering!

Chrysler this year introduces the first power steering ever offered on an American passenger car. Many owners tell us it is the greatest advance in car driving since the self-starter! To a person who hasn't tried it, it is actually impossible to describe what a difference it makes. Driving becomes a new and wonderful experience. At your touch on the wheel, hydraulic power instantly provides four-fifths of the energy needed to steer the car. Gone is all sense of tug, strain, tension. In its place you find a wonderful sense of absolute front wheel control with almost no effort on your part. Hydraguide is regular equipment on Crown Imperials, optional at extra cost on other 8-cylinder models. Whatever car you're driving now, we invite you to . . .

Come TRY Chrysler Hydraguide . . .
First power steering ever offered on an American passenger car!

Come TRY Chrysler FirePower . . .
180 Horsepower, finest and most powerful passenger car engine on America's highways today!

Come TRY Chrysler Power Braking . . .
Power from the engine helps apply the brakes . . . cuts foot pressure required as much as two-thirds!

NEW EASE! No more whirling or twisting, tugging and straining. The slightest lady you know can actually perk the biggest Chrysler with her thumb and one finger on the wheel . . . drive all day with new freedom from arm-and-shoulder fatigue!

NEW CONTROL! Hydraguide gives your hands on the wheel a new feeling of complete command at any speed. In city traffic . . . on awkward driveways . . . in snug-fitting garage entrances . . . you never felt such steering control in any car before!

NEW SAFETY! Even off the road onto a soft shoulder, Hydraguide helps keep your car steady and true with almost no effort . . . takes the jolt and strain out of driving in ruts, snow, or sand . . . makes steering many times safer than ever before!

WHY WINTER COVER CROPS ARE POPULAR

Winter cover crops serve a threefold purpose. They help control erosion and leaching, furnish forage for livestock, and return enough plant manure to the land to build up a satisfactory level of productivity.

GROWING UP IN THE SOUTH

TELEPHONE SERVICE IS GROWING, TOO

...and the price is up far less than most things you buy!

SINCE this little fellow was born—in just five years—the number of local telephones Alabamians can call has more than doubled. And Southern Bell expects to spend more than $14,000,000 this year to expand and improve telephone service for this fast-growing state.

BEST OF ALL, look at the modest price you pay for this bigger, better "package" of service! During ten years of rising prices it has gone up only a fraction as much as prices in general ... and less than our cost of providing the service.

ALWAYS one of your biggest bargains, telephone service is today an even better buy than it was ten years ago, and a smaller part of your family budget.—Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company.

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—John L. Goodwyn, 49, right, attorney and former Montgomery mayor, is administered the oath of office by Chief Justice J. Ed Livingston, left, which makes Goodwyn a member of the Alabama Supreme Court. Goodwyn, who has served as legal adviser for Gov. Gordon Persons since January, is a University of Alabama graduate and served with the 31st (Dickie) Division Alabama-Mississippi National Guard during World War II. He was discharged as a colonel. Goodwyn fills the vacancy left when Justice Lucien D. Gardner, in February, Goodwyn, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Goodwyn, is married and has a son and a daughter. He also has three brothers and three sisters.

Autumn Tea Honoring Mrs. James Bittinger At The Home of Mrs. Curtis McCorquodale

Festive autumn beauty, with unique floral arrangements, made the lovely home of Mrs. Curtis McCorquodale a perfect picture for the Stork Shower, honoring Mrs. James Bittinger on Oct. 3rd.

The small bassinette on the coffee table in the living room, soft, sweet and adorable, was a dainty piece of artistic creative art, done by Mrs. Margaret Morris, mother of Mrs. McCorquodale.

The fan arrangement of pink gladioli, pink asters, yellow baby chrysanthemums, with flocked gypsophila in silver container, flanked on either side with silver candleabra and white tapers, made the living room a place of soft loveliness and the mantle a picture to remember.

Mrs. George Tucker, in a lovely dusty rose lace dress, reflected the radiant arrangement of pink asters, pink roses, mienle and flocked gypsophila in silver bowls, as she poured tea at the linen covered table. The bouffet arrangement pictured silver holders with white tapers on mounds of pink mienle tied with misty fluffs of baby pink and blue satin ribbon. The tiered tapers reflected the lovely ribbon arrangements of striped pink sandwiches, rose tipped mints and pastel cakes, on trays of silver.

Miss Margaret Perry escorted all the guests to the bedroom where the gifts were displayed. On the white chiffrone was a musical basket, in pastel colors with the pink and blue notes of "Babe" reflected by gush lighting.

Fifty-five invited guests called between the hours of three to five and Mrs. McCorquodale presented her honor guest; Mrs. James Bittinger, Mrs. W. A. Christenberry, Mrs. George Tucker and Miss Margaret Perry.

ESTATE OF G. W. LEWIS STATE OF ALABAMA, CHILTON COUNTY, PROBATE COURT

IN THE MATTER OF THE ESTATE OF G. W. LEWIS, DECEASED AND THE PETITION OF SADIE LEWIS TO HAVE HOME STEAD EXEMPTIONS SET ASIDE TO HER AND THE REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONERS SETTING ASIDE HOME STEAD EXEMPTIONS TO HER; TO MURRAY LEWIS, MILKREID LEWIS AND HERMAN LEWIS; as the children of Ham Lewis, deceased, next of kin of G. W. Lewis, non-residents of the State of Alabama:

You will take, notice and you are hereby notified that on the 7th day of September, 1951 the Commissioners appointed to set aside homestead exemptions to Sadie Lewis, as the widow of G. W. Lewis, deceased, filed their reports and therein set aside to Sadie Lewis Lot No. 7 in Block S of the Town of Jemison, Alabama, as per plat of said town on record in the office of the Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama, according to the Fickett survey, which tract of land consists of about three acres of land and a dwelling house and that the Court has fixed, designated and appointed the 3rd day of Nov. 1951, as the date and time for the hearing of objections or exceptions which may be filed to said report and you can be present and contest said report by exceptions or objections thereto if you think proper to do so.

Dated this 29th day of September, 1951.

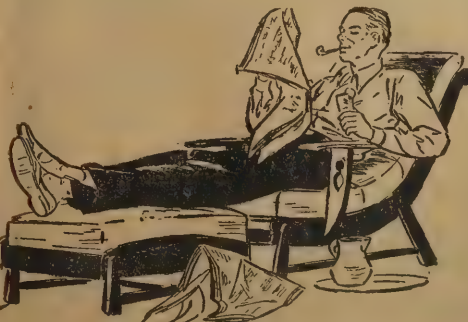

W. L. Parrish,
Judge of Probate.

Mrs. Foshee presented Dr. Hallie Farmer, professor of history at Alabama College, who spoke most forcefully and with convincing knowledge on Defending Our Democratic Way Of Life.

Assisting the hostess during the social hour which followed were: Mrs. John Higgins, Mrs. Frances Speaks, Mrs. Joe Earle Gowan, and Mrs. Paul Page of Marbury. A refreshing salad plate was served to club members and several guests.

Mayor Fred Smith Definitely Will Be Candidate For Probate Judge On Democratic Ticket

FRED SMITH

Fred Smith, popular Mayor of Jemison for the past three or four years, office of Probate Judge of Chilton will definitely be a candidate for the county in next year's primary.

Mayor Smith came to Chilton County in 1941, just ten years ago, and settled at Jemison, where he went into the grocery business. He has prospered in his chosen field, and stated this week he was definitely a candidate for the county's highest office.

Five years ago he was elected to the County Board of Education and has served well in this office. He is a life-long member of the Democratic Party, having taken a part in all party campaigns for the past decade.

In a statement this week he said at present he was "just coasting", but at the proper time he would start campaigning and before spring primary he would endeavor to see and talk with every voter in Chilton County personally and ask their support.

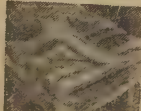

This month's (Sept.) Alabama Local Government Journal had this to say about Mr. Smith: "Jemison's Mayor Fred Smith is being boosted as a candidate for Probate Judge in Chilton County next year. We'd hate to lose him as a Municipal Official but he would make a fine county executive"

Ed Reid is editor of the Journal.

ESTELLE HAYES

Pic. Ray Carlson and Pic. Wilsin of Chicago, and Craig Field, stopped here last Saturday enroute to the State Fair in Birmingham. Ray stopped here for a short time to meet some friends of his father's, Mr. Raymond Carlson, who lived here some years ago with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Carlson, on what is now known as the Baggett place. Ray is in the service and is training at Craig Field.

Miss Naomi Turnquist was a guest at a party in Birmingham last Wednesday afternoon, given by Mrs. N. L. Self, (Clara Peterson) in honor of her sister, Mrs. Hilma Mikesell, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa. The lovely home was decorated in arrangements of roses and fall flowers, Mrs. Self being an artist on floral arrangements and has won numbers of prizes at various Garden Club shows in Birmingham. The guests were old friends of these two sisters, and all formerly from Thorsby. A good time was had talking old times, and delicious refreshments were served to: Mrs. C. R. Foss, Mrs. Vera Anderson of Fairfield, Mrs. Karl Peterson, Mrs. Claudine Long, Mrs. Ruth Sultive of Birmingham, Miss Turnquist and the honor guest.

Lutheran Church News—

Rev. David F. Conrad will conduct services at the Lutheran Church on Sunday afternoon, October 28th, at 3:30 o'clock. It has been some time since Rev. Conrad has been here to preach, and the members of this church as well as its friends, will be looking forward to having him with us again.

Mrs. Welsh left Tuesday morning for Knoxville, Tenn., after spending several days here with her daughter, Rev. Carolyn Welsh.

Thorsby Institute News—

The two clubs of Thorsby Institute had their first point soft-ball game last Wednesday afternoon, played by the girls. The Philomathics won over the Pushmatahas by 8 to 4.

Mrs. Petersen assisted the Freshman Class in selecting their hymn. This hymn will be their song through graduation. Their selection was, "O Thou Whose Feet Have Climbed".

The first six weeks term tests will be next week, October 18 and 19.

Miss Margaret Ward of Birmingham spent Sunday here with her brother, Billy.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Petersen, Miss Bertha Littleton of Birmingham, Mrs. Ferrill Williamson and Terry of South Carolina were the Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Bilingsley Sunday.

Mrs. G. S. Burnette, Mrs. V. E. Wyatt, Mrs. Odie Miller, spent Sunday in Birmingham with Mrs. Henderson Hayes. Mrs. G. S. Burnette remained in Birmingham for a few days.

ISABELLA

MULBERRY CHURCH

We had a good congregation at both services Sunday. Don't forget prayer meeting on Wednesday night. The monthly meeting of the Mulberry W. M. S. met with Mrs. Mary Grooms last Tuesday night with a fair attendance. A good treasurer's report was given on our building fund. We are glad to begin our New Year with such inspiration and interest. A program on Missions from Royal Service was given by different members.

Mable Woodward Circle will meet with Mrs. Gladys Calfee Wednesday, Oct. 17, at 2 p. m. Ruth Ford Circle will meet with Mrs. Bernice Cummings Tuesday Oct. 16, at 2 p. m.

ISABELLA CHURCH

Next Sunday is our regular preaching day. We are expecting a good attendance. Our pastor, Rev. G. B. Golden will bring the message at 11 a. m. The Quarterly meeting of the Methodist Conference will meet with us the 3rd Sunday in November.

ISABELLA SCHOOL

"Public Relation in action is very important," said Mrs. Russell Williams in her talk Monday night in the school auditorium to the Isabella P.T.A., as they sang, "It is very valuable and beneficial for all children in the school". Public relations will help the pupils, teachers and parents to grow in strength, love and understanding. She also added "It is very important that all mothers and fathers attend the P.T.A. meeting". The National Parent Teachers Magazine should be in the home of every parent and teacher, said Miss Louise Foshue. A report of 89 P.T.A. members was given by Mrs. J. C. White, with Mrs. Lucile Veasey side leading.

The membership campaign will run two weeks longer. We hope every parent or friend will join the P.T.A. The first grade room was the winner in having the most parents present with the 10th grade winning for the high school. A report on the plans and committees for the Halloween party was given by Prof. J. C. White. Mrs. Jack Tucker presided with devotion by Miss Sybil Langston. A song was given by some of the Glee Club Girls. Group singing was led by Miss Truman Truckey. Everyone enjoyed refreshments, served by Mrs. Charlie Haggard and Mrs. Gordon Conway.

This Community extends its sympathy to all the children and grandchildren of Mr. Charlie Giles, who passed away on Friday, Oct. 5, and was laid to rest in Mt. Carmel cemetery near Adams on Sunday, Oct. 7.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Latham and son of Birmingham were week end guests of Mrs. John Lewis (Verna Rasberry) of Birmingham were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Jones, and attended the funeral of Moody Rasberry at Stanton Sunday afternoon.

Dr. Marshall L. Ware

Q—Is Chiropractic recognized by regular physicians?

A—Many progressive Physicians recognize the great merit in Chiropractic. This is evidenced by the statement of Dr. John A. Fisher, a well-known Physician of Philadelphia, who says: "The Chiropractors are working marvels so wonderful that even members of the Medical Fraternity are taking notice of their great work."

Q—Is Chiropractic effective in children's diseases?

A—It is with children that the results through Chiropractic are even more remarkable than adults. This is because the average child has greater reserve vitality. Quicker results are also obtained because it is easier to correct abnormal conditions of the spine while they are still in the formative stage. Modern parents see to it that their children have periodical examinations of their eyes and teeth. This is important and is to be commended.

Yet more important than either of these is the periodical examination of the child's spine. Spinal curvatures and abnormalities develop quickly during the growing period, and by correcting them at this time, we build bodies which are strong and healthy, capable of resisting the many diseases which might lead in later life to years of suffering.

Q—Why are some people susceptible and others immune to contagious diseases?

A—This is because some people possess a natural physical resistance which enables them to throw off the effect of trying conditions. Such a physical state is certainly to be desired. If the bodily eliminations are normal, the probability of contracting contagious diseases is remote. These eliminating organs cannot be normal unless they receive an adequate supply of nerve energy. The nerves must be kept free, and it is for this reason that Chiropractic adjustments are so effective in maintaining bodily resistance at a high degree. There is no question but that people who have had the advantage of Chiropractic service regularly are far more capable of inferring the resistance which is so necessary in combating contagion.

Dr. Ware will be glad to answer your health questions by mail or in person.

Wildcats Scratch Tigers 25 - 13

Friday, Oct. 12, at the local gridiron the Columbiana Wildcats took the Chilton Tigers by a score of 25-13. In the first quarter of play the Wildcats back Bates, went over the line for a T.D., after working their way from their own 45 yard line. They ran the extra point across making the score 7-0. The Tigers made little yardage in the last quarter.

In the second quarter Pruitt, for the Wildcats caught a pass for the T.D. But he failed the extra point, making the tally 13-0. Then by surprise, Blair, of the Tigers, shot a sneak pass over the left side of the line to Smith who went 25 yards for a touchdown. Lawrence failed to convert the extra point. In the same quarter Blair pulled a long pass of about 35 yards to Scott who caught it in the end zone. Lawrence succeeded in converting the extra point and the 1st half ended with the score tied up 13-13.

In the beginning of the 2nd half Woods went over for the Wildcats but they did not connect for the extra point. The Tigers seemed to have lost their 2nd quarter spirit in the 3rd quarter and held their own but not quite enough. In the 4th and last quarter of play the Tigers tried a pass but it was intercepted by Butler (Wildcats) who took it 80 yards for a T.D. The Wildcats failed to make the point and the game ended 25-13. Next week the Tigers take on Jemison at Jemison and here's hoping the Tigers will play as well there as Columbiana did here.

Rev. John Smith Resigns Pastorate Presbyterian Church

The Rev. John Smith, who has been pastor of the Clanton Presbyterian Church for the past five years, resigned his pastorate last week and will go to Valdosta, Ga., where he has accepted a church there. He and his family will leave Clanton November 1st.

Rev. Smith has been active in Boy Scout work and many other civic projects since coming to Clanton and will be sorely missed.

Mrs. Smith has been an untiring worker in several organizations but she has especially worked hard with the Elementary School and Chilton County High School Parent-Teachers Associations.

The News and its Force wish the Smiths well in their new work.

Youth Sinners Here October 26th.

The Alabama Youth Singers in co-operation with the Montgomery Youth Singers are presenting a concert at the Clanton Court House October 26 featuring the Homeland Harmony Quartet in the hope of inspiring every boy and girl to learn to sing. When a boy or girl learns to sing it is the turning point in their life as to their being a happy Christian Worker.

The group being presented are Christian gentlemen and are recognized as the nation's leading singers. The four part harmony is the height of cultured training. Conner Hall, Manager and first tenor singer of the Homeland Harmony Quartet, is conceded the nation's best high tenor singer. They will render the beautiful number entitled, "The Love of God." The last 30 minutes of the program will be the audience request.

Hurt In Fight Last Sunday Afternoon

Donald Roberts was lodged in the Wetumpka Jail Sunday afternoon after seriously wounding his wife's stepfather, Herbert Steadham, in a fight. The arrest was made five miles south of Clanton at the Buck Varden Service Station, when the car Roberts was driving run hot, and the Highway Patrol stopped to lend their aid.

Steadham, who was bleeding badly, was rushed in a Spigener ambulance to Central Alabama Hospital but was later transferred to the Veterans Hospital at Montgomery.

Deputy Sheriff Porter Huff, of Elmore County, came after Roberts and took him back to Wetumpka. He was charged with assault with intent to murder. The men, with their wives, were enroute from Opelika to Clanton, driving through Elmore County, when the actual cutting took place.

Welfare Checks Mailed To 1592 Chilton County

Welfare checks were mailed to 1,592 recipients of assistance by the Chilton County Department of Public Welfare in September, the director said today. "This is the last month the checks will be mailed from the county office," Miss Lee said. She pointed out that October is the first month of the new fiscal year, and beginning this year all payments to assistance recipients will be mailed directly from the State Department in Montgomery. Thus, the October checks will reach needy people in this county from Montgomery.

County departments of public welfare, however, will continue to receive applications for public assistance and determine who is eligible for aid. The State Department mails checks to persons approved here in the county, the director said, adding that people with questions should come to the county office.

The new plan of mailing checks from Montgomery is part of the change made in financing the welfare program. This plan will affect payments in this county, Miss Lee said. She pointed out that the percentage of need met would be the same for each category in all counties now, and, therefore, many payments would be changed.

Miss Lee explained that in Chilton County probable effects would be to decrease two categories. However, she pointed out that no changes in payments could not be shown until the October pay rolls are made out.

Miss Lee explained the large number of decreases in this county would take place because payments here had been so much higher than in the rest of the State. She said it would be hard on some of the people here, but she realized they would understand and it is fair to divide available funds evenly among all the people that individual needs.

She said she made inquiries about the amount of their checks as the information would not be available until the October payrolls were ready. She expressed regret that available monies were not sufficient to bring all payments up to the level of the formerly high payments in this county.

Miss Lee further explained that all aid to handicapped persons had been at the same percentage over the State for the past year. She said for this reason there would be no change in this category in October.

Top: R. O. Williams of Rt. 1 Clanton, Collins Chapel Community inside his modern dairy barn. This concrete floor milking area is a comfortable area for milking and meets sanitation requirements for Grade "A" fluid milk production.

Bottom Left: The Biltmore bred Jersey Bull owned jointly by R. O. Williams and the Chilton County Jersey Cattle Club is from one of the highest production Jersey herds in the U. S. He was declared Grand Champion of the Chilton County 1951 show. His offspring should carry better type and higher production.

Faith In Sod Crop Farming, Milk Producing Profitable

In twenty-nine months R. O. Williams and family built milk production from a family-use dairy project to a $500.00 per month commercial fluid milk production program.

A little over two years ago R. O. Williams, a progressive Collins Chapel Community farmer, started selling milk to Carnation Mfg. Co. from only three cows. Mr. Williams had a strong faith in a soil-conserving farming. When he started milk sales from the three cows, he had also well under way a feed production program. R. O. has made steady progress with his milk production project for the past two years and milk sales are his major source of income today.

In early 1951, the R. O. Williams dairy herd had been built to above ten producing cows and he began thinking of a higher grade market outlet and "A" grade production. He now has a ten-stanchion "A" grade barn, electric cooler, and other facilities to meet "A" grade requirements. (Interior of Grade A barn shown above).

R. O. and family are now selling wholesale fluid milk from twelve producing cows. During September of 1951, the gross milk sales ran $500.00 plus. It is Mr. Williams plans to build his basic program to fit a herd of twenty-five milkers. Based on the income involved at present, the ultimate goal of twenty-five producing cows will afford this family an above the average income.

In the Williams' dairy project we have a story of faith in a type of farming and a story of a farmer making a plan of operations and developing his plans. A few statements from R. O. will give a better idea of what dairying has done to develop a farm and home in this brief period of twenty-nine months.

According to Mr. Williams, the basis for Grade "A" production (cattle and barn facilities) could not have been financed without the processing route for a stopping stone.

During one of the good months of 1950 Mr. Williams nine cows produced an average of $247.5 per cow on the Carnation route.

During the past 29 months, R. O. has not only built the $3000.00 dairy barn and his cow population to above 20 animals but has improved the home in excess of $3000.00. Along with home, facilities, and herd improvements, R. O. has 45 acres now in sod crops.

Pasture development has cost in excess of $50.00 per acre. This is conservation farming and profitable farming that many Chilton County farmers

Fall Revival At Clanton First Baptist Church

Dr. Homer G. Lindsay

The Fall Revival of the First Baptist Church, Clanton, will open Sunday, October 21st, with Dr. Homer G. Lindsay, pastor of the First Baptist Church Jacksonville, Florida, as evangelist. Dr. Lindsay, brother-in-law of the pastor, Dr. Hutchinson, has been greatly used of the Lord in revival meetings. We are most fortunate to have him as our evangelist.

Dr. Lindsay has served the First Baptist Church of Jacksonville for the past ten years. He is a member of the Chattanooga Baptist Association of the South. During the Association year, just closed, he has baptized 260 candidates and has taken a total of 654 members into the church.

Services will be conducted twice daily. The morning service will be held from 7:00 until 10:00. This is to give the busy people, the teachers and the children an opportunity to attend. This service will be broadcast over WKLF. The evening service will open each evening at 7:30 o'clock. Special music will be provided by our fine choir under the direction of Mrs. Raymond Mims. We extend to everyone a cordial invitation to attend and enjoy our Fall Revival.

Clanton Community Concert Association Gets Underway

The 1951-52 Clanton - Community Concert Association is fortunate indeed in having Dr. J. Gilbert Hutchinson as its new President.

The new association is buzzing with plans and procedure for its customary one-week membership campaign. The Clanton Community Concert Association is affiliated with Community Concert Service of New York and Chicago and represents the organized audience plan by which over 4,000 communities in the United States and Canada present series of concerts on a no-profit and a no-loss basis. Preliminary plans for the campaign include the establishment of an organization comprising an unlimited number of officers and campaign workers.

On Monday night, October 22, the organization will hold its initial meeting; for the send off for the campaign workers who will receive their final instructions and equipment for enrolling members.

Dr. Hutchinson will preside at this meeting at which time Mr. Stafford, Field representative of Community Concert Service, will be with us.

Qualifying Date Extended In C of C

The date for qualifying in the "Know Chilton County" contest, being sponsored by the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce, and in which many valuable prizes are being given away, has been extended until Monday, Oct. 22.

Boys and girls in Senior High School who long for a television set, a gold watch, $175.00 in Defense Bonds and many other valuable prizes, must get their entry blanks to Chilton County News or the Union Banner before next Monday.

Ask your school principal about the details. He will help you.

Opening Day At Live Stock Yards Success

The Chilton County Chamber of Commerce officials and committee members were highly pleased with the splendid response of livestock growers, buyers and spectators at the Central Alabama Livestock Yards opening day in Clanton, October 15th. The Chamber of Commerce gave a purebred Duroc gilt to the holder of the lucky number issued to those who had livestock for sale. Mr. Alf Norrell of Route 1, Verbena, was the holder of the lucky number and won the gilt.

The Chamber of Commerce also issued chances to sellers, buyers, and spectators on a cured ham and turkey. The ham as well as the purebred gilt was donated by Chilton County Chamber of Commerce and the turkey was donated by J. Otis Gray, one of the owners of Central Alabama Livestock Yards.

Chamber of Commerce President, R. C. Williams, and the members of the various committees from the Chamber were present and gave a helping hand to the owners. Mr. J. N. Jenkins, J. Gray, J. T. Cobb, and J. A. Smith.

President R. C. Williams said he was highly pleased with the opening and with the cooperation of all concerned. He said it was the cooperation of the people of Chilton County continues to exist, we are going to have a successful livestock market.

Chilton County Chamber of Commerce officials also held a special meeting at the Chamber of Commerce and County Agent "Red" Grayson and his co-workers for helping to make the opening a success, and for compiling the statistical report of the sales which may be found in this issue of the News.

Many Buyers Participate In Opening Day Livestock Sale

The cattle and hog buyers who broke and held their own at the Central Alabama Livestock Yards opening day, October 15th, were many.

Buyers from across the State, including the Alabama Cattle and Hog Raisers Association, and Chilton County Freeze were in competition for hogs and cattle. Local and out-of-county speculators were interested in most classes of cattle.

A very healthy indication of the progress being made in Chilton County cattle production was the fact that a large portion of the stocker heifer calves offered in the sale went to a varied list of Chilton County farm operators. They will return to new homes in the county to become brood cows or will return in future sales carrying more flesh and weight.

Opening Sale Big Success At Central Alabama Stockyards

According to summary figures from front office, Central Alabama Livestock Company's first sale grossed Chilton County farmers over $21,000.00.

One hundred seventy-three (173) cattle and eighty-two (82) hogs sold for $183,21.82 and $3,263.40 respectively. One horse and three goats were thrown in to add variety to the show.

In addition to the above summarized sales figures, a number of private sales from farmer to farmer were completed at the local stock yard. These sales are not included in summary figures above.

According to Mr. Crawford Roquemore, Federal-State Livestock Market News Analyst, Chilton County hogs exceeded Monday's actual top market price. He further stated that all classes of cattle moved very near, and in cases, in excess of actual October 15 quotations.

Management was highly commended for the operation of this opening day sale. A few flaws and inconveniences were encountered, but these were less than expected on opening day.

Central Alabama Livestock Company is off to an encouraging start in offering a nearby ready-cash market for Chilton County livestock and in helping local producers to realize actual market value for the animals sold.

MEETING OF OLD PEOPLE AND THEIR FRIENDS, OCTOBER 20

For the purpose of discussing some new legislation relative to the old people and assistance, a meeting will be held at the Courthouse in Clanton at 10 a.m. next Saturday, October 20. Old people, children and friends have a cordial invitation. Hon. W. T. Goode, of Oneonta will be the guest speaker.

SHADOW ON THE WALL

THE CHRISTMAS CHEST

Organization of the 1951 Christmas Chest is underway and Chairman of the 1951 Chest, J. D. Bell, states that the first meeting will be held early in November. Hope of the organization and the Chairman is that this year's Chest will be the biggest and most successful yet and cooperation of all Chilton County is urged. Chairman Bell asks that everyone who has old broken toys or toys that their children have outgrown, to get them ready for the Christmas Chest this year. A committee will be named to gather the toys for repairing and redistribution to boys and girls in the county, who would have no Christmas without them. The Vocational Ag. boys at the various schools will do the repairing. No greater joy can come to anyone than the joy of giving to those less fortunate than we are. Lets support our Christmas Chest this year.

NEW TRAFFIC LINES HELP

The new traffic lines laid down by the State-Highway Department through Clanton help greatly during the week end traffic rush.

The result will be much better when the local residents get accustomed to the change and learn to stay within the proper lines for safe and speedy travel.

Man Bites Dog, isn't news at all compared with the news item received recently that South Dakota has reduced taxes this year by $8,000,000.

WHAT COMPETITION DOES

The Wall Street Journal recently carried a news story from Washington written by staff correspondent W. C. Bryant. Here is how it began: "The government's inflation fighters are showing some embarrassment, because there's so little inflation to fight."

"They're even discussing, in quiet little sessions whether it would be well to stop pretending to control a host of prices that are way below Federal ceilings. In other words, exempt a lot of things—clothing, house furnishings, many foods and the usual run of 'five & dime' notions—from price control."

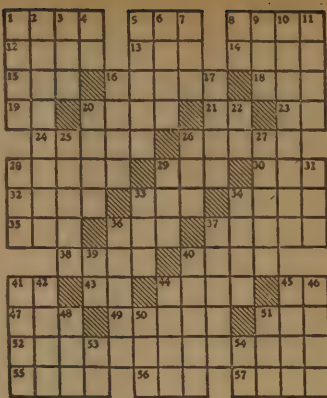

It looks as if the workings of the competitive economic system, which the higher planners seem to consider obsolete, is making life rather tough for the control officials. The reason many items are selling for higher prices under the legal ceiling is simple enough. Manufacturers are always beating the bushes for business. And to get business, they have to sell at the lowest prices possible. So, under such circumstances, a ceiling doesn't necessarily mean a thing.

This is particularly evident at the retail level, where all kinds of stores, from the biggest national chain to the newest one-man shop, are wooing the price-conscious consumer with every inducement they can think of. Nobody can long get the ceiling price for an article if someone down the street is selling it for less. Retail prices have consistently lagged behind wholesale prices. That's what competition does.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

A slight error appeared in the News column last week in regards to the Friday night Football game Clanton vs. Columbiana. We stated the game would be against Montevallo. Since seeing the score we wish the game had been against Montevallo or somebody except Columbiana.

These painters and wall paperers must have an awful time with their constituents. Last night we went out to the house where we are having Maurice Wyatt and his crew do some work and we run head-on into a sign at the foot of the stair which read: NO. NO! Do not use stairs. Dealing with so many stupid laymen they have also become physis.

Bob Taber spent Friday and Saturday in Tuscaloosa and came away without incident. Whether you know it or not—that's news. Seriously he attended the State Broadcaster's Convention there. The Alabama Radio Executives met in annual conclave. He reports a spirited meeting and much good accomplished.

Gabby Tiffin, J. E. Easterling and Charles Wade flew to Houston, Texas the other week to see the Birmingham Barons play in the Dixie Series. After they got in the plane at the local airport and Charles Wade had warmed up the engine for awhile, Gabby looked down and remarked: "Look at those people down there, they look like ants." J. E. says, "Gabbo, those are ants. We ain't left the ground yet."

Incidentally, the Dixie Cafe has installed new tables and chairs throughout and they are very attractive.

Congratulations to Mrs. J. B. Downs who celebrated her 80th Birthday last Sunday. Mrs. Downs has been our good friend for the past 12 years and we wish her many more birthdays and the very best of everything, always.

BOILS

Why boils occur in some persons and not in others is not known, but to the afflicted they are known to be a painful nuisance. The germ called staphylococcus seems to be the chief culprit in this type of infection, known as furunculosis, invading the blood stream through a single hair follicle in an irritated area.

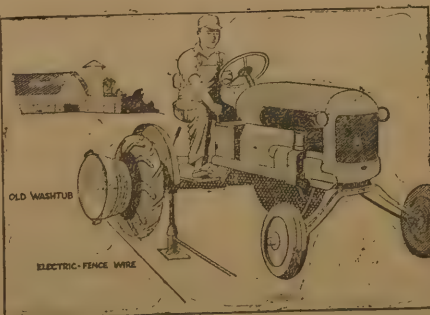

Because boils or furuncles appear on the hairy surfaces of the body, attempts should be made to avoid chafing and other irritations. In some persons, a single boil has appeared, while in the susceptible ones the condition seems to be chronic. The sufferer will often develop dozens of them, sometimes simultaneously and again over a long period of time.

Fortunately the development of new drugs has reduced the threat of spread of boils, but because these painful pus-forming masses are associated with several debilitating conditions, everyone should be suspicious of them. Boils have been observed in uncontrolled diabetics, for example. Excessive fatigue and anemia are conditions associated with boils.

The boil begins as a mild red spot. The body seeking to resist the invading germ concentrates white blood cells in the site. The redness is increased as the blood furnishes more white cells in the area to surround the germs, causing them to die and liquify. The process forms pus, which is released as the infection wears off. When this happens, relief of pain is noticed; and later the "core" always identified with a boil is extruded.

No one should squeeze or prick a boil. Indeed no one should do this to the lowly pimple. More serious infection can develop, resulting in complications and badly scarred areas of the skin. Wise is the person who consults a physician to rule out any other abnormal physical condition, for this too may be controlled if detected early.

Love Of God Toward Man

God has commended his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because God sent his only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through Him. This with many more things proves the love God had for mankind. I'll mention other ways in which God manifested his love toward us. 1. In making man in His own image. A. T. HICKMAN and after His own likeness, God made man just a little lower than the angels, and then crowned him with glory and honour. Angels are the highest order of God's created beings; they are God's ministering spirits. They dwell in the presence of the Almighty. They perform their duty under His divine holy will. They testify always to the holiness of their Creator, saying, "Holy, holy, holy is the Lord God of Hosts, But God manifested his love toward man by making him a little lower than the angels, host. This makes man the highest, the noblest, and the most honourable of all creation on earth.

2. Again, the love of God is manifested toward man by the authority God has given to man over all creation on earth. Man is to have dominion over the fish of the sea, the fowl of the air, and the beast of the earth, and over everything that creepeth upon the earth. Man is to be the ruler over all the earth. This is because man is the highest order of intelligence upon the earth. Too bad that man sinned against God, and lost his position to the devil. Now the devil is the prince of the power of the air; the god of this age, and man is subject to satan when serving him. God did not intend it this way.

3. Another way God showed his love for man, is by working a plan of redemption. By redeeming man back from his fallen state. This plan of redemption is in Christ Jesus coming into the world in the form of flesh, and by giving his life on the cross that we might live through him. Calvary is the greatest manifestation of the love of God toward mankind.

4. Last, but not least, God shows his love for man by forgiving his sins when he turns to God with all his heart, repenting and forsaking all sins. Like a loving father toward a wayward son when he repents. He forgives and restores man to his fellowship. Give him joy unspeakable and full of glory.

'Nothing Too Darn Important'

THIS STORY, told me by Earle B. Johnson, Jacksonville, Fla., I give you exactly as he gave it to me. "One night I received a long distance telephone call. It was our family doctor in DeLand, Fla. My father was not expected to live—a serious heart attack. I was shocked—stunned. It was unbelievable—my father, who had never been sick! A few hours later I was there. The doctor told me Dad had had an acute attack of coronary thrombosis, and that slowly through the years he had developed hardening of the arteries.

"Dad was always a good fighter in anything he did—and contrary to predictions he was sitting up several months later. When he was able to make the trip, I arranged for an examination by an eminent heart specialist who started in with Dad's case history from the time he was a boy to the birth of his three sons, his early businesses, then the Florida boom in 1925, and its disastrous crash in 1926.

That is when it started—worry! Dad had set a pretty high standard of living for his family, and after the crash he did his best to keep up that level for us. Then the bank failures of 1929—depression of early 30's. How much we took for granted and how little we realized what this broken man had gone through, with worrying about finances, family and business—never burdening us with any of it. It all came back to me as I sat there watching my Dad going to pieces. This two-fisted business man emotionally collapsing. It was unbelievable!

"When the doctor finally dragged the whole story out, he explained that every condition Dad had was THE NATURAL RESULT OF WORRY OVER THE YEARS, that the daily worry he had gone through set up an organic condition that slowly hardened the arteries and finally resulted in the heart condition.

"Dad's future was outlined with brutal frankness. It was almost too late, but he had one chance to live. 'Do not think, talk about, nor transact any business of nature. Instead, go fishing, go walking, grow lowers.' After a year of this, he was re-examined, and his improvement was remarkable. With the same program he could hope to live nearly his normal life span.

"A few months ago Dad said, 'Son, I want to give you a little sound advice. I hope you will always remember it. When you get my age and look back, you will find there are many things you used to think important that really do not amount to much. Everything you do is important, of course, but none of it too darn important.'"

Switch to DODGE "Job-Rated" TRUCKS

Bigger loads!

Faster trips!

Longer life!

Bigger Loads! Balanced Weight Distribution enables you to haul bigger payloads on a Dodge "Job-Rated" truck. Because the engine has been moved forward and front axle back, you carry more without overloading. Right proportion of the load is carried on each axle. And shorter wheelbase means easier handling.

Faster Trips! High-Compression Engine gives you plenty of power. Increased horsepower—in combination with the right transmission and rear axle ratio—means faster trips! Four-ring pistons with chrome-plated top ring and other outstanding values assure performance that saves times and dollars on your job.

Longer Life! Husky Chassis Units are one reason why a Dodge "Job-Rated" truck lasts and lasts. You get a rugged frame of hot-rolled, high-carbon steel. Springs are of special alloy steel—extra tough, yet resilient! Axle shafts are shot-peened for added durability. And every chassis unit is "Job-Rated" to fit your job!

What a "Job-Rated" Truck Means to You

A "Job-Rated" truck is engineered at the factory to fit a specific job... provide the best in low-cost transportation, save money, last longer. Every unit that SUPPORTS the load—frame, axles, springs, wheels, tires and others—is engineered right to provide the strength and capacity needed. Every unit that MOVES the load—engine, clutch, transmission, propeller shaft, rear axle and others—is engineered right to meet a particular operating condition.

Ask any owner! He'll tell you that he hauls bigger loads at lower costs!

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Never Take "Rip" Too Seriously

The new county agent is a young fellow—full of ideas. So old Rip Robinson couldn't resist playing a joke on him.

Seems the agent went to Rip's place armed with a lot of literature on increased farm production. "Not interested," Rip said. "Want my farm just like she is."

"If I work harder and make more money I don't keep it. My wife will make me fix up the house... and she'll spend more. Then I'm back where I started. I'd be putting in a lot of extra work and wind up no better off than now."

Well, old Rip sure had that young fellow baffled for a while. From where I sit, improvements always pay off. Take Andy over at the Green Gardens. Andy, like other beer retailers, voluntarily co-operates with the Self-Regulation Program sponsored by the Brewing Industry. He keeps his place of business clean and orderly and is constantly improving it. Andy's one person who's bound to wind up better off than he was.

MISS RUTH HICKS

While reading my column last week an old friend learned the whereabouts of old friends. Mrs. A. C. Teal of Clanton, who was before marriage, Bertha Murray of Selma, read where Mrs. Hinton Duncan and Mrs. Earl Pickering lived in Plantersville. These three had lost complete trace of each other years ago, however, their friendship was renewed last Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Duncan when Mrs. Teal together with Mrs. Marvin Vines and children paid a visit to the Duncan home. This was indeed a happy get-together and a very pleasant afternoon for all.

Mrs. Cora Fuller has returned to her home after visiting with relatives in Sprott, Ala.

Sunday morning Millard Reynolds, Ruth Hicks, and Peggy Rose O'Neal motored to Birmingham, where Millard entered the English Trials at Shadow Lake near Birmingham. These trials are put on by Mr. Perry McCormack of Birmingham Motors and draw a large number of entrants. This is a motorcycle run and Millard won the trophy for 61 and 74 Class motors. Claude Owens of Butler, Ala., was high point man for the day, Clarence Gray of Montgomery was second high point man. An Expert Rider pin was also given to Millard Reynolds and other riders. (Names of other trophy winners was not obtained.) P-TA meets every first Friday night in each month. Join your P-TA and support it.

JEMISON SCHOOL NEWS

The Jemison Beta Club had its initiation in chapel Friday morning, Oct. 12. It was a candlelight ceremony. Speeches were made by: President, Sue Bratton, who lit the white candle, which denotes light, unity, and faith; Vice-President, Dorothy Nell Hilyer, who lit the red candle which denotes pure love and wisdom; Secretary, Myra Jo Horton, who lit the blue candle which stands for truth, constancy and fidelity; Treasurer, June Handley, who lit the black candle which symbolizes the dignity, restraint, and seriousness which should attend our search for knowledge and truth; Representative from old members, Janice Jones, who lit the golden candle which designates warmth, friendship, and faithfulness; Representative from new members, Betty Sue Scott.

There were nine new members. They were dressed in white while the old members were dressed in black and white. The new members are: Vernell Robinson, Billy Miller, Janice Miller, Willean Edwards, Louise Lenoir, Betty Sue Scott, Paul Varden, Carol Webb and Mary Ellen Blackmon. They repeated the pledge that was led by the sponsor, Miss Miriam Harvey. Each new member received a certificate and pin, which old members pinned on them.

The last part of the program was the Beta Club song by the old members. Mr. J. A. Peterson, Principal, made a talk after the initiation.

Pictures were made for the annual after the program.

HIGHLAND

We are very proud to report a very attendance for Sunday School and the Eleven o'clock service, also for Bible Study and worship service Sunday night. Bro. Deason is very interested in starting a visitation program in the interest of bringing in the absentees and also reaching as many of those who are not attending either Sunday School or Church services. Bro. Deason feels sure he will have the closest cooperation in carrying on this program. We invite everyone who will come to our church every 2nd and 4th Sundays for preaching services and also each Sunday at 10:00 for Sunday School and at 6:00 p.m. for Bible Study. Next Sunday, Oct. 21st, is our Annual all-day singing and Homecoming. We extend a very cordial invitation to all singers and lovers of Gospel singing to come be with us.

ROBINSON SPRINGS BAPTIST

THE MUSIC APPRECIATION CLUB ENTERTAINED

The Music Appreciation Club was entertained by Mrs. Napoleon S. Johnson on Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 16th. The program was devoted to Music in the Home and Community. After a short business session conducted by the president, Mrs. R. C. Williams, the news from the National Federation was presented by Mrs. M. D. Tingle. Mrs. H. G. Heflin, director of the district, gave a most interesting paper on the subject. She then introduced various ones who provided illustrations developing the points emphasized. Representing a product of music in the home was Miss Patricia Huddleston. She sang Victor Herbert's Sweetheart, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. W. E. Huddleston.

Several records were played by Mrs. Heflin designed to attract the preschool child. It is with this age child that listening to music and learning to

To illustrate the family group music, Mrs. James Wade and her children, Linda, Kathy, Julie and Jim were introduced. Mrs. Wade played while the children sang two numbers. The Alphabet Song, and Jesus Love Me. As an example of music in the community, everyone present joined in singing, Home Sweet Home.

At the conclusion of this most enjoyable program a delightful social hour ensued. Mrs. J. Sam Johnson, a guest, poured coffee. Other guests were Miss Patricia Huddleston, Mrs. James Wade and her children.

MT. ZION

Sunday, October 14th, was the regular preaching day at Mt. Zion with Rev. J. P. Littleton bringing the message.

We are happy to report a larger attendance for Sunday School than we have had recently. Many of the older people of this community came to church Sunday and we believe everyone enjoyed the services.

We want the visitors who were present to come back again and always feel welcome.

A special invitation is extended to the young people of the community, your help is needed in the church and Sunday School.

In last week's paper it was reported that Rev. Cook would be preaching at Mt. Zion Sunday, Oct. 21st. Please let us call your attention to this error. Rev. N. E. Cook will preach Saturday night, Oct. 20th, instead of Sunday. It would be wonderful to have one who was present last Sunday with us again this week for Sunday School and preaching Saturday night and if you can, bring some of you.

Dinner Opens Annual Concert Drive Here

The Chilton County Community Concert Association held its annual dinner meeting Monday night at the High School Cafeteria at 6 o'clock. Mrs. Dyer Shackelford was dinner chairman. The meeting was attended by members of the Executive Board and volunteer workers of the Association, and marked the opening of a one-week campaign during which the association plans to enroll a capacity audience which will insure another full series of concerts for the season.

Dr. J. Gilbert Hutchinson, president of the association, presided at the dinner, with Mrs. V. C. Ware, who graciously introduced the new officers; Dr. J. Gilbert Hutchinson, president; Miss Naomi Turnquist, Thorsby, vice-president; Mrs. Beatrice Bryan, corresponding secretary; Mrs. James Wade, recording secretary; James Duke Heflin, treasurer; Mrs. Hugh Jones, publicity chairman; Reddie Taylor, membership chairman; Mrs. R. C. Williams, Mrs. I. S. Levine, Mrs. Erle Ellis, Mrs. Grady Heflin, co-chairman.

Mrs. Ware introduced the guest speaker of the evening Mr. Bob Stafford. Mr. Stafford, who is a nation wide Community Concert Service representative held the rapt attention of his hearers as he went up and down the gamut of Community Concert artists and praised the top quality of Community Concert music and entertainment. He gave great inspiration to the workers as he launched them on the membership drive. Mr. Stafford announced that the Willingham Hotel will be headquarters and the number of the telephone installed for Chilton County Community Concert Association is 840. Memberships may be called or turned in each day from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mr. Stafford will be in Clanton all week to assist with the campaign.

Mrs. James Wade, association secretary, made a special point of the fact that no box-office admissions to any of the concerts will be sold since the artist who appears in the series are selected according to the number of memberships obtained during the drive.

Reddie Taylor, membership chairman, asked that everyone make the work of the volunteers as easy as possible by getting in their memberships early, and to try to get another new membership along with it.

Much of the success of the dinner went to the dinner chairman, Mrs. Dyer Shackelford. The table, in candlelight setting, was beautiful to the least detail in lovely autumn theme.

In an interview following the meeting, Dr. J. Gilbert Hutchinson, association president, said that the executive board and the workers of the Chilton County Community Concert Association were contributing their efforts during the campaign week in order to accomplish something eminently worth while for the community.

School Teachers To Meet Saturday At Alabama College

CHILTON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ON RECORD FOR ANNUAL STOCK SHOW

The Chilton County Chamber of Commerce went on record as favoring an annual live stock show at their monthly meeting.

Maplesville, Thorsby, Clanton and Jewison was well represented at the meeting.

The Chamber donated a Durac Gift that was given away at the opening of Central Alabama Stock Yard and authorized the erection of large signs, 6 by 10 feet at the county lines, North and South, and on the Western boundary to Selma. The signs will declare: "Welcome to Chilton County. The Peach and Berry Center of the World." The Chamber also went on record as favoring the annual Stock Show to include poultry and home demonstration club work.

County P-T. A. Council Meets Next Monday

The Chilton County P-T.A. Council will meet next Monday evening, Oct. 29, at 7:30 p. m. at the Jewison High School.

The program emphasis will be "Books", and the Council feels very fortunate in having as guest speaker Miss Fannie Schmitt, School Libraries Consultant from the State Department of Education.

If you are interested in good books and good reading for the children, for youth, and for parents, come to this first Council meeting.

Mrs. Russell A. Williams, Council President, extends a cordial invitation to all teachers and P-T.A. members of Chilton County. It is hoped that every school in the county will be represented.

BIG INCREASE IN COUNTY COTTON PRODUCTION

Census report shows that 7,406 bales of cotton were ginned in Chilton County from the crop of 1951 prior to Oct. 15 as compared with only 2,521 bales for the crop of 1950.

The session will be held at Palmer Hall at 9:30 o'clock. Through courtesy of Alabama College, teachers will hear Giovanni Bagarotti, concert violinist. Three panels will consider recent school legislation, public relations, and education associations.

Teachers in attendance will be from Blount, Chilton, Jefferson, St. Clair, Shelby, Talladega, and Walker counties; from the city systems of Bessemer, Birmingham, Carbon Hill, Fairfield, Jasper, Sylacauga, Talladega, and Tarrant; from Alabama College and Alabama Institute for the Deaf and Blind.

Clanton Defeats Jemison 31 to 26

In a ding dong dilly duster last Friday night the C.C.H.S. Tigers tripped the Jemison Panthers by a lone TD. The Panthers drew first blood when Guin spun a 30 yard lateral to Guy who went over 3 minutes after play opened. The Tigers, after faltering in their first three attempts, found Jones making a beautiful end run just before the first quarter ended to tie the thing up. The second quarter saw Smith intercept a pass and drive for Clanton's second TD. Jemison followed with a quickie, on a long 55 yard run to knot the count again. Then Clanton scored by hitting the line hard for four straight first downs that payed off with TD number three. The Jemison Panthers bounced right back by intercepting a pass and driving over for their third TD. Their attempt for the extra point was good. Score at this point was Jemison 19 - Clanton 18, with only two and a half minutes left of the first half.

CCHS made a long pass for their fourth TD. Their try for the extra point was good. Half ended with Clanton holding a 25-19 edge. They raised it to 31 - 19 soon after the 3rd quarter opened. Jemison could not penetrate for much gain during the 3rd, but broke loose with a sustained drive and pass the last quarter to close out the scoring.

Jemison Panthers Meet Maplesville Red Devils Friday

Next Friday night, Oct. 26, at 7:30 the hustling little squad of footballers from Maplesville High School will visit Jemison to match their gridiron skill with the Jemison High School Panthers.

This will be another ding-dong double-dyed blue-tail-guy-jumper folks, so come on out and get in on the fun and thrills.

Gen. Hershey In B'ham This Week

Gen. Hershey, Director of Selective Service, will be in Birmingham Friday and Saturday of this week to speak to the personnel of that department in Alabama.

Mrs. Zora Guy Smith, Clerk of the Local Board, will attend the meeting.

COUNTY TO VOTE ON $500,000 ROAD BOND ISSUE DEC. 11

The Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County passed resolutions at its meeting Monday of this week authorizing the calling of an election to vote on $500,000 County Courthouse Bonds. The Probate Judge and the Associate Board Members again stated that the bonds would be paid by the County without any new or additional taxes of any kind.

The election will be held on December 11 at the same time that the constitutional amendments authorized by the recent session of the Legislature are voted on by the qualified electors. The County, thus, is saving a considerable amount of money by not having a separate election.

Additional facilities are badly needed. At the present time, the County is paying rent for the following officials using office space outside of the Courthouse: PMA, Solicitor and Service Commissioner, County Engineer, Parole Officer, Federal Housing Administration, Welfare Dept. offices, Board of Education, and Judge of Law and Equity Court. These outside office expenses cost the County several thousand dollars each year.

When the bonds have been voted, the following procedure will be followed:

- a. The architects will prepare a legal notice to contractors and the County will receive sealed competitive construction bids for the building.
- b. The bonds will be advertised for sale and sold publicly at competitive bidding.
- c. When the bonds are delivered and paid for, the proceeds will be deposited in a special account and will only be paid out upon requisitions approved by the architects for work already finished.

The County has stipulated in the election notice that the interest rate on the new bonds is not to exceed 3%. This has been a long time in the making. The County has been unable to get the County in the event of untimely interest changes. The Officials have been reliably advised that the rate of interest for the bonds can be expected to be 3% or less. This indication compares very favorably with the 5% rate of interest received by the County for the last issue of bonds that were sold several years ago.

The first part of the program was the speeches by the officers and each officer lighted a candle for the pur-

LICENSED HOMES FOR BOARDING WELFARE TOTS ARE FILLED

Would you share your home with a child like these pictured here? Could you give that child the care he needs for a few weeks or months, or maybe longer, and then give him up again to his family or to adoptive parents? Miss Margaret Lee, County Director of Public Welfare, is asking you these questions: Here is why. If these children had needed immediate care in Clanton County, Miss Lee, would not have known what to do. Where would she take them?

You see, these little girls did come to the attention of another welfare department not long ago. The director had to find a home that would care for them right away—and until other plans could be made. Each child needed—immediately—loving care and understanding—a temporary home. Fortunately, in that county, there was a licensed boarding home.

The director took the children there. It is just an average family home with one difference—the parents are sharing it with children not their own. This home meets the standards set by the State Welfare Board. The board-poses of the FHA, they are: President, Betty Barrette - to promote a growing appreciation of the joys and satisfaction of homemaking; vice president, Juanette Dobbs - to emphasize the importance of worthy home membership; reporter, Rheda Arledge - to encourage democracy in home and community life; secretary, Peggy Cost - to work for good home and family life for all; parliamentarian, Edna Lovette - to promote international good will; his-torian, Paula Jean Cunningham - to foster the development of creative leadership in home and community life; Betty Adams - to provide wholesome individual and group recreation; treasurer, Evelyn Burnette - to further interest in home economics. The ones initiated were: Willow D. Edwards, Janis Miller, June Northcutt, Francis Cofer, Joyce Kelly, Sue Martin, Billie Sidersworth, Betty Scott, Geraldine Killingsworth, Vernell Robinson, Faye Davenport, Faye Williams, Jerry Cobb, Carroll Webb, Margie F. Barrette, Gurdene Plier, Betty Louis, Galsi Ann McCue, Burnice Hil- yer, Christina Porter. They repeated the pledge led by Betty Barrette. Each one received a scroll which was pinned on by the president. In conclusion of the program they sang the FHA song.

ing parents have a license to care for unrelated children. The license was free—but it is evidence that the fam- But in Clanton County, the two licensed boarding homes are filled, and can care for no more children. Miss Lee could and would give care to children boarded there. Lee believes there are families here who will share their home. The department can pay nominal board and provide medical care. But it cannot license boarding homes until people "open their doors" to children temporarily without a home of their own. Won't you come to the welfare office or call telephone No. 251, and find out more about this program.

ESTELLE HAYES

The Helen Keller Literary Society will entertain with a play Friday night, November 2, at 7:30. The public is invited. More about the play next week. Stunt Night at Thorsby Institute will be November 24, at 7:30.

The Ladies Guild will meet Thursday at 2:30 in the Pilgrim Fellowship Room of the Congregational Church. Mrs. Jim Collins is hostess. Everyone is invited.

Miss Naemi Turnquist entertained her sister Mrs. A. E. Reagan on last Thursday night, when she gave her a surprise birthday party. About 22 guests enjoyed this affair with Mrs. Reagan. Canasta was enjoyed throughout the evening and refreshments were served, consisting of hot coffee, sandwiches and birthday cake.

Nels Petersen is still confined to the Highland Baptist Hospital in Birmingham where he is under observation for a stomach ailment. Latest reports are that he is doing very nicely, and we do hope that he will soon be able to come back home.

Lutheran Church News—

Services will be held at the Lutheran church on next Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, with the Rev. David F. Conrad of Christ Lutheran church, Birmingham, conducting the service. The public is cordially invited to attend.

The Rev. William R. Morgan of Claythorpe, S. C., has accepted the call to become Pastor of the Lutheran church here, and is expected to preach his first sermon at this church on the first Sunday in January. This will be the first time in a good many years that the Lutherans have had a resident Pastor in Thorsby.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Turnquist, Mrs. A. E. Reagan and Mrs. James Bosworth spent Tuesday in Birmingham where they went to be with their sister, Mrs. Karl Petersen on her birthday.

News which came as a big surprise to their many friends here, was that of the marriage of Miss Agnes Gerald and Martin Nelson. They were married in Washington, D. C., at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Mary Ella McComber. This sort of old romance of several years ago, when these two people lived in Thorsby, and then after not seeing one another for a number of years, they met again at the little Lutheran Church here, of which they were both members, and in a few weeks afterwards, news came of their marriage. Their many friends in Thorsby Congratulate this couple and wish for them much happiness. They will make their home in Birmingham where the groom is employed.

Mrs. Bertie Fair, Misses Alma Lefts and Naemi Turnquist attended the homecoming at the Methodist Church in Jemison last Sunday. They attended Sunday School and church services and then enjoyed a bountiful dinner, which on account of the rain, was served in the Masonic Hall instead of out of doors. A large crowd attended and it was a wonderful experience seeing old friends again and enjoying the fellowship of these good people in our neighboring town.

Congregational Church—

The annual meeting of the church was held on October 10, and the following officers were elected: For one year: Clerk, Rev. I. A. Hart; Treas., Mr. Rascoe Maddox; Sunday School Supt., Mr. Lewis Johnson; Sunday School Primary Supt., Mrs. James Kincaid; Missionary Supt., Mrs. Emily Harding; Auditor, Mr. A. N. Laurell; Organist, Mrs. Irene Petersen; Asst. Organist, Miss Shirley Petersen.

For three years: Deacon, Mr. Frank McCain; Deaconess, Mrs. E. R. Piper; Trustee, Mr. Roy Raybon.

Committee: Nominating Committee: Mrs. Irene Petersen, Chmn., Mrs. Rascoe Maddox, Mrs. Nels Petersen, Mrs. Mattie Barham.

Budget Committee: Mr. Roy Raybon, Chmn., Mr. I. A. Hart, Mr. A. N. Laurell.

Every Member Canvas Committee:

Mrs. Lloyed Howard, Chmn., Mrs. James Kincaid, Mr. C. M. Williams, Mr. A. N. Laurell, Miss Ruth Primm, Mrs. Irene Petersen.

Delegates to State Conference: Mrs. Mattie Barham, Mrs. Jim Collins, Mrs. Lloyed Howard, Mr. Frank McCain.

THE EXCUSE

The Master came to Sunday School. He paused beside your chair; There was a sad expression, When he saw you were not there. You say you were at home that day, For guests you must prepare; An appetizing meal they want, That's why you were not there. Or, you had nothing much to wear, Your clothes were out of date; Your mate was out till ten last night, So this morning you slept late. And your head was aching painfully, Your feet were tired and stiff; Your back hurt just a little, That's why you did not go. God made six other days, you know, In which to do your work; Then why, on Sunday (of all days), So many times He does forgive, In fact, seventy times seven; But he wants you at Sunday School, And in your pew at eleven.

—Ida Ford Murphree

C.A.'s Have Hay Ride—

Forty-one of the Girl's Auxiliary of the Clanton First Baptist Church, had a most delightful time on the hay ride and weiner roast last Wednesday afternoon, when they gathered on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Dickinson's home and boarded the two trucks driven by Mr. and Mrs. Dickinson for a long ride out the Lay Dam Road, ed weiner roasting and games, weiner roasting and games.

Mr. and Mrs. Dickinson were assisted with the party by Mrs. F. H. Spicer, Mrs. George Jester and Mrs. Willie Brown.

Martha Bell Celebrates Birthday—

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Bell honored their daughter, Martha, on her 14th birthday last Saturday afternoon, when her friends gathered at the Bell's home on Selma Road and enjoyed a truck ride to Camp Leona Rose on Blue Creek. Games and weiner roasting were diversion during the party hours.

A large pink and white cake held a candle for each of Martha's years. As each guest cut the cake they looked for the surprise favors. Harold Gene Parr, Ann Spicer and Henry Bell found the lucky articles.

The honoree was presented a lovely gift wrapped package from each of her friends, who were: Myrna Cress, Ann Spicer, Ann Hocutt, Sue Davis, Ann Fiquette, Ardith Askins, Louise Golden, Jackie Minor, Donna Klumner, Russell Lewis, Gene Taylor, Larry Minor, Louie Reynolds, Phil Sims, Ernest Owens, Rusty Shelton, Fred Thompson, Don Askins, Harold Gene Parr, and Henry Bell.

Married Fifty Years—

Congratulations are in order to Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Motes, Clanton, Rt. 5, who celebrated their Golden Anniversary Saturday, Oct. 20. Mr. and Mrs. Motes had all their children with them on this special day. A daughter, Mrs. Lucile Minor of Birmingham, the two sons, Mr. E. J. Motes, Birmingham and Mr. Arthur Motes, Shreveport, La. Five grandchildren and one great grand child.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayes Entertained—

One of the loveliest autumn festivities was on Thursday evening, Oct. 18, when Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Hayes of Clanton were hosts at a formal dinner party at the Blue Moon Inn, in Montgomery, Ala. Artist arrangements of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums in brass bowls, flanked by burning yellow tapers in bronze candleabra were placed at intervals on the "U" shaped dinner table.

The following guests found their place at the table by attractive place cards: Mr. and Mrs. John Mullins, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scott, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Huddleston, Mr. and Mrs. James Wade, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Omar L. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Grady Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Dyer Shackelford, Mr. and Mrs. C. Burnett, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Mullins, Mr. and Mrs. John DeRamus, Mr. and Mrs. John Hollis, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Moore, Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Edgar, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Jones, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lee Smith, Mrs. Hugh Jones, Mrs. Samuel E. Johnson, and Mrs. Arthur Johnson, all of Clanton.

A Fellowship Party—

On Saturday evening, Oct. 20, friends of the Rev. John Smith family surprised them with a covered dish supper. When the cars began arriving at the Smith home, flooding the head lights on the lawn the Smith family was very pleasantly surprised.

Large electric lights were placed in the shrubbery. Small tables, food drinks, and everything that it takes to make a gala affair and a delicious meal was taken from the visitors cars. A large cotton basket was brought along and placed in a convenient spot to receive gift wrapped packages from the many friends who represented all the churches of Clanton and the suburban churches.

After the bountiful supper, visiting and group singing were enjoyed. Many times the group started singing the hymns and folk songs, but so often it ended as a duet or a solo. On the numbers where the group sang through out the harmonizing was beautiful and most touching. A short thank you talk was made by Rev. Smith, in behalf of Mrs. Smith.

Before the group left for home they joined hands and offered sentence prayer and then sang, "Bless Be the Tie that Binds."

Between seventy-five and eighty-five friends of the Smith family bade them good night and wished them well in their new home in Valdosta, Ga. where Rev. Smith has accepted pastorate of the Presbyterian Church beginning November 1st.

Chaplain and Mrs. Kenneth Fristo and son, Kenneth, from the 3rd Army Headquarters in Atlanta, Ga. were the week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dent Williams and family.

Miss Hazel Hodges and Mrs. Herbert Hodges and daughter, Sarah Ann, were guests of Mrs. Ed Nunn last week.

ISABELLA SCHOOL

Isabella won the game with Hicks Memorial last Fri. the score being 7-6. Norma Foshee, a Sr. III, was chosen Miss Homecoming. She has been cheer leader for two years. Congratulations to you, Norma.

On Oct. 26 Isabella will play Calera there.

The school annual is being made. We would like for all parents and friends to have one. The deposits are $1.00, buy now. There will be a movie here Oct. 30. We believe you will enjoy it. Don't forget the Halloween Festival on Wednesday night, Oct. 31. You will want to have your fortune told, visit the Country Store, bob for apples, fish, vote for pretty girl and ugly man award, enter the cake walk and many other attractions. There will be plenty of food for all. One of the main features will be the crowning of the king and queen for both grade and high school.

Everyone is noticing how nice the Ag. Building is looking since it has gotten a new coat of paint. Money to buy paint was earned by the F.F.A. Boys picking cotton. Painting was done by classes of veterans who are taking On-the-job training in farming classes here. We are grateful to Gordon Conway and others for what they have done to help improve the school and Ag. Building.

At our first sale Monday, October 15th, we sold 173 cattle including cows and calves, 82 hogs, 3 goats, and 1 horse. Cattle brought from 34c down. Hogs brought from $20.60 down, cows with calf at side $227.50 and down.

Total Sales $21,626.48

We have some nice white faced bulls from Shelby County that will sell next Monday. See them at Sale barn any day.

Bring in stock early on sale day.

We Thank Everybody!

The Ladies Auxiliary of VFW Post

631 held their regular meeting last Thursday night. Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Mae Cox, Miss Estell Davis and Mrs. Jessie Gillespie.

The members were served cold drinks and cookies. Those present were: Mrs.

Alvis Aldridge, Mrs. Wilma Rucker,

Mrs. Lilly Hathcock, Mrs. Johnnie

Potts, Mrs. Nettie Shanks, Mrs. Daisy

Bolding, Mrs. Francis Watson, Mrs.

Marcelle Hampton, Mrs. Delene Hampton, Mrs. Grace Compton, Mrs. Margarette Clapp, Mrs. Willie Davis, Mrs.

Mary Brown, Miss Frances Reynolds, and Mrs. Kathryn Goff. Several matters of business were discussed.

The third grade with their teacher,

Mrs. Barnes, took an interesting trip to the Higginbotham Dairy last week.

The mothers of the third grade who helped get the forty children to and from the dairy were Mrs. Perry Thomas, Mrs. Theran Watson and Mrs. J.

W. Graham.

Mr. Higginbotham through kindness and patience showed the children many interesting things about the dairy. One outstanding feature in the minds of the children was watching the electric milk machine in operation, then seeing it taken apart and carefully washed, piece by piece. When the trip thru the dairy was completed Mr. Higginbotham opened a large can and gave each child a bottle of cold milk to

The PT-A meets tonight, October

25, at 7:30. Please come and bring someone with you. Your presence and cooperation will help to make a better school for your child and your neighbor's child.

The P-T-A is now planning a program for Halloween. It is hoped that it will be a bigger and better program than ever before. Please come out and help this party to be a success. The date will be posted downtown.

Mrs. Georgia Billingsley, Mrs. W. E.

Coburn and Mrs. P. H. Barnes attended the teacher's meeting at Verbena

Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Kenneth McGee was carried to Vaughn Memorial Hospital in Selma last Monday, where he will undergo an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Clark entertained

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Wooley with a fish fry at the home of Mr. and Mrs.

Virgil Royster last Wednesday night.

Those enjoying this nice supper were:

Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Coburn, Mr. and Mrs. Wooley, the Roysters and the Clarks.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Compton had as their visitors last week Sgt. and Mrs.

Carl Hittower of Talladega.

Mr. Bud Houston's sister, Mrs. Ida

Atcheley is doing nicely in the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hampton have as their visitors for several days a brother-in-law, Mr. E. A. Baltzer and friend Mr. Edward Bogard of Akron,

Ohio.

Mrs. Evan Johnson, Mrs. Douglas

Giles and Mrs. Bud Burnett honored

Mrs. Mitchell Johnson last Thursday afternoon with a tea shower at the home of Mrs. J. H. Graham. Michil received many nice useful gifts.

Sorry to report that our good friend and neighbor, Mrs. Eula Seales passed away last Tuesday. She was buried in Maplesville cemetery at 2 p.m. on Thursday. We extend our deepest sympathy to the family.

Attending the Ala.-Tenn. game last Saturday in Birmingham were Kermit

Coburn, R. E. Clark, Virgil Royster, and Mr. and Mrs. Morris Wooley of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mr. Littleton of Clanton demonstrated the Miracle Maid Cookware at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kelley last Wednesday night. Those attending a nice dinner and an evening of fun were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd of Selma, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Walker, Mrs.

Ruth Hubbard, Mrs. Pearl Williams and Mr. Carl Kelley.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kelley and Fred visited their son, Eugene and family, in Birmingham last week. On returning home they brought their little grandsons, Vick and Gregg to visit with them for awhile.

Mrs. Jake Stough had as her visitors for the week end her daughter, Mrs.

Waldrop and family of Randolph.

Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Holliman of Clanton, visited Mrs. J. O. Mize last

Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Hall of Evansville, Ind., spent several days last week with their daughter, Mrs. Frank Ruffert and family. The Rufferts are moving to Clanton in a week or so.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Davis, Ricky and Mike, of Fairhope spent last week with Mrs. Mae Cox and Estell, and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Atcheson in Plantersville.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Chambers is confining to Vaughn Memorial Hospital in Selma.

Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Neely and children of Orville visited Mrs. Ed Day and children last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Young of Selma visited Mrs. Sally Young last Sunday.

Mr. Willard Hicks made a business trip to Montgomery Monday of this week.

The WSCS of the Methodist Church met in the home of Mrs. V. B. McCain last Tuesday, Oct. 16, at 2:30 p.m. Mrs.

Ed Day had charge of the program which was taken from the program book. Topic for discussion "Christian Mission and Human Rights." Those taking part on the program were Mrs.

Mattie Foshee, Mrs. Maude Clements and Mrs. Evie Cochran. Prayer by Mrs.

McCain. Others attending not on the program were Mrs. Sue Foshee, Mrs.

Harry Higginbotham, Mrs. Ernest Fu-

qua, Mrs. Perry Thomas, Miss Branda

Higginbotham, Miss Sandra Day, Freddie Thomas and Ed Day. After the program a surprise stork shower was giving Mrs. Higginbotham. She received a lot of nice useful gifts. Lovely refreshments were served to all the guests.

The WMS of the Baptist Church met last Monday for the Royal Service

Program. Mrs. Sudie Graham was in charge. The program outline was "Picnic Preparation for the Purpose of God," and the devotional thought was

"Some fell on good ground," scripture

Matthew 13:3-9-18-23. Prayer by Mrs.

visited Mr. and Mrs. Henry Riffe last

Sunday.

The VFW held their regular meeting last Monday night.

Rev. Paul Oden of Clanton and Fred

L. Kelley of Maplesville attended the Bible, Fellowship and Song conference at the school for the blind in Talladega on Oct. 13 and 14. This conference was held by Edward Wilson of Fort Worth,

Texas, who is editor of the Braille

Evangel Magazine for the blind. This is a religious magazine distributed to 6,000 blind in the United States and foreign countries, monthly.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas Olen and Betty

Jean of Mobile spent last Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kelley.

Last week in the article about the

MISS RUTH HICKS

Several from Plantersville Chapter Number 309 attended the 51st Annual Session of the Grand Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star during the 4 day convalesce in Montgomery last week. More than 2,000 delegates from throughout Alabama, and many visitors from other states were assembled for the sessions. Alabama Eastern Stars elected Mrs. Merle Chapman, of Birmingham, as their new worthy grand matron.

Attending from this chapter were Mrs. Olivia Apperson, Mrs. Ethel Perry, Mrs. Beulah Warren, Mrs. Gladys Gay, Mrs. Bessie Barnes, Mrs. Maudine O'Neal, Miss Ruth Hicks and Mr. Welch Roebuck.

Mrs. Mattie Bleh returned to her brother's home last week after a very enjoyable visit with her sister, Mrs. Ida Reynolds Moore, and family in Wetumpka, Ala.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter Davis of the University of Alabama spent the week end with their parents, Rev. and Mrs. Joe Davis and family.

T-Sgt. Herman A. Davis, Alabama's Ace Army and Air Force Recruiter, operating a one-man station in Scottsboro, Ala., won both individual and station trophies for the month of August. Sgt. Davis reached 233.33 per cent of his quota during the past month.

Capt. William J. Hess, retiring commanding officer of Gadsden Recruiting Main Station, under which Scottsboro operates, made this comment to Sgt. Davis, "I wish to express my sincere appreciation for your undivided efforts and close attention to your recruiting duties, both as a station commander and as an individual recruiter. You have attained a record for which we are all proud."

Sgt. Davis is the son of Rev. and Mrs. Joe A. Davis of Stanton. He is married and has a five year old daughter.

When asked how he won both station and individual trophies, he said, "I contribute my success in winning both station and individual trophies to the wholehearted cooperation that I have been able to obtain from the local county officials, press, radio and local businessmen."

Dr. T. M. Martin of Plantersville, is confined to the Selma Baptist Hospital.

A miscellaneous tea shower was held last Thursday from 5 to 8 honoring Miss Patricia Guthrie at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Green, 1416

Alabama Ave., Selma. Miss Guthrie is the lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rubie Guthrie of Plantersville. Many nice, useful gifts were received by the honoree.

Miss Julius Davis spent Monday in Selma on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Fuller of Mobile, Ala., spent the week end with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willis H. Smithman and Mrs. Cora Fuller. Mr. Fuller returned to Mobile with Mr. and Mrs. Fuller for a visit.

A nice sum was realized from the Tackety Party given by the Home Demonstration last Thursday night in Plantersville. This was a very enjoyable evening; plenty fun for everyone. Mrs. Charlie Gay won the prize for the tackiest woman, Mr. P. W. Garrison the tackiest man, Bettie Godwin the tackiest girl and Allen Kendrick the tackiest boy.

Mrs. J. W. Pickering has led this group this past year and has had a very successful year.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Sherrer, Jr., of Marietta, Ga., came driving in Sat. in a new Buick. They spent the week end with their parents, the John O'Neals and the Lester Sherrers.

Spending the day with the Charlie Gays Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Latham and son, Clayton, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and Mr. Lundy and Miss Susie Barnes of Lawley.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Eaves (Marjorie Burnett) of Oak Ridge, Tenn., have announced the birth of a son, Allen Lamar, on October 15, 1951. This newcomer topped the scales at 5 pounds and 14 ounces.

Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Burnett of Montgomery, Alabama, visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Burnett and other relatives Sunday.

John Wesley Gandy, age 10, and his father, Mr. Howard Gandy, are confined to a Selma Hospital. Saturday night they were riding on a wagon when they were struck by a passing motorist. Reports from the family are encouraging. X-rays have been made of both and it is felt that neither of them are seriously injured.

Mrs. Jim W. Gay spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Pierson and Gary in Plantersville.

Sunday afternoon visitors in the East O'Neal home were Mrs. Minnie Roebuck, Mrs. Maggie Williams and Mr. Welch Roebuck.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Woolley returned to Chattanooga, Tenn., early Monday morning after a visit of a

A CHALLENGE!

Alcoholism, as a personal problem of man, has existed in all times and places. It has afflicted all classes and manner of men. In all parts of our country there are thousands of alcoholics, former "problem drinkers"—men and women of good talent, whose excessive use of liquor had brought them to disaster and despair. Jobs were gone, homes were disrupted, and dignity and self-respect had been destroyed.

Today these same people are fully recovered, back in their rightful places in society, living in security, peace, and renewed self confidence.

Among them are former drunks who had taken every "cure", no matter how Sunday was our annual singing. Although the weather was bad we had a nice congregation. The day was enjoyed by all.

The following singers directed during the day: Ed Langston, S. V. Miller, John deVaughn, Clint Billingsley, Billy Wyatt, Clem Billingsley, Howard Wyatt, George Williams, Wyatt Sisters, Barney Culp, T. W. Billingsley, Lenard Culp, O. L. deVaughn, Wyatt Quartet, Arthur Blackwell, Mr. Durden, Mrs. Buleah Bean.

Pianists were Mrs. Howard Wyatt, Lenard Culp, Mrs. Quincy Littlejohn, and Barney Culp.

We wish to thank everyone for their cooperation.

week with Mr. and Mrs. Willie Stuart, Mrs. Mattie Woolley and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Woolley together with Mr. Kermit Coburn, Mr. R. E. (Fat) Clark and Mr. Virgil Royster witnessed the Alabama-Tennessee Game in Birmingham Saturday.

Don't forget the Chicken Supper at the Stanton Jr. High School Wednesday night.

P-TA meets first Monday in each month. Mrs. Jimmie Green is the president and urges everyone to attend these meetings.

Alabama State Championship run was held in Selma Sunday, October 21. Mr. Folsom Henderson laid out and marked this run. It was approximately 10 miles of endurance riding (Sand hills, creek crossing, ditches, mud, etc.). Entries from all over Alabama and some entries from North Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

Spectators followed the run throughout the day and reported a very enjoyable day of seeing these riders compete for the nice trophies awarded to the winners.

First Place Winner and High Point Man for the day was Mildred Reynolds of Stanton. Mr. Reynolds was proclaimed Alabama State Champion of 1951 having lost only 7 points during the entire run.

expensive, often over and over again, but always without success. Others among them had known confinement in asylums for long periods, only to resume drinking when they were released. Others, through drink induced poverty, had been denizens of "flop houses" and vacant doorways, derelicts of "skid row."

Their sudden return to sanity and sobriety, apparently without anything to account for their recovery, seems a miracle to those who know them. The seeming miracle is explained by the fact that these people have found a new way of life—a way of life for which they give credit to Alcoholics Anonymous.

The time tested success of Alcoholics Anonymous is explained in the following:

First: It is a completely informal society, composed of voluntary members.

Second: It is devoted to a program of mutual help in the maintenance of sobriety.

Third: Its members are dedicated to the practice of a set of tried and proven principles that work for a recovery from alcoholism.

Alcoholics Anonymous is open to any person who can fulfill these three essential qualifications:

1. A sincere desire to quit drinking.
2. A willingness to admit that he, by himself, is unable to solve his problem; that he must have help. This is no disgrace, but it is if you keep on having a problem and don't do anything about it.
3. The ability to be honest with himself.

Anyone who has an alcoholic problem and who has these three qualifications can be assured of relief, a return to normal living and peace of mind.

Alcoholics Anonymous is not a religion—at least not in the ordinary sense of that word. It has no dogma or body of creed. One of its principles is a belief in a power that is greater than ourselves, but every member is entitled to his own concept of what that power is. A belief and faith in an orthodox religion is of great help to many, yet a lack of such faith or belief is never a bar to recovery. A sincere desire for help and willingness to accept aid from a power greater than oneself, whatever that power may be, has been proved to be all that is necessary for relief.

The members of Alcoholics Anonymous are not fanatics. They have no visions of saving the world. Neither do they have a quarrel with anyone drinking. They tell no one that he should stop, but to anyone trying to find relief from an agony of body, mind and spirit caused by drinking that cannot be controlled, they are ready to extend their aid and help and show the path they have followed in finding recovery.

This has not been an attempt to fully explain the mechanics of Alcoholics Anonymous or to completely outline its principles. Rather it has been a desire to let others, who are similarly afflicted, know that their cases are not hopeless, that they can return to sane and normal living, that recovery is possible. There are many healthy examples in Chilton County today. Not only men but women who are proud they are in A.A.

YOUNG MATRONS MEET

The Young Matrons of the West End Baptist Church met for their monthly meeting on Oct. 17, at Mrs. Charlie Weldon's home. Mrs. Joe Williams was in charge of the program. Mrs. Alex Arnold gave the devotional which was taken from Ephesians 2: 1-10. An interesting article on the Life of Lottie Moon was told by Mrs. R. H. Van Houten. There was a lengthy discussion of business. Mrs. J. D. Williams closed the meeting with prayer.

Refreshments were served to Mesdames: Dean Moyer, J. D. Williams, Lewis Headley, Luther Williams, Claud Little, Shelby Cargile, Alex Arnold, Joe Williams, Royal Coggins, Jr., Louis McGee and R. H. Van Houten. Our next meeting will be on Nov. 21, at the home of Mrs. Royal Coggins, Jr. —Reporter, Mrs. Alex Arnold.

Clanton Group meets Monday night at 7:30 p.m. closed meeting. Thursday night 7:30 p.m. open meeting. Anyone interested may attend open meetings. Non-alcoholics as well. Sunday afternoon at 3:00 p.m. If you care to have someone contact you, or would like further information write A.A., P.O. Box 173, Clanton, Ala. ABOUT FLAG WAVING

Dear Veteran or Reservist:

You served your country back in the "dark days" following Pearl Harbor. You served it and you served it well—you, along with some ten million others. Just as I did, back in '46 when I was discharged, you probably said, "That's all for me! And you meant it. So did I. Oh, brother, how I meant it!"

But in '46 we didn't anticipate the kind of future that now faces us. Russia was a space on the map...a country, on our side with undeveloped natural resources and a lot of gallant war-dead. Iran was only a source of crude oil. "Cold war" was an unborn term, probably conceived at Yalta...sired by political conflict and nursed into manhood by ideological differences. The atom bomb was a ghastly thing which had served its purpose, and would probably be outlawed. B-26's and F-86's were only pen scratches on the drawing boards and Korea was an insignificant little blot on the 7th grade geography maps. Peace and security was something we had fought for...something we then hoped to endure as a lasting reality. Those other things, we have. Korea. "Cold-war," F-86's, Iran, the atom bomb...but peace and security we have not. Nor can we say that we will have them tomorrow...or the next day...or the next year.

I know what you're thinking "That jerk is sure waving the flag..." You're darn right I'm waving the flag. I'm waving it for my own benefit and for yours. But it doesn't stop there...not by a long shot. I'm waving it for my unconceived children...and for yours. I'm waving it with the hope that they will have a flag to wave...a flag with stars and stripes in preference to the one with a hammer and sickle. I'm waving it, hopeful that the red in their flag will continue to represent the blood spilled in wars of the past...not the future.

You know the old Fourth of July standbys...Freedom of Speech, Freedom of Religion, Freedom to Think and to Act...you know about them and sometimes you have doubts about some of them. Sometimes...but not when you compare. When you compare those hundred and seventy-five year old phrases with the new hammer and sickle phrases, you remember that there is something in our own standby axioms. And that's when you're thankful for them. You're thankful, and you remember that this country has never known the devastating impact of blockbusters...the screech of buzz-bombs...the whimper of hungry war orphans as they sit by the cold, dead bodies of their mothers...

Yes, you saw hungry war orphans and a lot more. You saw the great factories and mansions of the Hitler and Mussolini regimes reduced to twisted, rusting scrap iron and rubble. In the place of flower gardens and fields there were scorched scrubs and bomb craters. Remember Cpl. Smith who suddenly lost his arms...or Harrigan, who was a little "chicken", but who suddenly lost his eyes or was he the one whose head was smattered and he never knew what hit him? Close your eyes and remember the stench of rotting or burning human flesh. Ghastly? Shocking? Sherman had a word for it...

No, I'm not trying to sell any war bonds, or telling you to go out and "join" something. I just sat down and remembered. And when I remembered, I got scared all over again. Scared all the way down to the pit of my stomach...the same kind of feeling you get when you're crouched in a hot, steaming, stinking jungle, knowing a pair of slant eyes are drawing a bead on you.

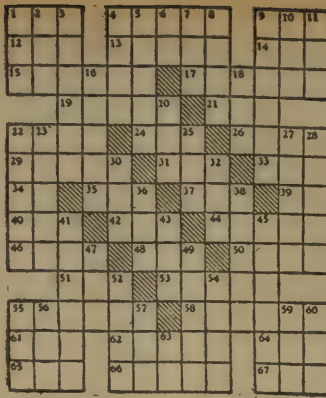

You see, I was one of those guys who stuck his neck out and joined the Reserve...and eleven months ago I was called back to active duty. I fussed and fumed and called myself all sorts of names for a long time. A block-head, a stupid idiot. Why was I in the Reserve in the first place? Why should I have to give another 12 months out of my life to the military service? Why a lot of things. Primarily, the answer lies among the few humble lines you see here. With less than a month to go on my tour of active duty, I sat down and remembered and I got scared all over again. The feeling crept up my spine and crystalized on my brain and I saw the answer. I offer it to you for whatever its worth.

In 1915 this country was faced with the Iron Rule of Bismark. In 1949 the totalitarian philosophy of Hitler and Empirical designs of Hirohito. Today we are faced with the politiburo and world-wide dictatorial aspirations of Joe Stalin, and to get down closer to the blood-stained mud, we are faced with the grim reality that you and I, the meek, peace and security loving individuals may again have to look into the eyes of war orphans and get that odor in our nostrils again. Only this time, in the day of the F-86 and the B-26 and the Russian MIG, we are faced with the fact that the rubble and twisted scrap iron may be all that is left of our own

--By BEN

A little too much enthusiasm was shown last Friday afternoon by some when a siren was used to publicize a football game. We cannot expect the motoring public to give the right-of-way at the sound of a siren when they have heard the same warning signal used for such a purpose. We're sure those guilty were thoughtless in the use of the siren, but we, among others such as the Highway Patrolmen, the Ambulance Drivers and the Firemen, have tried hard to get the motoring public to respect the siren and give it the right-of-way, and such action as the using of a siren for fun doesn't help.

Mrs. Kathryn Goff, our efficient Maplesville correspondent came in to see us the other day. Mrs. Goff is doing a mighty good job of reporting happenings at Maplesville and vicinity and we told her so. We're always glad when our correspondents come in and "fuss" with us about their copy. It shows they are interested and we also get an opportunity to tell them our side of the "picture," and it makes for better friends and more harmony in that department. Confidentially we have a mighty fine group of correspondents on the News now. We're proud of them all.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Cox left the first of the week for Daytona Beach Fla., for the winter. They leased an apartment there and will return to Clanton sometime around March 1st. Their address is 509 Revilo Blvd., Daytona Beach, Fla., in case any of you want to keep Mister Charlie posted on the goings on in this neck of the woods.

Jew hear about the naturalist who was making the talk about caterpillars? "Caterpillars are the most voracious of all living creatures," he said. "In a hundred a caterpillar will eat about six hundred times his own weight." Whereupon an old woman who was somewhat deaf, sitting in the back of the room interposed, "Whose boy did you say he was?"

The Central Alabama Stock Yard opened with a "bang" last week. Large crowds attended the opening and a most enthusiastic reception was given the new undertaking proving it was badly needed in Clanton County. Word reached us that the owners and their "better halves" worked into the wee hours of the morning after, bringing the paper work required up to date.

Our Congressman, Edward deGraffenried will be in the District until further notice, he says in a letter to-day. His office will be in the Post Office Building at Tuscaloosa in case you wish to get in touch with him.

Have you ever tried to picture your own little girl or boy standing by a garbage can, begging for a K-ration scrap from a mess kit?

JOHN SMITH

It was back in the years when I

A. T. HICKMAN then goes like this

"Miss Pocahontas saved the life, In fourteen ninety-two, Of John Smith, and became his wife In fourteen ninety-two, And the Smiths started then and there, And now there are John Smiths everywhere, But they didn't have any Smiths to spare

In fourteen Ninety-two. It is true that there are many Smiths, and even many John Smiths, but I wonder do we have any John Smiths to spare, such as we have in the Rev. John R. Smith, Pastor of the Clanton-Presbyterian Church? Already the people of Clanton are realizing that we are going to miss this John Smith when he leaves our city. Last Saturday evening between sixty and one-hundred friends gathered at the pastor's home. Tables were stationed on the front lawn, filled with food and drinks. Besides, there were many gifts of many sorts given to the Smiths. This was to show them that the people of Clanton appreciate what they have meant to our city and community. After every one had enjoyed the fine eats, many old time songs were sung, and many prayers were prayed for God to bless our friend and good neighbor, the Rev. John R. Smith, in his new field of labor. The Kiwanis Club of Clanton is going to miss the Reverend; he has done a most outstanding job with the Boy Scouts. Mrs. Smith has been very active in the P-T-A and other organizations of the city. According to Ecc. 3:6, "There is a time to get, and a time to lose." So it is our time to lose, but Clanton's loss will be somebody else's gain. May God bless our brother Minister as he goes elsewhere to labor for his Lord and Master; and to be a humble servant to the people. The Smiths have many friends in Clanton that will not soon forget, and may we never forget the fine service these two fine people have rendered to our community.

Think Constructively

ONCE I TALKED with the son of General Ike Eisenhower, who, you don't need to be told, is one of the ablest and one of the most popular men in the world today. Knowing that every person finds some people along the road that are not friendly toward him, I asked this young man, who was a cadet at West Point, what his father's attitude was toward his enemies, or even toward the people who didn't genuinely like him.

Young Eisenhower looked thoughtful for a moment, then said, "Well, I'm sure Dad never wastes time thinking about people who don't like him; you see, he always thinks constructively."

Here's a quotation from Elbert Hubbard, that philosopher who during the early part of this century gave us those helpful and immortal essays called Little Journeys.

"Do not fear being misunderstood and do not waste a minute thinking about it. Try to fix firmly in your mind what you want to do; then without veering, move straight toward your goal. Keep your mind on the great and splendid things, and as the days go gliding by, you will find yourself unconsciously seizing upon the opportunities that are required for the fulfillment of your desire. Thought is supreme. Preserve a right mental attitude -- the attitude of courage, frankness and good cheer. To think rightly is to create. All things come through desire and every sincere prayer is answered. We become like that on which our hearts are fixed. Carry your chin in and the crown of your head high."

It would be a good idea to clip these words of Elbert Hubbard and place them in your billfold. Before you wear out this slip of paper from taking it out to read it, type them on a card for future reference.

RABIES

The old idea that the incidence of rabies is heaviest during "dog days" is a misconception. Statistics prove that rabid animals bite during all times of the year but more so during early spring and fall. Dogs, cats, foxes, wolves, horses, cows and other animals may be affected by the rabies virus; but it is most prevalent in dogs, and dogs are most responsible for the spread of the disease.

Protruding at the mouth is not necessarily a symptom in the animal. In a pet, there are definite signs that make it imperative to have the animal examined by a veterinarian at once. If the dog suddenly becomes irritable, snaps without reason, seeks solitude, chews indigestible objects, has excessive saliva with paralysis of the lower jaw, difficulty in swallowing, a change in bark or disturbance in vision, a veterinarian should be consulted.

The incubation period of the virus in a dog varies from one week to six months. It lodges in the saliva. When the dog bites a human being, the virus is passed into the broken skin. Because the virus travels along the nerve routes, a bite on the hand, face or neck is particularly dangerous and may produce symptoms within ten days; while an arm or leg wound may not cause the disease for thirty to sixty days.

The prevention of rabies is a community problem, for once symptoms develop the victim dies. Pets should be injected annually with a vaccine that will help build its resistance against the disease. In addition they should not be allowed to roam the streets. Instead they should be kept on a leash, not exceeding six feet in length. Every effort should be made to apprehend stray dogs to comply with health department regulations concerning dogs. All dog bites should be reported at once.

FIN-FAN ITEMS

Did you ever dream of having a lake, shore cottage of your very own; a place where rest and relaxation is on tap 24 hours a day, 365 days a year; a place where you can get away from the hum-drum of every day life, away from the din of automobiles and the stuffy atmosphere of the smoky city? You can now make that dream a reality. Perhaps, you already have noticed the many new cottages appearing along the ever appealing shore lines of the Coosa and Tallapoosa Lakes, as if by magic, cottages that were once only a pipe dream are transforming last years wilderness into a congenial sportsman's community. If you can't find your requirements in privately owned lands ask about the Alabama Power Company's recreational development program. There is a site for every whim. Locations are available in the quiet protected waters of a slough, on dandy fishing creeks and on the main lake front with a commanding view of a large expanse of water and evergreen timbered hills. Write yours truly for particulars and make your dream come true. Many are catching nice strings of White Perch, Bream, Stripes and Smallmouth Bass. Entries of last week in the Alabama Power Company Fishing Contest are as follows:

Lake Lay—
Paul Burton's Service Station, Shelby, reports: T. G. Wier, Columbiana, used a cane pole and crickets to catch a 12 ounce Bluegill Bream.

Lake Mitchell—
J. O. Miller Five and Dime Store, Clanton, reports: Ruben Clackler, Rt. 1, Thorby, cast a Baby Coosa Nugget and snagged a 2 pound 5 ounce Striped Bass.

Lake Jordan—
Joe Smith, Log Cabin Beach Fishing Camp, near the ferry below Mitchell Dam, reports: John L. Wilson, 7227 S. 4th Avenue, Birmingham, made a short cast with a Creek Chub near a big rock and came up with a fighting 4 pound 12 ounce Smallmouth Bass.

There goes three more Whooper Catchers. Do you have one of these attractive certificates? You can get one by entering the contest, ask your boat dock operator.

Safety Comment of the Week: Better make sure, especially if you are middle-aged or beyond, or if you take little or no exercise. Vigorous exercise unsuited to age and habits, may over-tax the heart.

CHURCH DEDICATION AT SHAWMUT

Taken from Sunday's Birmingham News
BY DORSEY EARNEST
News Special correspondent

SHAWMUT, Ala., Oct. 13—First Baptist Church members will dedicate their new building at special services Sunday.

Speaker at the 11 a.m. worship service will be Dr. Gordon D. Singleton, president of Mary-Hardin College, Belton, Texas.

The afternoon program will feature a song and praise service, recognition of the building committee, burning of the note and dedication of the new building. Dinner will be served on the church grounds during the noon hour.

THE BUILDING was completed the week of June 17, 1950, at a cost of $145,000. Sixteen months from the date the first worship service was held in the new building the church has become free of debt and is burning the note on the indebtedness of the building which also includes the furniture, fixtures and an electric organ.

Invitations have been extended to former pastors including the first pastor of the church, the Rev. J. G. Holliday, who is expected to attend the celebration Sunday. He served the church as pastor shortly after the church was organized in 1908.

Invitations have also been extended to members of the State Executive Board of the Baptist Convention of Alabama and to the public.

SERVING THE Shawmut church, which has a membership of 670 and is located in the heart of the industrial Chattahoochee Valley, is the Rev. Maurice Hodgins. The Rev. Mr. Hodgins came to the church in 1943—the Shawmut church being his first full time pastorate.

The following members of the Shawmut church compose the building committee and have served on the committee since the new church building construction was started in 1949: Chairman, H. G. Word, E. E. Lovelace, James W. Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Grandberry, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Jones, J. L. Morris, E. D. Harper, Osmos Lanier and J. Fuller Hollis.

Building fund treasurer is Charlie Butler, Jr.

The new building replaces the original church building which was built in 1908 and has every convenience for the members who worship there.

Mrs. Frances Walls is the only living charter member of the church. She lives and attends church here now. J. T. Hollis was one of the first deacons of the church and is on the inactive deacons list at the present time.

Arthur Carmack, clerk of the church, said that without the help of friends the Shawmut congregation could not have built a church as adequate as we now have.

The First Baptist Church of Shawmut is known as "A Working Church for Working People." We feel that the church is amply prepared now to be of greater service than ever before," the Rev. Mr. Hodgins said, "and with the help of God over the past years and in the years to come we are expecting great things for His Kingdom through the efforts of this church."

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Guess They Felt Pretty "Sheepish"

My wife and I went to the football game Saturday and it was a top-notch. But I began to wonder if it was worth the trouble when we got in a traffic jam coming home.

Traffic makes me mighty impatient. When I came to a side road that seemed to point towards the main highway, I turned onto it. This road bumps along for maybe a mile, then fetches up short by the railroad—a dead end.

So, I turned around and darned if there weren't twenty cars behind me! One driver had followed —figuring I knew a short cut—then a whole string of them swung after him, like sheep.

From where I sit, there's no sense in just "following along." Whether it's choosing a road, a movie star, or what beverage to drink at meal time, it's always better to make your own decisions. Personally, I often like a glass of beer with my dinner, but most of all, I like the freedom of making up my own mind about it!

Y. W. A. Installation Service—

The Young Women's Auxiliary of the Clanton First Baptist Church met in the basement of the church Monday evening, Oct. 15, for the installation of officers for the coming year, beginning in October, Mrs. L. D. Hughes gave the charge to the incoming officers. The beautiful and inspiring installation service was by Mrs. P. D. Ellison. Mrs. Ellison made welcome each new member and was also in charge of the initiation. Each new member was presented with a ribbon badge in the YWA colors, green, gold and white, bearing five stars, representing the five ideals of the Young Women's organization.

The "Who, when, why what, where and how" of the YWA from the origin to the present day was discussed. The YWA watch word, Daniel 12-13, was repeated, followed with hymn, "O Zion Haste."

There were sixteen members with their counselor, Mrs. P. D. Ellison, and Mrs. L. D. Hughes, present.

New officers and chairmen are: President, Miss Jetty Faye Ellison; Vice president, Miss Judith Ann Williams; program chairman, Miss Barbara Lowery and Miss Maxine Westerman; group two, Misses Nanette Nivens and Barbara Davidson; Mission study, Peggy Murrell; Community Missions, Donna Klinger, Sue Davis and Sadie Higgins; Stewardship, Carolyn Reeves; Secretary-Treasurer, Jean Epperson; White Cross, Joyce Hardy; Literature, Alice Deramus; Social, Joan Scott and Ruby Crew.

Home Makers Sunday School Class News—

The Home Makers Sunday School Class of the Clanton First Baptist Church met Thursday night, Oct. 18, in the new home of Jewel Sutley, on Lay Dam Road, with Alma Dickinson and Margaret Spicer associate hostesses. A very warm and friendly atmosphere was maintained throughout the evening.

The class president, Alma Crew, called the meeting to order. "Help Somebody Today" was the opening hymn. Reports were given by the officers and group captains. A report was given on a lady who is in need of warm clothing and food. The class made plans to help with this worthy cause within the coming week. Hazel Bookhold and Vivian Klinger were in charge of the list of enlistees for the class.

Mrs. Rose Farley, program chairman, presented Ruby Williams, of the West End Baptist Church, who brought a most inspirational devotional on "The Promise of God," reading several bible scriptures for reference. She ended her devotional with prayer.

Rose Farley gave readings entitled, "What My Absence Did," "What My Presence Did," and "On A Sunday Morning." The devotional and readings were much food for thought.

The Halloween motif was further carried out in the delicious refreshments served at the social hour to twenty class members and two visitors.

Sherry Cox is Five—

Mrs. Raymond Cox honored her little daughter, Sherry, last Thursday afternoon at a party which took place on the lawn of their aunt, Mrs. Spurgeon Calloway. The affair was to celebrate Sherry's fifth birthday which was Monday, Oct. 22.

Yellow and green crepe paper streamers, inflated balloons and the pretty refreshment table decorated the party area of the lawn. The large white birthday cake, beautifully embossed in yellow and green, and holding five white candles with arrangements of autumn leaves and goldenrod were used on the party table.

The children enjoyed a play period and posing for snapshot pictures. It was a happy time for little Sherry as she opened each gift-wrapped package and as her friends sang "Happy Birthday Sherry."

Pretty colored balloons and candy filled Halloween miniature pumpkins were given each guest as favors.

The birthday cake was cut and served with ice cream to the following: Danny Jean Hill, Nelda Minor, Beth Maddox, Edna Jane Bogle, Sandra Poole, Josephine and Jack Moore, Rita Weed, Christy Cox, Jimmy McGee, Randy Williams, Bobby Powers, Mike Johnston, Daryl Ellison, Butch Carter, Charles Patterson, Sandra Ellison, Harold Lawrence, Jr., Assisting Mrs. Cox were Mrs. Calloway and Mrs. Cecil Carter.

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Woodson have returned from a two-week vacation touring Florida. After spending a week in Key West they attended the American Legion Convention in Miami, returning for the Ala-Tenn. game on Saturday in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Woodson and sons, Bobby and Warren, of Knoxville, Tenn., are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Woodson of Mitchell Dam. They came down for the Ala-Tenn. game on Saturday.

Mrs. M. E. Fallin of Birmingham, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. R. D. Woodson, and Mr. Woodson at Mitchell Dam.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Newell, formerly of Fayette, Ala., visited the parents, the R. D. Woodsons of Mitchell Dam over the week end. Friends of Herbert will be glad to learn of his promotion and transfer from Fayette to Magnolia, Ark., by the Ford Motor Company. Herbert has been with this company for some time as auditor.

Mrs. J. E. Adair of Birmingham is visiting Mrs. Jim Baker for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Deloach and daughter, Norma Sue, of Birmingham were week end guests of Mrs. Alice Dubose.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Baker of Mitchell Dam visited relatives in Chickasaw last week end.

Mrs. Alice Dubose made a business trip to Thorsby last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Connell and son, Cpl. Connie Mac, are visiting Mrs. Connell's relatives in Maunee, Ark.

Miss Annette Blair of Judson College was home last week end.

MAPLE SPRINGS

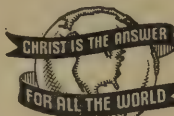

There were a large number present Sunday and Sunday night. Brother Hughes certainly brought us the word of truth as it is in the bible. We are proud of him and his faith to stand up for God.

Each Sunday night the BTU service will begin at 6 o'clock and we are always proud of the people that come our way and welcome the visitors to worship with us.

Our prayer service is increasing each Wednesday night and our program will be of much interest.

We are still praying for many who are sick in our community; Mrs. Price, Mrs. Beard's mother, and Mrs. Varden, may the Lord lead and guide us to their prayer.

Everyone come out and be in the Lord's service with us and receive the many blessings in store for you.

Mrs. Jack Roper and boys are home from California where they have been with Mr. Roper.

Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Pipes have returned from a visit to friends and relatives in North Vernal, Ind., and Louisville, Ky. In Indiana they visited Mrs. Pipe's half-brother, whom she had not seen for 14 years, and Mr. Pipes had not seen for 60 years. While in Kentucky they drove down to Lebanon, Ky., which is Mr. Pipe's old home.

Sgt. and Mrs. R. B. Ruffy and son, Mike, of Waco, Texas, were the Friday night guests of her aunt, Mrs. H. Glenn, and family.

Mrs. John Studdard, Miss Jeraline Studdard, Mrs. George Tucker, Mary Kate and George, Jr., were visitors in Montgomery Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Motes spent Sunday in Birmingham with their daughter, Mrs. Lucile Motes, and family.

The Russell A. Williams family had as their week end guests, Mr. Williams' sister, Mrs. C. W. Vice, and Mr. Vice, of Pensacola, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Billingsley and Mrs. G. W. Edwards of Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Billingsley of Clanton were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Billingsley.

Intermediate GA's Meet—

The Intermediate GA's met Sunday, Oct. 21, at Mrs. Golden's. We sang the GA song, "We've a Story to Tell to the Nation," our watchword, Allience and Starideas. Then scripture verses were given by Lou Jean Westerman, Linda Wade, and Jeanette Crew. The president, Janice Wood gave us the chairman of the committees. We then gave some corresponding readings, and Mrs. Golden led in prayer. We decided the next meeting would be at Jeanette Crew's. Then Mrs. Golden served delightful refreshments, with her daughter's help.

JEMISON HIGH SCHOOL HALLOWEEN PARTY

There will be a big Halloween Party at Jemison High School on Wednesday night, October 31. There will be drinks, peanuts, cake, coffee, pronto pups, and many other articles to sell. There will also be a "House of Horrors."

One of this number from high school and one from grammar school will win the two prize boxes of candy. The one who gets the most votes will win. The votes are one cent each.

The picture of the winning couple in each group will be in the annual.

Europe has produced many famous circus acts, but no troupe has ever met with greater favor in America than has the renowned Cristiani Family of bareback riding marvels, who, with Lucio, the featured star and greatest of all riding comedians, have proven the most outstanding and talented equestrian display in all circus history.

When the huge King Bros. Circus comes to Clanton, Saturday, Oct. 27, for performances at 2 and 8 p.m., among the great stars will be the Cristiani Family, by all odds, the biggest circus feature in the land of sawdust and spangles.

The internationally famous Lucio, the absolute dean of riding comedians, has been a shining star for several seasons. He literally stops the show and he stops it cold at each performance.

FATALITY . . . Motorcycle officer Chester Gilchard, Los Angeles, was killed as he was struck by car while directing traffic at another accident.

Parents' Problems

By DONALD M. MAYNARD

My neighbor is worried because his small child doesn't obey. In our home there are three children under eight years of age. We have never even thought they should obey. We have loved them and let them feel free to do what they wanted to do so long as they didn't hurt themselves or others. Are we selfish?

Had you said that you simply loved your children and left them free to do whatever they wanted, I certainly would have said that you were selfish!

But you didn't quite say that. You added the phrase, "so long as they didn't hurt themselves or others." In other words, you are not giving them unlimited freedom. But what is your policy when they are about to hurt themselves or others? Don't you expect them to obey then? My guess is that you do, and if you do, then I don't think you and your husband are selfish!

I judge from your comments that you are taking a stand against those parents who make almost a fetish out of obedience. They exercise their authority as parents just for the joy of doing so, and they expect their children to obey just because they are children. They are the "do this because I told you" sort of parents.

You most assuredly are right in protesting against such an unintelligent use of authority and the expectation of blind obedience. Nevertheless, there are times when obedience is essential, as you imply in your question. A child who never obeys, who runs roughshod over all the others in the home, who gives expression to every whim or fancy, is not only a pest to all those with whom he comes in contact, but also is ill prepared to take his place in the school room, on the playground, or anywhere in the life of the world.

Our responsibility as parents, therefore, is to use authority wisely and so to guide our children that they will obey cheerfully and promptly when it is necessary because they have discovered that we do not ask for obedience unless we have a good reason for doing so.

I have one child—a little girl fifteen months old. . . . Since she could walk around her crib (about eight months) she would not go to sleep when I put her to bed. I let her cry one time and she proceeded to become very much upset, losing her dinner, etc. Now I simply rock her to sleep or lie down on my bed with her. I am wondering how I am going to change her habit. She is already used to going to sleep by music. What do you suggest that I do?

You realize, of course, that it is exceedingly difficult to change the habits of a child after they once are formed. In your particular situation, your little daughter undoubtedly finds a sense of security and a feeling of importance in the experience of being rocked to sleep or of having you lie down on the bed beside her. You cannot hope to break up this habit quickly, without leaving undesirable emotional scars, but you are quite right in feeling that she should begin to learn to go to sleep by herself. Your task is to help her learn to do this without being plunged into a feeling of insecurity and uncertainty. One or more of the following suggestions may be helpful:

1. Gradually eliminate the rocking to sleep, but continue for a time to lie down on the bed with her.

2. Some evening, when the child is feeling well and you have had a quiet, happy time together, tell her that instead of lying on the bed, you are going to sit in a chair by the bedside. She may whimper some, but if you are firm but kind, and perhaps hold her hand for a night or two, she will become accustomed to your not lying down with her. As she gets older, reading or telling a goodnight story and of having a prayer is a good idea.

3. After the child has become accustomed to this procedure, it will not be so difficult to plan for an evening when you will tell her that you are going to be in the next room while she goes to sleep. Again, she may cry a bit, and if she seems to be somewhat frightened and is slow in going to sleep, it may be desirable for you to go to her occasionally for reassurance. Guard against doing this too frequently, however.

4. If she is accustomed to a soft light in the room or in the hall, let her have one. It is better, however, if the room can be dark and the house can be free from any unusual or distracting noises. Be sure, too, that she does not have any exciting experiences just before going to bed, such as being the center of attention in a group of people, or having a big romp with her father.

Don't "stew" over your child too much, Dr. Maynard advises in his leaflet. It's free to readers of this newspaper. Send a postcard to Donald M. Maynard, 810 Broadway, Nashville 2, Tennessee, for your copy.

HEALTH QUESTIONS

Dr. Marshall L. Ware
Chiropractor

Q—Can Chiropractic adjustments be used with success for gall stones?
—J.W.C.

A—Yes. A pinched nerve makes a disordered liver. A disordered liver produces an imperfect bile. The imperfect bile causes gall stones. Now reverse the order. When the pressure on the nerve is removed the liver becomes normal and produces normal bile which passing over the gall stones dissolves them, thus eliminating the trouble without danger or pain. There have been cases where the first adjustment so relaxed the tissue that the stones passed off in a few hours.

Q—How will Chiropractic affect a case of overweight?

A—One so afflicted usually has an unnatural craving for certain articles of food. Adjustments correct the nerve disturbances which cause this abnormal appetite and the patient returns to his normal weight.

Q—I can't see how adjustments could cure a case of tonsilitis although I admit that this is an age of wonders.—C.J.J.

A—Yes, this is an age of wonders. I'll admit at first, it is hard to see how it is done but like other mysteries it is too easy when you understand. When you injure the root of a vine it is easy to understand why the leaves dry up and fall off. This analogy applied to the cervical nerve explains why the puss passes off in a few tonsils. Chiropractic adjustments which relieve the pressure on the nerve thus corrects the injury at the root and the trouble disappears.

Q—I have what is commonly called hives. How can Chiropractic remedy this disease?—C.B.J.

A—Hives are caused by a disordered nervous system. There may be a pinched nerve somewhere in the spine which causes the nerves to become irritated and cause the hives to appear. Chiropractic adjustments which relieve the pressure on the nerves causing these organs. Thus the cause is removed and the hives will soon disappear.

Q—Dr. Ware will be glad to answer your health questions by mail or in person, phone 394.

IN THE PROBATE COURT OF CHILTON COUNTY, ALABAMA, DECREE CONFIRMING COMMISSIONERS REPORT

This cause coming on to be heard on this day for a decree confirming the report of the commissioners and for to appoint in said cause and for to order condemning in pursuance thereof as to the lands described in said report to said applicant's petition filed in the above entitled cause;

And it appearing to the Court that on, to-wit, the 18th day of September, 1951 this Court heard the allegations of said petition and all legal evidence offered by the parties touching the same, and it further appearing to this Court that this Court did make and enter an order granting said petition for the condemnation of the property described therein, namely:

Tract 3-A. A right-of-way hereinafter described over and across the real estate hereinafter described in Chilton County, Alabama, for a public road, which right-of-way shall be forty (40) feet in width on each side of the center line of said road, as it is now located and staked out by the State Highway Department, or as much of said real estate as is required to make an eighty (80) foot right-of-way across said lands, said right-of-way being more particularly described, as follows:

As shown on Right-Of-Way Map Project SACP 374-A and recorded in the Office of the Judge of Probate, in Map Book Number 3, at Page 12, beginning at Survey Station 14-06.5, said project being the North property line; thence South 20 degrees, 54 minutes East for a distance of 617.6 feet to Station 14-06.5, the point of ending being the South property line. Said strip of land being thirty (30) feet in width along each side of said center line. Said strip of land lying in the Southeast quarter (SE1/4) of Section 35, Township 22 North, Range 14 East, and in the Northeast quarter (NE1/4) of Section 2, Township 21 North, Range 14 East, and containing 0.87 acre, more or less, situated in Chilton County, Alabama.

And it further appearing to the Court that the Respondent, Cooper Lumber Company, A Corporation, is the owner of and is now in possession of the lands described herein in Tract 3-A, and that there are no other parties claiming or holding any right, title or interest therein known to said petitioner, and that petitioner has exercised reasonable diligence to ascertain the same.

Tract 3-B. A right-of-way hereinafter described over and across the real estate hereinafter described in Chilton County, Alabama, for a public road, which right-of-way shall be forty (40) feet in width on each side of the center line of said road, as it is now located and staked out by the State Highway Department, or as much of said real estate as is required to make an eighty (80) foot right-of-way across said lands, said right-of-way being more particularly described, as follows:

As shown on Right-Of-Way Map Project SACP 374-A and recorded in the Office of the Judge of Probate, in Map Book Number 3, at Page 12, beginning at Survey Station 14-06.5, said project being the North property line; thence South 20 degrees, 54 minutes East for a distance of 617.6 feet to Station 14-06.5, the point of ending being the South property line. Said strip of land being thirty (30) feet in width along each side of said center line. Said strip of land lying in the Southeast quarter (SE1/4) of Section 35, Township 22 North, Range 14 East, and in the Northeast quarter (NE1/4) of Section 2, Township 21 North, Range 14 East, and containing 0.87 acre, more or less, situated in Chilton County, Alabama.

And it further appearing to the Court that the Respondents, A. B. Windham and wife, Grace Windham, are the owners and are now in possession of the lands described in Tract 3-B hereof, and that the Peoples Savings Bank, A Corporation, who is a party respondent hereto, owns or claims to own a mortgage or lien, or some right, title or interest in said real estate, and that there are no other persons or parties claiming or holding any right, title or interest in or to said lands known to said petitioner, and that said petitioner has exercised reasonable diligence to ascertain the same.

Tract 3-C. A right-of-way hereinafter described over and across the real estate hereinafter described in Chilton County, Alabama, for a public road, which right-of-way shall be forty (40) feet in width on each side of the center line of said road, as it is now located and staked out by the State Highway Department, or as much of said real estate as is required to make an eighty (80) foot right-of-way across said lands, said right-of-way being more particularly described, as follows:

As shown on Right-Of-Way Map Project SACP 374-A and recorded in the Office of the Judge of Probate, in Map Book Number 3, at Page 12, beginning at Survey Station 38-36, said project being the North property line; thence South 20 degrees, 54 minutes East for a distance of 531.2 feet to Station 38-36.2; thence South easterly along a fixed radius curve of three (3) degrees to the left for a distance of 715.5 feet to Station 38-37.7; thence South 42 degrees, 22 minutes East for a distance of 57.3 feet to Station 51-40, the point of ending being the South property line. Said strip of land being forty (40) feet in width along each side of said center line. Said strip of land lying in the Northwest quarter (NW1/4) of the Southwest quarter (SW1/4) of Section 1, Township 21 North, Range 14 East, and containing 2.39 acres, more or less, including area now used as right-of-way. An easement is hereby sought for a strip of land sufficient in width and length to construct and maintain an outfall ditch on the Easterly side of said center line at Station 43-90, all situated in Chilton County, Alabama.

And it further appearing to the Court that the Respondent, Alabama Furniture Manufacturing Company, Inc., A Corporation, is the owner and is now in possession of said lands described in Tract 3-C hereof, and that The City National Bank of Tusculum, A Corporation, who is a party respondent hereto, owns or claims to own a mortgage or lien, or some right, title or interest in and to said real estate, and that there are no other persons or parties claiming or holding any right, title or interest in or to said lands known to said petitioner, and that said petitioner has exercised reasonable diligence to ascertain the same.

Tract 3-D. A right-of-way hereinafter described over and across the real estate hereinafter described in Chilton County, Alabama, for a public road, which right-of-way shall be forty (40) feet in width on each side of the center line of said road, as it is now located and staked out by the State Highway Department, or as much of said real estate as is required to make an eighty (80) foot right-of-way across said lands, said right-of-way being more particularly described, as follows:

As shown on Right-Of-Way Map Project SACP 374-A and recorded in the Office of the Judge of Probate, in Map Book Number 3, at Page 12, beginning at Survey Station 51-40, said project being the North property line; thence South 42 degrees, 22 minutes East for a distance of 608 feet to Station 51-40.8, the point of ending being the South property line. SATURDAY IS CIRCUS DAY

Make ready for the Big Show. The glittering city within a city that is the King Brothers Combined Circus, one of America's largest shows, will begin rising early Saturday morning on Highway No. 31 in the rear of Holley's Garage. Performances are scheduled for 2 and 8 p.m. with the gates opening at 1 and 7 p.m.

As an extra special feature Saturday "The Parade of the Elephants"—not a circus parade, will be presented downtown at noon as a reminder of circus day and the scores of thrills in store for youngsters of all ages.

The huge show will be here only one day. It will bring scores of attractions new to local circus fans plus many of the old favorites whose merits demand their continuance with the show again this season—but all top-flight attractions, with nearly 200 men and women acrobatic stars and performers, including the renowned Christiani Family of sensational, somersaulting, bareback riding stars featuring Lucio Christiani, the greatest riding comedian in all Spangleland history.

Clanton audiences will also see Hugo Zachini, the human projectile, the man actually shot from the mouth of a giant cannon. Without question, the most breath-taking and spectacular display in all Spangleland.

Riding acts and ground displays vie with the horse, animal, and novelty numbers; a veritable maze of swinging-ladder girls, and featured track displays; the beautiful and lavishly produced Aerial Ballet in which twenty serial beauties take part, featuring La Louisa, solo aerial headliner who will cause many a heart to leap and bound with her suicidal daring in the dome of the big top without a net below.

A big menagerie filled with wild jungle beasts including the tallest giraffe in captivity, and a huge double-sided show with a congress of human oddities and weird people from all parts of the world are other highlights for Saturday.

For the convenience of circus patrons, a downtown ticket office will be in operation Saturday at the Alred Drug Store at 617 2nd Ave. North, where tickets for both performances will be on sale at the same prices charged at the circus grounds.

GROWING UP IN THE SOUTH

...and the price is up far less than most things you buy!

SINCE this little fellow was born—in just five years—the number of local telephones Alabamians can call has more than doubled. And Southern Bell expects to spend more than $14,000,000 this year to expand and improve telephone service for this fast-growing state.

BEST OF ALL, look at the modest price you pay for this bigger, better "package" of service! During ten years of rising prices it has gone up only a fraction as much as prices in general... and less than our cost of providing the service.

ALWAYS one of your biggest bargains, telephone service is today an even better buy than it was ten years ago, and a smaller part of your family budget.—Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company.

MENS CLUB, LIONS, KIWANIS HOLD JOINT MEETING

The Clanton Kiwanis Club, Clanton Lions and the Methodist Mens Club held a joint meeting last Thursday night in the basement of the Methodist Church.

More than 100 men attended the barbecue dinner that was served. The food was furnished by W. E. Huddleston and served by the office of Joe Murphy.

Oscar Purdy, president of the Methodist Mens Club, presided and Rev. J. M. McKinney led the invocation. Miss Pat Huddleston sang the Lord's Prayer.

Honor guest and principal speaker was Dr. J. A. Brakelieff of Birmingham and according to everyone who heard him speak his address was most enlightening. His subject was, "America—Is It Worth Saving."

FOURTH DISTRICT MUSIC CLUB MEETING IN OPELIKA

On Thursday, November 1st, the Fourth District of Music Clubs will meet in Opelika with the Opelika Music Club as hostess. A large representation from the Clanton Music Appreciation Club will attend.

The Clubs in the fourth district are Valley Music Club (Lanett, Fairfax), Wedowee, Ronoke, Montgomery, Opelika, Clanton and Tuskegee.

Mrs. Grady Hefflin, who is Director of Fourth District, will preside at the meeting. During the day various musical numbers have been planned from the different clubs. For the final part of the day program, the opera work shop (excerpts from "Carmen" by Bizet), will be given by Patricia Huddleston. Henry Grady Hefflin and Mrs. Erle Ellis. Mrs. W. E. Huddleston is accompanist for the program. Cooper Speaks will be the Narrator.

Episcopal Church News—

The Episcopalians will hold an evening prayer service at the Lutheran Church on next Sunday afternoon, Nov. 4th, at 4:00 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to all wishing to attend.

Misses Carol Howard and Shirley Petersen were the proud recipients of free passes to the first concert of the season of the Birmingham Symphony Orchestra, last Tuesday evening. Miss Eleanor Steber was guest soloist with orchestra. The girls won the passes by sending in the correct titles of numbers played on the "Music for Youth" radio program recently. Carol and Shirley were accompanied by their parents and Martha Jo Woodson of Thorsby Institute.

Pfc. George Stahl of Ft. Benning, Ga., spent the week end with his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. G. Berlin. Also visiting the Berlins were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Rogers of Atlanta.

Mrs. C. R. Foss of Fairfield, Ala., celebrated her birthday here with relatives last Friday. A coffee party was enjoyed in the afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. E. Reagan where those who came in to help her celebrate were two daughters, Mrs. Ralph Mason of Selma, also Mrs. Erle Ellis and son, Michael of Clanton, Mrs. J. O. Johnson, Mrs. G. Berlin, Mrs. Nel Peterson, besides the relatives here. The party also enjoyed a short visit from the newweds, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Nelson of Birmingham. Mr. G. R. Foss and son Robert joined her on Saturday for the remainder of the week end and they returned to Birmingham late Sunday evening.

Mr. Karl R. Peterson of Birmingham accompanied Rev. David Conrad here for the services at the Lutheran Church on Sunday afternoon, and visited a while with relatives.

The employees of the Bank of Thorsby slipped up on Mr. Sam Pate on Saturday night to wish him many happy returns on his 65th birthday. They presented him with gifts and a birthday cake with ice cream. Also enjoying the party were Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Pate. Mrs. Pate had quickly transformed the dining room table into a thing of beauty, centered with a lovely arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums, around which they were all seated to enjoy these refreshments and where a jolly social time was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Howard and Lloyd Howard went to Howard last week, where they were called due to the death of Mrs. Howard's nephew, Merlon Helton, young son of Mr. and SMELLY MESS!

WELCOME, YOU ALL

Several new businesses have sprung up in and around Clanton within the past few days and we heartily welcome them to the business and social life of our little city.

A new plumbing and heating company is located in the building formerly occupied by the Farmers Cooperative Store.

A new steak house near Cloverleaf Motel is under construction and will cater to special parties and special in steak dinners and the like.

An Italian Spaghetti cafe has taken over at Pat's Place and will feature Italian and Mexican foods.

A new grocery store is opening in the new John Higgins building just west of the Old Wadesonian Theatre. Albert Gramatas is building another Cafe in South Clanton. Next door to the Dairy Queen. He will specialize in Barbecue sandwiches, and the like.

To each and every one of these businessmen who have come to Clanton and Chilton County we wish the best of business. We offer our cooperation in every way to make their stay here pleasant and profitable. They are helping to build Clanton and deserve the support of its citizens.

WELL DONE

You can't help but admire a man who knows what he wants and goes after it—and gets it.

Such is the case in the building of the sidewalk on 13th Street from the Selma Highway to the Selma Highway to the Grammar School. And U. H. Abrams who is principal of the school, is the man.

The Parent-Teachers Association could not see their way, because of other badly needed improvements, to take the sidewalk building as a project this year, so Prof. Abrams decided to find other means. He enlisted the aid of the patrons and friends of the school and today he has his sidewalk practically finished and the city has put its road machinery out there to improve the street.

It is going to be a feather in the cap of our Elementary School Principal, and the citizens of Clanton who went to his aid in building the sidewalk and to the city for its complete cooperation.

It has probably saved a life on that traffic congested street. And a case of the door being locked before the horse was stolen.

CONGRESSMAN DeGRAFFENRIED

Hon. Edward deGraffenried, member of congress from the 6th District, of which Chilton County is a part, has made many friends here in the past few years. Coming into the county in his first campaign for Congress he was practically unknown locally, with the exception of a very few local businessmen. Now he numbers his friends in Chilton County by the Hundreds and from all outward appearance all are satisfied with his work in Washington, in the county's behalf.

We do not mean to say that he has pleased everyone, on every vote or on every occasion. But we do say that we have heard less complaint of or griping about our Congressman's service the past two years than in any like period of time previous.

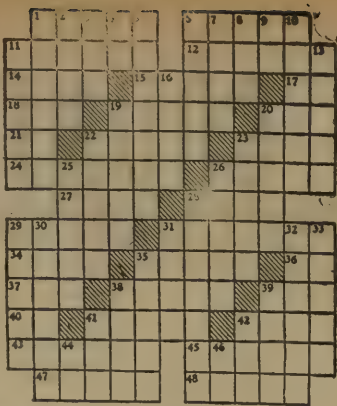

The wholehearted acceptance of his work in Washington as satisfactory to practically one-hundred percent of the citizens of the county indicate that in the next election year deGraffenried will be a hard man to beat.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

Things in the Probate Office Saturday morning was as quiet as a caterpillar in sneakers walking across a Persian rug until we walked in. Harold Smyer, who holds forth there, was ready, willing and able, to crawl all over us about the mis-leading head we carried about the courthouse bond story. We labeled the story "Road Bond sale," instead of courthouse bond sale, and thereby hangs the tale. Well, we have no alibi except carelessness so we're taking this method to inform you that it is a courthouse bond election and not a road bond election. In fact it has nothing in the world to do with roads. It does have to do with a badly needed courthouse in Chilton County and in a building in which every citizen of the county is part owner, much interest should be taken. The present building is terribly inadequate.

Delle D. Cobb, our most attractive Register in Chancery just loves a typewriter. She even takes it home nights and plays on its keys. But don't let us mislead you. Delle D. is making her nights pay off by banging away at all that work she has loaded on her desk at the office. "All work and no play makes jack," she says, so she is putting in her nights to prove her point. Wonder if hard working, energetic, Delle D. wouldn't make a good elected public official. It seems the current fashion is to elect women to public office.

Ottis Miller attended the Tri-State Convention of Credit Managers in Birmingham last week and reports he learned plenty. Added to what "Ot" already knows about running a Credit Bureau and we wind up with a first rate credit man in our midst. He says he heard at the meeting that someone was starting a new 4-H Club--Help Hurry Harry Home.

HEALTH QUESTIONS

Dr. Marshall L. Ware Chiropractor

Q--How can adjustments of the spine cure goitre?
A. We cannot tell how Nature does its curing. We have found the physical cause of goitre and have discovered that by removing the cause the goitre will disappear. There are several types of goitre some of which respond to adjustments quicker than others. In goitre we have first the subluxation pinching the nerve and thereby exciting an overgrowth of the thyroid tissues. The proper adjustments remove the cause which is followed by a softening of the affected parts and consequently an absorption of the fluids of the glands which are thrown out of the body as is other waste material.

Q--Will spine treatments help eczema?
A. Yes. The principal reason for eczema is pinched nerves supplying the kidneys. When these organs do not perform properly there is then a collection of waste matter which accumulates in various parts of the body including the skin. This lays the skin liable to an attack from external contagion. Adjustments to correct the improper functioning of the kidneys will cleanse the internal body and give the external a chance to correct itself.

Q--Will Chiropractic adjustments have a beneficial effect on a bad cough?
A. A cough is a symptom of a disease of the organs of respiration which includes three types: laryngeal, bronchial and lung. With proper adjustments a cough should be cured. Trained Chiropractors can place their finger on the tender nerve roots almost instantly and when the impingement is removed there is no reason why cough should not be eliminated.

The Prayer Meeting

Some may ask the question, "Will our way of life in America survive all of the attacks of our enemies? My answer is, "Yes." As long as the American people are faithful to attend the prayer meetings of our churches, and keep up their family worship, the daily reading of the Word of God, we have nothing to worry about. Keep faith in the God of our fathers, but keep up their manner of worship as well, and that is by attending the prayer meeting, and daily reading of the Bible and conducting prayers right in the home. If we have to remove the supper-room or something else out of our churches in order to retain the Altar and prayer-rooms, we had better do it. If it takes giving up the radio and TV set from the home in order to preserve family prayer and the daily reading of the Word of God, better let everything go, and keep up our spiritual form of worship in the home as in the church.

prayer when the church doors are open every day in the week for its members, and all who desire, to meet for season of prayers together. Such week of prayer is being held this week at the Clanton Methodist Church. This church and other churches are to be commended for conducting such meetings of prayer for a whole week. Then other churches have from one, two and three nights of prayer every week. These prayer meetings, well attended on the part of the church members, will forever preserve the American way of life. May we never get to that place that we feel that the meetings of our clubs, and the meetings of other nature, are more important than the prayer meetings at our churches.

Watch it when you may, the members who attend the prayer meetings regular are the most faithful along the line of church activity. For the most part they are the most spiritual members. Last week every deacon of the Temple Church was at prayer meeting on Wednesday night. The Sunday School superintendent, and other officers, and most of the Sunday School teachers attend prayer meeting regularly. This makes it encouraging for the pastor. This is the way it should be in every church... Don't forget to attend your prayer meeting.

Recovery Begins Where Worry Ends

MERVIN BJURSTROM, Portland, Oregon, had been in sick bay for three days when the medical officer sent for him.

He said, "Mervin, I don't want to frighten you but you have a serious illness. You will be sent off the ship to the naval hospital, Honolulu, Hawaii. From there you will be evacuated to the states. It will take six months of hospitalization or more to get you well."

He remained in the hospital in Honolulu until they put him aboard a Dutch freighter for San Francisco.

At the naval hospital, Oakland, California, the doctor said he was an unusual case. All he knew was that he had a respiratory ailment, but he could see that they were doing their best to help him.

Things seemed to be going well and he was transferred to the U. S. naval hospital, Corona, California. Here he was attended by a woman doctor, who, he says was one of the best doctors he ever met. Forceful in her speech and inclined to curse if things didn't go as she wanted them to go.

His progress in recovery wasn't what this doctor thought it should be. She said, "Mervin, there is something bothering you that we can't help you with, and it is preventing you from getting well. What is worrying you? You must get it off your chest." After a few minutes discussion of his problems, his morale was boosted greatly.

He returned to his bunk and analyzed the situation. "What if I can't be so active and have to baby myself a little the rest of my life? Few of us can do exactly as we like anyway. A majority of the people of our great nation have had to plan their life's work over with a handicap greater than mine."

Right then and there he stopped worrying and started planning. His recovery began right then, he declares, when he stopped worrying.

Your Health

TEMPERATURE

The normal body temperature has been standardized at about 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit. When changing weather conditions cause the outside temperature to rise or fall, a little center in the brain, acting as a thermostat, turns loose the mechanisms that help the body maintain its normal temperature.

Heat is produced in the body by the burning of various foodstuffs. This process is called metabolism. The issues use more oxygen during digestion, exercise and during exposure to cold than when the human body is resting under conditions of warmth.

Because of the body's great adaptability, to outside or atmospheric change in temperature and man's ingenuity in clothing, shelter and air conditioning, there is little need to move or change residence because of the weather. There are some physical conditions, however, that warrant a consideration of the climate. For example, persons with heart disease should avoid high altitudes while a cool sunny climate is better for the person with the pulmonary type of tuberculosis than a tropical climate.

In the automatic adjustment of the human body to outside changes of temperature, the evaporation of sweat from the body surface aids in reducing body heat. In cold weather blood flow diminishes through the skin, sweating is minimal and protective clothing is required for comfort. Strangely enough the sensation of heat or cold is not due to a change in the temperature of the body but to a change in the temperature of the skin.

It is claimed, but not proved, that the outside temperature for greatest physical comfort is about 72 degrees Fahrenheit and for mental activity, 68 Fahrenheit. It is interesting that man is able to withstand heat much better than cold. Cold temperatures favor congestion or slowing down of the circulation in vital tissues of the body, whereas high temperatures increase the circulation of the blood through the skin and to the arms and legs.

WMU Have Joint Session—

The circles of the WMU met at the church for a program from "Royal Service." Mrs. Seymour Reynolds was in charge. Topic of study for the afternoon was "Reputation for the Purposes of God." The meeting was opened by singing, "Lead On, O King Eternal." Rev. Homer Carroll led the prayer, remembering those young people who are in seminaries preparing for religious service. Mrs. Tom Cost gave the devotional, using Matt. 13:3-9, 18-23, dealing with the sowing of seed, "Some Fell on Good Ground." Miss Mary Clements discussed the topic, "Nationals Needed." Every continent calls for trained leaders among its own people. Responsibility is placed upon national workers. Mrs. Seymour Reynolds told how workers in foreign fields are chosen. They must be strong, healthy, have the ability to endure, as there are many hardships for soldiers of the cross. These workers should be mentally alert. Many highly intelligent young people in foreign lands need financial aid and receive it through our missions. Every person entering a seminary needs to show a deep spiritual life.

Mrs. H. L. Shaw and Mrs. B. C. Lenoir told of the work in Europe and Nigeria as if they were reading air mail messages.

The works in South America was given by Mrs. J. A. Petersen and Mrs. A. C. Blouner as if they were reading telegrams.

Mrs. Reynolds asked questions regarding the seminaries in foreign countries and the questions were answered by Mrs. Carroll.

Miss Harvey gave "The Future of the Orient."

The business session was in charge of Miss Mary Clements, president.

Homecoming and Quarterly Conference—

On Sunday, Oct. 21, friends, former members and members of the Methodist Church met for the quarterly conference and home coming. This day is very pleasantly remembered by all who attended. The Rev. Greer preached at the morning service and presided over the conference in the afternoon.

At the noon hour a bountiful dinner was spread, needless to say all enjoyed the repast. During the meal and for a time afterward old friends mingled together, met new friends and enjoyed the time. Those from Birmingham were, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hubbard, Mrs. H. L. Mockey and Peggy, Mr. and Mrs. Noah L. Duffee, Mrs. Pearl A. Adair, Mr. and Mrs. Cady Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Whit Milsap, their children, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Greenwood, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Mock, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Carter, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Durham, Mr. P. E. Owen.

Other visitors, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Dickerson of Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hayes, her daughter, Mrs. Helen H. STANTON NEWS

MISS RUTH HICKS

The sudden passing of Mr. Wiley McCormack late Sunday evening, was a shock to this community. (Details of his death will follow next week).

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Gaddy and daughter of Wilton spent the week end of October 19th, with Mrs. Hicks Harrison and other relatives.

Mrs. J. A. Hammett (Odie Harrison) returned to her home in Sylacauga last Tuesday after several days visit with her mother, Mrs. Hicks Harrison, and other relatives.

The Chicken Supper at the Stanton Junior High School last Wednesday night was well attended. The food was very good and a nice sum was realized from the sale of chicken plates, the fish pond and the Ugly Man Contest. (Five Ugly Men were entered in this contest: Bob Davis, Robert Gay, Joseph Dennis, Andy Brown and Prude Perry. Andy Brown was declared the ugliest man of the five.)

Mrs. Mattie Blehl returned to her home in Williamsport, Pa., last Friday morning after a very pleasant visit with her brother, Mr. Frank Reynolds and other relatives and friends.

Dr. Eugene Calloway and Dr. Eugene Calloway, Jr., of Selma, left Saturday, October 27th, for Boston where

Dr. Calloway will enter the Lahey Clinic of New England Baptist Church. The trip was made by plane from Danely Field, Montgomery. Friends throughout this section are anxious over Dr. Calloway's illness.

Miss Elsie Schurter of Birmingham Southern College at Birmingham, spent the week end with her mother, Mrs. Alam Schurter, and other relatives. Miss Schurter has an office in Ramsey Hall and says that she is enjoying her new duties very much.

P-T-A meets first Monday night in each month. Join if you haven't already done so and support your school. An organization without the support and cooperation of the community can not survive. This year so far the P-T-A has had excellent attendance. Every father and mother in the community should join and attend each meeting. The president, Mrs. Jimmie Green, and other officers urge you to attend. They need you, you and you.

A birthday party was given Misses Laura Ann Huff, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Huff, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dennis Thursday evening, October 25th. This party was in celebration of Laura Ann's 6th birthday.

Pink and green were the colors selected for all decorations. The birthday cake, beautifully decorated in pink and green, was made and presented by Mrs. Joe Edd Bearden.

The children all enjoyed the many games and certainly the making of snapshots during the evening. It was indeed a happy time as Laura Ann opened the gifts. She received so many nice and useful ones.

Those who attended were: Jean Carter, Roxie Wooley, Phillip Gay, Tommie Crowe, Phillip Farmer, Shara Ann Rainey, Beverly Coppick, Wayne Arnold, Emmett Huff, and Dennis Burnett, III.

Parents attending were: Mrs. Betty Arnold, Mrs. Dennis Burnett, Jr., Mrs. Joe Edd Bearden, Mrs. H. R. Schurter, Mrs. Melvin Carter, Mrs. and Mrs. Earnest Coppock and Mrs. E. B. Huff.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Edd Bearden and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dennis attended the Ringling Brothers Circus in Montgomery Saturday night.

Mrs. A. C. Maness of Tuscaloosa, spent the week end with her father, Mr. Frank Reynolds.

Mrs. Evelyn Christian and daughter will leave Saturday to join her husband who is employed in Detroit, Mich. The Young Adult BTU Class has satirized of the new year, which began in October, with a good attendance. They urge every young married couple to come and join them each Sunday morning and night.

A telephone was put in the residence of Guy Osburn last Saturday. Their number is 4613.

A telephone also in the residence of John J. Hicks on Maplesville route. That number is 2757.

A beautiful wedding took place at the Methodist Church in Plattsville Sunday afternoon. A complete write-up of this wedding of Miss Patricia Guthrie and Cadet Gary E. Sparks of Craig Field, will appear in next week's issue of the News.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Gay have announced the marriage of their only daughter, Miss Iris Ruth Gay of Washington, D. C. Miss Gay and Mr. George W. Gould were married October 21, in the Westminster Presbyterian Church, Alexandria, Virginia. They are at home at 102 East Mason, Alexandria, Va., Apt. 104.

There will be a WMU Royal Service Program next Tuesday at 2 p.m. The subject "Whither Asia" and the devotional will be "But, If Not." Your presence will be appreciated.

Laura Ann Huff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Huff, was entertained at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. H. R. Schurter with a birthday dinner last Sunday. Enjoying this day together were: Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Huff, Emmett Burnett, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Burnett, Jr., and Dennis III, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Graham and Judy, and Miss Elsie Schurter of Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dennis, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Gibbs (Alma Lee Bearden) of Jacksonville, Ala.

Mr. and Mrs. Rush Burnett and family had the Huff's with them for Sunday dinner. Mrs. Emmett Huff, Mrs. Donia Bledsoe, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hillman of Selma, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Huff and son of Selma, and Mr. Aubrey Huff.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ruddick, Mrs. Bobby Eddy and Connie Ann spent the day with the Walter Ruddicks in Cordova, Ala., Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Arnold and son moved to Sylacauga, Ala., last Monday where Mr. Arnold is employed. We have to lose this family from our community.

Mr. W. M. D. O'Neal is looking forward to his birthday celebration next Sunday. His birthday comes on Nov. 5th, but the celebration will be held on the 4th. This is the 79th birthday and Mr. O'Neal seems in good health. A complete write-up of this celebration will be carried in next week's News.

Service

You can enhance the appearance of your house, add years to its useful life and reduce repair and maintenance bills by making needed repairs and improvements with concrete.

Sturdy concrete footings, foundations, walls and floors make your home stronger and safer. Outside improvements like steps, walks, drives and patios help keep the house clean too because they keep mud from being tracked in.

Concrete home improvements are moderate in first cost, require little or no repairs or maintenance and have extra long life. Concrete construction also is resistant to fire, storms, decay, termites and vermin. That's why it pays to build or remodel with durable, economical concrete.

Things We See and Hear

-By Tuck

Well, looks like Halloween made it; and from certain reliable sources it looks like more people had a whale of a time.

You know, if we had the football team Selma had we'd be doing alright. Come to think of it, if we had the school spirit that Parrish High had last Friday night it might help a lot.

Seems as if we picked the right girl for the Wolverine in a Who's Who of the Senior Class. I saw Billie Jean Poole in town Sunday and she was playing like one. Aw! Probably just a couple of cousins (Owoool!).

From what I hear that revival at the Baptist Church last week really helped a lot of people. Why even Richard Thompson joined the church. Good for you, Richard, more power to you. (Richard says the preacher almost drowned him though.) Guess that'll teach him to keep his mouth shut!

Instead of having tests the sixth period in algebra class they throw parties. Monday they were sure havin' one swell time and they were supposed to be having an exam??

The seniors finally made their quota for the annual which was $700.00, and that being the case I think we ought'a celebrate.

Looks a little like Rebecca Popwell is getting a little rusty. Mr. Waters told a dilly in class the other day and I'm not sure she's caught on yet. (When and if she does I'll let you know.)

Charles Bates says he threw a recap the other night going to the Selma game. Say, Charlie, when was that, right before you took off? (The ground that is!)

I don't believe it's that Richard Easterling is nervous, it's just that he can't see well. Boy, did he scatter plates all over the lunch room the other day. Don Eiland says when you finish eating you just ought'a sling your plate. He has a point there until one catches him across the head. (No danger, Mr. Hicks; just dreaming!)

You know, that circus the other day was OK, except every time you went through another door it was an extra 25 or 30 cents. Boy, did they make money.

Here's some of the newest in the dictionary: Football, 1. Legal Mayhem. 2. A clean sport because it's the only one that's known to have scrub teams. Football Player, a contortionist because he's always going around his own end. Girl, what every young man should know, 2. a vision in the evening and a sight in the morning. 3. in the past a girl was a little dear, now she's a little bare. Teacher, a person who said he would starve before teaching and has been doing both ever since.

Tip of the Week: To whom it may concern, don't get cooked into playing football with Parrish High.

Parents' Problems

By DONALD M. MAYNARD

Our twelve-year-old boy has never "gone in" for baseball or football or games of that type. He is friendly and well liked but of course when most of the boys go in for these sports, he feels "out of it." We have given him opportunities for camping, sports, etc., and he does well in swimming, tennis, horseback riding. These sports are not, however, as convenient or as "regular" as the ball type of games. In ball he feels awkward—always has, and tries to get out of playing. He is talented in other ways—music, writing, dramas, etc., but these, of course, do not take care of the "game spirit." Do you think we should insist on his doing the sports which he does not apparently enjoy?

Some boys are not the athletic type and nothing that can be done will make them so. It would seem to be cruel, therefore, for you to insist upon your son's trying to be an athlete when athletics do not appeal to him and he has no particular skill in them.

It is quite likely, of course, that his lack of skill is responsible for his lack of interest in such ball games, and it might be well for the father to take some time to help him develop what skill he is capable of developing in football and baseball. If he could become skillful enough just "to get by" when the gang plays these games, it might help his status with them.

If the father discovers, however, that the youngster doesn't have the ability to do even fairly well in these sports, it's far better to accept that fact and to divert his attention to areas where he can do well, and for which he will receive the recognition of his peers.

Two additional comments are in order. Be sure to check up on his physical condition to discover why it is he does not seem to have the energy of other boys. Also, try to make your own home so attractive in the sense that there are things to do, that members of the gang will enjoy coming to it.

I have a daughter eight who is quite high tempered. Generally after the holidays she is ill a day unless she misses some of the excitement of those times. I notice she loses her appetite for a meal if we are going out immediately after. She is an intelligent, quick, and quite artistic girl. She is also in good health. As a child I had a temper and was nervous and irritable. After I was through school I learned to control my temper. What can we do other than keep things as normal and routine as possible? I should like her growing up to be more calm than mine.

Keeping things as normal and routine as possible is probably the most effective way you can help your daughter. As suggested in the discussion below on individual differences, some children seem to inherit a nervous system that is much more sensitive to various kinds of stimuli than that of other children and consequently they are much more excitable and emotional.

I note your comment that she is in good health. If you have not already done so, however, I would suggest that you check with your physician to make certain that she does not have a physical cause for her nervousness. Sometimes the malfunctioning of one or more of the endocrine glands brings about irritable and nervous behavior.

You will make a special effort, of course, to be understanding and patient with your daughter. While you cannot and probably should not shelter her from all exciting events, you will endeavor to keep them at a sensible minimum. Your own example of calmness and self-possession whenever she gets angry or excited is important. The next time she gets wrought up, let your own response be in tones that are quiet and deliberate and see if this does not have a calming effect on both her and you.

Some experimentation may be necessary in order to discover how best you may deal with her manifestation of temper. At times you may want to ignore it; at other times it may be well for her to be isolated from others for awhile; still again, you may have it understood that certain privileges will be temporarily lost when anger flares indiscriminately.

Whatever method you use, be sure to assure her of your love and affection.

Farm Workers Are Protected By Social Security Benefits

AN EMPLOYEE of a greenhouse called his local social security office. "I hear that people who work on a farm have been brought under social security. How about me? Do I now have social security like regular farm workers?"

The answer was: "Yes, you are a farm worker."

It was explained that, for old-age and survivors insurance purposes under social security, a "farm" is defined in its broadest sense. It includes not only a greenhouse when used primarily for the raising of agricultural or horticultural commodities, but any other acre or fraction of an acre commercially used for agriculture, horticulture, or animal husbandry.

Equally broad is the social security definition of a farm employee. It includes not only the man on a tractor in a prairie wheat-field, and the man at the potting bench in the greenhouse, but also some 600,000 other regular workers, whether hired to herd sheep on a New Mexico mesa, or manage milking-shorthorns on a Iowa stock farm.

Whether or not the job of a farm worker is covered for old-age and survivors insurance depends on three things: First, his employment by the farm operator during a three-month qualifying period; second, his regular work for the same employer during the calendar quarter immediately following the qualifying period; third, his earning of cash wages of $50 or more in each three-month period after the qualifying period.

The "qualifying" three-month period does not in itself count towards social security payments, but the first step to that end for a farm worker is the "qualifying quarter." It must be a calendar quarter—that is, a three-month period beginning with January, April, July, or October. The worker who is employed by one operator continuously during a calendar quarter may then begin to get social security credit for his wages in the following quarter, by working 60 days or more on a full-time basis for the same employer for cash wages of $50 or more.

The test that he must continue to meet, quarter after quarter, is the same. He must work for this number of days on some 60 days, and be paid $50 or more in cash every calendar quarter. As long as he meets these conditions, his cash earnings from his work will be credited to his social security account, and he will be building towards old-age and survivors insurance protection. However, if in any future quarter he fails to work as a nurseryman for the same greenhouse operator for less than 60 days, the continuity will be broken. He will no longer be a regular employee, no matter how much in cash he is paid for less than 60 days of work.

See by news out of Washington they're asking for an investigation to investigate investigations.

RECRUITING NEWS

Due to the rapid expansion of the Army, there is a need for 300 Army Chaplains from throughout the nation representing Catholic, Jewish, and Protestant denominations. This was made known today by M-Sgt. Westerman, Army and Air Force Recruiting Sergeant. Clergymen who desire further information are encouraged to contact the nearest U.S. Army and U.S. Air Force Recruiting Station, the State Military District Headquarters, or to write directly to the Commanding General, Headquarters Third Army, Fort McPherson, Ga., Attn: Military Personnel Procurement Division, AG Section.

Attention young men and women, your U. S. Army and U.S. Air Force have a career plan that might prove mighty interesting to a red-blooded young American like yourself. Of course, everyone can't qualify but to those who can, we offer:

1. Excellent educational facilities.
2. Training and experience in a chosen field.
3. Fine opportunities for travel.
4. Assured future security.
5. A real chance for advancement.

Now, some have failed to take advantage of this plan because they did not fully understand all the benefits. Why not come to the Recruiting Office here in Clanton? I would enjoy explaining our plan to you personally.

Analyze Your Business

AN item all farmers can afford to spend a little time on this month is the task of reviewing the year's business operations while they are still fresh on our minds. We need to know exactly how we came out on every phase of our farming program and why.

Answer the following questions for each crop, kind of livestock, or livestock marketed:

How much of each did you sell during the year?

How much money did each bring?

How much did it cost to produce? How much profit did you make?

Which product paid you most?

Which paid the least?

From your experience this year what changes do you need to make next year? With market demand such as it is for so much of so many products, chances are that the products that made you the most money this year will repeat next year.

However, the business of growing something to sell gets more competitive each year and a large part of your success in 1952 is likely to depend on how well you can keep costs down. Things that you buy are likely to go higher while things that you sell may not go up as fast or may even go down. These are good reasons for carefully reviewing your experience in producing and marketing every item that you sell off the farm.

NO COTTON FARMER? J. E. Jenkins says he's really not a cotton farmer at all. He counts on Jersey heifers to bring in most of the farm's income. And pigs from five sows help bring home the bacon. On top of this, the Blount County farmer has been turning out better than 75 bushels of corn on all his crop—and 100 bushels on a couple of acres. But still a look at the record shows that Jenkins rates right at the top as a cotton grower, no matter what he says. Although he has cotton on only a couple or so acres every year, the yields run mighty high. For example, two bales of cotton have been picked from the acre he is standing in.

She's Alabama's Choice

WEARING the crown as Alabama's Maid of Cotton for 1952 is Miss Catherine Bailey, a 19-year-old college junior, from Anniston. She was named Maid of Cotton at a grandstand show at the State Fair in Birmingham early last month. Catherine will represent the state's cotton industry in the finals of the National Maid of Cotton contest which will be held in Memphis next January.

The raven-haired Calhoun County lass was chosen for this honor from a group of 59 lovely Alabama girls who represented 57 counties and two colleges in the state contest. No stranger to cotton, Catherine is a major in clothing and textiles at Alabama Polytechnic Institute. Her ambition is to be a dress designer.

Catherine, who succeeds Miss Ann Adams, of Tuscaloosa, as Maid of Cotton, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bailey, of Anniston. Alabama's first Maid of Cotton was Miss Lallie Hudgins, of Fort Payne, who served in 1949.

Preservation Of Shelled Pecans By Drying, Freezing, Cold Storage

By HUBERT HARRIS
Associate Horticulturist
A.P.I. Agricultural Experiment Station

THE pecan crop is large this year. Consequently, many producers may have surplus pecans on hand at the end of the season. Proper storage of pecans has long been a major problem of the producer who wishes to store his own crop or buyers who purchase large quantities for resale or processing.

Shelled or unshelled pecans, stored in the fall at common temperatures without treatment, show noticeable flavor losses by spring. They become stale and rancid during the summer months. Shelled pecans often mold when stored in moist places and insects attack them when stored in unsealed containers.

Shelled pecans can be kept in good condition for several years in common storage by drying them to moisture contents of 2 to 2.5 per cent and storing in sealed glass jars; they may also be kept in excellent condition without drying by holding in cold or frozen storage, according to results of tests at Auburn.

The quality of dried nuts stored in sealed containers is good, although not quite equal to that of fresh nuts or those preserved by freezing or cold storage. However, nuts that are dried and stored in unsealed containers regain moisture from the atmosphere and when held at common storage temperatures become rancid as quickly as those that are not dried.

The time required for drying varies greatly with oven temperature, air circulation, and the original moisture content of the kernels. At a temperature of 203° F., without circulated air, well-cured kernels usually require about 50 minutes to dry to 2.2 per cent moisture. By increasing the oven temperature to 225° F. the drying time is reduced to about 25 minutes. At 200° F., with air circulated at the rate of 1,000 feet per minute, the kernels dry to 2.2 per cent moisture in about 12 minutes. In order to eliminate the danger of scorching, it is recommended that kernels be dried at approximately 200° F.

In sealing dried kernels in glass jars, a partial vacuum may be obtained by heating the CUSTOM-BUILT SOFA—Talladega County Assistant Home Agent Ann Brown looks on as Mrs. Ed Jewell, Munford home demonstration club member, points out some of the unusual features of her homemade sofa. The club member became interested in carpentry work while putting the finishing touches to a room recently added to her home, and wound up by making the furniture for the new room.

DOUBLE-DUTY FLOWER STAND—Mrs. Ed Jewell completed the furnishings for her new room by building a combination linen and china cabinet which also serves as a stand for the homemaker's collection of potted plants.

Talladega Boasts Of Furniture Making Homemaker

"TERRACES are fine if you have all the rooms you need in your home," is the opinion Mrs. Ed Jewell always had about the concrete terrace on the side of her home. But the thing that bothered the Munford homemaker was that she didn't have enough rooms for her family of five growing children.

Mrs. Jewell says that she worried about her space shortage for several years and finally made up her mind last spring that the time had come to change her outdoor terrace into an indoor living and dining room. And she added the new double-duty room at a cost of $300.

The homemaker hired a carpenter to put up the walls and ceiling and did most of the painting, varnishing, and other work herself.

Finding carpentry work a pleasant pastime, Mrs. Jewell decided to try her hand at making furniture for the room. She dragged out an old iron cot and used the springs and frame to fashion the seat for a couch. The back and arms were made from ordinary pine lumber—sanded and varnished to a fine finish. Mrs. Jewell made the arm rests of the couch wide enough to serve double duty as magazine racks.

After completing her couch, the Talladega County home demonstration club member rapidly put together a drop-leaf table and then started on a combination table and cabinet. She stores dishes and linens inside of the cabinet and uses the top for her collection of ferns and other potted plants.

Mrs. Jewell is proud of her newly found talent for building things, but her greatest joy comes from having the extra room.

Tips On Bleaching Cotton Sacks

FOR thrifty homemakers the sturdy, soft cotton fabric of many flour and feed bags has been used for years for making everything from aprons and children's clothing to bedspreads, draperies and tea towels.

The first step in making this material usable is to remove the black lettered labels on the bags. Homemakers sometimes make the mistake of using too strong a bleach which weakens the cloth. Bleaching for too long a time also weakens the fabric.

Textile specialists list the following different methods which have been used successfully to remove the black printing:

1. Scrub bags with hot water and laundry soap. This often removes nearly all the ink. The rest usually disappears if bags are boiled in soapy water for half an hour and rinsed. A mild chlorine bleach may be necessary to take out the last traces. If water is very hard, the "built" synthetic detergents sold for general laundry use may be used.

2. Wet a bar of laundry soap and rub on the bag until it is entirely covered with a thick layer of soap. Roll up the bag and let stand several hours. Then wash and boil, if necessary.

3. Soak the bag in kerosene overnight. Then wash—first in lukewarm water, then in soapy water—and rinse thoroughly.

4. Cover the black print with lard or soft petroleum jelly, rubbing the grease into the fabric thoroughly. Leave overnight to loosen the black, then wash in soapy lukewarm water and rinse.

5. Boil bags in water with sodium hydroxide or other dye removers which may be purchased at drug stores. Follow directions on the package and rinse thoroughly.

ROOM FULL OF FOOD—Mrs. W. H. McWhorter, of the Plainview home demonstration club in Lawrence County, hasn't entered any food preservation contests but it's a sure bet that she would probably win with little trouble if she did enter competition. The Moulton, Rt. 2, homemaker works in town during the day and spends many evenings during the canning season preparing fruits and vegetables for winter use. Mrs. McWhorter is shown in her pantry which she has just finished filling with products. She says she would have canned many more quarts this past summer if the dry weather had not cut the vegetable supply.

P. O. DAVIS
DIRECTOR, APL EXTENSION SERVICE

SECRETARY of Agriculture Brannan spoke to a group of Alabama farmers in Montgomery on September 26. He told them that a bigger job for farmers lies ahead of them. In brief, he said that more production will be needed; and, of course, their land must be improved.

More production on farms is needed because population is increasing. Annually, for 10 years, U. S. population has increased more than 2,000,000. This is about 6,000 per day.

But there are fewer people on farms. Mr. Brannan said that "only about one working person out of eight in the U. S. is actually engaged in farming."

Yet, as he said, U. S. farms are now producing 40 per cent more than they produced in 1940. In brief, fewer people and the same acreage are making 40 per cent more through the application of science in relation to soil, plants, and animals, and also through the use of fertilizer.

It all gets around to the fact that the importance of each farm family grows annually because more people are dependent on that family for food and fiber. It's a great opportunity for farm people.

Roy Morrison is a farmer of Randolph County. A son and a son-in-law farm near him. Each has some good bottom land and a little creek runs through each of their farms.

Year after year they had seen this water run idly by while their crops parched. Yields were cut and profits disappeared when droughts were severe.

Working with County Agent Sam Jones they did a lot of things. They planned for irrigation. A demonstration was held on Roy Morrison's farm.

They, along with many others, saw one outfit putting one inch of water on three acres in one and one-half hours. So, thirsty grass was watered in a hurry. It was done by water that was running idly by, serving nobody in particular.

I saw this demonstration. It opened my eyes as to what can be done—and should be done—by irrigation on Alabama farms.

We have just passed another fire prevention week, October 7-13. President Truman so declared it by proclamation which raised a question as to why this is done each year. A few figures answer in part:

- 1) Farm fire losses last year totaled $100,000,000 or enough to build 50,000 barns at $2,000 each.

- 2) A life was lost by every 10 fires.

- 3) Losses this year may be enough to give each man, woman, and child in the United States a $5 bill.

So everybody should be careful about fires. This is especially true of farm people who don't have fire protection like people in towns and cities. Caution costs little but may save much.

Judge Tom Ward of Tuscaloosa is a good farmer, as shown by his record. He sees all sides of farming, including pleasures and hobbies.

He refuses to cut trees with holes in them. He wants them as dens for squirrels and coons.

This, of course, is common sense. Wildlife must have shelter as well as food. Lack of food and no quarters will drive wildlife away.

OLD KILLING PLANT—Hugh Brown is shown at left by the old makeshift farrowing place which was a regular pig killer. He lost 150 pigs last year from exposure and overlying in this farrowing shed.

and Hugh Brown, Owassa, Rt. 1, inspect the new five unit central farrowing house on Brown's farm. He built the house from salvaged lumber.

RIGHT AT HOME—A sow and her litter of pigs are right at home in the new farrowing house. Guard rails and heat lamps have cut pig losses to nothing. Mr. Brown, right, watches the contented sow and her "safe" litter of pigs.

NEW CENTRAL FARROWING HOUSE—County Agent M. H. Huggins, left,

Good Housing -- Good Pigs

Conecuh Grower Removes Risks In Hog Farming

HUGH BROWN was almost frozen and mashed out of the hog business before he finally decided to build some good hog houses. But a new central farrowing house is helping him to get back in business.

The Owassa, Rt. 1, farmer grew up believing that hogs were hardy souls and didn't need any attention. So that's the way he operated until this summer. And his profits showed it. In one week last winter Brown lost 46 young pigs from freezing and mashing by the sow. In the past year he lost a total of 150 pigs from these causes.

The reason was easy to see. The sows farrowed in a makeshift shed that gave no protection from rain, wind, or sun. One sow farrowed under the skimpy shelter of an old tree root. Her entire litter of 15 pigs died from exposure.

"Things like that can put a man out of the hog business in a hurry," says Brown, "so I made up my mind to stop some of these losses." That's the reason Hugh Brown went calling on Conecuh County Agent M. H. Huggins.

Huggins convinced Brown that a good central type farrowing house was the answer to his problems, so Mr. Brown got busy. And once he began making improvements he went all out to do a good job of it.

He salvaged lumber from old tenant houses, used treated pine posts, bought an aluminum roof, and built a modern five unit "hog hotel." Costs were kept down by home labor and materials. "I bought only four pieces of lumber and the roof," says Brown.

The central farrowing house, built on the Auburn plan, has guard rails, a small run for the sow and pigs, and a place for a heat lamp during cold weather. Losses from exposure and overlying have dropped unbelievably. Only two sows have farrowed in the house to date, but not a pig has been lost.

Brown didn't stop improving with the farrowing house either. He is bringing his entire management system up to date. Pigs will be fed minerals from the time they are big enough to eat until they are loaded on the truck for market. Green grazing, good fences, and better breeding stock are also in the offing.

And Mr. Brown is going to increase the size of his hog herd. He now has nine brood sows, but he is building his brood herd up to 20 sows as fast as he can. Expansion seems to be a good idea now that he's prepared to grow hogs.

"And now that he's on the right track," says County Agent Huggins, "Hugh Brown is just the type of fellow that will make one of the best hog farmers in Conecuh County."

Calves, Cooking--And Many More

Randolph 4-H'er Has A Variety Of Projects

ABIGAIL Sudduth's life is just about like that of the average 14-year-old farm girl—that is until it comes to 4-H Club project work. Then she steps out front as an outstanding leader in almost every phase of the homemaking field.

Abigail's favorite is her dairy project, but that doesn't mean that she neglects her other interests. Whether it's room improvement, sewing, cooking, or upholstering—she has made an outstanding record in all of them.

For the past two years Abigail has won the Grand Championship at the Randolph County dairy show with her Guernsey cow. And in the district show she has placed among the top winners every time.

Her dairy program is now paying off every two weeks in the form of a milk check from milk sold for manufacturing purposes. Her growing herd consists of two registered Guernsey cows and three calves.

This spring Abigail took profits from her junior dairyman business and started a home beautification job on the Sudduth home. She cut down an old bed, refinished a bedroom suite, made a dressing table, and added a spacious closet to her bedroom. Next she cleaned and painted the walls and floor and repaired the windows. All of the curtains, bedspreads, and upholstering material were made from low cost tobacco cloth and used feed sacks.

A complete re-wiring of the electrical circuits wound up this job; the total cost for the entire job was less than $100.

Abigail would object violently to being called a tomboy, but she readily admits that she's happier working outside. And she spends all the time she can looking after her poultry, dairy calves, orchard, and garden.

However, the success story of Abigail Sudduth doesn't end with her project work. She has been one of the most outstanding 4-H Club leaders in the county during her three years as a club member. She has served as president, vice-president, or song leader of the Handley High School 4-H Club during every regular school year.

Abigail doesn't claim any of the credit for her success though. She modestly passes all of the credit on to her club leaders and her mother. Leaders predict that Abigail is headed for big things in the 4-H program and she has a topnotch adviser right at home. For Mrs. Guy Sudduth, her mother, is also an outstanding leader in 4-H Club, farm, community and homemaking activities.

DAIRY PALS—Abigail Sudduth, 14, of Rossake, Rt. 3, spends much of her spare time petting her two registered Guernsey heifers. She is a junior dairyman and has two dairy grand championships to her credit.

HOMEMADE CLOTHES CLOSET—Abigail has no trouble finding the "right" dress for any occasion in her well-stocked clothes closet. The closet is part of her bedroom remodeling project. She completely remade the room for less than $100.

PORTABLE PUMPING EQUIPMENT—A pump on the power take-off of the farm tractor is used for irrigating crops on the Charles Sturtevant farm near Whistler. Sturtevant is shown at left with the pick-up hose. He simply backs the tractor up to the creek and pitches the rubber pick-up hose in the water. The water is pumped through a series of aluminum pipes and rotary sprinklers onto the grazing crops.

FEATHERWEIGHT PIPELINE—Aluminum irrigating pipe is easily moved from one location to another. When not in use it is stored on a wagon ready to be installed at a moment's notice. Charles Sturtevant, center, shows how easy it is to handle a 20-foot section of four-inch pipe. Equipment necessary to irrigate 40 acres cost him about $2,000.

SOURCE OF WATER—From the creek at right, Charles Sturtevant gets water to irrigate 40 acres of pasture. The creek is handy to the pasture, which makes irrigation reasonable and practical.

Irrigation System Keeps Summer Pastures Lush

THIS year Alabama farmers went through one of the worst drought periods in half a century. Cattle searched in vain for a green blade of grass in parched pastures while dairymen swapped their regular milk checks for a feed bill. But this wasn't the case on the Sturtevant dairy farm, near Whistler in Mobile County.

With portable rainmaking machinery, Charles and Julian Sturtevant were able to keep their pastures lush all summer.

Up until 1950 short drought periods had played havoc with the Sturtevants' grazing program. "It wasn't a question of having plenty of water on the farm," says Charles, "the water was in the wrong place." A creek flowing through the middle of the farm always had plenty of water in it. The problem was to get the water on the land when needed without putting a lot of money into expensive irrigation equipment.

A portable irrigation system solved the Sturtevant problem. The brothers bought a pumping attachment that would work off the power take-off on their tractor. Then they bought lightweight aluminum pipe that was easy to move from one place to another. Rotary sprinklers completed the equipment list.

In October, 1950, they laid out the pipe, backed the tractor up to the creek, turned on the pump, and watched the water go where it was needed most. In one and one-half hours they applied one inch of water to an acre of pasture. Moving the pipeline over, they repeated the process until the 40-acre pasture was watered. The results sold them on irrigation.

"The pasture perked up, the cows started giving more milk, and the milk check was bigger," says Charles Sturtevant. "Irrigating looked like good business to us, so we kept it up."

Little Boy--Big Corn

LIKE most other farmers, 12-year-old Joe Bridgman, of the Eclectic 4-H Club, had every intention this year of making the biggest corn yield he had ever gathered. Joe took all precautions he could to insure his chances of a bountiful harvest. He used a good hybrid, fertilized heavily, cultivated properly, and hoped for rain. But rain didn't come—at least not enough of it—or at the right time. Joe's corn suffered through the long, dry summer just like most of the rest of the corn in the state suffered. However, when the youngster went out to gather his crop he was agreeably surprised at the yield of 71 bushels he made on his project acre.

Joe is just a 4-H Club boy trying to learn how to farm as he grows up. That's the reason he carried a corn project, a dairy calf project, and several other projects. And he learned one thing with his corn crop that he won't soon forget—that a good hybrid variety of corn, fertilized right, and cultivated correctly is the best way to grow corn. How many more cribs would now be full of corn if every farmer in the state had taken the same steps that Joe took?

This Month on the Farm by API EXTENSION SPECIALISTS

CHECK unthrifty and poor calves for internal parasites. Infested calves usually show a swelling under the throats, have rough hair, and are thin. A fecal examination by a veterinarian is the surest way to detect internal parasite cases. Calves having this trouble should be drenched with a phenothiazine drench.

CORN and cotton stalks, crotalaria and other crop residues should be cut or discarded onto the ground as soon as crops are harvested. This will help protect the soil from erosion, enable the stalks to decay, and make land preparation easier next spring.

NOVEMBER is a good time to construct new terraces and repair and plow out old ones before the winter rains set in. But, the wise farmer will see to it that adequate water disposal areas are established before constructing any new terraces.

IF you have extra corn or other grain, store and protect it until you are ready to sell. Prices for good corn will probably be enough better next spring to pay you for holding the crop. On the other hand, if you are buying feeds, look for a supply now.

THE need for milk for all purposes is greater than in any recent year. Keep dairy cows in full production with plenty of grazing, balanced feeding, and good management.

WITH an unusually large crop of pecans this year, quality will play a big part in the price received for the nuts. They should not be left on the ground for any length of time, especially in rainy weather. In picking them up, care should be used to keep out shucks, leaves, and other trash. Poorly filled and wormy nuts should be removed before the crop is placed on the market. Be sure to keep the varieties separated as mixed nuts usually bring much lower prices than straight varieties.

MUSCADINE grapes should be pruned soon after frost. Usually the only pruning is to cut out the dead canes and thin vines where they are overcrowded.

ALL turkeys that are mature should be prepared for the Thanksgiving market. Do not try to hold turkeys that are now mature for the Christmas market. If turkeys are needed for the Christmas market, dress them when they are mature and freeze them, rather than trying to hold them on foot past maturity.

COLD fall rains can hurt fall pigs. Exposure to sharp changes in weather usually means flu. It's thought that the "flu bug" in people and pigs is very much alike. Certainly the conditions which cause flu in people and pigs are very similar. The easiest way to prevent flu is to provide simple shelter from rainy, raw weather, and keep pigs and hogs in vigorous, thrifty condition by following good feeding and management practices.

DRYING BIN—John Robinson, left, of Foley, inspects ears of hybrid seed corn in the drying bin of the Robinson Hybrid Seed Corn plant. Huge exhaust fans force warm air up through the corn pile until it is thoroughly dried.

CHECKING MOISTURE CONTENT—An electric machine is used to test moisture content of hybrid seed corn. At center John Robinson is shown testing a sample. Moisture must be less than 14 per cent before corn is processed.

THE FINISHED PRODUCT—Stored corn ready for planting is examined at right by Dr. D. J. Meadors, agricultural agent, L. & N. Railroad, Greenville, left, John Robinson, center, and Baldwin County Agent F. C. Turner. The Robinson seed plant will process about 10,000 bushels of hybrid seed this year.

Better Seed--Better Corn

Processed Planting Seed Replaces Crib Selections

BEFORE the advent of hybrid corn, getting planting seed was a simple matter. The farmer simply selected the choicest ears from the crib, shelled them, and planted the seed. But getting planting seed for the record yields of corn now being produced by hybrids is a highly technical business.

A host of processing plants around the state do the complete job of selection, grading, processing, and treating seed corn. One of these modern seed plants is the Robinson Hybrid Corn Company, of Foley. This plant will process about 10,000 bushels of recommended hybrid varieties such as Dixie 18, Dixie 11, and North Carolina 1032 before planting time next spring.

After hybrid seed is harvested from the growing field, it goes to a processing plant similar to Robinson's for the final steps in processing. There it begins the long journey through a maze of dryers, graders, shellers, and treating processes.

Processing on a typical load of hybrid seed begins in the drying bin. The corn is unloaded onto elevator conveyors that take it to a drying bin. Huge fans force warm air up through the bins to remove excess moisture from the corn. Moisture samples are taken almost daily until the corn shows less than 14 per cent moisture content. Then it is dropped to a long conveyor belt where damaged or unsuitable ears are removed.

Mechanical shellers separate the grain from the cob. The kernels are elevated into huge grading drums which separate the corn into uniform size and shaped kernels. Flat kernels are produced in the center of the cob; round kernels are produced at the ends of the cob.

John Robinson, operator of the Foley plant, says most farmers prefer flat kernels since they are easier to handle with common planter plates. However, the round and odd-shaped kernels produce stands and yields equal to flat kernels.

LIQUID FERTILIZER—The system of using liquid manure on the Charles Sturtevant dairy farm in Mobile County saves labor, and produces high yields from the high-grade fertilizer materials.

The Sturtevant dairy barn is built on the side of a gentle slope. The barn is cleaned merely by turning on a hose in the milking barn, and washing refuse through a large drain pipe into a tank. The tank is situated on a road bank. At about three-day intervals Charles Sturtevant drives the tank manure spreader under the holding tank and fills the spreader from a spout attached to the tank. The spreader is then driven over the fields and the liquid fertilizer applied to the ground. Phosphate and potash are added to the storage pit periodically to make a complete fertilizer.

Corn fertilized with liquid manure and irrigated during the growing season produced more than twice as much silage as corn fertilized with a commercial mixture and not irrigated. "Of course," says Sturtevant, "irrigation helped the yield some, but I believe most of this increase in yield was due to the liquid manure."

Sturtevant says that this system of using liquid manure requires much less labor than other methods. And plant nutrient content of liquid manure is much greater.

After final grading the corn goes through a treating machine. Here the kernels are coated with chemicals to protect them from soil and seed-borne diseases, and from insects. This is the reason for high germination of properly handled hybrid seed.

Following treatment with fungicides the corn is sacked in new bags and stored until it goes out to hundreds of seed stores throughout the state. And finally the hybrid seed winds up on the farm where it produces high yields of top quality livestock feed.

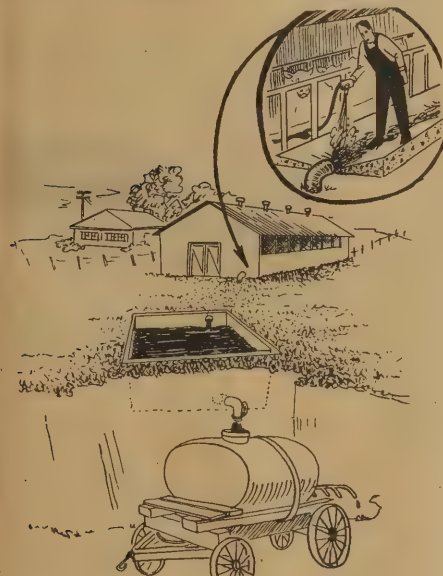

DAIRY DINNER—Plenty of green grazing is the basis of the feeding program C. M. Roberson, of Town Creek, uses with his dairy herd. Whether it's the milking herd, dry cows, or growing heifers, the Lawrence County farmer keeps them all on good pasture. Roberson is shown at right above with Assistant County Agent Robert Robertson watching a group of Jersey and Holstein heifers fill up on alfalfa. The milking herd spends its "eating hours" grazing on an all sortment of crops which includes fescue and white Dutch clover, lespedeza and Sudan grass, oats and button clover, wheat and crimson clover, and crimson and ryegrass. Roberson operates a grade A dairy in partnership with his father, A. L. Roberson.

jars in the oven, filling them with hot kernels directly from the oven, and sealing immediately.

Oven drying is not necessary for cold or frozen storage of kernels with normal moisture of cured pecans. Cured kernels, packaged in moisture-proof frozen food containers were in excellent condition after two years' storage at 0°F. Packaged in glass jars and held at 32 to 35° F., quality had decreased only slightly after two years' storage.

Community Project Completed

No one likes to be sick—but when sickness does strike among in the Tabernacle community in Pickens County he will be cared for in fine style. Thanks to the good work of local home demonstration club members, the community now has a hospital bed, sheets, gowns, and all of the other equipment necessary in caring for the sick. The club women made the purchasing of hospital equipment one of their 1951 goals and they completed the job several months ago. Money for the project was made by raffling off a quilt and selling candy and cakes on achievement day. Donations and club dues completed the funds raising job. Grouped around the immaculately clean hospital bed are Mrs. Robert Speed, Mrs. Raymond Patrick, Mrs. Morris Spruill, Mrs. Curt Smith, Mrs. Ed Patrick, Mrs. Crayton Smith, Mrs. Nelson Blasingame, Mrs. J. A. Youngblood, Mrs. G. D. Youngblood, Mrs. Nell Youngblood, and Mrs. Walter Lawrence and her two children, Jane, standing, and Judy.

Proper Planning Paid

Worn Old Hills Produce Again

C. H. NASH is convinced that farming is a tough game, but he's certain that planning makes the load easier.

Poor land doesn't begin to describe the 90 acres of Shelby County land Nash bought in 1943. It was just plain worn out, he says. However, Mr. Nash saw possibilities in the old hills and started to nurse them back to productivity.

Corn and cotton, two or three bales per year, didn't add up to much money though. The way he describes it he was standing still while running all over the place trying to make a living. But Nash didn't give up; he stuck with it until he found a winning combination of crops and livestock.

And proof that his new system is paying off can be seen all around the farm. A new farmhouse, a new farm tractor, and a new car, all prove that his plan is working.

Nash began by seeding every possible acre to winter legumes each year. Gradually the land began to produce more crops. Then in 1946 he added dairying as another source of cash income. And in 1948 he stepped up the number of laying hens on the farm until this business began to bring in extra dollars.

■ It wasn't as easy as it sounds though. Mr. and Mrs. Nash had to do a lot of penny pinching to get up operating expenses. "When we built our first poultry house," they reveal, "we could hardly pay for the roof." They now have a flock of 350 pullets and 285 layers in good houses and are selling about 120 dozen eggs each week.

Mrs. Nash is just as much at home on the combine or in the milking barn as she is in the kitchen. In fact, every part of the farm boasts some cooperative project of this farm couple. Take the neat white bungalow for example.

Mr. Nash began building a new house in 1947 and the family lived in an abandoned tool shed until they could move into the new "shell of a house."

The job is just about completed now—it still lacks a little last minute finishing inside—and the cost was very reasonable. Nash

Gardening In November

NO garden planting chart is given for this month because all planting should have been done earlier. However, if there is danger of a shortage of winter vegetables, it's not too late to plant onion sets, radishes, turnips, mustard, and kale. These vegetables are hardy and the seed are inexpensive.

Pest Controls. Plant lice (aphids), worms, vegetable weevils, and leaf spot on turnips, rutabagas, beets, and mustard may give some trouble for many weeks or perhaps throughout the winter. For all of these pests the Auburn formula garden dust is a good remedy.

Winter weeds are another pest to consider. They can steal your fertilizer, stunt your vegetables, and spoil your garden. A mulch of one or two inches of leaves, straw, or sawdust will help to control them. Cultivation and hand weeding will also do the job.

Garden Fertilizer. Late planted vegetables may need extra nitrogen. A pint of nitrate of soda to 100 feet of row will stimulate and maintain growth. After periods of heavy rain, sandy land gardens may need a quart of 6-8-4 or 4-10-7 fertilizer per 100 feet of row.

* * *

Cotton and corn stalks and other crop residues should be cut or disked down onto the ground as soon as harvesting is completed. This will help protect the soil from erosion and enable the stalks to decay. It will also help control insect pests.

hired two men to help him get the framework started, but since that time he has been the entire construction crew.

Inventory of cash crops on the farm now include an eight-cow grade B dairy, a nice sized flock of hens, crimson clover, and other seed crops. They aren't getting rich by any means—they just make a living. But they'll be quick to tell you that the living is a whole lot better since they balanced the farm program.

They don't have to tell their story though. The neat farm on rural route two, near Willsonville, tells the story in one word—success.

More Meat For Less Work

Efficiency At New Peak In Broiler Industry

By JOHN P. WEEKS
A.P.I. Extension Poultryman

EFFICIENCY is the by-word of Alabama's expanding broiler industry. At the present time efficient growers are producing about 80 pounds of broiler meat for every hour of work with the birds.

In order to reach this efficiency peak, producers have applied labor-saving methods and equipment to change broiler growing into a mass production industry. And this outstanding job by growers is greatly responsible for the fact that broiler meat is the best buy at the meat counter today.

The growers are using large houses that hold 4,000 to 20,000 broilers, with 2,000 to 10,000 birds to a room. Planer mill shavings are used to cover the house floor to a depth of six to eight inches, and this material is not changed during the growing period. Houses are equipped with large doors so that trucks, tractors, and manure spreaders can be brought in for cleaning out and putting in new litter.

Automatic water fountains are used to supply birds with water. Concrete drains under the fountains save time in cleaning and prevent wet litter. Automatic feeders are used by some growers, others use a large number of broiler-size feeders to cut down on time required in feeding. Feed rooms built into the house cut travel and labor in carrying feed.

The brooding equipment is thermostatically controlled so that a minimum of time is required in maintaining the proper temperature.

The efficient production job being done by Alabama growers has had a great part in expanding the business from a 1,300,000 bird industry in 1939 to an estimated 18,000,000 bird industry this year.

MORE FRIED CHICKEN—All over Alabama groups of farmers are going into the broiler business. In the past 12 years production has jumped from less than two million birds per year to an estimated eighteen million birds for 1951. This production jump has created a demand for more and more chicks. And to supply this need new hatcheries have been set up in all parts of the state. One of the new hatcheries in North Alabama is the plant operated by Harold Green, of Huntsville. Green produces broiler-type chickens which are used by growers in Madison and surrounding counties. Green, left above, examines a handful of chicks just out of the incubator. Looking on is Harvey Green.

Simple Post Treating System
Solves Farmer's Fencing Problem

ONE of the big problems facing farmers who switch from straight row crop farming to livestock or a combination of livestock and row crop production is the expensive job of building fences.

There isn't any way of getting around the problem of having to buy wire for fencing, but there are some fairly inexpensive ways of securing fence posts.

One farmer who has solved the fence post problem is J. M. Doss, of Phil Campbell, Rt. 1. He produces grazing crops and grain and markets them through the sale of hogs and grade B milk. And this crops and livestock farming system calls for a lot of fences.

It takes good fencing to keep a bunch of brood sows and pigs where you want them and Doss is building the right type of fence for the job. And the enterprising farmer is getting two jobs done in one operation. He is clearing up woodland to be used for pasture and he is saving the pine poles for fence posts.

Doss found an old dipping vat which he uses to treat the home-grown posts and he built a post peeler that skins the bark from the posts in a hurry. Power for the post peeler is furnished by a belt hooked to the power take-off on his tractor.

The Franklin County farm operator keeps a close check on expenses and he says that his posts cost around 13 or 14 cents each. He isn't using large posts but he expects to get good service out of them for at least 20 years because of the good soaking with pentachlorophenol he gives each post.

FARM SIZED FACTORY—H. A. Ponder, Franklin County agent, looks over the main machine used in J. M. Doss' fence post treating program. Doss points out to the agent how he built his inexpensive post peeler. A metal drum is whirled by power from a tractor power take-off and chains, which are bolted on the drum, beat off the bark.

J. M. Doss' treating plant consists of a second-hand metal vat and a couple of sheets of roofing. At right, Doss is shown examining a group of poles that have been put on the metal rack to dry. Excess fluid from the posts drips onto the metal rack and is returned to the vat. The farmer says this arrangement saves a good bit of the treating mixture that would otherwise be wasted on the ground.

State 4-H Project Winners

Some Of The Finest Farm Youth In The World

ALABAMA has a new crop of State 4-H Club project winners. These boys and girls earned their hard-won titles by displaying exceptional skill as they worked through the past 12 months on their chosen projects.

To each of the group, congratulations are in order. And to the local leaders and assistant home demonstration agents and assistant county agents who advised and led the youngsters, much credit is due.

Many of the farm and home winners will receive free trips to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago the last week in November. Others will receive scholarships and special awards.

The project winners are William Pollard, Honoraville, Rt. 1, and Doris McAlpine, Heflin, Rt. 4, both achievement winners; Glois Meherg, Fayetteville, Rt. 1, baking; Mary Jean Capps, Opelika, Rt. 1, canning.

Doris Elkins, Mt. Hope, Rt. 1, citizenship; Mariola Stegall, Emelle, clothing achievement; Mary Henrietta Davis, Greensboro, Rt. 3, dairy cattle showmanship; Morgan Lusk, Jacksonville, Rt. 1, dairy achievement; Vivian Lusk, Jacksonville, Rt. 1, dairy foods; Ann Kennamer and Ruth Butler, both of Woodville, dairy foods team winners.

Maria Sansing, Woodstock, dress review;

Kenneth Driskell, Wilmer, farm and home electric; L. O. Bishop, Jr., Allsboro, farm and home safety; LaVaughn Skipper, McKenzie, Rt. 2, field crops.

J. C. Clements, Piedmont, Rt. 1, forestry; Elaine Sorrells, Slocum, food preparation; Jean E. Hodnett, Wadley, Rt. 3, frozen foods; Willie Woodall, Midland City, Rt. 1, gardening.

Martha Laura Boyett, Rockford, Rt. 2, girls' best record; Nolan Robertson, Covin, Rt. 1, hog growing; Jo Ann Barker, Athens, Rt. 2, health improvement; Eppie Hallman, Cottondale, Rt. 1, home improvement.

Ed P. Young, Jr., Montgomery, and Josephine Willis, Cloverdale, Rt. 1, both leadership winners; Leigh Rickard, Florence, Rt. 5, meat animal; Donald Street, Gadsden, Rt. 2, poultry.

Jane Moore, Dozier, rural arts and recreation; Albert Heaslett, Childersburg, Rt. 1, soil conservation, and Billy Ray Granberry, Ashford, Rt. 2, tractor maintenance.

Alabama Timber Topics

THE sale of forest products continues to be "big-business" for Alabama farmers according to results of a recent survey made in seven southern states.

The check-up revealed that Alabama is still the number one producer of southern yellow pine. And the state has also climbed into first place in the production of sweet gum, yellow poplar, and magnolia.

Other interesting facts showed that Alabama ranks second in the production of birch, buckeye, chestnut, black and Tupelo gum, hemlock, hickory, maple, and persimmon. Large quantities of oak, basswood, beech, cherry, cottonwood, elm, hackberry, sycamore, and walnut push total hardwood production in the state to 750 million board feet per year.

Recipe For November

November—and the holiday season brings on the annual coming out party for one of the country's oldest winter desserts—pumpkin pie. Early settlers featured this tempting dessert and succeeding generations have made the traditional dish a favorite.

- | | |
|--------------------|--------------------|
| 1 1/2 cups pumpkin | 2 T. melted butter |
| 1/2 cup sugar | 1 T. cinnamon |
| 2 eggs | 1 1/2 t. salt |
| 2 T. molasses | 1 1/2 cups milk |
| 2 t. ginger | |

Steam pumpkin, drain, and put through sieve. Separate eggs. Combine other ingredients and add to beaten egg yolks. Fold in beaten egg whites. Bake in pie pan lined with pastry.

MONEY MAKERS—Jimmy Griffin, of the Eutaw 4-H Club says it doesn't take much of an investment to really get into the rabbit business. The 12-year-old rabbit raiser started his market rabbit project two years ago with five rabbits. He has already sold over 500 fryng-size bunnies and still has 75 does and young rabbits coming on. Jimmy crosses Giant Chinchilla and New Zealand Whites to produce a fast-growing, tender, fryng-size animal.

Raising Hogs By The Calendar

FOUR-H Club boys and girls in eight South Alabama counties will soon be raising hogs by the calendar—as well as by the book.

At least 10 club members in each of the counties will have gilt and pig projects aimed at showing hog growers why and how it pays to follow a set schedule in producing market hogs. The youngsters plan to do every production job just as it should be done, when it should be done.

G. B. Phillips, A.P.I. Extension hog specialist, says that the youngsters will breed their gilts to farrow about March 1. The pigs are to be topped out by September, when the litters will be exhibited at county market hog shows.

"Accurate records will be kept on each project and these records should be of great value in further proving the value of scientific pork production," Phillips states.

Club members in Butler, Baldwin, Chocataw, Clarke, Conecuh, Escambia, Monroe, and Washington Counties will take part in the program.

Recent increased demands for fluid milk have made it possible for others to get into grade A production. But it is still recommended that new dairymen get a market before building a barn.

ADMIRER HANDIWORK—Members of the committee who made drapes for the Felix clubhouse look over the product of their handiwork at right above. They are, left to right, Mrs. E. M. Kendrick, Mrs. H. T. Rogers, Mrs. James T. Fuller, and Mrs. J. D. Edwards. The ladies bleached some chicken feed sacks and pieced them together to make the drapes. They had them dyed by a commercial dry cleaning firm.

'ROUND THE TABLE AND HELP YOURSELF—There's more food than you can think about at the dinner held each month in connection with the Felix home demonstration club meeting. Grouped around one of the tables loaded with food are, left to right, Mrs. R. O. Watters, Mrs. F. M. Fuller, E. L. Roberts, Mrs. E. B. Fuller, Mrs. M. O. Price, and Mrs. E. L. Roberts.

Close-Knit Community

Their Monthly Meeting Is A Big Affair

THERE is nothing quite as nice as an old-fashioned neighborhood get-together—at least that's the opinion of the members of the Felix home demonstration club. And they ought to know—because they have just such an event each month.

The "mainspring" behind the gathering is the monthly home demonstration club meeting, but the 20 members of the club have added lunch to the day's program and they bring their families along to enjoy the fun.

REST FOR THE WEARY—Fixing school lunches for her four children isn't a problem anymore for Mrs. H. G. Fowler, Atmore, Rt. 1, home demonstration club member. She merely makes up four or five dozen sandwiches, puts them in the deep freezer, and takes them out as needed. It works fine, says Mrs. Fowler, and the children really like the frozen sandwiches. She makes meat, cheese, strawberry and peanut butter, and several other kinds of sandwiches, but strawberry and peanut butter are the most popular. Mayonnaise doesn't do well as a spread, it gets soggy when it thaws out, so Mrs. Fowler uses butter instead.

She is shown above taking sandwiches out of the freezer just before school bus time.

Each month a different group of members is responsible for the noonday meal. They see to it that all who attend get a well balanced meal—and what a meal it is! Hot dishes, cold dishes, salads, and vegetable dishes—and one whole table is devoted to a delicious assortment of home-baked cakes and pies.

The Felix club has an ideal place to meet. Several years ago they obtained permission to renovate an old lunchroom building at the Suttle school for use as a clubroom, community center, and bandroom for the Suttle school musicians.

The club members got their husbands to help with the job and soon had the building refurnished. They took out wall partitions, painted the building inside and outside, and put on a new roof. They made drapes for the windows from chicken feed sacks and reworked some furniture to complete the job.

Although the Felix club is one of the oldest home demonstration clubs in Perry County it is still one of the most active. The women plan to install a complete kitchen in the clubhouse as one of their next projects. And at the rate they work, they will soon get the job done.

Grow Your Own Cuttings

FIGS and bunch grapes grow readily from cuttings. A fair per cent of pear cuttings will take root and grow. Fig cuttings should be six or eight inches long, from 1951 growth, and should be set with the upper bud just above ground. During the cold months, fig cuttings in Central and North Alabama should be covered with three or more inches of straw. The covering should be removed when danger of severe freezing is over. Grapevine cuttings should contain three leaf buds. Set with two of the leaves under ground and one just above ground. Pear cuttings of 1951 wood should be six or eight inches long.

PROPERLY FERTILIZED PERMANENT PASTURES are more productive, give earlier grazing, extend the grazing season, and return a greater profit on use of the land than poorly fertilized pastures. Results have shown that as the fertility of the land is built up, the value of the pasture also goes up.

SWEETPOTATOES may be baked and stored in deep freezers as such or as mashed potatoes. When taken from the freezer and allowed to thaw, they may be reheated before using or can be eaten cold. In either case, the quality is similar to freshly baked potatoes.

FARM EARNINGS ARE USUALLY HIGHEST on farms where production per worker is highest, according to farm management studies. Farm efficiency can often be increased by increasing the size of the business, by planning work on a seasonal basis, or by properly using recommended equipment and farm practices.

PRUNING OF SMALL PINES should start when the trees are 15 to 20 feet high. At this time, trees that overtop the undergrowth will be three or four inches in diameter. All knots will be confined to a central core and all new growth around this core will be free of knots. Experiments show that not over half the length of a trunk should ever be pruned. If more than half the height is pruned growth of the tree will be slowed down considerably.

SUDAN GRASS FOLLOWING CRIMSON CLOVER produced 230 pounds of beef per acre during a grazing period of 50 days at the Gulf Coast Substation. The Sudan area was stocked with three steers per acre.

THREE DEER that were fed only wild cherry leaves and twigs for two weeks showed no ill effects from this diet in a test conducted by the Alabama Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit. Wilting cherry leaves are known to be fatally poisonous to domestic livestock.

FEWER MILK PRODUCERS RETAIL MILK NOW than in previous years. Pasteurized milk has been widely accepted. Recent studies indicate that producers usually are unable to pasteurize and distribute milk as efficiently as can large, specialized milk dealers.

THE HORIZONTAL BLADE TYPE of rotary stalk cutter is equally as effective in shredding cotton stalks as the vertical type. The horizontal rotary cutter has also been used successfully to cut weeds, briars, and small bushes in pastures and idle fields.

BUTTER THAT IS RICH, ORANGE-YELLOW COLOR is high in vitamin A if no artificial coloring has been added, whereas butter that is tallowy white is relatively low in vitamin A. High vitamin A content of milk and butter can be maintained throughout the year by providing green grazing crops for dairy cows.

Jemison School Bus Burns But Children Saved

Quick thinking of a school bus driver, is reported to have probably saved lives and injury to many school children Monday afternoon when a Jemison school bus caught fire just before it finished loading and got started on its route. It is reported the bus was practically loaded when the fire was discovered and when the driver quickly filled his charges off the bus it was a matter of minutes when the gas tank exploded. Cause of the fire was not reported.

REMAINS OF AGED NEGRO WOMAN FOUND IN WOODS

The remains of an aged negro woman was found in the woods near the Bibb County line by squirrel hunters the past week end. Identity was made known by Coroner Leroy Martin and Sheriff Luther Kendrick, who investigated. The aged negro left the home of relatives where she lived, to visit other relatives on Oct. 13, and apparently lost herself in the woods and died.

New Members County Welfare Board Named

County welfare boards received new strength from the 1951 welfare legislation. Commissioner Bill Dorough said today. Boards will continue to appoint county personnel and now have legal authority to review all public assistance cases, he added, as well as helping in policy interpretation. At the same time the legislation will result in many changes in board personnel, the Commissioner continued. This is because of many boards now are elected officials and the 1951 law provided that no elected public officials may now serve on these boards; further restrictions on board membership included the provisions that no relatives of welfare employees or elected public officials, nor candidates for an elected public office may serve on a board. Also, in September board appointments of one-third of the boards expire, since members serve six-years with terms over-lapping so that those of some members expire every two years. The county governing body retains authority for welfare board appointments. This responsibility is shared jointly with city governments in rural areas. County welfare employees will now be under the State Merit System, but local registers will be provided for county welfare positions. The board will continue to select the director and approve the appointment of other employees. The newly elected members of the Chilton County Welfare Board are: Mrs. C. L. Walton, Jemison, Ala., Mr. M. L. White, Clanton, Ala., Mrs. E. C. Lecroy, Maplesville, Ala., Rt. 2, and Mr. John Hollis, Verbena, Ala., Rt. 2.

The contest closes on December 7th, and winners will be announced on December 20th.

Invitation

To all parents and friends of Chilton County Schools. This is your official invitation to visit your schools during American Education Week, November 11-17. This is the week that is set aside annually for emphasis on education. An aim of the P-T-A Council of Chilton County is to urge every patron to visit the classroom of his child at least once during the year. American Education Week will offer a good opportunity for that visit. Many schools are planning programs and are inviting their patrons to attend. Other schools are arranging to receive the parents all during the week. We especially want parents to visit classrooms while actual class work is going on. We believe that to better know and understand the work going on in the schools is to better appreciate them. Last year, many people visited the schools during this week. This year, most schools are planning to keep registers and hope to have even more than visited last year. Pupils are always proud to have their parents visit their school, since it is a definite indication of interest in their work. We hope you are able to accept this invitation. If you are unable to visit during AEW, this invitation is extended to cover any time you find it possible to visit your school. J. H. BOOKHOLDT, Supt.

Man Killed By Hit-Run Driver

C. H. Amberson was arrested at Gadsden, Sunday after a pick-up order was issued by local Highway Patrolmen, after it was discovered that he was the driver of the automobile that hit and killed Joseph Schreck near Liberty Church, in Autauga county Saturday night. Schreck was found early Sunday morning dead on the highway. Amberson was traced to Gadsden by Highway Patrolmen Hugh Champion and Fred Sten when he left his automobile at a local service station and an attendant notified the patrolmen. He will be charged with manslaughter and leaving the scene of an accident.

Nine Year Old Child Killed

Little Geraldine Oates was instantly killed last Sunday afternoon when she stepped into the path of a car driven by Mrs. Ina Dickey Davis of Birmingham. Geraldine was nine years old. Blood Bank Unit To Be In Thorsby December 21st

The T. & J. Lions Club of Jemison and Thorsby takes as one of its major objectives the Red Cross Mobile Blood Bank Unit which will be in Thorsby, December 21st. Cohen E. Stapp, county chairman of recruiting donors for the Red Cross mobile unit and Archie Ogburn, Co-Chairman, advise that plans are off to a good start for the next blood bank day in Chilton County. Mr. Ogburn advises that the T. & J. Lions Club has assumed the responsibility of making the blood bank day in Thorsby, December 21st, a success. Doctors H. G. Franklin of the T. & J. Lions club of Jemison and Thorsby is acting as chairman of recruiting and arrangements for the day. Mr. Stapp reports a recent contact with the administration director of the Birmingham Regional Blood Center, who promises to have sufficient personnel and equipment to take care of at least three hundred (300) donors when the unit will be at Thorsby on December 21st. The call for donors will be from Beats 2, 9, 11, 12, 13 and 14. Mr. Stapp reports that urgent need for more donors to provide whole blood and plasma for the armed forces was given major emphasis by President Harry S. Truman and General George C. Marshall in addresses at a cornerstone-laying ceremony October 24th, for the new Chapter House of the District of Columbia Red Cross Chapter. "So long as the forces of aggression are attacking the United Nations," President Truman said, "there must be no weakening—there must be no slackening of our effort to check aggression and to build up the defense of the free world. It is up to us here at home to back up these men of many nations who are fighting for us and for the freedom of the world in Korea. "One of the best things we can do is to give blood through the Red Cross for the use of our soldiers. The use of whole blood has revolutionized treatment of battle casualties and saved thousands of lives. I read the other day about the case of a soldier wounded in Korea whose life was saved by 75 pints of blood. To a few years ago that man would have died. The blood which is being given by our people here at home is saving cases which would have been considered hopeless not so long ago. But the demand for blood is tremendous. More is needed than is being given. I urge the people of the District of Columbia—and people all over the country—to give blood thru the Red Cross, so the great work of saving human life can go forward." Mr. Stapp calls attention to the National report which shows total pint weekly collections since the program was launched in September has greatly increased from a total of 20,635 pints September 10th to 16th to a total of 60,000 pints for the week of October 8th to the 14th. This is still short of the 75,000 pint weekly goal. It is sincerely hoped that the people of the Thorsby and Jemison district will volunteer in large numbers to donate blood on December 21st.

Proposed New Chilton County Courthouse

The Board of Revenue and Control has taken a businesslike step in connection with the Courthouse Bonds by appointing an Advisory Committee to assist it in its Courthouse improvement program. The Committee consists of the bank officials of the four banks in the County, as follows: H. Grady Hefflin, President, Peoples Savings Bank, Clanton.

C. Otto Jones, President, First National Bank, Clanton. John Maples, Cashier, Bank of Maplesville. J. Archie Ogburn, Cashier, Bank of Thorsby, Thorsby. The function of this Committee of outstanding businessmen will be to meet with the Board of Revenue and Control on all matters pertaining to the Courthouse construction. The people of Chilton County are thus assured that the funds derived from the sale of the Courthouse bonds will be wisely and economically spent. The members of the governing body of the County realize the responsibility of handling such an amount of money and they are most pleased that these outstanding citizens of the County have unanimously agreed to act on the Committee.

ARMISTICE DAY

THE NEW COURTHOUSE

In the Bond Election coming up on December 11, it is our opinion that the citizens of Chilton County should vote "yes." Here are the reasons why:

Chilton County now has at least a dozen departments and offices, housed in different buildings about town. We are paying thousands and thousands of dollars annually for rent on these offices

All county offices should be under one roof so that when you go to do business at the county courthouse you could attend to it without the necessity of running all over town searching out the various offices.

Let us face it. Our old courthouse is obsolete. The roof leaks and the plaster in the courtroom is falling down. If we do not build a new courthouse we will be compelled to spend a large amount of money in repairing the present building, and what will we have then—still have an old worn out courthouse.

The courtroom is entirely inadequate. Probably, when new, it served well but today, for any gathering of countywide interest there isn't even enough standing room for our citizens. The specifications on the new building calls for a courtroom twice the size of the present courtroom. And too, the courthouse belongs to all of us and should be a building to which we could point with pride.

Vote "yes" on the courthouse bond issue in the coming election. Chilton County NEEDS a new courthouse.

The old saying, "A good name is better to be chosen than great riches," could be revised to read, "Great riches—and let the good name go hang."

Sage advice from one married man to another. "Why don't you go to your wife in a perfectly straightforward manner and lie about the whole thing?"

Nossir, men don't get so old they stop chasing women. The only way the wife can slow down one aged wolf in our neighborhood is to take the wheels off his wheel chair.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

The police Department came to see us the other morning. They wanted to go on record as being opposed to the blowing of a siren for any other purpose than an emergency and to compliment us on our stand against the infraction of this rule. Too, Chief Charles X. (no kin) Tucker, wanted us to inform you that some of our best citizens are going to be brought before the City Judge if speeding on the streets in and around Clanton is not stopped. Especially are they watching the motorists on Selma Road where it seems many complaints have been received. Well, the warning has been given and according to Chief Tucker, unless it is heeded you are apt to run afoul of the law.

The City Rabies Inspector is making the rounds to inoculate all dogs in the city that have not been inoculated. He urges all who have not had this service for their dogs to be ready for him on the next round as he has the vaccine ready and it is a service that must be complied with.

The new cafe at the City Limits in South Clanton next to the Cloverleaf Motel will be named "Martin's Good Foods." David H. (Smitty) Smith is the owner and a very likeable fellow he is. He promises a restaurant of the highest type for ladies and gentlemen.

Miss Ruth Hicks visited us last week. She has been your Stanton correspondent for years and we could hardly do without her representation in the west side of the county. She's our "right arm" in the Stanton community.

Just when we were wondering what had happened to Clanton's George McCain he turns up as the week's hero at the University of Alabama. Against Georgia last Saturday George, Jr., carried the ball 15 times for 76 yards; caught five passes for 67 yards and made two of the Tide's touchdowns. The game ended Alabama 16; Georgia 14.

The past few mornings you could catch the sunny side of the street in Clanton. It was loaded, while the other side in shadows was completely deserted.

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

Appealing an Irate Customer

JULIAN DETMER, founder of the Detmer woolen goods, which later became the largest distributor in the world for woolen goods to the tailoring trade, doesn't believe any man can be right every time. He once told of an instance in the handling of an irate customer that can benefit anyone with something to sell. (And who hasn't something to sell, if it be but one's personality?)

The customer had long been owing the Detmer Woolen Company, and the company's credit department had been after him. One day the man burst into Mr. Detmer's office saying that not only would he never pay that bill but that the company had received its last order from him.

This man had been a fairly good customer over a period of years and naturally Mr. Detmer didn't want to lose him. But what was more important, he didn't want to lose the good will of a former customer.

So he decided to listen patiently to all this man had to say, although he didn't believe the man to be in the right. When the angry man got his story off his chest, he calmed down. Then Mr. Detmer took over.

"I want to thank you," he said, "for explaining the situation to me. A lot of men wouldn't have bothered to do that. I am glad to know how our credit men have irritated a customer, for they have done that to you. They are doing it to others, and you can appreciate how much it means to me to know about such a situation. Believe me, I am more eager to hear about this matter than they have been to tell it. Because of your time and trouble in coming here, I prefer to wipe this bill off our ledger. The information you have given me is worth more to us than the amount involved."

The result?

1.—The man went home and sent a check for the amount due, a letter of apology accompanying it.

2.—When his little son was born he was named Detmer.

3.—He remained a customer of the house for more than 20 years—until his death.

Death On The Highway

A. T. HICKMAN

Every day we read in our newspapers of the death of some American boy, or of some who has been injured in Korea. The paper Monday morning of this week gave us the names of five Alabama men killed in action, and 26 wounded or injured. But the same newspaper gave us the names of more killed on our highways than killed in battle on the Korean fighting lines. It seems that the automobile driven by some fool who has drunk whiskey is a more deadly weapon than guns and other weapons of warfare being used against us. As many as seven people killed in one wreck; then one, two and three in other wrecks. People knocked down while walking along side of the highways; and who knows but what they were knocked down by a drunken driver. Children playing with no thoughts of the danger surrounding them, attempts to run across the road, to be run over by an automobile. Men returning from their work, run into the paths of drunken drivers, the result, more honest men and women killed on the highway. People on their vacation, many miles from home, still their safety zone is too narrow for them and some driver tanked full of liquor. They too, are killed on the American highways.

When will the American people ever awake to the fact that gasoline in an automobile's tank, and whiskey in a driver's stomach cannot be mixed with safety. The danger sign should be more and more published if it will do any good in saving the lives of men and women and children. Every year for many years now thousands and thousands of good, honest, home loving people have become victims of drunken drivers; while the drunk himself has died at the wheel of his automobile, and went out into eternity to meet his Creator unprepared. Surely the devil is going up and down as a roaring lion seeking whom he may destroy; and he knows that through drinking drivers, with high-powered automobiles on our highways is the place to destroy more people than most any other way. When are we to make war against this enemy, Will we ever as a nation, or as a state, or as a community, ever turn our attention and efforts to do something about it? Will Alabama ever have a "speed law?" Let us pray that we will not only have a speed law, a driving law.

Dr. Marshall L. Ware

Chiropractor

Q—I have suffered with constipation for years. Have had to use cathartics and other remedies during this time. Can I possibly be cured of this annoying malady?—J. C. B.

A—Constipation is usually the result of a sluggish liver and weakened intestinal walls. It takes time to produce a condition of this kind and it will take time for nature to restore you to your original state. If you are willing to take adjustments for two or three months if necessary, it is our experience you should be restored to a healthy condition. Of course the older the person, the slower the recovery.

Q—Could adjustments be of aid in catarrh?

A—Catarrh means inflammation of mucous membrane. It is spoken of when one has a violent cold in the head with mucous discharge, although it could apply to other mucous membranes. The cause of catarrh is a disturbance in nerve supply leading to the mucous membranes affected, and which causes the inflammation. An adjustment for catarrh should be followed by a more perulent discharge which in turn should show improvement and in reasonable time, complete cure.

Q—Do Chiropractors doctor everything from the spine? If so how would you cure a fever by manipulating the spine?—Dumb.

A—The very language used in your question would not indicate a "dumb." You merely want to know the "why"—the reasonableness of the thing, and time for have a right to know before you trust your health to this method. The fact that you are investigating is a sign of intelligence. Your question deserves many pages, but for want of space we have to be brief. Now consider the electric iron. What heats it? What cools it off? A man's liver is his chief heat organ; his kidneys are his chief heat dissipators. In zero weather or 100 in the shade, it is the nice work of the body that maintains a balanced temperature of 98.6-10 F. The Chiropractor's work is to remove pressure from the nerves that supply the liver and kidneys. Pressure on nerves causes fever by upsetting the nicely balanced work of these important organs.

Dr. Ware will be glad to answer your health questions by mail or in person.

DON'T TREAT YOURSELF

Do you treat yourself when you are hurt? If you do it might be well to remember that "a little knowledge is a dangerous thing."

If a wound does not respond to first aid and becomes swollen, hot and tender instead of healing, then call your physician. Let him decide whether you need further attention. Inadequate cleansing or sterilization of the wound can cause serious complications, especially tetanus (lockjaw). The germ causing this condition produces one of the most powerful nerve poisons known. Even with the best treatment victims of lockjaw may die, usually because treatment is begun too late.

Statistics show that nine out of every ten cases of serious infections stem from injuries so small that they seem too unimportant to warrant medical attention. Even though you think the wound is a mild one, let your physician that is so successful that when patient is given an injection the disease rarely There is a specific antitoxin for tetanus inspect it if it does not heal quickly, develops.

If an infection has set in, your physician can also give you certain drugs which fight the germs causing the infection. Or he can open it surgically and provide drainage or take other steps as needed. Pain, nausea, convulsions, chills and fever following injury suggest dangerous possibilities that demand immediate medical attention.

The thought that "it's only a scratch or a slight cut" can be dangerous. Don't treat a scratch or any breaking of the skin lightly. Wash the injured part thoroughly with soap and water, touch it with antiseptic and cover it snugly. If that is not enough, call your physician. Amputations, even death, may result from neglect of small injuries.

BUSINESS SLOW? Place an advertisement in the Chilton County News and watch it pick up.

There are Many Steps to Success In A Proper Dairy Program

The chain of success in the dairy program is composed of many links. Probably the weakest link and the link that so often gives way causing failure in the dairying business is that of cattle breeding. Low producing cows have caused more would-be dairymen to become discouraged than possibly any other single factor.

Good cows are the result of a good breeding program. So long as cows are bred merely to "freshen," the chance cross that results is often not so desirable an offspring as the dam that produced it.

A great deal of work has been done in bringing production bred bulls into the county. Good bulls have been placed within reach of practically every community in the county. Many of these animals are out of dams that produced above 10,000 pounds of milk per year. With the fact in mind that the average Chilton County cow produces only about 3,000 to 3,500 pounds of milk per year it is not hard to see that off springs sired by these bulls should certainly be better producing cows than the average cow.

Should the wisdom of following a good breeding program be questioned, one only needs check with some of the county's better dairymen. It is logical to believe that when a man milks cows for his living, he will follow and use the practices that bring him the most net dollars. Without exception every dairymen in the county whose herd justifies keeping a bull owns a purebred bull with a known production record.

Mr. O. H. Lawrence of New Cdon, a Grade 'A' dairymen, states "the bull is one-half the herd." Since Mr. Lawrence realized the importance of this half of his herd, he paid the price necessary to get a bull sired by one of the best bulls in the country. To further assure production, he selected a bull out of a cow that produced over 10,000 pounds of milk. From bulls of this type Mr. Lawrence has saved heifers that are capable of producing from 8,000 to 10,000 pounds of milk per year. Figuring the price of milk low as thirty cents per gallon, a cow of this type will produce $300.00 to $350.00 worth of milk a year.

Mr. Lawrence is only one dairymen who realizes just how essential a breeding program is. W. A. Williams of Baker is building a herd with a bull rather than trying to buy a herd. Mr. Williams, in securing a bull, selected an animal out of a cow producing over 10,000 pounds of milk per year and was sired by one of the better bulls in the nation. Williams, who have bulls from outstanding sires and dams are: R. O. Williams of Collins Chapel, E. P. Edwards of Enterprise, J. E. Minor of Mt. Pleasant, Orman Arledge of Union Grove, Ben Brinker of Clanton, Harry Higginbotham of Maplesville, S. D. Posey of Posey Cross Roads, Euell Killingsworth of Providence. All of these animals are being used to improve the herds of their owners and in practically every case they can be used by the farmers of the county.

PROVIDENCE BEAT 13

Today was our regular preaching day but due to the illness of our pastor, Bro. Crumpton, we didn't have preaching. We had a nice crowd at Sunday School and we want to encourage more to come out next Sunday.

We are sorry to hear of Jimmy Martin having the measles. We hope he will be back at Sunday School next Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Davis and daughter were the week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Green.

Mrs. A. J. E. Harrell, Mr. Edgar Samuels and Mr. Buster Lowery visited Bro. Crumpton Sunday afternoon.

We are sorry to hear of Mrs. Jim Bean being on the sick list. We wish for her a speedy recovery.

Mr. J. D. Harrell is visiting in Robertsdale.

TELEPHONE SERVICE IS GROWING, TOO

...and the price is up far less than most things you buy!

So Big in Service
... So Little in Cost

"GOODNESS, how he's grown!" And you could say the same about telephone service during the short time since his babyhood.

ACTUALLY, in just five years the number of local telephones Alabamians can call has more than doubled. And this year's increase in Alabama telephones is expected to reach about 32,000.

BEST OF ALL, this bigger, better "package" of service has gone up in price only a fraction as much as prices in general . . . and less than our cost of providing the service.

ALWAYS one of your biggest bargains, telephone service is today an even better buy than it was ten years ago, and a smaller part of your family budget.

ISABELLA NEWS

(LAST WEEK)

In absence of our pastor, Rev. J. W. Jones, who is the evangelist at Titus Church in Elmore County in a revival this week, Rev. Amos Hughes filled his pulpit Sunday night with an inspiring message.

The WMS Women met with Mrs. T. L. Lecroy last Thursday to quilt a quilt which has been sold. There was a large group who enjoyed the quilting and social together. The regular monthly meeting of WMS will meet with Mrs. Lucille Bray on Tuesday, Nov. 6 p.m. This is an important meeting and we urge every member to be present if possible.

Thorsby Institute News

The Helen Keller Literary Society Program was a big success Saturday night. The play was titled "The Burglar"; the characters were Valerie—Shirley Petersen, Edith—Marylou Markovitz, Mabel—Sally McLeondon, Peggy—Sarah Manning, Freda—Mary Jackson. There was also a stunt put on by the boys and was enjoyed by all, the boys in the Stunt were: W. A. Perry, Jimmy Kincaid, Lawayne Collins, Lewis Johnson, Novell Simpson and Fred Thompson. Miss McBrayne coached the girls with their play, we are so fortunate to have someone with her ability. The Girl's Glee Club also had a part in the program. The Philomathics won the Attendance Point and therefore keep the banner.

School will close on November 22 for the Thanksgiving Holiday.

Our next program will be Stunt Night, which will be held on November 24 or 25.

Parents Problems

By DONALD M. MAYNARD

What preparation and ideals and thinking should we present in regard to the kissing of a "date," etc.? It is generally supposed that a boy is the aggressor in such cases and it has been brought to our attention that this, too, is a natural outlet. I was not "prissy" in my youth, and enjoyed life in a wholesome way; however, I always had the ideal thought to keep one's kisses for the "only one." What would be a wholesome and yet happy—and also "spiritual" attitude on this question?

Along this same line, in regard to an hour for getting home. The boy would see a girl home, of course, so parents have to allow this extra time for the boy. In case his date may not have parents who require (or maybe she doesn't wish to cooperate) a reasonable hour, what attitude should boys take—also, their parents?

Remember that young people have high ideals today, even though they may sometimes behave in ways that, to say the least, bring a mild shock to those of the older generation. You may be sure that there are standards concerning kissing. Young people may not save kisses for the "one and only" but they do realize that kisses become "common" if given indiscriminately. The significance of the kiss lies primarily in the meaning behind it. In some localities, a friendly goodnight kiss is accepted as a matter of course, if a couple are good friends, and is not to be confused with "petting" or "necking."

It certainly is important that we help our young people develop wholesome ideals concerning boy and girl relationships. The filmstrips, "Boy Meets Girl," "Boy Dates Girl," and "Boy Marries Girl" are being shown to many youth groups. The McGraw-Hill films on boy and girl relationships are excellent. Why don't you encourage your church to provide this type of education for its young people and your children will then profit by such a program when they reach that age?

This matter of the hour to get home at night is frequently a perplexing problem that creates much family discord. In general, try to be understanding of the viewpoints of your adolescent boys and girls. Frequently a compromise on the part of both adolescent and parent works fairly well. Remember that the particular hour at which a child may be expected to come in depends largely upon the plans for the evening.

If boys and girls realize that parents are trying to be reasonable and cooperative, they usually will be willing to let them know by phone if something occurs to keep them out after the anticipated "getting in" time. For older adolescents, many parents do not set a definite hour but trust them to get in at a reasonable hour. For younger adolescents it may be necessary to be more specific as to the time to get in.

My seventeen-month-old daughter cries and holds her body very stiff and straight oftentimes when I put her in the play pen or stroller after she has been running and playing. It is often quite embarrassing. How would you advise trying to change this before it becomes a habit?

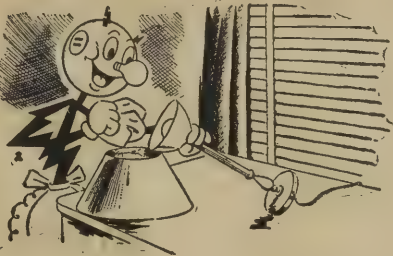

Your daughter is getting to the age where she does not like to be confined to a play pen—at least, for very long. She much prefers to run and play and it is not surprising, therefore, that she should show signs of resistance to returning to the play pen by holding her body stiff and straight. Such behavior is more or less to be expected.

You may be able to lessen the frequency of such behavior if you follow these suggestions:

1. Always give her time to get adjusted to the idea of returning to the stroller or play pen. Instead of picking her up without any notice and putting her in the pen, suggest two or three things for her to do before being put in the pen—for example, running to a tree and back twice.

2. Make a sort of game of getting back into the pen or stroller. Use your own ingenuity. For example, with your help see if she can "jump" into the pen. At first, lift her only part way—then finally, with great glee, lift her high in the air and into the pen.

The above methods will not always be successful, of course. When they are not and your daughter falls back into the old pattern of behavior, be patient. After all, it won't be long until she is too old for a play pen or a stroller, anyway!

How to Get ALL The Light You Pay For—

EVEN the best housekeepers often overlook a place where dust accumulates and costs them money. That place is on light bulbs and shades. The dust usually isn't seen because it accumulates so slowly and is usually above eye level.

How does dust on light bulbs and shades cost money? By reducing the efficiency of the lighting fixture. Even a thin film of dust will keep a lot of light imprisoned. An accumulation of just a few months will reduce efficiency as much as 20 per cent. That means that you're not getting as much light as you're paying for.

The cure is as simple as it is cheap. Just wipe off the dust with a damp cloth, and you'll be amazed to see how much more light you get for no more money.

CLANTON STUDY CLUB HAS NOVEMBER MEETING WITH MRS. PAUL PAGE AT MARBURY

Mrs. Joe Earle Gowan and Mrs. Paul Page entertained the Clanton Study Club at the home of Mrs. Page in Marbury on Friday afternoon, November second.

Mrs. Grady Hefflin, president, called the meeting to order and Mrs. Joe Mullins read the Club Collect. During the business hour reports were made by the standing committees showing progress in all phases of the work for the year. At the conclusion of business the program for the day was presented.

Mrs. I. F. Gowan introduced Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson Wilbanks of Alexandria City.

Mrs. Wilbanks spoke on the subject, Women's Rights Amendment. The speaker gave a most interesting account of what is happening in this country and most particularly in Alabama, to this important question of equal rights for women. Mrs. Wilbanks, a successful lawyer of Alexandria City, is actively engaged in the work of women voters in the state and she very capably treated her subject so as to make it most interesting and informative to the club members and guests present.

The hostesses invited their guests in to the dining room where they were assisted in serving by Mrs. Gowan, Mrs. John Higgins, and Mrs. Frances Soaks. Refreshments were served delicious refreshments. The social hour was made most enjoyable by the graciousness of the hostesses for the occasion.

Brownie's Halloween Party

Thirty-seven Brownie Scouts of Clanton enjoyed a Halloween party on Wednesday afternoon of last week, when Brownies, Lynn Williams, Jennie Lee Polk and Mary Mel Martin were joint hosts at the former's home on Selma road.

The girls, with their leaders gathered in the spacious living room of the home while Miss Helen Parrish told them a most exciting Halloween story. After the story time, little Faye Williams dressed as a magic witch, entered the room with a box filled with small gift wrapped packages and presented it to Mrs. John R. Smith. This was a surprise "hanky" shower from the Brownies! The girls sat in a circle on the rug with Mrs. Smith in the center as she opened each gift package.

The guests were invited into the sun room which was full of the Halloween spirits, black cats, witches and Jack O' Lanterns were everywhere. Attracting the most attention and causing much excitement, was the ghost that stood in a corner of the room.

From a low table Lynn, assisted by her mother, Mrs. R. C. Williams, served the delicious orange punch. The Halloween motif was repeated in the cup cakes served by Jennie Lee and Mary Nell.

For the "trick or treat" favors each guest received a box of crackers. Jacks with the usual surprise treat in each box.

Visitors at the party were Cecil Wade, Faye Williams and George Tucker, Jr. Scout leaders present, Mrs. John R. Smith, Mrs. George Tucker, Mrs. Joe Campbell and Miss Helen Parrish.

Methodist W. S. C. S.

The Methodist W. S. C. S. held their meeting for the month of November at the church on Monday, Nov. 5, 1951.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. J. C. Wright, who led the group in singing hymn, "The Great Physician."

Reports of committees were given and reports of circle meetings made.

In the new business a motion was made and unanimously carried, that the Young Adult Class be commended for the fine work they have done in decorating the room in the church and kitchen.

Circle four presented a program on Latin America.

The meeting was dismissed with the Lord's Prayer.

Pilot Club News

The Clanton Pilot Club met Oct. 30, in the private dining room of the Dixie Cafe for the regular monthly program meeting, with the club president Miss Margaret Lee presiding.

This was the clubs annual tacky party and package sale night.

The meeting was turned over to the program chairman, Mrs. Ralph Morrison, who presented Miss Helen Parrish, package auctioneer. A nice sum of money was realized from the sale. A large white cake was won by Miss Parrish. Judges for the tacky party were Mr. George Williamson, Mr. Winston Hudson and Mr. Herman Sell, who were called in from the cafe. The prize for the tackiest pilot went to Miss Parrish also.

Flash bulb snapshots of the group were made by Miss Faye Woodley.

Teen Ager Get-To-Gether

On Saturday night of last week thirty of Clanton's girls and boys enjoyed roasting wieners over the big bon fire on the lawn of Paula Nivens, on Taylor Street.

After much fun was had making hot-dogs, the guests were invited into the home where they shared the pleasure of music by records, dancing and games.

POPLAR SPRINGS

We had a good attendance at Sunday School and Training Union, in spite of the cold weather.

Our G. A.'s and R. A.'s held their meeting together in the home of Mrs. Esther Childers last Thursday night. The program was enjoyed by each of the members present. Also most of their parents were there. All joined in and played games after the program and refreshments were served.

Mrs. Jesse Thornton is still visiting her daughter in Columbus, Ga., who has a new baby boy. Mrs. Thornton also has a new grand daughter in Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Hill and Wylene visited relatives in Chambers county Friday. Their aunt, Mrs. Hittie Grass returned with them for a visit.

Mrs. Charlie Mae Smith and Children have at last arrived in Okinawa and are enjoying being with the husband and father once again. They are also well fixed in a comfortable apartment.

We are hoping every one in reach of our church and not attending church some other place, will come to our Sunday School and worship service Sunday.

Also remember prayer services each Wednesday night.

JEMISON HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

The Halloween party at the JHS auditorium was a big success Wednesday, October 31. The main event of the evening was the contest for the Harvest king and queen. All of the contestants appeared on the stage and were introduced by Sue Bratton, musical accompaniment by June Handley.

At the end of the evening the queens were crowned on the stage and presented a gift. The winners in elementary school were: Dean Horton and Albert Gramatas; runners-up were Sandy Watts and Bill Thrash. The winners of the high school were: Jo Ann Nix and James Maddox; runners up were Betty Lou Barrett and Charles Jones.

Homecoming Day at Jemison was scheduled for November 2, but due to inclement weather it was postponed until Monday, November 5. Before the football game the "Miss Homecoming" contestants and their escorts walked across the football field and were introduced to the spectators, June Handley, the 1950 queen, led the group. She was escorted by Tommy Martin. The contestants were: Doris Peters (representing the football team and FFA), Barbara Glasscock (the choice of the FFA), escorted by Co-Captain Kendall Martin; Marlene Baggett (representative of the PANTHERGRAM), escorted by Kent Lowery.

At the half each of the contestants was presented with a corsage of mums, and the 1951 Homecoming queen—Marlene Baggett—was crowned by the 1950 queen and presented an arm bouquet. Marlene had the honor of leading the Homecoming dance Monday night in the gym.

Jemison won the game played with Calera by a score of 25-0.

MISS RUTH HICKS

Such a nice birthday celebration for the 79th birthday of Mr. W. M. D. O'Neal, better known by many as "Mr. Duffie," Sunday, November 4, 1951 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl O'Neal. (His birthday actually is the 5th of November.)

The dining table was filled with good eats. Just about everything that you could mention. Such an enjoyable get-together.

Week end visitors were: Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Amos (Estelle O'Neal) of Milton, Florida, and Mr. and Mrs. Preston O'Neal of Demopolis, Ala.

Sunday guests were Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler O'Neal of Montgomery, Ala., Mr. and Mrs. John T. O'Neal of Plantersville, Ala., and Mr. and Mrs. John L. Sherrer, Jr., (Dorothy O'Neal) of Marietta, Georgia.

Sunday afternoon Mr. Billy O'Neal and daughters Sandra and Deborah Ann of Plantersville, Ala., visited with this group and wished their grandparents many, many more happy birthdays.

This community was made sad over the week end when they learned of the illness of Mr. Earl Pickering. "Earl" has been an employee of the W. E. Belcher Lumber Co., at Pickering Spur, just south of Plantersville for several years. He is now confined to the Drury City Hospital in Tuscaloosa, Ala., but will be transferred to this week to the Veterans Hospital in Montgomery, Ala., or Memphis, Tenn. "Earl" is highly respected and loved in this community. His friends are anxious over his conditions and trust that word will soon reach this community that he is improving and well on the road to recovery.

Mrs. Cora Fuller returned to her home here last week after a nice visit with her son, Mr. Eugene Fuller and Mrs. Fuller in Mobile, Ala.

We regret to report the illness of Mrs. Mattie Parnell. Mrs. Parnell was quite ill last week end, however, we are glad to state that she is improved at this writing. Visitors over the week end were Mrs. Altha Tucker of Birmingham, Ala., Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Billingsley of Thorsby, Ala., and Mr. Arthur Martin of Clanton, Ala. Mrs. Altha Tucker remaining over to be with Mrs. Parnell during her illness.

Mr. Edward Parnell has been confined to his bed for several days. We are glad to report that he is better. Many in this section have known Mrs. Jack Measles for many years. She died last Wednesday and was buried at Mt. Olive in Perry County, Alabama last Friday. Mrs. Measles was in her nineties and lived in Vinson, Ala., at the time of her death. Sympathy is extended the family in their loss.

Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Hicks and family of Birmingham, Ala., visited Rev. and Mrs. Joe A. Davis last Thursday. They came for the funeral of their grandmother, Mrs. Jack Measles.

Mrs. Edmund Davis underwent an operation in the Selma Baptist Hospital last Thursday and has been right ill. She entered the hospital last Tuesday. Improvement in her condition has been reported. We trust she will soon be able to return to her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter Davis of the University of Alabama spent the week end with relatives.

Mr. Kirby Burnett spent the week end in Montgomery with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Rush of Pascagoula, Mississippi recently visited their father W. J. Fluker and Mrs. Fluker. When they returned home Mr. Fluker went home with them and spent about a week. He is back home at this writing.

Mr. Will Gandy was admitted to the Jefferson Hospital Birmingham, Ala., the week of October 22nd. His immediate family were with him during his confinement there. His son, Fred, arriving from Germany a short time before his death. Mr. Gandy's funeral was held in Lomax, Alabama Sunday, November 4th at 10 a.m. The Gandy's moved from Maplesville to Deatsville, Ala., several years ago. They have many friends throughout this section who offer their heartfelt sympathy to them in their loss. (Mrs. Gandy will be remembered as the former Amy Daniels, sister of Mr. J. E. Daniels of Maplesville, Ala.)

In her first concert in the State Margaret Truman, daughter of the President of the United States, will be presented in Montgomery Thursday night at 8:30 p.m. by the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Episcopal church. The recital will be at the Sidney Lainer auditorium.

Miss Jeannette Dennis, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dock Dennis and Donald Giles were married in Meridian Miss. October 27, 1951. They are at home to their friends at the home of the bride's parents.

Rev. and Mrs. Joe Davis accompanied by Mrs. Calhoun Garner, Mrs. Cleve Latham, Miss Ruby Lee Latham, Mrs. George Shoultz and Mrs. Cobia Lawrence of the Pleasant Grove community motored to Bessemer, Ala. last Monday and attended the District W. M. U. meeting.

Mrs. Earnest Fulford of Plantersville is spending this week in Clanton with her son Mr. Boots Fulford and Mrs. Fulford. She is under the care of a Clanton doctor while there for an infection in her lower limb.

Mrs. Charlie Gay has asked that a correction be made in last week's announcement of her daughters marriage. Miss Ila Ruth Gay, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Gay, married George M. Gauld. Last week's issue mis-spelled the daughters name. It is "Ila" instead of Ira and the groom was listed as George W. Gould whereas it should have read George M. Gauld. We as correspondents regret errors and this goes for the Editor also. Our apologies, Mrs. Gay.

Mr. Douglas Stewart entered the Vaughan Memorial Hospital last Monday. We are glad to report that Douglas was able to return to Auburn and resume his studies at API last week.

Dr. Eugene Callaway Sr., of Selma successfully underwent an operation last Tuesday morning at Lahey Clinic, New England Baptist Hospital, Boston. His son, Dr. Eugene Callaway, Jr. accompanied his father by plane to Boston last Saturday (Oct. 27th). Dr. Drayton Doherty and Mr. Harmon Carter, a close friend of Dr. Har-way's were in Boston also. Dr. Doherty and Mr. Carter planned to return to Selma in a few days.

Mrs. Eugene Callaway, Sr., left for Boston last Tuesday to be at her husband's bedside during his convalescence. His son will also remain at his bedside during his convalescence. Telephone messages from members of the family at his bedside disclose that Dr. Callaway is in a favorable condition following his operation. Steady improvement is expected in his condition.

The Plantersville Home Demonstration Club was named last Monday afternoon as the winner in a window display contest participated in by 14 Dallas County's Home Demonstration Clubs. The club exhibited a display on "Color in the Wardrobe" in the Alabama Power Co.'s show window. These displays, arranged in the show windows of various downtown business establishments, were judged by demonstration agents from Baldwin, Augusta, Perry and Marengo counties. Mrs. J. W. Pickering is past President of the Plantersville Demonstration Club and has just ended a very successful year.

Members of the Plantersville Club's committee which planned and presented their club's exhibit were Mrs. Vincent Pierson, Mrs. Olivia Apperson, Mrs. J. N. Pickering and Mrs. Henry Houston.

Wiley McCormick, 73, retired employee of the Southern Railway, died about 6 p. m. at his home October 28, 1951 of a heart attack. Mr. McCormick has made his home here since his retirement in 1940 after 25 years in the Southern car shops in Selma, Ala. He was a native of Perry county, Alabama.

Surviving are his wife Mrs. Annie Cook McCormick, 1 daughter Mrs. H. B. Jackson of Jacksonville, Florida, 2 sons, Clairborne C. McCormick of Selma, Ala., and Warrant Officer H. E. McCormick on maneuvers with the U. S. Navy in the Caribbean. Patricia and Rufus Jackson are the only grandchildren. Mrs. Mattie Fountain of Porterville, Calif., and John McCormick, Mobile are a sister and brother of the deceased.

Funeral services were held from the Stanton Baptist church at 4 p.m. Tuesday afternoon. Rev. J. R. Robinson Jr., officiating. Interment in the Stanton cemetery Breslin Service of Selma directing.

Honorary pallbearers were John D. Phillips, E. P. Phillips, Dan Ellis, J. W. Norris, L. C. Witley and J. A. Quarterman.

Active pallbearers were Buck Burnett, J. J. Cates, Shelton Cook, Gus Wallace, Bob Davis and Robert Gay.

In charge of flowers: Mrs. Bill Riddick, Mrs. Buck Burnett, Mrs. A. D. Eaves and Mr. Gent Harrison.

The Montgomery Motorcycle Club had their annual endurance run Sunday Nov. 4 in Montgomery, Ala. This run was put on a member of the Montgomery Club, Delmas Miers. The riders praised Mr. Miers in the manner in which he marked and laid out the course. It was 160 miles of endurance riding and a day filled with spills and thrills for the riders. The spectators were able to enjoy this run as Mrs. Miers led the group to several interesting spots. Some of the enjoyable things they saw was a steep hill climb and a creek crossing on poles.

2nd Place winner—Milard Reynolds, Stanton, Ala.

Announcing the car of the year! NEW '52 DODGE

On display November 10th.

MAKES YOUR MONEY WORTH MORE...in many more ways!

In style, beauty, roominess, riding ease and dependability

Where others give you 'sell'...we give you PROOF!

We believe our customers like to judge car values for themselves. The Dodge "Show Down" Plan compares Dodge with other cars — allows you to see how you could pay hundreds of dollars more and still not get all Dodge gives you. Be sure to get your FREE copy of the "Show Down" book.

ONE of the grandest things about the new '52 Dodge is this: You could STILL pay hundreds of dollars more for a car and not get everything this great new Dodge goes you!

For here in this new '52 beauty are all the comfort, style and convenience features you'll be looking for in your new car. The smart, modern inside "dress" — the flattering new fabrics — the all-around roominess that lets you relax and take things easy.

Naturally, you're invited to drive this new Dodge. For that's the only way you can feel how the Outflow Ride really takes the bounce out of bumps — the only way to appreciate what a smooth handling car it is. Your eyes will open wide, too, at the visibility you have — front, back and all around. That's why every mile you drive in a Dodge is safer, more pleasant.

We'll be looking for you. Come in and see this new '52 Dodge. You're in for a happy surprise.

There's extra protection for your family in a CONCRETE HOUSE

...it affords protection from

FIRE. Concrete can't burn! That's important because every two minutes some one's house goes up in flames. Don't take chances! Protect your family and prized possessions — build with fire-safe concrete.

STORMS. Sturdy, durable concrete is weather-resistant. It turns back wind, rain, hail, storms and twisters. You'll enjoy security and peace of mind in a concrete house that gives lifelong protection.

TERMITES. They can't penetrate concrete. Guard against this insect that can literally eat your house from under you. Build with concrete foundations, walls and subfloors and free yourself from worry.

HIGH UPKEEP. Being durable and weather-tight, a concrete house costs far less to own over the years because: Moderate first cost + low maintenance expense = long years of worry-free service = low annual cost.

Things We See and Hear

-ByTuck

Drove up to Siluria last Friday night with the intentions of seeing the ball game. You'd have come nearer keeping me up there if you'd payed me 'cause I sho' nuff' wouldn't have frozen for nothing. By all indications (including the score) it wasn't a game you'd wanta sit through and freeze anyway!

By the way Mrs. Palmer: you'd better check on those boys (Senior III's) that were manipulating (driving) your car out front Monday morning. I think if you look closely you'll find your gas down a notch or so. I believe they used that much trying to get the top down.

Seems like the band finally woke up on their marching. Man, that cadence they had could put you to sleep. But now... you just get drowsy!

Miss Barton's English class have been studying poetry lately and here's Phillip Lawrence's version of poetry—

"I went up the hill,
And there I found a still,
I took a drink and got a thrill,
And rolled back down the hill."
Brother that's what I call CORN!
And I don't mean liquor.

Somebody's not satisfied with Grace Lawrence as the most popular girl in the Senior III class; they seem to think Joe Grooms is the one for the part. How about it Doug, think you could get it?

The old halls don't look the same in the morning now do they kids, since they lock us in our rooms. (No offense, teachers!) I still don't see what advantage that is except for the dignity (if that's the right word) of the school. Personally I don't see anything wrong with walking and talking in the hall, it's the only chance we get.

Tip of the week: Don't let Joe Blair drive your car! Ask Mrs. Palmer?

Bad Driver: An accident going somewhere to happen. It's dangerous to drive a car with one hand; many a car has run into a church that way. Pessimist: One who feels bad when he feels good for fear he'll feel worse when he feels better.

Fight: The most intelligent way to fight is to find a smaller man.

The decrepit old car drove up to the toll bridge, "fifty cents," said the gate-man. "Sold," replied the driver.

On a crowded car: "Madam, would you like me to get you a strap?"

"No, thank you, I have one." Then would you mind letting go of my necktie?"

"Give me a glass of milk and a muttered buffin."

"You mean a buffered muttin?"

"No, I mean muffled buttin."

"Why not just take coffee and doughnuts?"

a party. Games were enjoyed during the afternoon, the gift wrapped packages were opened and all sang, "Happy Birthday, Rose Emma."

Enjoying the occasion was an elderly friend, Mrs. Kaminsky, an aunt, Mrs. Bonnie Willis, who assisted Mrs. Cofor during the afternoon. Present also were Martha Jo Willis, Joyce Cobb, Dwight Cobb, Braxton Lenoir and Lois Ann Woodley, and sisters of the honoree, Doris Marie, Annie Sue and her brother Billy.

Cookies, sandwiches, candy and drinks were enjoyed.

Celebrate Wedding Anniversary

On Thursday night, Nov. 1st the children and grand children joined Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Kaminsky in celebrating their 56 wedding anniversary. They enjoyed a turkey dinner with all the trimmings. A lovely embossed anniversary cake centered the table and favors of tiny baskets full of mints and other candies were at each plate. From Birmingham were Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Fullerton, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Welton, Jr.; from Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Kaminsky, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Kaminsky and daughter Harriet Ann.

Surprise Birthday Party

On Saturday night, Oct. 27th, Mr. and Mrs. Springer of Clanton gave a surprise birthday party for Mrs. Lester Pate, and her sister, Mrs. E. M. Wilson.

The table was lovely with a lace covered cloth, a decorated cake with just the right number of candles, centered the table and gifts surrounded the cake. A chicken dinner, with other goodies was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Included in this hospitality were Mr. Lester Pate, James Lester Pate, Gerald and Valera Nell Pate, Miss Romie Lee Pate, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Pate, Hollis Pate, Margie Springer and Catherine Springer.

Mrs. O. M. Harper Hostess

To W. S. C. S.

The Jimson W. S. C. S. met Sunday afternoon with Mrs. O. M. Harper. Mrs. Dezzie Littlejohn, president, conducted the devotional. She read Matt. 23:31-46. The program was in Economic problems of Latin America.

A chicken supper is planned for November 14th, beginning at 5:00 o'clock. This supper will be at the home of Miss Sybil Langston. This affair is for the benefit of the building fund and the plates will sell for 75c. Everybody is invited.

Those present were, Mesdames Verla Langston, S. L. McNeill, Dezzie Littlejohn, A. C. Bratton, Walter McNeill, W. J. Preston, C. L. Walter, Mrs. Fulmer and Mrs. Nancy Wells, and Miss Sybil Langston.

Mrs. Stanley Cost attended the annual meeting of the Alabama Council of Home Demonstration Clubs which convened in Biloxi, Miss., Nov. 5-7.

She enjoyed luncheon with other council presidents at the Buena Vista Hotel, in the Rose Room.

James Lester Pate was with his parents for the week end and also Gerald Pate was home.

Rev. and Mrs. Homer Carroll and children, Kathryn and John spent Friday night, Saturday, and Saturday night in Newton, Ala. Mrs. Carroll, her sisters and brothers are joining their mother in celebrating her birthday on Saturday, Nov. 2nd.

Mrs. S. L. McNeill and Mrs. C. L. Walton were in Birmingham on Friday.

Mrs. W. J. Preston spent Thursday in Birmingham.

Mrs. George Naish is spending several days in Meridian, Miss., with her niece, Mrs. Terrell Williams, and family.

Mrs. W. J. Preston attended the annual meeting of Alabama Council of Home Demonstration Clubs, which convened Nov. 5-7 at Biloxi, Miss. Mrs. Preston represented Chilton County Council as citizenship objective chairman.

Mrs. A. S. Van Hoose was in Cuba, Ala. her former home, on account of the death of Mrs. Stallworth, a friend.

JEMISON NEWS

MRS. GEORGE NAIISH

Jemison FFA Chapter and Thorsby American Legion to Help Underprivileged Children.

The Jemison FFA Chapter and the Thorsby American Legion have worked out a plan to help the underprivileged children of Chilton County enjoy this Christmas more than ever before. The Legion members are to gather all the used toys around the Thorsby and Jemison areas and bring them in to the Jemison vocational agriculture building, here the Jemison FFA members take over and repair or rebuild the toys; repaint them just like new and turn them over to the Chilton County Christmas Chest for distribution.

Last year the Jemison FFA sponsored a similar program and repaired quite a number of toys but with the help of the Legion they expect to help many more children this year.

Compliments to Police Officer

The people of Jemison take this opportunity in expressing their appreciation for their police officer.

We are very fortunate in having a man of his type here. Mr. Young is surely performing his duties as our chief of police in a very efficient manner and the results are beginning to show.

He does not confine his work to day time hours but often patrols the streets at night to protect the people and their properties. His clean-up move has certainly been a long felt need. More power to you, Chief!

Mrs. Stanley W. Cost Hostess to Club
The Home Demonstration club met with Mrs. Stanley W. Cost, on Wednesday Oct. 31st at 12 o'clock. Mrs. William Vines was honored, receiving some lovely and useful gifts. The luncheon was a most delicious one, the menu consisting of chicken, dressing, giblet gravy, cranberry sauce, string beans, green lima beans, fruit salad, several relishes, apple pie and lemon pie, with coffee, each member furnishing a dish.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. W. J. Preston. Club collect was read in union. Mrs. Stanley Cost gave the devotional, using Matt. 5:38-45, Isaiah 40:31, the encircled life.

Thought for the month was given by Mrs. Preston. "Ones that desire to excel should endeavor it in those things that are in themselves most excellent." Epictetus. The treasurer's report was given and a report from the citizenship and community activities chairmen was given.

Mrs. George Naish read the story of the hymn, "Abide With Me" and the hymn was sung with Mrs. Marvin Dawson leading. The story of the class, "The Spinning Song" by Mendelssohn was read and Miss Martin played the record. The nominating committee made its report and these officers were elected by ballot: President, Mrs. Lester Pate; vice president, Mrs. V. O. Lenoir; Secretary-treasurer, Ms. B. C. Lenoir; Reporter, Mrs. G. W. Naish; Song Leader, Mrs. W. J. Preston; Recreation, Mrs. Marvin Dawson; Foods, Mrs. L. H. McNeil and Mrs. B. G. Glenn; Clothing, Mrs. Stanley Cost; Food Preservation, Mrs. A. C. Blewster and Mrs. Elvin Dawson; Home Management, Mrs. Mattie McNeill; and Mrs. Van Hoose; Child care and Family Life, Mrs. Myrell Jackson and Mrs. Lester Pate; Home Furnishing, Mrs. Tom Cost and Mrs. Henry Shaw.

Miss Knight, the Home Demonstration Agent, gave plans for the district meeting to be held in Clanton, Nov. 20 and named the food the club is to furnish.

A film was shown by Miss Knight and Miss Martin, showing the benefits derived from using "Enriched Meal."

Those members whose birthdays occurred in October were remembered with a gift, Mrs. V. O. Lenoir, Mrs. Lester Pate and Mrs. Sam Woodley.

Sixteen members were present, one new member and a visitor, Mrs. George Naish.

Meeting of Chilton County Council Of Parents-Teachers

Wednesday evening, Oct. 29, the County Council of Parents-Teachers met at Jemison, in the High School auditorium. The president, Mrs. Russell Williams was in charge of the meeting. Mr. S. L. Griffin gave the devotional, using as a theme, the earth is God's by creation, that God is our refuge and strength and the light of our lives, using Genesis 1:1; Psalm 19:1; Psalm 46:1; Psalm 91:2.

The speaker, in a most charming manner, told something about several of the new books for children and youth and mentioned several that adults would enjoy reading. Her story of one lad and his relation to books convinced the present that parents and teachers can do much toward guidance in developing a love for reading. A number of books were on display. Those who failed to attend missed a treat.

The executive committee reported that the matter of a mobile library should be discussed in each P-TA and report to the County Council before definite steps could be taken on this matter.

Mrs. Williams thanked each person who had any part on the program, then told of the work Mrs. John R. Smith had accomplished. It was she who prepared the year books.

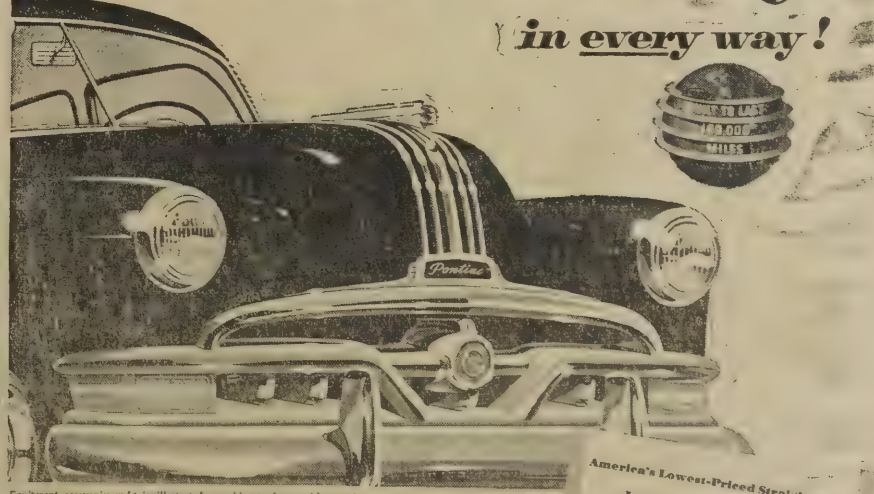

Refreshments and cookies were served as the guests arrived and to late comers, after the meeting.

School News

The Halloween party at the school last Tuesday night was enjoyed by a large crowd both young and old.
Miss Ardle Hatcock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hatcock was chosen F. H. A. Sweetheart.
The children enjoyed the Fish Pond and apple bobbing. Other things that were enjoyed by all were: The House of Horror, Fortune Telling by Madam Zoda, Cake Walk, Cabbage Patch, Bingo and of course the Guess Cake.
Mr. Eugene Hatcock won the cake.
He guessed a pumpkin seed.
In spite of the cold disagreeable night a nice crowd attended the Billingsley-Maplesville game last Friday night.
Perry County High will meet Maplesville here, next Friday night on the football field.

The Ladies Auxiliary entertained last Wednesday night with a covered dish supper. Each member could invite a couple, about 75 attended. After a delicious supper a square dance was enjoyed.

This organization has been getting quite a bit of criticism of late—if you will come out to these get-togethers when you are invited, maybe you can enlighten other people as to what goes on there.

The Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars held their regular meeting last Thursday night. Those attending were: Mrs. Mary B. Brown, Mrs. Delene Hampton, Mrs. Frances Thomas, Mrs. Johnny Potts, Mrs. Margaret Clapp, Mrs. Jessie Gillispie, Mrs. Alvis Aldridge, Mrs. Wilma Rucker, Miss Estelle Davis, Miss Frances Reynolds and Mrs. Kathryn Goff.

The V. F. W. held their regular meeting last Monday night. They met each Monday and urge members to attend.

Those enjoying a weiner roast last week at the roadside park on the University Highway were: Mr. and Mrs. Paul Compton, Mr. and Mrs. Houston Lenoir, Dewey Lenoir, Mr. J. O. Chambers, Mrs. Willie Pierce and Miss Willie T. Chambers.

Rev. Jack B. Cooper of Shepherdville, Ky., is now visiting his relatives Mrs. Evie Cochran, Mrs. Maude Clements, Mrs. Mae Cox and Mrs. Jessie Gillespie. While here Rev. Cooper attended the "School of Phophets" held at the "Gospel of Peace Church" in Birmingham for 3 days, Nov. 6-7-8.

Ministers from over these United States attended. Anyone could ask questions regarding Bible doctrines and some was freely discussed.

We are always glad to see Rev. Cooper. He has so many friends in this and adjoining communities.

Mr. and Mrs. Bully Harrison of Montgomery spent last week end with Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Bates.

Miss Martha Alice Smith of Alabama College, spent last week end with her mother and grandmother.

Mr. Ed Day, Ed and Sandra made a business trip to Birmingham last Saturday.

Mrs. Mae Cox made a business trip to Birmingham last week. While there she visited Mrs. Charlie Cox and Mrs. Will Cox in Inglenook and Mrs. Jolene Davis in Woodlawn.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gillespie made a business trip to Clanton Saturday. They had for their Saturday night visitors Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Abbott of Pletcher and Mrs. Davis Mitchell of Stanton.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Abney of Cox community shopped in town last Saturday.

Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Bearden attended the funeral of Mr. Wylie McCormick last Tuesday Stanton. Mrs. Bearden's brother, Mr. Walter Hambrick, of Peterson came down for the funeral and spent Wednesday with her.

Mrs. James Johnson, "Mickie" spent last Saturday with her parents Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Bearden.

There are a few nights left to attend Bro. Reube Bearden's revival meeting at the Calvary Baptist church in Prattville. Bro. Ed Wilkins of Clanton West End Baptist church is doing the preaching. These are two of our Chilton County boys, go down and hear them.

Mrs. W. E. Cobern, Mrs. Cal Foshie, Mrs. P. H. Barnes, Mrs. Thera Watson and Miss Louise Foshee attended the P. T. A. County Council meeting in Jemison last Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Branson Lawrence and children are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Hershel Shanks. They visited with the Thera Watson's for a while Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Sims had as their Sunday visitors, Mr. Howard Sims and son Lagrant of Ensley, Mr. Ed Chandler of Billingsley, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Walker and children of Selma. Mr. and Mrs. Buster Abbott and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Hathcock.

Kenneth McGee returned home from the hospital in Selma, where he recently underwent an operation.

We extend our deepest sympathy to the family of Mr. Will Gandy. Mr. and Mrs. Gandy lived in our midst some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ruffert and Butch of Clanton, visited old friends in town Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Williams and children have moved to Clanton. We hated to see these good people move.

Mrs. Stanley Brown made a business trip to Birmingham last Wednesday.

Quite a few people attended the funeral of Mr. Will Gandy last Sunday a.m. in Lomax.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hines and daughter Betty, of Montgomery, visited urday night.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Headley last Saturday. Mrs. Louise Bean and daughter are visiting Mrs. Verna Bean in Clanton.

Fourth District Music Clubs Hold Convention

An interesting convention was held by the Music Clubs of the Fourth District at the Saughatchee Country Club in Opelika on Thursday Nov. 1st.

The opening musical number was given by the Glee Club of the Opelika High School.

Feature of the session was an opera workshop, with Mrs. Erle Ellis, Patricia Huddleston and Henry Grady Hefflin, Jr., presenting excerpts from "Carmen." They were accompanied by Mrs. W. E. Huddleston. Cooper Speaks was the Narrator.

The luncheon was a courtesy of the Opelika Music Club. Mrs. Guy F. Gunter, president.

The luncheon music was presented by Wendy and Judy Clyde. They played a number of violin and cello duets and solos accompanied by their father, who teaches stringed instruments at API.

Mrs. Ulric Gilbert of Montgomery, president of Alabama Federation of Music Clubs, spoke at the morning session.

Those who attended the meeting from Clanton were Mesdames, Grady Hefflin, Erle Ellis, W. A. Willis, Joe Campbell, R. C. Williams, W. E. Huddleston, Reid Mullins, W. D. Shackelford, I. S. Levine, Hoyt Taylor, Miss Patricia Huddleston, Henry Grady Hefflin and Cooper Speaks.

HIGHLAND

It was very encouraging to have almost one hundred per cent attendance for Sunday School Sunday. There were only five absent members. Although this is the beginning of the winter season, we are hoping there will not be the usual slump in church attendance. Let's have a hundred per cent next Sunday, as it is preaching services too.

Our W. M. U. met at the church Wednesday last week for a program and business session. We had two of our associational leaders with us, Mrs. Scott of Jemison and Mrs. Reid of Clanton.

Both the program and Mrs. Scott's talk were enjoyed by all present. We hope to have Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Reid with us again soon.

All the women of this community are cordially invited to come and join us in our W. M. U. work.

You will enjoy the fellowship besides learning what missions are, where it must be done and how. Also, how we may serve God better by helping others.

Garden Club To Present Lecturer

Plans for the appearance of Mrs. G. W. Johnson, public relations representative and landscape artist for Pan-American Airways, in Clanton on Friday, Nov. 16, were outlined at the November meeting of the Club.

Mrs. Johnson will speak at 2:30 p.m. at the First Baptist Church. Members of all clubs of Clanton and vicinity and others who are interested are invited to attend. There will be no charge.

Mrs. Johnson has spoken in Montgomery to the State Garden Club Federation and to the Selma Federation of Garden Clubs. A Texas woman, with homes both in that state and in Mexico City, she has handled landscaping of Pan-American airports for some years past, having begun her career with exotic flowers at the age of 56. She is in wide demand as a lecturer, her subject numbering 40 of interest to gardeners. Apart from her work with Pan-American and with CIA Mexican de Aviation of Mexico City, she is official representative of horticulture of the University of Wisconsin.

Mrs. Howard McKenzie presided over the meeting, which opened with a discussion of landscaping the grounds around the bath house at City Park. Definite plans toward completion of this project will be developed this month, it was announced.

Mrs. Ralph Johnston, program chairman, presented new Year Books to the members. Mrs. Johnston reviewed the book and dedicated them to the memory of Mrs. Geneva Hill, a deceased member of the past year. The attractive book covers emphasize flowers.

Plans were made for a luncheon for Garden Club members and out of town guests to precede the program at the church on Friday. The luncheon to be at the home of Mrs. Left Miller. The program consisted of Mrs. Clara Ward illustrating "The Art of Corsage Making."

First Services In New Mulberry Church Sunday

The new building of the Mulberry Baptist church is near completion and the first service will be held Sunday morning at the eleven o'clock hour. The Sunday School will be held in the Isabella School building and get there in time to go to the church for worship and preaching. All members and friends are urged to be present for this first service. There has been a beautiful spirit of cooperation on the part of the church and her many friends and they have done a worthy job of it. Both men and women have worked by day and night to finish the job. The new story building is a credit to the community and county. It is certainly a time to give thanks as we approach Thanksgiving day.

Social At Verbena Baptist Church

There will be a social in the form of a dinner at the Verbena Baptist church, Saturday night, November 17. Members and friends of the church are invited to attend.

Rev. Bob Phillips, pastor of the church, will be present for the occasion.

NOTICE

The Fidelis Sunday School class of the First Baptist church, Clanton, will hold the annual package sale Monday night, Nov. 19th in the home of Mrs. Mary Lou Foshee.

All members are urged to please attend. The money raised at these sales goes for a most worthy cause. "The Orphanage." Mrs. Earl Parrish, Reporter.

Elementary P-T. A. Met Last Tuesday

The Clanton Elementary School PTA met on Tuesday, November 6, in the school lunchroom. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Howard McKenzie. After the business session, Mrs. Edwin Mullins presented the program.

This was a panel discussion on the subject "The Parent and the Citizen Child of Grammar School age." Presiding was Miss Louise Foshee. Taking part in the discussion were Mrs. W. C. Golden, Mrs. J. M. Timmerman, and Mrs. Russell A. Williams. This was a very interesting and helpful discussion.

After the program the home room mothers of the second grade served delicious cookies and coffee.

Chain Stores Honor FHA and FFA

A public relations affair—an appreciation dinner—was most graciously put on by the Clanton Chain Stores, honoring the Future Homemakers and Future Farmers of America of Chilton County. The stores and their hosts were as follows: Elmore's 5c, 10c, & $1.00 Store, Mr. J. C. Parr; A. & P. Tea Co., Mr. Cecil Ramsey, Thrift Store, Mr. Gerald Ramsey, Watson's, Mr. H. M. Lincoln, Yellow Front Store, Mr. M. T. Holliman; Firestone, Mr. Herman McCoy; David Lee, Mr. W. C. Dainel; Goodyear Service Store, Mr. J. S. Brasslett.

The boys and girls, school principals, vocational instructors, personnel from the State Department of Education, state officials and special local guests, join in expressing gratitude to the Chain Store Merchants for this gala affair.

The program of interpretation of the educational value of the two organizations, FHA and FFA, was ably rendered by members from Clanton, Isabella chapters. Responsive talks from Mr. J. B. Deramus, Mr. Otto Jones, Judge W. L. Parrish, Mr. Bob Taber, Mr. Grady Hefflin, Mr. S. E. Scott, Mr. R. C. Williams, Dr. H. M. Nix and Mr. Archie Ogburn certainly brought about a feeling of good will between the youth of today and their business world of tomorrow.

SENIOR II CLASS PLAY AT VERBENA

On Wednesday evening, November 21, at 8 p.m. the Senior II class of Verbena high school will present its class play "Orchids and Onions." Six young people and two older ones find it difficult to always tell the truth and nothing but the truth. Do you? Are you an orchid or an onion? Let Aunt Henrietta classify you. Alabama Birmingham Brown tries to conceal, not just one past but seven of them from his fiancée Honey Bee. Come and laugh with us.

The cast includes Mary Jo Cooper, Christine Blankenship, Annie Fern Edwards, Barbara Mullins, Hilda Brigance, Le Merle Patterson, Wayne Jones, Donald Fant, Ferrel Gray, Harold Pierce, J. E. Edwards and Buddy Bankston. Frances Pierce is stage manager and the other members of the class are the ushers.

The Glee Club of Verbena high school with Mrs. Stanley as director and Joan Scott as accompanist will present several Mexican songs and dances. The admission is only 25c and 50c.

STORES OPEN NEXT WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

Local stores will remain open next Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 21 to accommodate customers who will do their Thanksgiving shopping on that day.

All local stores, banks, etc., will be closed all day Thursday.

Community Service For Thanksgiving At Methodist

The Community Thanksgiving Service will be held Wednesday November 21, at 7:00 p.m. in the First Methodist church. Rev. J. E. McKinney will preside and Rev. R. E. Wilkins will deliver the Thanksgiving message.

The churches of Clanton extend a cordial invitation to everyone to attend this service. We have many reasons to be thankful and grateful to the Lord for all His blessings. The Methodist church should be filled to capacity with those anxious to offer worship and praise to the Lord for His goodness to us this year. The Pilgrims were big in their praise for the little which they had received. Let us not be little in our praise for God's great abundance. The special Thanksgiving offering will go to the Chilton County Christmas Chest.

Local Boards Will Induct 625 Men

Alabama Local Boards will induct 625 men according to reports coming out of the State Selective Service Office at Montgomery. Of this number 6 will be inducted from Chilton county.

Clanton Plays Verbena Here Friday Night

For the first time in the history of the two schools Chilton County high school of Clanton, and Verbena high school came up to their annual football game with Verbena favored to win by at least two touchdowns. Clanton has had an indifferent season having won two and lost five games, while Verbena has won her last nineteen games. When these two teams meet on Clanton's field Friday night Verbena will be shooting for her second perfect season, and her twentieth victory without a defeat.

Coach Spicer is working his boys hard after their game with Sylacauga last Friday night, which Sylacauga won 35 to 0. He is not expecting victory over Verbena but will be satisfied if his boys can hold the visitors to a reasonably close score. Verbena and Clanton did not meet in football last year, but it looks as if Verbena is in position to hang defeat number six on the Chilton Tigers for this season.

The game will be played at the high school field at 7:30.

OES To Serve Turkey Saturday

The Eastern Star Chapter of Plantersville, Ala., will serve Turkey plates to the public on Saturday, November 17th, in the building next to the Martin Grocery Store. Serving will start promptly at 11:30 a.m. Proceeds of this sale will go toward building a Masonic and Eastern Star Hall in Plantersville. Also on this date this chapter, will have their annual Christmas Bazaar. (Plates will be sold for $1.00 each and a nice meal is planned.) Come and help with this worthy cause. Tickets are being sold in advance, however, if you fail to contact some of the members and get your tickets come on an dyou will be served just the same.

No New Tax To Be Levied For New Courthouse

The County officials have had it called to their attention that certain people in the County are linking together the $25,000,000 Road Bond issue and the $300,000 Courthouse Bond issue. The officials are most anxious to keep the two proposals separate and apart as they are in no way connected with each other. Each should be decided on its own individual merit.

The County Officials also wish to call to the attention of the voters that the Courthouse Bond election is not in any way connected with the hospital tax that is being levied and collected for the first time this year. That tax was approved by a majority of the voters last year. There has been disappointment that the delay in the allocation of Federal funds has made it impossible for hospital facilities to be provided up to now.

The new Courthouse facilities are badly needed. Such facilities will save thousands of dollars in rent and also will provide space for all County operations in one building.

The County has been assured by several different financial people that the bonds will bear interest at 3 per cent or less when sold at competitive bidding. There is a good chance that the interest rate will be exactly one-half of the interest paid on the last bonds sold by the County. The rate of interest on those bonds was 5 per cent per year.

The money necessary to pay the new Courthouse Bonds is to be provided from present income and there will be no new taxes levied in any way whatsoever. The County Officials wish to again call to the attention of the voters that there cannot and will not be any additional taxes for the new Courthouse.

AAUW Holds Meeting At First Methodist

The Chilton County Chapter of the American Association of University Women held the November meeting in the parlor of the First Methodist Church in Clanton with Miss Syble Langston of Jemison presiding, in the absence of the president and first vice president.

Miss Elizabeth Barton read the associations constitution and by-laws.

Miss Jean Goggins told of the purpose of the library the chapter is working toward and gave plans for future work on the project.

Mrs. Henry Moya, of Clanton, a former member of the Denver, Colo., AAUW was guest of the evening.

Mrs. Morgan Reynolds and Miss Jean Goggins served as the entertainment committee.

The parlor was decorated with autumn leaves and vari-colored chrysanthemums. Light refreshments were served by the hostess.

Sylacauga Aggies Whitewash CCHS

Last Friday night on the local gridiron the Sylacauga Aggies licked the Chilton Tigers by a score of 35 to 0. In the first quarter Remson and Stanton made the first two touchdowns of the game and Garrigus and Remson ran the extra points across making the score at the end of the first quarter 14 to 0 in the Aggies favor.

The Tigers held their own fairly well in the first quarter of play but were just outclassed and could not seem to make any gain. By the end of the first half the Aggies had the Tigers going by a score of 21 to 0.

In the second half of play the Sylacauga boys kept the ball almost all of the 30 minutes play. The Tigers made little gain in the last half but they still fought on.

On the last 1:00 of the game Garrigus and Poe ran the ball across and they did make the extra points making the score at the end of the game 35 to 0 in favor of the visitors from Sylacauga.

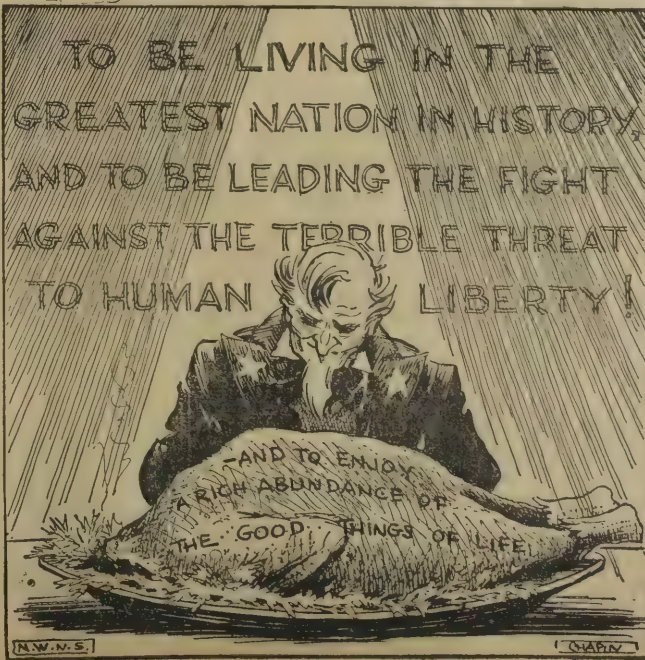

Although Clanton had poor luck and did not score in the game there were still some boys who played jump ball. Among the outstanding players for the Tigers were Joe Grooms, Joe Popwell and Nedford Williams.

The Tigers take on Verbena this Friday night and are hoping to show the 'Bena bunch a very interesting ball game.

W. M. U. CLINIC TO BE HELD AT LIBERTY HILL CHURCH

There will be a clinic at Liberty Hill church, Nov. 20th at 10 o'clock to aid all officers of a W. M. U. organization. Members will be welcome. All are to bring a covered dish to help with lunch. Unity Association is invited.

VISIT OUR SCHOOLS THIS WEEK

A great truth that has been accepted down through the years is: "To better know is to better understand, and to better understand is to better appreciate."

This is the principal purpose of American Education Week, which began last Sunday over our nation.

The American people must awaken to the fact that our Democratic way can be no stronger than our schools make it. Our most formidable bulwark against communism, or any other ideology lies in our schools. Today they are being attacked from many angles.

Why not find out what your school is doing? The best way to find out is to visit your school and find out for yourself. You will be benefitted. Your child will appreciate your visit. You can make your visit beneficial to the school. There is no better time to visit than during AEW. During this week school doors will be a little wider than usual, urging patrons and friends to visit. Let's give our kids a break and get around to visiting them "on the job." While we are there, let's try to get a little better acquainted with those people who have such a profound influence on the lives of our children—the teachers. Your expression of interest can be a great help to them.

A MEMORIAL

The idea of a memorial in Chilton County for the boys who died in the service of their country is a good one and one that we hope "catches on." It has been suggested the memorial be constructed in the form of a county auditorium and several of our more progressive citizens have already pledged money to this end.

But whatever form the suggested memorial may take, we owe it to the memory of our fallen heroes who gave their all, that we might live.

OUR DEFENSE BEGINS ON MAIN STREET

This was the message brought to the citizens of Chilton, County today by County Defense Bond Chairman, J. Archie Ogburn.

"The citizens of this county have put $25,112.50 in Defense Bonds during the Defense Bond Drive just ending," Mr. Ogburn said.

But the present Defense Bond Drive is just the beginning of our job. We must keep on buying Defense Bonds, putting our dollars to work to back the young United States and take their stand with the other countries of the United Nations who are willing to take a fighting stand to stop aggression around the world.

"Many citizens of our country are buying Defense Bonds on the Payroll Savings Plan at the place where they work.

"Business concerns that have cooperated with the national government in the Defense effort by making this plan available to their employees have not regretted it. Their workers have become systematic savers and they have done part of the job to keep world peace by proper preparedness.

Defense dollars are double duty dollars. They are rainy day dollars for backhome security and they are fighting dollars for world security.

"I cannot emphasize too strongly to every person in this county to take some part of his income each week or month and put that money into a Main Street backing of national defense."

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

Pete Jarman, Ambassador to Australia, was a visitor to Chilton County recently. It isn't often so distinguished a visitor as an Ambassador comes our way. We didn't get to see Pete personally, but some here did. He made his visit brief but nonetheless he took time out to call on a few of his old friends here.

Seems some of our citizens are up-in-arms about the county road machinery not working the drive ways to their homes. We talked to Representative Jim Platt Saturday, who introduced the Bill, and he stated the Bill contained no such clause. His intentions were, that driveways to homesteads could be worked by the county as heretofore, but no private roads could be built with county machinery or labor. We have not seen the Bill as passed by the legislature but that is the report from our Representative.

If we could just write paragraphs about things that are told us "off the record," we could certainly make this an interesting column.

Chick Fiquette has twin calves again. This time they're bulls. He has had three sets of twin calves this year. Chick and Olive, you know, breed thoroughbreds heretofore out at Restful Acres on Hinkle Road.

W. C. Erwin, local agent for the L. & N. R. Co. came in to visit with us last week. He was on his vacation and using it to make calls he never gets around to while on the job. We asked him about Eugene, his son, who used to be. Eugene is with the Alabama Adjusters Insurance Co. at Birmingham and is studying law. His dad says he is doing fine.

Our friend Roy Mahan says he hears the Republicans are running a "dark horse" this year. He thinks it is a good idea as they haven't had any luck running men for the past 16 years.

Roy telling us that reminds us that several years ago we run a story about a candidate and called him a "dark horse" because he announced at the last minute and was very little known. The fellow came into see us and asked that we retract the statement as he was afraid it would cost him votes—not knowing just what a dark horse was.

The schools of Chilton County are receiving a free copy of the Declaration of Independence for each classroom. This was reported this week by the U. S. Savings Bonds Division, Alabama State Office. It is highly fitting in this great time of danger that every school child be reminded of the great principles set forth in the Declaration of Independence for which our fathers fought and died.

Spring has sprung
And fall has fell,
Winter has come
And its cold as
We have ever seen.

Your Health

HERNIA

When some portion of the abdominal contents protrudes through a weak place in the abdominal wall a hernia or rupture develops. Hernias also occur in the groin and may be mild or serious.

Many factors are involved in the development of hernias. Primarily associated with a weak spot in the musculature of the body, particularly the mid-section, a protrusion will be marked with pain following undue strain. Sometimes they occur if the tissues fail to heal properly following an operation.

Hernias are identified as reducible or irreducible. They are reducible when the bulging mass slips back into the abdominal cavity, either when the patient lies down or under gentle pressure. They are irreducible when the protrusion cannot be replaced.

If the walls of the opening create a pressure on the protruding tissue, the hernia is said to be strangulated. Usually characterized by abdominal pain, nausea or vomiting, this type of hernia demands immediate surgical attention.

While surgery is the most effective treatment in hernia, recurrences have been reported, usually because the tissue fail heal normally, leaving the abdominal cavity weak and susceptible. This is particularly true of persons with excess weight. Lack of exercise is another cause for recurrence.

In uncomplicated hernias the injection treatment has been used to advantage. This procedure does not cause the hernia to disappear, as some people think, but rather causes the surrounding tissue to exude a substance which later solidifies into a heavy scar. Actually the scar forms a tough, fibrous membrane which closes the hernia opening, preventing further protrusions. In this treatment too recurrences are noted.

A person who suffers a hernia should not listen to the advice of well-meaning friends. He should seek competent medical advice immediately to determine the degree of involvement. An uncontrolled hernia can mean an unpleasant, painful death.

ALABAMA SPEED LAW

Last week I wrote on the subject, "Death on the highway," and after our State Governor Mr. Gordon Persons read the article, he notified me that he was doing something about a speed law in the state of Alabama. That a 60 Miles per hour speed limit would go into effect November 15th.

A. T. HICKMAN miles per hour for night driving for all passenger vehicles on all Alabama highways. Let us hope that this will cut down the appalling traffic fatality in this state. Too many people are being killed in automobile wrecks that possibly would not die if it were not for fast driving motorists. Let us all lighten up on our speed; drive more carefully, and try to prevent death on our highways. It is a known fact that most of the wrecks are caused from over speeding, fast driving, the 70 to 90 M. P. H. speed is too fast for any one to go on land. It might be safe in the air, but not on the earth.

Let us thank our Governor for this action, and may every man and woman abide by the law while driving his or her automobile or truck. The life we save might be our own. And too, let us demand that this law be enforced by our State Patrolmen. If any one should ignore and violate this speed law he should be arrested and made to pay a heavy fine, whether he be an Alabama man, or some one driving through our State. Over 5,000 traffic mishaps the first nine months of 1951 were reported to our State Highway Patrol; out of these came 136 persons killed. More have been added to this list during this month and last. What will it be by January 1st. If this rate goes on? Let us make Alabama a safe place to live, and a safe place to travel.

Thanks To Local Officers

Here I want to thank our local city police force for their efforts to make Clanton a safe place to drive. More and more cars and trucks are being parked on our city streets. This adds work to our officers. They must see that the driving around town is done right, and also the parking. It makes it easier to drive around the main streets when those long base trucks are parked on some off street, and not on the main driving streets in the shopping district. They reach too far out into the street to be parked in the shopping zones. Let us be careful, the life we save may be our own.

Emotional Problems

"FEW OF US are so well trained, so well developed that we never suffer from emotional problems. However, most of us have the capacity to solve those problems through force of character," says Dr. Harry J. Johnson, in his book Invitation to Health. Then he goes on to say:

"To be mentally well, one must accept and adhere to a standard of right conduct. Departure from an ethical principle does not insure a mental breakdown; nevertheless, to the extent that one departs from a right standard, to that extent he injures his mental health.

"If you consider the counsel of the ten commandments, it is easy to believe that anyone who accepts and lives up to them is a person in good mental health.

"Religion provides to a majority of the population a standard of conduct which, when accepted and lived up to, is conducive to keeping one in mental health. The fact that some mentally ill persons express their warped state in religious fancies of hysteria should in no way reflect against religion.

"If one is so emotionally disturbed that he can't help himself and finds it necessary to seek outside help, it is well to go to the advice of a physician trained in the field of psychiatry.

"A psychiatrist is, first of all, a physician who has been trained in the fundamentals of medical diagnosis and healing. He then studies to become a specialist in diseases of the mind. He is like medical specialists in other fields; like an ophthalmologist, who is a physician specializing in diseases of the eye; or like an otologist, who is a physician specializing in diseases of the ear. The point to remember is that, first of all, the psychiatrist is a physician. A battle he has been fighting these long years has been to persuade the public that mental disease exists before the breakdown stage. Today it is pretty well accepted that a person may be mentally ill but seldom so ill that he must be institutionalized."

This book is so full of good advice that I advise you to read it. You will derive benefit even though you may not be emotionally disturbed.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

In the late Capt. R. A. McClellan's early history booklet on Limestone County, he tells of Frank Nixon who was an exceedingly patriotic pioneer of the county. He had six sons and they were named Alexander the Great, John Coffee, Lorenzo Dow, General Jackson, George Washington, and James Monroe. And a grandson was called Liberty Independence Nixon.

During the Civil War, Clarke County was one of the principal salt producing regions within the Confederacy.

One of its three main salt works employed 600 men and 120 mule teams in running 30 furnaces. From these 30 furnaces came 600 bushels of salt each day. Hundreds of bushels were sent from the south Alabama mines each day into the interior of Mississippi and Georgia. The people of the Confederacy were suffering from such a salt shortage in the late years of the war that a bushel of salt brought from $2.50 to $7 in gold or from $10 to $40 in Confederate money.

Of Alabama's 67 counties, only 14 bear the names of Alabama men.

HEALTH QUESTIONS

Apoplexy (STROKE)

This is commonly called "Paralytic Stroke." It affects people of middle or old age, usually when blood pressure is too high or weak capillaries. The stroke often follows stooping. What happens is that a blood vessel in the brain is ruptured and blood is discharged into the brain. The patient falls into a coma, which may last for hours or even days.

The location of the ruptured vessel determines the part of the body which will be affected, as the different areas in the brain control different parts of the body. If the ruptured vessel is on the right side of the brain, the effect will be found on the right side of the face and the left side of the body. In most cases there is some paralysis and an impairment of speech.

The blood vessel walls are always under some strain due to the action of the heart in pumping blood through them. They contain tiny fibers which allow for elasticity when the quantity of blood coming through is increased from time to time. The stretching of the vessels is controlled by nerve fibers which cause the vessel walls to contract or expand and so exercise greater or less resistance to the flow of blood. Any interference with the action of those nerves makes a rupture possible if the blood pressure is abnormally increased. That is why apoplexy is so common in persons who have high blood pressure and suddenly stoop down. Stooping causes an extra supply of blood to go to the head and unless the nerve fibers produce a stretching of the vessel walls they can't stand the extra pressure and a rupture is the result.

Blood pressure can be readily reduced by Chiropractic adjustments, and apoplexy avoided. If it has already taken place, adjustments will hasten the absorption of the discharged blood, and in many cases effect a complete recovery from the paralysis.

SPEED ZONE LAWFUL SPEED CAR-BUS 60 TRUCK 40 NIGHT CAR-BUS 50 TRUCK 40

MOTORISTS TAKE NOTE!—This sign will soon greet motorists on all Alabama U. S. Highways, as a result of an order by Governor Gordon Persons setting the state's daytime speed limit at 60 miles an hour, and 50 miles an hour after dark. The new law becomes effective on Nov. 15, 1951, and came after a survey had disclosed that present speed laws are inadequate. The new law supersedes the law which restricted Alabama motorists only to "a careful and prudent speed not greater than is reasonable and proper." In announcing the new speed limit, which is effective on fourteen U. S. Highways in the state, the governor pointed to the fact that during the first nine months of 1951, a total of 136 persons were killed in 5,072 traffic accidents reported to the State Highway Patrol. This does not include traffic mishaps within city limits. Persons stressed that the new law has no effect on the law governing the speed of trucks, already set at 40 miles per hour, nor does it apply to sections of highway which already have speed limits fixed at speeds less than the limits listed in the new law.

Sergeant Douglas Glass of Wisconsin is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Glass; also visiting the Glasses for the week end were Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Robinson and baby of Montgomery and Mr. and Mrs. Claud Gilmore of Birmingham.

Mrs. Effie Robinson enjoyed a visit from her sister-in-law, Mrs. Nellie Jones, of Union Grove community for the past few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Alec Powell of Birmingham spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. John Powell.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. Felix Eiland who has been ill for some few days was admitted to the West End Baptist hospital Monday for an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Smith was called to Alabama City Saturday due to the illness of Mrs. Smith's mother, Mrs. Lella Martin. She is suffering from a stroke.

Rev. and Mrs. B. B. Burke enjoyed a visit from friends in Gadsden Sunday.

Rev. Burks et al. the Baptist convention which was held in Montgomery Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Thompson and Millie spent the week end in Birmingham visiting relatives.

Mr. Archie Ogburn and son, Johnnie, Mr. James Kincaid spent a few days in Biloxi, Miss., attending the Alabama Farm Bureau Convention. Mr. Ogburn has opened up an insurance office in Clanton located over the Western Auto Store.

Sign of a Nice Guy

Got so around those parts that every where a hunter went this fall, he came up against signs saying "PRIVATE PROPERTY, NO HUNTING, KEEP OFF." But not out at Happy Preston's place!

Happy's signs say "PRIVATE PROPERTY, GOOD HUNTING, BUT BE CAREFUL."

"Don't hunt myself," Happy says, "but there's plenty of game on the property. I tell the hunters where the best spots are—away from where I'm working and where nobody else is hunting. It works out pretty well all-around."

From where I sit, Happy has once again shown why he gets along with everyone and why everyone respects him. Happy's likes and dislikes might not be the same as his neighbors', but that doesn't stop him from understanding. When it comes to opinions on hunting, fishing, politics, ways of farming, or whether your favorite beverage is beer or cider, try to be like Happy and the chances are you'll be really happy!

JEMISON NEWS

MRS. GEORGE NAIISH

Jemison FFA Chapter and Thorshy American Legion to Help Underprivileged Children.

The Jemison FFA Chapter and the Thorshy American Legion have worked out a plan to help the underprivileged children of Clanton County enjoy this Christmas more than ever before. The Legion members are to gather all the used toys around the Thorshy and Jemison areas and bring them in to the Jemison vocational agriculture building, here the Jemison FFA members take over and repair or rebuild the toys; repaint them just like new and turn them over to the Clanton County Christmas Chest for distribution.

Last year the Jemison FFA sponsored a similar program and repaired quite a number of toys but with the help of the Legion they expect to help many more children this year.

Junior G. A.'s Meet With Mrs. Carroll

Monday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock the Junior G. A.'s met at the home of Mrs. Homer Carroll. Mrs. Carroll assisted Miss Harvey, the Counselor. The devotional was given by Annie Cofer. The group sang their hymn, "We've a story to tell to the Nations." The program was in the nature of a football game. The aim: To "touch down" deep into junior girls' hearts as they see God still at work in China and Korea in spite of all the opposing teams. It takes teamwork to win in God's work and G. A.'s must work to hold that line. The teams that are opposing are Christian work from China and Communists from China. Elaine Dyer, representing Dr. Rankin in China and what can still be done. Doris Marie Cofer, as Dr. Lee tells of the need for more workers. Annie Sue Cofer announces that Dr. N. A. Bryan, a medical missionary in China for many years, will go to Korea to assist in work there. In Formosa, the Communist team used unfair play, but the Christian team has not lost their spirit. Sponsor, Mrs. Carroll, says "Let us keep ourselves in good condition for God's work."

Refreshments were served to six members.

Baptist W. M. S. News
The Women's Missionary Society circles of the First Baptist church of Clanton met in the homes on Monday, Oct. 12.

This month's circles program centered in our Royal Ambassador boys. The ladies brought most interesting and encouraging articles on the work of R. A.'s and their leaders at home and abroad.

Circle one met in the home of Mrs. George Jesters using for their theme, "Bringing up a child the way he should go and he will not depart from it." R. A. Declaration and Commission, "R. A. Camp and what R. A. means to the boys," was told by Clarke Hutchinson. "What R. A. means to the mothers" was given as follows: "In our country," by Mrs. Jesters; "In Japan," by Mrs. Cleo Cox; "In Brazil," by Mrs. R. K. Kirkpatrick.

After the business session the hostesses served coffee and cake to the following, Mesdames E. L. Mullins, W. J. Duke, A. K. Corbett, J. B. Sessions, Joe Gray, Andy Jones, Russell Williams, Marion Wood, Billy Callen and those on the program.

Mrs. M. C. Hamilton was hostess to circle two, when Mrs. Dewey Eubanks was in charge of the program taken from the Royal Service Magazine, and the Home Mission. Prayer by Mrs. Eubanks.

Mrs. Willie Bean, Mrs. W. J. Billingsley and Mrs. J. L. Teel brought interesting articles on the R. A. boys. Mrs. W. C. Maddox, chairman, presided at the business period. At this time Thanksgiving box was planned to be given to a shut-in on Thanksgiving Day.

Light refreshments were served to the ladies who were, Mesdames W. C. Maddox, Russell Lewis, F. H. Spicer, G. C. Walker, C. F. Woodfin, Horseley White, Joe Moore, John McKee, W. C. Dickinson, Flen Higgins, Miss Lula Raspberry, and those on the program.

The circles Christmas party will meet with Mrs. Maddox in the home of her mother, Mrs. Dewey Rockett. Circle chairman, Mrs. Harold Lawrence presided when the circles met in the home of Mrs. Referee Lineberry.

The devotional on Training Young Men was given by Mrs. Reddie Taylor.

Mrs. J. R. Mullins brought a most interesting article on "Royal Ambassadors makes a big Difference."

Prayer was offered by Mrs. Mullins. After the business was discussed, the hostess served a delicious salad plate to those mentioned and also Mrs. T. L. McKee, Mrs. C. C. Gay, Mrs. Howard McKenzie and Mrs. Lee Robinson.

Mrs. B. E. Reeves conducted the devotional when circle four met in the home of Mrs. A. L. Robinson. Mrs. Reeves used as her theme "A Road Map to a Christian World."

Those taking part on the program for Royal Ambassadors were Mrs. F. N. Scott, Mrs. Luther Mims and Mrs. Reeves.

Circle chairman, Mrs. Luther Mims was in charge of the business hour. Refreshments were served to the following members, Mesdames Isabelle Rockett, D. L. Glass, J. R. Hardy, Wilson Maddox, H. A. Harris, and ladies having parts on the program.

The Royal Ambassadors and their work were further studied when circle five met in the home of Mrs. J. D. Bell, with Mrs. Kemp bringing the devotional, reading Proverbs 22-6-45.

Mrs. Jim Blair and Mrs. R. R. Sutley brought very interesting and informative talks on our R. A. boys.

A Thanksgiving basket for a shut-in was planned.

The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. E. E. Upchurch.

Cake and coffee was served at the social hour. Present were Mesdames J. E. Gowan, Charles Patterson, Lester Jones, Upchurch, Sutley and Blair.

Twentieth Anniversary Observed.

The twentieth anniversary of the Community prayer meetings was observed on Wednesday of last week at a spend-the-day in the home of Mrs. W. M. Poole.

Fall flowers and potted house plants were used to decorate the home.

Clanton ladies who had attended the meetings at times during these twenty years and others were invited to celebrate this joyous occasion.

Mrs. Poole and Mrs. O. B. DeLoach were the only charter members who had attended each meeting during this time. The ladies asked for a special hymn to be played over radio station WKLF in memory of the deceased members of the group who were, Mrs. Fannie Broadhead, Mrs. Joe Askins, Mrs. A. C. Smith, Mrs. Leila Williams, Mrs. Lucy Littlejohn, Miss Martha Riggins, Mrs. Elijah Wyatt, Mrs. Liza Jones, Mrs. Newt Kicker, Mrs. Donie Jones, Mrs. Tom Marcus, Mrs. Lucy Dunlap. A most delicious dinner was served by the members.

The day was spent with group singing of old and new hymns, repeating and reading Bible scriptures and prayers. A most enjoyable time was had by the twenty eight ladies present.

Coterie Club Meets

Mrs. A. L. Farley was hostess to members of the Coterie Club and invited guests on Thursday afternoon at her lovely home on Lay Dam road.

Chrysanthemums of various autumn hues were used to adorn the home.

Refreshments were served in the form of a tea with the club president, Mrs. A. S. Prince at the silver coffee service. The tea table featured an exquisite linen cut-work cloth, with a center piece of white chrysanthemums flanked by silver candelabra holding white tapers.

Invited guests were Mrs. J. C. Page, Mrs. J. Watts Moore, Mrs. M. C. Hamilton, Mrs. W. C. Dickinson and Mrs. Marion Woods.

G. A. Meeting

On Friday afternoon of last week, thirty girls and their leaders of the girls Auxiliary of the First Baptist church, Clanton, met in the home of their president, Elizabeth Mims, who called the meeting to order.

The girls repeated the G. A. Watch word, the Star Ideals and Allegiance and sang the G. A. Hymn. The opening prayer was offered by Hilda Cox. For sometime the girls had been searching for a name for their auxiliary. At this meeting the name, "Doreen Owens Auxiliary" was adopted. This honoring Mrs. Owens, the wife of a former pastor of our church.

Elaine R.ogue brought the devotional and planned a very interesting program on "Difficulties to Christian Work in China." "How we can keep Ourselves in Shape Daily for God's Christian work in the Future" was given by the following girls, Zane Hogue, Jane Jesters, Linda Miller, Caroline Dickinson, Virginia Brown, Dot Hogue, Marion Golden, Sharon Hubert and Clair Reece Mullins.

The meeting was dismissed with Mizpah benediction.

The hostess, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Luther Mims, served delicious refreshments accentuating the G. A. colors of green and white.

We are happy to report that our auxiliary has out grown its self and has been divided into two groups. Leaders of group one are Mrs. George Jesters and Mrs. R. R. Sutley; group two leaders are Mrs. W. C. Dickinson and Mrs. Luther Mims.

Two years after the epidemic, Blakely became a dangerous commercial rival of Mobile for a time. But a financial depression eventually drove the town's inhabitants across the bay, and Blakely was left a ghost town.

VOTE...

YES! AMENDMENT NO. 1

Your "YES" Vote
Dec. 11 Means
$50,000,000 to Modernize Our Road System...

Without New Taxes!

Every 10 hours someone in Alabama loses his life as result of traffic accidents. Last year 833 people lost their lives and in 1951 the toll will be EVEN GREATER! With each passing 18 minutes, someone in Alabama is injured in an automobile accident.

SOMETHING MUST BE DONE ABOUT IT!—and on Dec. 11 Alabama voters will have an opportunity to DO SOMETHING about our state's tragic traffic toll. Our YES vote Dec. 11 on AMENDMENT No. 1 will authorize Alabama to issue $25,000,000 in bonds. An equal amount of money will be provided Alabama by the Federal Government, giving us $50,000,000 to modernize our road system . . . to build more roads and safer roads.

Your YES vote on AMENDMENT No. 1 is a vote for saving lives. Your YES vote will insure that Alabama's Farm-to-Market Road program will continue. Your YES vote will help both agriculture and industry prosper in Alabama.

Be sure to vote and vote "YES" Dec. 11.

Good Cattle Breeding Pays Off For Chelsea Thrash

Last April Chelsea Thrash of the Union Grove Community decided to sell milk to Carnation Company. He realized that he had a lot of land that was not suited to row crops. By planting this land to sericea he felt that through milk sales he could put this land to work. Chelsea started milking three cows. Since last April, he has increased his herd to eight milkers. At the present his milk check runs $175.00 to $185.00 per month.

All of the cows in the herd are being bred to bulls whose dam produced over 10,000 pounds of milk per year. The best heifer calves are being saved for herd replacement. Chelsea realizes that it is not the number of cows he milks that determines the size of the milk check, but the amount of milk that he cows produce. As Chelsea stated, "I have two cows that produce more milk than any other four that I milk." As the production per cow increases through better breeding, the net income from milk will also increase.

When asked about his future plans, he made this statement, "I plan to improve my pasture, milk more cows and cut cotton down to four acres, and use only the best cotton land I have. I don't think I can beat milk as a steady source of income."

News Of Local Servicemen- Where They Are And How They Are

SOLDIERS:
Lieutenant Mashburn gave the following example for addressing the men:
Private John Doe, 181137796
Company A 155th Regiment
31st Infantry Division
Fort Jackson, S. C.

Pvt. Thomas E. Mims, son of Lewis Mims, 34, 2nd Ave. North, Clanton, Ala., who was home on leave several weeks ago is now taking a Medical Technicians course at the Medical Field Service School, Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

Pvt. Jimmie D. Fuller, Rt. 1, Equality, Ala., is serving with the 7th Infantry Division in the front lines of Korea. Fuller, a rifleman with the 32nd "Queen's Own" Infantry Regiment, received his basic training at Camp Chat-fee, Ark. Prior to entering the Army, the 19-year-old Alabamian attended Rockford High School.

Pvt. Simpson Varner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clemmie Varner, Clanton, Ala., is serving with the 7th Infantry Division in the front lines of Korea. Varner, who entered the Army in March, 1951, is an ammunition bearer in the 7th Division's 31st Infantry "polar bear" Regiment. He was trained at Camp Roberts, Calif.

Pfc. Emmet J. Carter, Rt. 3, Clanton, Ala., has been awarded the Combat Infantryman Badge, a symbol of close quarter fighting with the enemy, while serving with the 1st Cavalry Division in Korea.

Thomas C. Robbins, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gus C. Robbins of Box 580, Clanton, Ala., was recently advanced to the rate of electronic technician, third class. He is serving on board the destroyer escort USS Walker with the Pacific Fleet. Robbins, who entered the Naval service in Aug. 1949, received his recruit training at the U. S. Naval Training Center, San Diego.

Second Lt. John L. Hayman, Jr., son of Mr. John Hayman, Jemison, Ala., recently began study in Meteorology at New York University under a program sponsored by the USAF Institute of Technology. The Institute is located at Wright-Patterson AF Base, Dayton, Ohio.

Lt. Hayman is a former student at University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa.

Pfc. Warren D. Culp, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Culp, 1612, 2nd Ave. N., Clanton, Ala., recently reported to Keesler Air Force Base to begin training in the Electronics Fundamentals School, and integral part of the "Electronics Training Center of the World" located only a few hundred feet north of the Gulf of Mexico, at Biloxi, Miss.

Robert B. B. Gathery, Jr., seaman, USN, of Verbena, Ala., is serving aboard the rocket-firing landing ship USS 409 operating with the UN blockading and escort force in the Far East. The 409 recently took part in a night rocket raid against Communist held Fiko Bay in the Wonsan sector. Under the cover of darkness the ship slipped into the harbor and completely saturated its target in less than 5 minutes. It was able to withdraw to safety before the Communist shore batteries could return the fire.

Pfc. William O. DeLoach, son of Mrs. Donia DeLoach of Clanton, Ala., Rt. 2, is training as an Air Force Technician at the USAF Technical School at Warren Air Force Base, Wyoming.

Cpl. Barney L. Henderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Henderson, Rt. 2, Clanton, Ala., recently graduated from the light and heavy weapons leaders course at the Infantry School.

Herman E. Simmons, Rt. 4, Clanton, Ala., has recently been promoted to the grade of Sergeant while serving with the 7th Cavalry Regiment, a part of the 1st Division.

Pfc. Frank D. Donovan, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Donovan, Clanton, Ala., Rt. 5, reported several weeks ago to Chanute Air Force Base, Rantoul, Ill., for Flight Engineer Course.

Although it is estimated that 800 Creeks perished in the battle of Horseshoe Bend, March 29, 1814, Gen. Andrew Jackson had only 26 militiamen killed and 107 wounded. Among the wounded was none other than the man who was later to shape the early destinies of the Lone Star State—Sam Houston. Houston was wounded while leading an attack on a Red Stick fortification during the heat of battle.

MR. JAMES F. BULLARD

Mr. James F. Bullard, age 77, of Verbena, Ala., Rt. 1, died at his home at 1:20 a.m., Nov. 8. Funeral services were held at Chesnut Creek at 2:30 Nov. 9, conducted by Rev. Edd Wilkins. Interment was in the church cemetery.

Surviving are three sons, B. F. Bullard, Attalla, Ala.; J. E. Bullard, Verbena, Ala.; and C. S. Bullard of Verbena; 7 daughters, Mrs. Mary Hart, Wetumpka, Mrs. Viola Driver, Verbena, Mrs. Daisy Dennis, Clanton, Mrs. Beedie Davis, Verbena, Mrs. Lillie Lewis, Verbena, Mrs. Inez Hudman, Attalla, and Mrs. Margie Hudman, Attalla; one half brother, Bud Bradley, Clanton, Ala.; one sister, Mrs. Dolie Hawken of Birmingham; 24 grand children and 6 great grand children.

Sons-in-law served as pallbearers, and grand daughters served as flower girls. Spigener Funeral Home in charge.

Pleasant Hill was named originally for a slave dealer who built one of the first houses in the region. Some time later, it became the hangout of so many criminals and outcasts that it came to be called Fort Rascal. The worst of these rough characters eventually left town, and the little village resumed its original name.

MISS ELLEN HULL

Miss Ellen Hull, age 84, of Verbena died on Nov. 12 at 3:15 a.m. Funeral services were held at Providence in Coosa County, on Nov. 13 at 11:00 a.m. conducted by Rev. Horace Bonnett.

Survivors are nephews and nieces: Nephews: O. L. Howard, Verbena, T. L. Howard, Grove Hill; J. W. Howard, Brundage; and H. L. Howard, Birmingham. Nieces are Mrs. J. M. Mims, Birmingham; Miss Annie B. Howard, and Miss Edna Howard of Verbena; Mrs. T. J. Mims of Verbena.

Nephews and great nephews served as pallbearers. Spigener Funeral Home was in charge.

Only crumbled ruins mark the site of the once proud little settlement of Blakely, across the bay from Mobile. The village was incorporated in 1815, and the town had grown to 3,000 inhabitants a decade and a half later, in spite of being struck by a yellow fever epidemic in 1820.

Welcome has to be More Than a Sign

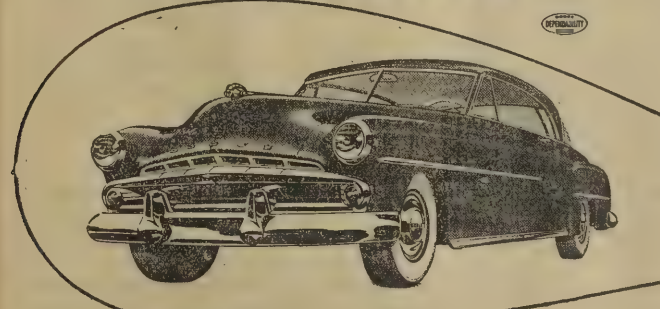

"WELCOME" is an essential ingredient in successful industrial development—that kind of welcome that makes itself known by the tone of the voice, the sparkle of the eye and the warmth of the handclasp. The friendly attitude of welcome on the part of a community often overcomes minor shortcomings in other respects.

A wholehearted welcome, plus physical necessities such as a satisfactory site, transportation, adequate help and raw materials, plus timeliness, make an almost unbeatable combination in industrial development work.

Many Alabama towns have these qualities. Their chambers of commerce and other groups, and our Industrial Development Division, working in cooperation with them, try to bring about that happy meeting of the right man representing the right industry at the right time in the right place to bring about still further industrial development of Alabama.

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at the Regular Session 1951, ordered an election to be held by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama which said amendment is herein set out, and ordered that said election be held on the first Tuesday following the expiration of three months after the adjournment of the session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed; and

WHEREAS, the first Tuesday following the expiration of three months after the adjournment of the session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed will

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law, and by the provisions of the act submitting the amendment, to be given by a proclamation of the Governor to be published in each county in the State of Alabama

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Gordon Persons, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday, the 11th day of December 1951, an election will be held at the several polling "Sections 273, 274 and 276, Article XV, Constitution of Alabama, are hereby amended to read as follows:

"§273. The Legislature, in providing for the organization, equipment, and discipline of the State Militia, shall conform as nearly as practicable to the requirements of the Federal Government in the defense of the United States, and the laws of the United States, governing the armed forces thereof, and shall observe the principles of efficiency and economy pertaining to the State military forces, and shall provide for the maintenance of the State Militia in the State Military Department, which shall be headed by The Adjutant General, and shall be subject to the direct orders of the Commander-in-Chief.

"§274. Officers of the State military forces shall be appointed, and shall be subject to removal, by the Governor, and shall be subject to compulsory retirement as such, solely, on the basis of military performance, character, and conduct, and shall be under the department of Defense regulations and military law, and shall be insured by the military law of the State against the loss of their position.

"The Constitution to the contrary notwithstanding. The qualifications of personnel of the Federal Bureau of Investigation Guard shall be as prescribed in national regulations and policies of the United States Government."

"§276. The Governor shall, with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint The Adjutant General and all general officers." The Governor shall appoint his own staff, as may be provided by law."

If further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon Tuesday the 11th day of December 1951, in the State of Alabama, amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901, be given by publishing the same once a week, for four successive weeks next preceding the day of the election, December 1951, in each county in the State of Alabama in a newspaper published

Tuesday, the 11th day of December 1951, election will be held at the several polling places in the county of Fayette, Alabama, for the purpose of electing a member of the board of commissioners of the State of Alabama by law, upon the basis of the constitution and the constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901.

"In addition to all taxes now or hereafter authorized by the constitution and Laws of Alabama, Fayette County shall have the power to levy and collect a tax on the assessed value of the land on each one hundred dollars worth of taxable property in the county for the purpose of the proceeds of which shall be used exclusively for public school purposes; and that any and all taxes so levied thereon shall have been first submitted to the vote of the qualified electors of the county and voted for by a majority of three voting at such election. If the proposition is carried by a majority in an election, subsequent elections thereon may be held at any time. The tax, if carried, shall be levied for a term of twenty-five years. The elections proposed shall be held, shall be conducted, paid for, and governed otherwise in the manner provided for an election of any other public officer or elected officer of the county."

Amendment 111, Article XIX of the Constitution of Alabama, Chapter 19, Section 1, of the Acts of 1901, Chapter 19, Title 52, Code of Alabama, 1940. The collection of the tax and the use of the proceeds shall also be governed by the applicable provisions of Article 7, Chapter 10, Title 52, Code of Alabama, 1940.

I further direct and proclaim that notice of this election upon Tuesday the 11th day of August 1951, shall be given by the amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama, and that the election shall be held on the same date as a week for four successive weeks next preceding Tuesday the 11th day of August 1951, and that the election of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published said county.

FOR THIS WE GIVE THANKS

FATHER, WE THANK THEE

We thank Thee, dear God, on this Thanksgiving season for the privilege of living in your world. To name our many, many blessings would be impossible, but in our humble way we take this opportunity to say—we thank Thee. From the beautiful world about us at this season of the year we get an inspiration of peace and contentment and deeply instilled within us is the feeling that only your presence could make it so. Forgive the sins I have confessed to Thee. Forgive the secret sins I do not see. Watch me, guide me, and my keeper be, Dear Lord, Amen.

Why does everyone think that Gen. Eisenhower would make a good president of the United States just because he has made a good soldier?

* * * * *

WHY WE NEED TO PASS AMENDMENT NO. 6

1. The present division of the 35 senators is grossly unfair.
2. The present division tends to set up government by Black Belt bloc.
3. There is no prospect of real reapportionment in our generation as long as the present division exists.
4. 67 Senators will give North Alabama and South Alabama an even break in the Senate.
5. The National system in the Senate gives stability to government and it should promote stability in the State.
6. 67 Senators would give badly needed experience to the Senate.
7. The 1901 representation was a sell out to the Black Belt in return for honest elections.

1. Why is the present division unfair?

12 Counties have one senator.

28 counties have 1-2 a senator.

27 counties have 1-3 a senator.

5 Black Belt counties, ranging in population from 18,000 to 55,000 each have a full senator while Walker county with 63,000 has only 1-3 of a senator. Every Black Belt county has either a full time senator or 1-2 while 27 counties in North and South Alabama with much more population have 1-3 a senator. 10 Black Belt counties with 18 Representatives and 8 senators cast less votes in the last governor's race than did Walker Cullman and Colbert, which have 4 Representatives and 1 Senator (1-3 each).

The counties in the North half of the State cast 70% of the vote of the State while those in the South half cast 30% but the South half has 20 Senators while the North half has only 15.

It is mathematically possible for 18 Senators (a majority) representing 27 counties and less than 1-3 of the population to block legislation supported by the governor and 17 senators representing 40 counties and over 2-3 of the people.

North Alabama is not alone in not being fairly represented in the Senate. Mobile is the only county South of the Black Belt with a full Senator. Henry and Houston, Dale and Geneva share one, while the following counties have only 1-3 of a Senator: Pike, Crenshaw and Coffee, Butler, Conecuh and Covington, Monroe, Escambia and Baldwin, Choctaw, Clarke and Washington. The people of these 16 counties have 6 Senators to 12 Senators for the Black Belt counties.

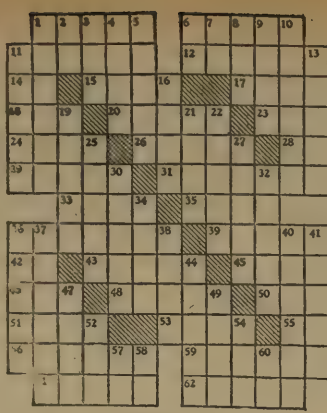

These are only a few of the inequities. You could cite many more.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

One thing for which we can be thankful on Thanksgiving. We didn't get what we deserve.

We received a very sweet letter this week from Mrs. Silas Oden of Mobile, Alabama. "Please put me on your mailing list, as we are Chiltonians, too, and would like to hear from home. Even though we have been in Mobile for the past seven years, Chilton County is still dear to us. Please express our regards to all, our wishes and prayers are in your behalf. Signed Mrs. Silas Oden."

Jim Brasseitt, that good looking manager at the Goodyear Service Store, wants you to make his store your Christmas Headquarters. Besides all kinds of toys and sporting goods they have oodles of worthwhile Christmas presents such as electric and gas appliances, automobile accessories, etc.

Herbert Linton, manager at Watsons, says the sale advertised in Chilton County News last week was the biggest and most successful he has ever had. It should have been. He offers the biggest and best bargains you have ever seen.

The gas man knocked on the back door. "Lady is this the place that wanted gas installations?" "So you've come at last," she snapped. "I called you a week ago." "Sorry," said the gas man. "Wrong house. The party I'm hunting called us last month."

One of our friends down the street said when he asked his boss for a raise he acted just like a lamb. He said baa.

What school teacher went to a meeting at the school and sat for over an hour the other week and it dawned on her that the meeting was the next day? And what husband suggested that we run the article so that people could know what he had to put up with? Ha, ha.

We really got some of our readers stirred up about the Wednesday afternoon closing. We stated last week that stores would stay open Wednesday afternoon and close all day Thursday for Thanksgiving. Well, the part about closing all day Thursday for Thanksgiving was alright but we misunderstood about the Wednesday afternoon closing. Only the grocery stores, it seems, will remain open Wednesday afternoon. All other places of business with the exception of the usual seven day a week businesses, will close as per usual Wednesday at noon.

This little item on "Socialism" was taken from Musings & Ramblings: They say you'll have no worries over doctor bills and such; They promise homes for everyone that won't cost very much. They promise you security from oracles to the grave.

But ask them how they'll do it without making you a slave. They promise jobs for everyone, but won't give you your pick. Nor do they say where you'll wind up if you decide to kick.

They'll divide the nation's wealth and give each one a share. What happens when the dough is gone? Why, they don't even care! They'll run the factories and banks, and all the stores and trains; And promise you a million other so-called "social gains."

There is no limit to the things they promise will be free. Free food, free clothes, free everything—excepting you and me.

HEALTH QUESTIONS

Dr. Marshall L. Ware
Chiropractor

What Is Bronchitis?

Bronchitis is an inflammation of the lining of the bronchial tubes. It may be acute or chronic. If acute there is a slight chilliness and fever. The throat is sore; there is hoarseness with a sensation of tightness in the chest. There is at first a dry cough, which becomes loose and is then accompanied by profuse expectoration. Breathing becomes quick and shallow and the breathing sounds are harsh. Bronchitis often develops into pneumonia.

When the chronic form is present it follows the acute form, and the symptoms are less severe but fail to clear up, so that the patient is continually troubled with cough, especially on rising in the morning, and digestion may be impaired. If the disease is allowed to continue its effects become far reaching, and the general health of the patient suffers. Bronchitis is a common complaint, especially in winter, when the sudden changes of temperature, from heated buildings to cold air outside serve to irritate the lining of the bronchial tubes. If the body is in a good state of health these changes of temperature are easily withstood. It is only when there is some weakness in the lining of the air passages that bronchitis develops.

To treat this disease with cough mixtures or any other form of drugs only suppresses the inflammation and adds drug poisons to the body, throwing more work upon the kidneys. Chiropractors have cared for many cases of bronchitis and find that acute bronchitis cases respond quickly, while the chronic cases require longer adjustments, because there is always in chronic cases more tissue destruction to overcome. By releasing pressure upon the nerves supplying the bronchial tubes, Chiropractic enables the nerve force to get through and restoration of health results as soon as the inflammation is taken out. This being so, why try everything else first?

THANKSGIVING TO GOD

A. T. HICKMAN

There are several outstanding holidays and days of festivity held during the year in the United States, but none seems to have the real spirit of worship in them just like Thanksgiving. It is because it is so traditionally American. For on this day our minds go back to the early part of the 17th century. About 1621 when the earliest harvest Thanksgiving in America was held by the Pilgrim Fathers at old Plymouth. Such days of thanksgiving was repeated during the 17th century. Congress recommended days of thanksgiving annually during the Revolution, and in 1784 one was held for the return of peace; again it happened in 1815 under President Madison. Washington appointed such a day back in 1789 after the adoption of the Constitution; and again in 1795 for the general benefits and welfare of the nation. Since 1863 our day of Thanksgiving has been held the last Thursday in November, or thereabout. It was during President Roosevelt's administration that the 4th Thursday in November was designated for our annual Thanksgiving Day.

On this Thanksgiving the American people have lots to be thankful for. Of course, many sad things have taken place in the lives of many people; but when we stop to think about it, things could be much worse. Our national situation could be much worse than what it is. Let us be thankful that we are not in an all-out war. Let us be thankful that our nation is not facing a shortage of food. The outlook is that there is plenty of food in America to feed every one of us, and some to spare. We still have our churches, and our freedom of worship. We still have our free enterprise system in America. We still have free speech and free press in America. We still have our institutions of free education for every boy and girl in America. We still have God fearing, and God serving fathers and mothers in America. By no means is the whole nation gone to the devil. At this moment there is a spirit of revival of religion in this country. Let us be thankful to God for the freedom we have, which has been handed down to us by our forefathers; and let us pledge ourselves to God that we will live in such a way that He can and will help us to keep this freedom. O God, we thank Thee for America, the greatest nation in all the world. We thank Thee for our religion of Christianity which is the only religion that provides everything for life and godliness in this life, and the world to come.

Serenity, Courage, Wisdom

ONE DAY as Louis D. Donaldson, Bloomingdale, Ohio, was driving to his home over icy roads, he made the most disastrous move of his career. The car skidded and he suddenly jammed on his brakes!

The next thing he knew, the next morning, he was in the hospital. When the doctor came in a few hours later he asked if he could have his clothes and go home. Said the doctor, "Yes, you can—in about six weeks. You have a fractured skull and you must stay right where you are, flat on your back—and be quiet."

Flat on his back for six weeks! He certainly would not. He couldn't do it; his business would be gone; he would be ruined. He explained the situation to the doctor, who was adamant. He pleaded, threatened, raved. All to no avail! He complained to his wife. She decided against him. "Lou," she said, patiently, "you must do what the doctor says."

"To heck with the doctor. I am going home."

But when he made an effort to move, he didn't feel like carrying out his resolve. He looked in the mirror, saw blackened eyes, almost closed; his nose was swollen to the size of a football; his head was covered with gauze and mercurchrome. What a mess! And it all had happened in one unguarded moment!

That evening his wife brought him something to read. He didn't feel like reading long, but one thing he read stuck; just a few lines transformed his thinking and aided his recovery: "God grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change; the courage to change the things I can; and the wisdom to know the difference."

Wonderful lines! Lines that not only calmed his mind for the time being, but lines that have helped him in all the time that has passed since that memorable day.

Your Health PAINFUL FEET

Style plays an important part in the appearance of the feet, but frequently blind adherence to the dictates of fashion is responsible for conditions causing painful feet. Women especially are more attentive to the neat, trim shoe that suggests daintiness or smartness than they are to the foot inside the shoe.

Since arches do not usually "fall" or "break of their own accord, it is reasonable to assume that external irritation is responsible. Many of the conditions causing such painful feet can be attributed to improperly fitting shoes or stockings.

On the other hand, arthritis frequently causes painful feet especially in older persons. Disturbances of the circulation may be responsible for foot pains and nerve inflammations. Troublesome infection in the teeth, nasal sinuses and digestive tract may well be considered as intrarenal derangements associated with some of these foot disorders.

People who stand long hours are likely to be disturbed by painful feet due to continuous strain on the arches. In such cases the pain is the result of rigidity of the tissues and of spasm of the muscles in their effort to overcome the strain.

Since feet carry the weight of the body, posture plays an important part in the care of the feet. Standing with the feet pointed outward, instead of forward, causes undue strain on the ligaments connecting the foot bones, especially on the inner side of the long arches. The resulting slight ache often grows to severe pain.

Since rest in bed is economic impossibility in many instances, the proper padding of the shoes to change the strain may be comforting is supervised by a specialist.

MISS RUTH HICKS

Earl Pickering has been transferred from DePaul City Hospital, Tuscaloosa, Ala., to the Veterans' Hospital, Montgomery. We wish for him a speedy recovery.

Mrs. James Lewis of Birmingham was Monday night supper with Mrs. Hulton Duncan and family in Birmingham.

Jim W. Gay is spending several days with Mr. and Mrs. Clifford and family in Birmingham.

With regret your reporter missed talking with Mrs. Lucy Parnell when she called by last week. Parnell is residing in Birmingham and her many relatives and friends are always glad to welcome her home. Mrs. Parnell has been visiting the Maplesville, Stanton, Plantersville and Selma communities for several days. She will visit her son, James, in Marion, Ala., and her mother, Mrs. Helen Sykes (Elizabeth) in Mobile, Ala., before returning home.

A nice package was received from Mrs. May Harris and her daughter, Nellie Snow from Baton Rouge, La. This package was a Christmas refreshment set made by Mrs. Harris and Nellie Snow. This set sent to the Christmas Bazaar Saturday in Plantersville by the Harris and her daughter lived in Plantersville for a number of years and still call this home. Their address is 8442 Louisiana Avenue. I am sure many of their friends would drop them a card or letter telling them of happenings from their home and other communities. Miss Gregory Grothers from Wilton, N.C., also sent two beautiful corsages to be sold at the Eastern Star Bazaar. "Edith" feels that this section is home to her many relatives in this and adjoining communities.

Mrs. and Mrs. Clyde Moore, of Wetumpka, Ala., visited their brother Mr. Frank Reynolds Sunday.

Miss Jean Wilcox, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dadey Wilcox (Eyr Reynolds) of Mobile, Ala., will be married at the Dauphin Way Baptist church, Wednesday, November 21st at 4:30 p.m.

Your reporter received an invitation to this wedding.

The Plantersville Eastern Star Turkey dinner and Christmas bazaar brought several out of town visitors. Mrs. Winifred Fulford, Worthy Matron of Clanton, Ala., Mr. and Mrs. Martin Jones (Ruth Pickering) of Selma, Ala., and Mr. John J. Hicks, of Maplesville, Ala., Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Eaves of Stanton, Ala., Mr. and Mrs. George Walker of Selma, Ala., Mrs. Thelma Friday Stoudenmire of Gadsden, Ala., and others. This day was a very successful one for this chapter and they have been commended for the nice plate they served that day.

Mrs. Parnell of Plantersville, Ala., (Kindergarten teacher) was confined to Vaughan Memorial Hospital for several days last week. We are glad to report that she was able to return to her home last Saturday. Mrs. Levins is improving, but will be confined to her bed for at least two weeks longer. We wish for her a complete and speedy recovery.

"Picky" Pickering, son to Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Pickering returned to his home last Saturday from the Vaughan Memorial Hospital. He is doing nicely at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Linsley (Mildred Parnell) are spending several days with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Parnell and other relatives.

Mr. Linsley is stationed in Virginia.

Several from this section enjoyed the Parcel Post sale and Brunswick stew supper at Jones last Friday night. The Eastern Star Chapter at Jones is known for their nice, enjoyable get-togethers.

Saturday night the Young B. T. U. Adult Class enjoyed a fish supper at the Baptist church.

Mrs. and Mrs. Eaves (Marjorie Burnett) and young son of Oak Ridge, Tenn., are spending this week with Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Burnett and Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Eaves and other relatives.

Mr. S. B. Rogers was very lucky Friday night at the ball game at the Maplesville school when his name was drawn and he was presented with the P. T. A. T. V. set given away by the P. T. A. Maplesville played Hicks Memorial that night.

The regular singing at the Baptist Church Sunday afternoon was very enjoyable. A large crowd attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Carter Davis and Raymond had Saturday night supper in the New Prospect community with the A. B. Tuckers.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter Davis of the University of Ala., spent the week end with their parents.

S-Sgt. Herman Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Davis, won a trophy for the enlistment of more men during the month of October in the State of Alabama.

Mrs. Sallie Joe Bearden is still at her home after being ill all last week.

This community hated to see the Jimmie Green family move last Saturday back to their home just below Friendship church near Lawley. Ala. Mrs. Green has served and served well as PTA president for the Stanton Jr. high school. We have not learned who will replace her as president.

Continued improvement of Dr. Callaway at the Lahey Clinic in Boston has been reported.

Achievement Day of Dallas County 4-H Clubs was staged Saturday in Selma. Miss Ruth Ann Lovelady, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Lovelady (Inez Sample) of Plantersville was among the 4-H Clubbers recognized that day. Miss Lovelady having made "outstanding accomplishments" in 4-H club work during the past year. She was presented with an achievement pin by Miss Ann Barr, State 4-H Club girls leader.

Of wide interest is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Byron Harris of Plantersville, Ala. of the engagement of their daughter, Grace Beatrice, to Judge Eugene Callen, son of Mrs. Martha Roase Callen and the late Walton E. Callen, Sr. of Selma, Ala. The wedding will take place in January.

The bride-to-be has made her home in Selma since 1947, and holds a position as book keeper with the Alabama Gas Corp. Her early education was received in the Stanton school and she was graduated from the Maplesville high school. Miss Harris attended Stenotype Business school in Birmingham and upon completion of her studies there was employed for a time as receptionist in the office of Dr. J. H. Bryan before returning to Selma 4

Welfare Department Asks To Be Notified When Address Is Changed

Needy people in Clanton County were reminded today by Mrs. Frank M. Patterson, Welfare Director, that they should not write the State Department about changes in their address. "Report such changes at once to your county office as you have always done," Mrs. Patterson said. "If you write the State office it may make your check late." Mrs. Patterson went on to say that while checks are mailed from the State Department, they go only to people approved or reapportioned in the county department. These people should report any change in their situation to the county department. The State Department cannot change an address or the amount of a check without official notice from the county office.

Mrs. Patterson also pointed out that the relatives' responsibility forms being sent out now should be returned to the county department and not to the State Department. Again, she said sending them to the State Department merely delays the matter as they are forwarded to her office.

Mrs. Patterson also said that it is not necessary for relatives to request the forms. It will take several months before all persons now receiving aid can be re-investigated under the relatives' responsibility law," Mrs. Patterson said. "Therefore I urge relatives of needy persons to wait until they receive the blanks from the county welfare department." She added also that all relatives are not affected by the new law-only parents, husband or wife, and children. If other relatives can help, however, they should report this to the county department.

"We are here in the county to help the needy people of the county," Mrs. Patterson concluded. "You can help us do it by giving us necessary information promptly. We will give the necessary facts to the State Department so that your checks will not be delayed. You can also help by not coming to the office unless you have new information or your situation changes."

O. H. Arledge of Union Grove community finds that milk sold in cans is very little trouble to handle. Using the filter type strainers and seamless pail, Mr. Arledge can get his milk ready for cooling and wash the equipment in the course of a few minutes. According to Mr. Arledge, it takes less time to handle milk for the Carnation market than it takes to prepare it for home use.

MILK PRODUCER IN UNION GROVE COMMUNITY

Mr. O. H. Arledge of Route 2, Junction, is one of the new milk producers in the Union Grove community. As Mr. Arledge said, "I wanted to try selling milk just to see if it was a paying proposition." After selling milk since last April, Mr. Arledge has convinced himself to the extent that he has bought a good purebred Jersey bull and is retiring row crop land and making pasture. Mr. Arledge was milking three cows when he started selling milk. He has increased his herd to six and plans to be milking twelve cows within a year. When asked the question as to $120.00 per month. By milking cows I can have a regular monthly income" While Mr. Arledge may never turn entirely to dairying he is convinced that enough milk will be sold to have a nice monthly income every month regardless of whether his peaches make a crop or not.

Mr. Arledge feels that by breeding his cows to a good bull and saving the best heifers he can realize a greater net profit per cow as the production increases. As he stated, "It takes just as much time to milk a low producer as it does one that produces a lot." Mr. Arledge realizes that you can't divide the number of cows you milk into the total milk check and get an accurate picture of dairy income.

State of Alabama
A PROCLAMATION
by the
GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at the Regular Session convened at the Capitol at Montgomery, Alabama, on the 12th day of January, 1901, held, the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which said amendment is as follows, to wit: That said act set out and ordered that said petition be held on the first Tuesday following the expiration of three months after the final adjournment of the session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed; and WHEREAS, the first Tuesday following the expiration of three months after the final adjournment of the session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed will fall on and occur on Tuesday, December 11,

HEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is read by law, and by the provisions of the submitting the amendment, to be given proclamation of the Governor to be published in each county in the State of Alabama a week for four successive weeks next ending the day appointed for the election: NOW, THEREFORE, I, Gordon Persons, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that Tuesday, the 17th day of December 1911, according as well be held at the several polls within the State of Alabama, in the order and form provided by law, upon the matter aforesaid, and direct to the Constitu-

"§272. The Legislature, in providing for the purchase, equipment and maintenance of the State military forces, shall conform as nearly as possible to the regulations of the Department of Defense of the United States, and the laws of the United States which relate to the armed forces of the United States. All affairs pertaining to the State military forces shall be under the supervision of the State Military Department, which shall be headed by the Adjutant General, and shall be subject to the Governor's Commander-in-Chief.

"§273. Officers of the State military forces shall be appointed by the Governor, shall be commissioned, shall be subject to suspension, discharge, removal, or modification of their commission on the basis of military proficiency, character and service, as determined by Departmental committees, and shall be subject to military usages sanctioned by the military laws of the United States, anything in this Constitution to the contrary notwithstanding."

A PROCLAMATION
by the

—29—

WHEREAS, the Legislature of bama, at the Regular Session ordered an election to be held for the purpose of electing the State

Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which said amendment is herein set out, and ordered that said action be held on the first Tuesday following the expiration of three months after the final adjournment of the session of the Legislature at which such amendment was proposed; and expiration of three months after the final prorogation of the Session of the Legislature of the State of Alabama, to be held in 1911 and occur on Tuesday, December 11, 1910.

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law, and by the provisions of the Constitution, to be given by proclamation of the Governor to be published in the official gazette of the State a week for four successive weeks next preceding the day appointed for the election; and

WHEREAS, the Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that the general election to be held on Tuesday, December 11, 1910, election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama, in and for the several counties of the State, on the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama:

In addition to all taxes now or hereafter authorized by the Constitution and laws of the State, the Governor shall have the power to levy and collect a special school tax of fifty-five cents on

The property in Fayette County, the proceeds of which shall be used exclusively for public school purposes; provided that such tax and the purpose hereof shall have been first submitted to the vote of the qualified electors of the county and voted for by a majority of those voting at such election. If the proposal to levy the tax is defeated in an election, subsequent elections thereon may be held at any time. The tax, if levied, shall continue for a period of twenty-five years. The elections provided for herein shall be called, held, conducted and paid for and governed otherwise in the manner provided for an election in the school district tax authorized Amendment III, Article XIX of the Constitution of Alabama, by Article 7, Chapter 10, Title 52, Code of Alabama, 1940. The collection of the tax and the use of the proceeds shall also be governed by the applicable provisions of Article 7, Chapter 10, Title 52, Code of Alabama, 1940."

He further direct and proclaim that notice of election upon Tuesday the 11th day of December 1951, upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901, be given by publishing the same once a week for four successive weeks next preceding Tuesday the 11th day of December 1951, in each county in the State of Alabama.

Mrs. Lee Robinson left Sunday for a visit with her children, the Rev. and Mrs. Harry Martin and family and Mrs. J. P. Bishop in Birmingham. Mrs. Robinson plans to spend two weeks in Washington. She will return to Birmingham and from there she plans to go to Miami, Fla., with the Martins to spend the Christmas holidays.

Clantonians who are on the sick list are: Mrs. G. C. Robbins, who underwent an operation at the Jefferson-Hillman Hospital this week. Mr. C. F. Wenzel is confined to the Veterans' hospital in Montgomery. Mr. Cecil Ellison is in the Veterans' hospital in Tuscaloosa.

The Steve Hughes family have moved into their home on the Lay Dam Road.

Mr. G. C. Walker was the guest of his brother, Mr. A. G. Walker and wife of Evergreen one day last week. Mrs. Vernon Payne and daughter, Fara, spent part of last week in Birmingham with Mr. and Mrs. Horace Younger.

Pilot News—

The Pilot Club of Clanton met Tuesday evening, Nov. 13, at the First Methodist Church.

Dinner was served by the ladies of the Womens Society of Christian Service of the church in connection with the annual bazar.

A special table, centered with a low bowl of mixed seasonal flowers was arranged for the club.

After dinner the club members retired to the church parlor to hold the November business meeting, with the president, Mrs. F. M. Patterson, (Margaret Lee) presiding.

A new member, Mrs. Ruby Willingham, was made welcome. It was voted that Mrs. N. S. Johnson, a former member should return to become an active member of the club.

The meeting will be held at the Dixie Cafe, Nov. 27. Guest speaker will be the Lt.-Governor from Selma.

The Home Makers Sunday School Class Met Friday—

Mrs. James Wade, Mrs. Julius Burnett, Mrs. Lee Smith and Mrs. Charles Wade were co-hostesses to the Home Makers Sunday School Class of the First Baptist Church on Friday afternoon, Nov. 16, in the James Wade home.

Alma Crew, class president, presided. The class hymn was sung by the group. Minutes of the last meeting were read and the treasurer report made by Sara Jones. Plans were made for the Community Chest and Orphan Home Christmas offering. Plans for the annual Christmas party were also taken care of.

After the business period, Evelyn Teel gave a lovely devotional on Thanksgiving. Evelyn lead the group as they repeated the first verse of the hymn, "America the Beautiful," as a prayer.

Mary Propst and Mable Lewis were in charge of the two contests which were enjoyed by the ladies.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses to the following class members, Mesdames Referee Lineberry, Sara Jones, Leau Hamilton, Erma Corbett, Alma Crew, Annie Lane, Eunice Crew, Lenora Jones, Audell Miller, Mattie Calloway, Evelyn Teel, Thelma Williams, Mary Propst, Jewel Thompson, Beulah Brown, Mable Lewis, Essie Walker, Essie White and Mamie Higgins.

Susan, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Barton, Clanton, was one year old Sunday, Nov. 18, and it was a big day for such a little girl.

Her grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Barton, of Tuscaloosa were her noon dinner guests and her maternal grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hayes came by for after dinner dessert and to see Susan blow out the one candle which centered the pretty birthday cake.

Friends dropped by during the afternoon to wish Susan a "Happy Birthday" and to leave a gift wrapped package.

Community Prayer Meeting—

Last week we wrote about the community prayer meeting celebrating the twentieth anniversary with a spend-the-day in the home of Mrs. W. M. Pool with members of the club and invited guests present.

Mrs. Pool and Mrs. O. D. Deloach, the two charter members have received many phone calls from ladies telling how much they enjoyed the day, etc.

Below is a letter from a friend to Mrs. Pool.

My Dear —
Surely you know you made me very happy inviting me to your party, such a pleasant and up-lifting experience each guest enjoyed.

Mrs. Pool, the alphabet you repeated with a verse from God's word was a master-piece. You are indeed a great soul.

The dinner was all one could ask. It was a good dinner. That chicken pie was fine, you are a good cook.

The Bible reading, the prayers, the beautiful singing—How close to our Father everyone felt.

Your meeting was a success. God was there and your reward will be here and hereafter.

God bless you and keep you in his service.

I would love to see more of you, come to see me.

I am glad you had this meeting, you brought people closer together and created a fellowship God will honor. Thank You, My Love, Belle Wade. Phil-1:3.

TELEPHONE SERVICE IS GROWING, TOO

...and the price is up far less than most things you buy!

"GOODNESS, how he's grown!" And you could say the same about telephone service during the short time since his babyhood.

ACTUALLY, in just five years the number of local telephones Alabamians can call has more than doubled. And this year's increase in Alabama telephones is expected to reach about 32,000.

BEST OF ALL, this bigger, better "package" of service has gone up in price only a fraction as much as prices in general . . . and less than our cost of providing the service.

ALWAYS one of your biggest bargains, telephone service is today an even better buy than it was ten years ago, and a smaller part of your family budget.

Things We See and Hear

BY "TUCK"

Well, keds, it looks like this just isn't our year to shine doesn't it. You know I didn't know it but I wasn't escorting Nannette Nivens last Friday night, she was escorting me. Myron Levine said that Peggy Rabberry was escorting Joe Ellison in the lead-out at the dance so I guess that goes for everybody. Say Myron, did anyone tell you that this isn't leap year? I was speaking of shining; they may not have shined but they all played like real sports and we were still proud of 'em. Say "DEAL" even if it was leap year that still isn't being done!!! There's one thing I'll have to say about that game last Friday night, and Friday night, and that is the school spirit was like it should be all the time. Say I... Doesn't that "DOO" Eiland dance divinely? And that Joe Popwell, WOWEEEE!!! One thing I can say for them though, they were at least dancing, I guess? You know, I believe its going to turn cold, what do you'll suthen' boys think? Say fellas' what say we beat the you know what out of you know who

VERBENA ROLLS OVER TIGERS 27 TO 0

Last Friday night on the local field the Verbena Red Devils licked the Clanton Tigers by a score of 27 to 0. The Devils won but they had to work hard to do it. In the first quarter of play Verbena's Burkhalter bucked the line for the first score of the game. The Tigers fought hard and furious but just couldn't hold the Red Devil line. In the second quarter the game was more evenly played. The Tigers could get the ball in Verbena territory but could not get into a scoring position. Bobby Moore of the Red Devils went over in the second period. This concluded the scoring in the first half with the Red Devils leading by a score of 14-0. The extra points were completed by Burkhalter on both T.D's. The beginning of the third quarter was opened up by Burkhalter who returned the kickoff for a distance of about 60 yards. This run set up the Red Devils third tally which was run over by Burkhalter from about the 5 yard line. Bobby Moore, Verbena's ace fullback, ran the ball across his own right for the extra point. Also in the third Burkhalter went across again but they failed to complete the extra point. In the fourth and final quarter the Tigers seemed to come alive but it was too late. Nedford Williams, however, did intercept a pass and Tom Frank Scott recovered a fumble but this still did not help the Tigers to score and they were defeated by a four T'Dee majority. This game is the 20th straight game won by the "Red Devils." There were no out standing players on the Tiger team because if you recognized one you'd have to recognize all of them for playing such a fighting game. On the Verbena team however, this was not true. G. Burkhalter seemed to have been their one man football team, and he certainly showed that they would be in a bad fix if they lost him. The "Tiger" team takes on their rivals from Prattville Wednesday night at 8:15 o'clock and are hoping to win their last game of the season.

Here's How We Can Do It— WITHOUT ANY NEW TAXES!

Secure For Alabama $50,000,000

To Modernize Our Road System

It sounds almost too good to be true: $50,000,000 for our state to modernize our road system WITHOUT ONE PENNY IN NEW TAXES!! But it CAN BE DONE, thanks to expiring bonds of old issues and $25,000,000 help from the Federal Government.

STUDY THE BAR GRAPHS BELOW FOR PROOF—

This bar represents $2,943,000—the amount Alabama now averages on present bonds yearly.

This bar represents $2,829,000—the amount Alabama will spend AFTER NEW BONDS are issued.

In other words: Former bond issues have been costing us an average of $2,943,000 annually. When Amendment No. 1 passes and the new bonds totalling $25,000,000 are issued, we'll have to pay only $2,829,000 average per year, thanks to the expiration of the bonds listed to the right.

At the same time we're getting $50,000,000 (including $25,000,000 in Federal Funds) to modernize our road system and eliminate traffic death traps, we'll also be paying actually $114,000 LESS each year on ALL outstanding bonds. ALABAMA WILL NEVER GET ANOTHER OPPORTUNITY LIKE THIS!

WE'LL HAVE $114,000 LEFT OVER TO BOOT!

Alabama Bridge Finance Corp. Bonds expiring 1951-52.
Florence Bridge Bonds expiring 1955-56.
Second Road Bond Issue expiring 1958-59.
First Road Bond Issue expiring 1962-63.

Free Prizes Galore In Clanton This Week

Three local stores are giving things away this week absolutely free. At Clanton Home and Auto Supply on Seventh Street Herman Leroy announces hundreds of dollars in prizes will be given away to those who come to his store and register during the three days—Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Over in the new John Higgins Building the DeVaughn Food Center is having their formal opening this Thursday, Friday and Saturday and are giving away 30 baskets filled with fine groceries. All you have to do is visit the store and register and if you are the holder of the lucky number you get the groceries. You do not have to be present to win.

The Smart Shop is running their sale for a week. They are giving away nylon hose, bed spreads, etc.

Your chance to get Santa Claus a whole month before Christmas awaits you at the local stores. Visit them this week end and see what wonderful values await you.

A CAR LOAD OF CHRISTMAS CREATIONS FOR CLANTON

On Tuesday evening at 7:30 December 11th in the City Hall of Clanton the Music Appreciation Club will present Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carr of Carr Floral Company, Birmingham in a program of flowers and music entitled a "Car Load of Christmas Creations." These two artists with flowers work on the stage before the audience creating their masterful arrangements of flowers. A story with a musical background is told as the arrangements are created.

Mr. Carr is an internationally known Floral Stylist, having appeared throughout the United States and Canada. Mrs. Carr will be remembered as the daughter of the late Dr. T. C. Cassidy and Mrs. Cassidy. Dr. Cassidy was pastor of the Clanton Methodist church several years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Carr have appeared as guest artists and commentators on the United States and Florist Telegraph Delivery Association Regional and National Schools in seventeen states and in Canada. They have appeared before the Mid-Atlantic Society of American Florists, the Southeastern Florists Association, the National Society of American Florists and the International Florist Telegraph Delivery Association. They are giving many programs in Alabama in the month of December.

The programs of the Carrs' have a universal appeal. Men find them most entertaining and worthwhile. Anyone who grows flowers, arranges flowers, enjoys flowers, loves flowers, decorates home, church, school, place of business will find this program beneficial. Anyone who loves the beauty.

How are you going to decorate your home church, your school, your place of business for the Christmas season? Let the Carr Load of Christmas Creations bring you some new and beautiful ideas.

MORGAN COUNTY CITIZENS APPEAL TO VOTERS

Morgan County citizens, interested in the education of their children, are asking the voters throughout the state to build much needed school buildings. The passage of proposed Constitutional Amendment No. 10, on Dec. 11, will give Morgan Countians the opportunity desired. If the amendment passes, the people of Morgan will then have the privilege of calling an election to levy a special 7 1/2 mills ad valorem tax upon themselves for schools.

The amendment does not affect any county except Morgan County.

Committee Promised Library Space 'If New Courthouse Is Built

A committee composed of A. A. U. W. members and members of the local Parent-Teachers Association, met with the Board of Revenue and Control at the courthouse Monday morning in the interest of room in the proposed new courthouse for a County Library.

Lois Rainer Green of the State Library Commission, Miss Elizabeth Barton and John DeRamus represented the A. A. U. W. Russell Williams the county Parent-Teachers, Mrs. James Parr, Mrs. R. M. Tucker and Mrs. J. D. Bell represented the local Parent Teachers Association.

The Board of Revenue went on record as favoring the library project and assured the committee they would do all in their power to see that the space for the library was provided, and if, the new courthouse was built. In conversation with Judge W. L. Parrish, Chairman of the Board, it was learned that in addition to the overcrowded condition of all offices in the main courthouse, the same is true of other county offices housed elsewhere.

At the building housing the Health Department and the County Agent, there are three other county offices. The Forestry Department, the Home Demonstration Agent and the Soil Conservation Department. "This means," stated Judge Parrish, "that five county departments are occupying a building that is hardly big enough for one." And besides according to reports this building is in bad repair.

Judge Parrish also stressed the point that no new tax would be added to build the new courthouse.

Not one voter out of one hundred in the State of Alabama will vote intelligently when he, or she, go to the polls to vote on December 11th.

The ballot will be 38 inches long and the 24 Amendments to be voted upon are much longer. To prove my point, the amendments have been printed for three weeks, how many readers have read the amendments and made an effort to understand them?

Of the 24 amendments to be voted on only 7 are of statewide interest. No. 1 is the $25,000,000 road bond issue which has been much discussed and publicized in the newspapers. No. 2 provides for promotions in the civil service of this State made according to merit.

No. 3 Provides for appointments rather than elections officers in the National Guard.

No. 4 Provides for poll tax exemptions for veterans of Korea and any future war.

No. 5 Provides for new voter qualifications.

No. 6 Is the new 67 Senator amendment allowing the legislature to fix the Senate membership at 67—a senator for every county.

No. 7 Requires foreign corporations to have a place of business and authorized agent in the State.

All other amendments are of interest only in the counties to which they pertain.

There is still time for you to study these amendments. When you go to cast your vote on Dec. 11th, know what you are voting for, or against, as the case may be. Don't vote blindly.

TIME RAN OUT

We heartily commend Governor Persons step to lessen the states heavy highway death rate. His orders to reduce speed on our highways has already saved many lives we are sure. A motorist can go a long way in a days time at the reasonable speed of 50 to 60 miles an hour. And what does the average motorist do after he races to his destination? He usually does nothing but sit. Speed has become a mania with the American motoring public. We race to the store. We race to the post office. We race to work and from To do what? Nothing but sit. If we are going to church or to a picture show, we race. We are in a hurry to do everything we do, as though time was running out. Well, for many, time did run out. The new traffic laws set down by the Governor recently is a blessing to those who didn't have enough sense to see they were racing to their own doom.

We know a lady who even blames her husband when the cover slides off on her side of the bed. Says he must have pushed it.

M. C. (Jack) Hayes, Chilton County's popular Tax Collector received high compliments last week from the examiner of public accounts. A daily published at Montgomery had this to say: "When the state examiner of public accounts told Chilton County Tax Collector, Minter C. (Jack) Hayes that he has done his job 'in a most efficient and commendable manner,' it was no routine compliment. Hayes, former University of Alabama football star, is blind." Very nice except Jack was a baseball star having played two years at the university before going to the major leagues.

Moody Brothers Find Dairy Program Profitable

The Moody Brothers, Douglas and Calvin, of Jemison, have found a dairy program to be profitable. They are shown above with their purebred jersey bull that they are using to improve their herd.

The Moody Brothers, Calvin and Douglas, of Jemison are charter milk route patrons, having started selling milk the first day the truck operated. Three years ago the Moody Brothers started selling milk from four cows and as they themselves said, "not too much cows at that." After trying dairying on a small scale for several months, they came to the conclusion that they might make more money easier by adding more cows and reducing the cotton acreage. Realizing that high producing cows and home grown feed were essential to a sound dairy program, they set to work. Knowing that it would be hard as well as expensive to buy the types of cows they wanted, they decided to buy a good, purebred jersey bull and raise their own cows. All of their cows are being bred to a good bull and the best heifers are kept for replacements.

The Moody Brothers next went to work on their pasture. They now have twenty acres of pasture that they have improved and will soon be developed into a permanent grazing system.

Since they have started milking cows the Moody Brothers have reduced their cotton acreage one-half. As Calvin Moody stated, "we plan to bring our milking herd up to ten cows. When we do this we will reduce our cotton acreage even more." By milking cows and reducing the cotton acreage to the best cotton land on the farm they feel that the income from their farm will be greater and will involve less risk

THIS WEEK'S TALK:

The Peacemakers

Jesus said "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God." Our God is spoken of in the Scriptures as the God of peace. And Jesus Christ is known as the Prince of Peace; Therefore, the whole Triune Godhead, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, are for peace; in so much that those who use their influence and efforts for peace are called the children of God.

Many people back home are cursing those who are trying to reach a peaceful settlement between the nations that are at war; saying that all these peace talks are only marking time so all can prepare for a bigger and bloodier fight. Personally, I do not feel that way about it. I believe those of the United Nations are doing what they can to establish peace. It is to be remembered, it takes only one to start a fight, but two or more to make peace. But why curse those who are attempting to make peace, when there are people over here that are as much at strife and hatred toward others as nations are toward each other. Peace should be made at home between heads of families; peace should be made between leaders of family groups. Peace should be made in local organizations, like churches, clubs and such like. In the program of good and better living there is no place for quarrelling, fussing and fighting; and yet many of the American homes never go a day without a quarrel, a fuss, or some sort of feud. And then too, there are professed Christians who get their feelings hurt with some one of the same church, then they take out, go home, stay home, and put, fuss and fume; all because they cannot have their selfish way. Are we a peaceful people after all? Do we really believe in peace and want peace? If we do, let us make peace in our own homes, churches, local organizations; and communities. Then the spirit of peace may go beyond our shores, and bless our sons afar. While they are fighting for peace over there, "Follow peace with all men, and hold it up as the thing that is best, and let us stop creating strife over here, mess without which no man shall see the Lord." Heb. 12:14.

One Problem at a Time

SONIA KOSTA, New York City, had more than one problem to solve when she was discharged from the W.A.C. after the war was over.

But, first, she had to rid herself of an inferiority complex for that would stand in the way of anything she attempted. The crux of this trouble was an additional 56 pounds she had gained.

She had been a nurse before entering the service but she had decided definitely that she wanted another vocation. This meant spending money to prepare herself for other work, and all she had was her "muster-out-pay" amounting to $200.

Taking a temporary job while preparing for new work meant she had to spend money on new clothes for none of her old civilian clothes were now large enough. If she spent her money on new clothes, they would become less and less suitable as she got rid of her excess weight.

Maybe this seems little to worry about, but not to one who has had to tackle it. So worry she did, until she didn't sleep at night and her nerves were on edge. In addition, she was fast making enemies of her entire family.

Suddenly she thought of how much the army's reputation for the doctors. Nothing she had to say was a surprise to him. Hers, he told her, was a common case of postwar adjustment—and he suggested a common method of cure: to go to the foundation of her trouble, and to tackle one problem at a time.

She found the matter of reducing down deep at the bottom. So she spent some of her money on a success school to which she could wear her uniforms. When she had lost 31 pounds she could then wear some of her civilian clothing. There was enough money to enroll in a business school where she took a junior executive course. Now, doing work she enjoys, she says she accomplished her aim because she got at the bottom of her trouble, and then tackled one problem at a time, instead of wandering around in confusion as she had started out doing.

Your Health

EYE CARE

To be without sight is one of the greatest of personal tragedies, yet many persons constantly mistreat their eyes.

Proper care of the eye is essential to general good health and, conversely, good general health is important to the health of the eye. When some part of the eye is damaged, under strain results in headache, indigestion, backache, nervous disorders and other conditions.

In turn poor sight may be associated with disease, such as syphilis, arteriosclerosis, diabetes. The normal process of growing old may affect the eye, since all of the tissues concerned with the nutrition of the eye, especially the blood vessels, change with increasing age, leaving the eye less competent as a functional organ. Examination of the eyes by a doctor of medicine whose chief interest is the care of the eye should be sought by everyone. If the eye needs correction, by all means follow the doctor's instructions. Work with good illumination, so that the eye is not strained. Get sufficient rest to rest the eye muscles. Eat nourishing food, because the eye tissues, nerves and muscles derive their health from the food you eat. While working, rest your eyes occasionally by glancing at some object more than twenty feet away. In having your eyes examined, consult a doctor of medicine who is an oculist or ophthalmologist. He is trained to recognize and prescribe for disease.

Your two eyes must last all your life. Give them the best possible care.

At the present their milk check amounts to about $155.00 per month. Both brothers are of the opinion that the monthly check can be increased without adding more cows. It is their opinion that the answer to the question of more milk is better cows.

MISS RUTH HICKS

Such an enjoyable barbecue with all the trimmings at the Southeastern Sand & Gravel Co., for all employees, white and colored, last Thursday. Employees of the Tallapoosa, Anniston and Plantersville plants were invited and this will be a day long remembered.

Visiting the E. A. Cole's and Mr. Bud Cole over the Thanksgiving holidays were: Mr. and Mrs. Alton Wilder and Charlotte of Clanton, Ala. Mr. and Mrs. Euel Jones and sons, Harold and Johnny of Bessemer, Ala.

Mr. Robert Gay has returned to his home after several days in a Selma hospital last week. Mr. Gay had a very bad spell of Asthma and was quite ill for several days. We are glad to state that he is some improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston O'Neal and Mrs. Willie Wood of Decatur, Ala., were guests of the Earl O'Neal's and Mr. W. M. D. O'Neal several days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. William Dade Wilcox of Mobile, Ala., have announced the marriage of their daughter Jean Bell Wilcox to Harold Lloyd Coleman, Wednesday, November 21, 1951.

Mrs. Will D. Rush (Ruth Davis) has returned to her home after several days last week in a Selma hospital. She is some better at this writing.

We regret the illness of Mrs. Edd Smitherman of Maplesville, Ala. She is confined to the Selma Baptist hospital.

Mrs. Alpha Tucker has returned to Birmingham, Ala., after spending several days with Mrs. Mattie Parnell, writing.

Mrs. Parnell is doing nicely at this. Attending the Farm Bureau meeting last Tuesday night in Clanton from Beat 8 were Mr. Earl O'Neal and Mr. Bob Davis.

Mrs. Carl Herman (Lady Beth Willis) and son of Mobile, Ala., and Mrs. Clyde Moore (Dorothy Willis) and children of Mobile, Ala., have been visiting their sister, Mrs. Clyde Gregg and family for several days. While visiting here they also visited other relatives in Gainesville and other communities.

Spending Sunday in Eutaw, Ala., with Mr. and Mrs. Willie Davis (Estelle Gay) were Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Davis, Mrs. Sallie Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gregg and son. They were joined by Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Davis and son, and Mrs. Christian, mother of Mrs. Aubrey Davis of Birmingham, Ala. for the day. This group enjoyed a bountiful dinner of turkey and all the trimmings and reported such an enjoyable day.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gregg Davis and son and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Davis had Thanksgiving dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Coda Lawrence and family in the Pleasant Grove Community.

Mrs. Della Whitley Broadhead, 61, died in a Selma hospital at 10:25 Monday.

Funeral services were held from the West End Baptist church at 1:00 Tuesday.

day, Rev. T. A. Chandler, pastor, officiating. Interment in New Live Oak cemetery, Breslin-Service directing.

Surviving are her husband, J. Tom Broadhead, 2 daughters, Mrs. Gordon Bennett of Selma, Ala., Mrs. Edd Cook of Stanton and one son, C. T. Broadhead, Selma, Ala., two sisters Mrs. M. J. Schuler of Selma and Mrs. E. A. Bill of Birmingham. Two brothers Askin Whitley of Selma and Lester Whitley of Lawley, Ala. 14 grandchildren and 1 great grandchild.

Miss Ruth Hicks, Mr. Millard Reynolds and Mr. S. B. Rogers were invited to spend Thanksgiving day in Birmingham, Ala., as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Perry McCormick, Mr. Claude Owens and Henry Williams of Butler, Ala., together with Mr. and Mrs. Hurlis Carr of Tuscaloosa joined their courtesy. A nice, short motorcycle endurance run was planned and the boys certainly enjoyed this. Mr. McCormick called this run a Turkey Run. At the end of the ride Mr. S. B. Rogers was high point man of the day and was presented a nice turkey. Millard Reynolds came in second place and was presented a nice turkey. Henry Williams came in 3rd., and he was given a turkey. (Seemed kinda funny all turkeys came south.) Then around 4:30 p.m. everyone was invited to Skinner's for a real Thanksgiving dinner. This was a very enjoyable day.

Euit Nover Ford, age 29, died at 3:30 p.m. Thursday in a Memphis, Tenn., Veterans Hospital. Mr. Ford had just been admitted to this hospital after a period as a patient in the Selma Baptist hospital.

The body was returned to Selma by Breslin Funeral directors. Funeral services 1 p.m. Sunday from the Baptist Tabernacle, Rev. Hamp Simmons officiating. Interment followed in New Live Oak cemetery, Breslin Service directing.

Surviving are the wife, Mrs. Lily Pearl Ford, 1 daughter, Sarah Ruth Ford, his father, John Ross Ford of Gainesville, Florida, a sister, Mrs. Henry Day of Uniontown, Ala., and 5 brothers: G. V. Ford, W. L. Ford, B. M. Ford, J. C. Ford and J. H. Ford all of Gainesville, Florida.

Miss Ruby Darden of Selma, Ala., spent Sunday and Monday with her mother, Mrs. Harvey Barnes and Mr. Barnes.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Sample and Mrs. Dan Vann and son of Birmingham, Ala., spent the Thanksgiving holidays with the Sample family.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Sample, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Vann, and son, Mrs. Leila Sample, Mr. L. R. Terry, Miss Ruth Ann Lovelady, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Sample and Brenda Ann had Sunday dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Louie Barnes.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Huff and family had the joy of having Mrs. Alma Schurter and Miss Elsie Schurter as their guests on Thanksgiving day.

Mr. and Mrs. George Thomas of Peoples, Ohio, spent a day and night

MACEDONIA

Church services were well attended Sunday morning and evening. With some very inspiring messages by pastor Bro. Atcheson. We were all so happy that the fine son of Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Thacker, John Edward united with our church by baptism also Mrs. Claud Clark who united by letter. We are glad to have the Clarks move in the community.

Prayer service was not so well attended Wednesday night. Let's try to meet our pastor next Wednesday night. Those attending the W. M. U. clinic at Liberty Hill and the Mission Study for prayer service.

with Mr. and Mrs. Julius Sample recently, Mr. Thomas and Mrs. Sample were army buddies and this was a happy get-together for these two as well as a get-acquainted with each other's families.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Huff and children accompanied by Mrs. Emmett Huff visited in Perry County last Sunday. They visited Mr. Will T. and Archie Bledsoe, brothers of Mrs. Emmett Huff. They reported that they found both brothers doing nicely.

Monday night, December 3, will be PTA night at the Stanton Jr. High School. Mr. John Maples of the Bank of Maplesville will show a film on "Banking" that night and you are urged to attend.

Rev. and Mrs. Joe Davis had all their children with them during the Thanksgiving holidays with the exception of Herman. This was indeed an enjoyable occasion.

A Group Meeting of the B. T. U. met at the Stanton Baptist church Sunday afternoon with a good attendance. Rev. George Brown of Cooper brought a very interesting message on "Conviction."

Mr. Millard Reynolds and Miss Ruth Hicks motored to Montgomery Sunday where they enjoyed a Steak barbecue put on by the Montgomery Motorcycle Club. This affair was held at the Cecil Lane's and was for member of the only. Millard Reynolds and Ruth Hicks are honorary members of this club and enjoy many activities with the club.

Mrs. Parmer Levine is still confined to her bed, however, is much improved. Mr. and Mrs. Dickey and children, Carey Grant, Lawrence Jr., and Richard Wayne returned to their home in Oak Ridge, Tenn., after sending several days with the C. E. Cagle's, Sr.

Insure That Alabama's Farm-To- Market Road Program Will Continue!!

WITHOUT NEW TAXES!

During the next four years $50,000,000 will be set aside to build Farm-To-Market roads in Alabama. Approval of the Road Bond Issue (Amendment No. 1) will provide money for bringing Alabama's inadequate and unsafe primary and urban road systems up to date. It will also insure that no Farm-To-Market road funds will be diverted for other uses by the State Legislature to match Federal Highway Funds. The passage of the $25,000,000 road bond issue will permit Alabama to build a sound, modern system of roads and streets, affording the farmers a safe means of getting themselves, their families and the products of their farm labor to market.

Fortunately for Alabama, the State has some old bonds which are being fully paid off now and in months to come. We have been averaging $2,943,000 yearly to retire these bonds. Thanks to the expiration of these old Bonds, we'll pay only $2,829,000 AFTER OUR NEW BONDS are issued. When Amendment No. 1 passes, Alabama will actually save $114,000 yearly! In other words, money formerly used to pay off old bonds now can be used to pay off the new bonds and we'll still be $114,000 ahead each year. ALABAMA WILL NEVER GET ANOTHER OPPORTUNITY LIKE THIS!

Mrs. Hershel Hayes and Mrs. Whalton Collins attended the modern brush party which was held at the Thomas Jefferson Hotel in Birmingham last Saturday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Euell Hayes and children of Macon, Ga., spent the Thanksgiving holidays with the Bill Hayes. Mrs. Varney Wyatt and Mrs. Odie Miller shopped in Birmingham last Friday. Leise Sterling Davenport and family of Tyndal Field, Fla., spent the Thanksgiving holidays here with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Davenport. Mr. and Mrs. Bob Goodgame left Sunday night for Birmingham to visit Mr. and Mrs. Russell Burton. We are very sorry to hear that Mr. Burton is on the sick list. Mrs. Bill Holcomb shopped in Birmingham Monday. Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Walker spent Saturday with their grand-daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Carl McDowell of Clanton. Mrs. Ruth Bazzell of Montgomery, Mrs. Annie Pyron of Clanton spent urday with Mrs. R. R. Franklin. Mrs. John Childers is spending this week in Butler, Ala. with Mr. and Mrs. William Hicks. Little Dennis Swearin was the guest of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Dee McFarland for the week end. Mr. and Mrs. Nels Peterson and Shirley and Mrs. Marie Peterson attended the funeral of Mr. H. C. Petersen in Tuscaloosa last Monday. Mrs. Marie Peterson is spending a few days with Mr. Jack Petersen and family in Birmingham. The many friends of Mrs. Marie Petersen and family will regret to learn of the sudden death of Mr. Harry C. Petersen which occurred in Tuscaloosa last Sunday. Funeral services were conducted from the Alberta City Methodist church, of which Mr. Petersen was a deacon and member of the Board of Stewards. Masonic rites were performed at the grave and flag ceremony by V. F. W. Burial was in Memorial Park cemetery in Tuscaloosa. Mr. Petersen had been employed for many years at the Veterans hospital. Surviving are his wife, a daughter, Mrs. Charles McAllister of Birmingham, a son, Carl Petersen of Tuscaloosa and 4 grand children. Mr. and Mrs. Morrison Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Holcomb of Birmingham were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dee McFarland Sunday. The PTA is looking forward to having a supper Thursday night for the Lions club. You Lions who miss it will miss a big time and lots of good eats.

Word was received here last week that Mr. Thacker, who served here as police for some time died suddenly while on duty at Maxwell Field. Mrs. Ted Leftstad of Chattanooga, Tenn., left last Friday after visiting here a week with her sister-in-law, Miss Alma Leftstad. Miss Loretta Peterson of Atlanta, Ga., spent the Thanksgiving holidays with her grandmother, Mrs. Marie Petersen. Mr. and Mrs. Gust Berlin had their Thanksgiving dinner on last Sunday, when their daughter and son-in-law, the Thos. Rogers of Atlanta, Ga., were here to enjoy it with them. They also had as their guests Mrs. Conrad Carlson. Mrs. Marie Graves and Misses Ann and Nell Werness. They all enjoyed turkey and all the trimmings. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Turnquist, A. E. Reagan, Naomi Turnquist, Mr. and Mrs. James Bosworth, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Bosworth and son Johnny, enjoyed a big turkey dinner with Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Foss in Fairfield, Ala.

On Thursday. Other members of the family also joined them there and they numbered about 20 in all. The many friends of Mrs. Marie Petersen and the Nel Petersens, were grieved to learn of the sudden death of Harry Petersen of Tuscaloosa, son of Mrs. Marie Petersen. The news reached here about noon Sunday and it came as a terrible shock, since he had not been sick at all. This makes the second son Mrs. Petersen has lost in the last few months, her son Albert died very suddenly in New York, in July Mr. and Mrs. Nels Petersen and Shirley and Mrs. Marie Petersen left immediately for Tuscaloosa where they remained for funeral services which were held on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The family has our deepest sympathy. Mrs. B. V. Ray entertained between the junior and senior stunts, by playing "Deep Purple", which was enjoyed by all. Examinations will be held on Thursday and Friday of the week Miss Jenkins received a very interesting letter from Truman M. Pierce, graduate of Thorsby Institute in the class of 1923. He is now a Professor with the George Peabody College of Education and Director of the Southern States Cooperative Program in Educational Administration. We were very glad to receive this news from him. We are now looking forward to the Literary Society Christmas Program which will be held on December 14. Please make plans to attend this program.

On Wednesday, Nov. 21st, the regular meeting of the Home Demonstration club was held at the home of Mrs.

W. J. Preston. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Preston. The president gave the devotional, using John 11:5. She also gave the thought for the month, "few things are impracticable in themselves and its for-want of application, rather than of means, that men fail to succeed." The story of the hymn of the month, "O

Day of Rest and Gladness" was read by Mrs. Bessie McNeil, who also read the story of the classic "Will You Remember"—By Sigmund Romberg. The classic was played on machine by Miss

Ada Martin, assistant agent. The president was in charge of the business session, then the demonstration was given by Mesdames V. O. Lenoir and

B. C. Lenoir. During the social hour,

Mesdames Van Hoose, McGraw and Naish were remembered with a birthday gift.

Refreshments were served these members, Mesdames, Nettie Burnette,

CHILTON COUNTY OVER THE TOP IN DEFENSE BOND DRIVE

Alabamians put $7,184,669.30 in Defense Bonds during the September-October-November drive to bring the defense effort to Main Street.

Final purchase figures were released this week by Ed Leigh McMillan, State Defense Bond Chairman.

These millions of dollars put into United States government securities means that thousands of our people realize that there must be interest, effort and activity on the home front if we are to back the battle front efforts of sons, sweethearts, fathers and husbands," Mr. McMillan said in announcing the figures.

Of this amount Chilton County citizens invested $39,052.75.

Fifty-two of the state's 67 counties went over-the-top during the drive to purchase a 100 per cent or more of the volunteer quotas that they set for themselves, Mr. McMillan said. Thirteen other counties purchased 50 per cent or more of the quotas they set for themselves, the state chairman said.

Chilton County was among the counties that went over the top.

PRATTVILLE LIONS BEAT TIGERS 26-0

The Autauga County High School under the coaching of Fred Jensen fought over the "Tiger" line last Wednesday night for Clanton's eighth defeat this year and a 26 to 0 victory.

The Autauga eleven kicked off and Tom Frank Scott returned a beautiful kick for about 25 yards before he was brought down by Knight and Barnes.

The "Tigers" were forced to kick out and the boys started their march to the goal. It was slow going however, because the boys from Clanton just wouldn't let go. About halfway of the first quarter Everett Barnes of Prattville broke away for about twenty-two yards and the first score of the game. He failed to kick his own extra point.

In the second quarter of play the "Tigers" still fought long and hard but just couldn't get into scoring position.

Prattville taking the ball on downs racked up another six points in the last few minutes of the first with James Wright going around his own left end. Charles Carter failed to converge the extra point and the game in the beginning of the last portion of the ball game the "Tigers" slowed down considerably but Prattville did.

Downs, Mrs. Gladys Glenn, Mrs. Myrtice Smith and Miss Ada Martin the Assistant Home Agent.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Gladys Glenn Friday, Dec. 7. Christmas gifts will be exchanged at that meeting. We urge all members and friends to be present.

ended the first half with Prattville leading by a score of 12 to 0.

not take advantage of this and racked up only seven more points in the third quarter with Bill Bush running the ball over from about the three yard stripe. The extra was a faked kick by Barnes and was run over.

In the fourth and final quarter of the game Durwood Solley of the Lions ran the ball across and James Wright ran the extra point across on another fake kick play.

Outstanding Players for Prattville were: Hines and Thornton. On the "Tiger" team were Neeley and Scott.

Know Chilton County Contest Closes Dec. 7

All Entries Must Be In Hand Of Judges By That Date

The students in the several senior high schools of the county have until 5 o'clock p.m. Friday of this week to get their entries in the "Know Chilton County" contest into the hands of the judges.

The contest which is sponsored by the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce and offers to the students having the best and most complete entry, such prizes as a television set contributed by R. C. Williams and Clanton Home and Auto Supply; Defense Bonds; a gold watch by Clanton Jewelry; 100 gallons of gasoline; annual passes to the Clanton Drive-In and many more fine prizes.

Some forty high school students entered the contest and the judges will make known the winners in the issues of the newspapers of December 20th.

Howard Bookcholdt, T. E. Wyatt and R. M. Tucker are the judges. Entries may be turned in to any of the judges.

Dog Catcher At Work Here Again

The City employed the dog catcher again this week and according to Mayor C. Penn Jones, it was because the citizens of the city who owned dogs refuse to obey the law in connection with keeping them in their own yard.

The Mayor advised those who owned dogs and wanted to protect them to keep them up or the dog catcher would pick them up and put them in the City pound.

First Methodist Church Gives Balcony To Spirits

The balcony has been reserved for spirits at the Clanton First Methodist church according to Rev. J. M. McKinney, pastor.

Rev. McKinney says he appreciates the splendid attendance by his membership in recent weeks but he will reserve the balcony for those who "are with us in spirit." However, he added, "I hope the balcony will not be crowded."

Keep in mind that unless you come next Sunday to pick out your own seat—you'll be sitting in the balcony with the other spirits.

Convicted Of Violating AUC

Calvin Moates, RFD No. 2, Clanton, Alabama was convicted of violating the Alabama Unemployment Compensation Law this week in Judge Victor Heard's court. He was found guilty of making false statements in order to obtain benefits to which he was not entitled. These statements were made in claims for unemployment benefits that were filed in the local employment office.

R. M. Eatman, Field Representative for the Unemployment Compensation Agency testified that Calvin Moates drew $65.00 in unemployment benefits while working.

County Solicitor A. B. Foshee introduced evidence which established that Calvin Moates was working for Rockett Power Wood Works during Sept., Oct., November 1950 and was also claiming benefits for that period. Judge to 30 days in jail.

Heard fined the Defendant $20.00 and costs in one case and sentenced him to 30 days to give the defendant time to repay $65.00 to the Unemployment Compensation Agency the amount of benefits he had obtained wrongfully.

NEW HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB ORGANIZED

Cooper Community has a home demonstration club now. The first meeting was held at the home of Mrs. George T. Brown on November 28.

At this meeting Mrs. Brown was elected president; Mrs. Lucille Courtney, Secretary and Mrs. John Sorrell, song leader; Mrs. Gertrude DeLoach, Mrs. Sorrell and Mrs. Lee Grant were elected objective committee chairmen.

Cooper Home Demonstration Club is to meet once a month on every second Monday. The next meeting is to be at the home of Mrs. Lee Grant on January 14, 1952.

In making this announcement, Miss Mary Louise Wright, Home Demonstration Agent, stated that this brings the number of Home Demonstration Clubs in Chilton County to seventeen.

Clanton Dry Goods Merchants Will Be Open All Wednesday

For the next two Wednesday afternoons, December 12th and 19th, the Clanton Dry Goods merchants will keep their stores open for business as usual.

However, on Wednesday December 26th, the day after Christmas, all Dry Goods stores will remain closed all day. This announcement was made today by the retail Dry Goods merchants of Clanton.

Keep Chilton County Green Committee Met

KEEP ALABAMA GREEN, a program sponsored by The Alabama Forest Products Association, with the purpose of promoting better woodland conservation, met and launched a local "Keep Alabama Green" drive at the Courthouse in Clanton, Friday November 29 at 3:00 p.m.

Thirty-five (35) enthusiastic landowners and forest products manufacturers attended the meeting. The responsibility of the organization is to constantly remind the public of the dollar and cents plus conservation of soil and water that can be derived from the forest lands. Also the real cause of and damage of numerous uncontrolled forest fires.

We are grateful for such an organization in the county and expect Chilton County woodland owners to profit from such an organization.

Chilton County Bureau Program

The Chilton County Chamber of Commerce is very much interested in the present membership campaign of the Chilton County Farm Bureau.

In the first place, many of the members of the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce are farm owners and operators and all the other members are dependent upon the success of the farmers of our area for progress and prosperity. The members of the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce are familiar with the great and constructive program of the National Farm Bureau and are appreciative of the importance and necessity of Chilton County having a large Farm Bureau membership and an active organization.

Practically every member of the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce is entering into the Farm Bureau membership campaign, but not only paying their dues, but by urging the farmers of the county to support the Farm Bureau by joining at this time. If you are a farmer and you are not contacted by your community Farm Bureau representative, the Chamber of Commerce urges you to contact James Dennis, secretary-treasurer, in Clanton, or the Farm Bureau office over Western Auto Store in Clanton.

Annual Meeting For Jersey Cattle Club

Auburn, Ala.—The annual meeting of the Alabama Jersey Cattle Club will be held at the Tutwiler Hotel in Birmingham, December 12, at 10 a.m.

Assistant secretary of the American Jersey Cattle Club, J. T. Cabanagh, will be the principal speaker at the morning session.

Dr. J. L. Brakefield, director of public relations for the Liberty National Life Insurance Company, will be the inspirational speaker at a luncheon honoring the junior winners in district shows and the state dairy show. His subject is Americanism.

Other speakers appearing on the program are W. J. Alverston, State National Bank, Albertville; Pete Turnham, A. P. I. Extension Service dairy specialist; J. W. Davis, fieldman for the American Jersey Cattle Club, and Professor W. H. Eaton, secretary and treasurer of the Alabama Jersey Cattle Club since its organization in 1935.

The director of the Alabama Jersey Cattle Club will meet the night of December 11 to formulate the 1952 program.

CITY LAW REPORT

"During the past week the City Police have made 13 arrests for various law infractions. Among them are two for Bond Forfeiture, one for no Drivers License, two for speeding, one for driving while intoxicated, one for violating prohibition law, one for reckless driving, one for passing school bus while unloading, and 4 for public drunkenness.

To Appear At City Hall

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carr of Carr Floral Company, Birmingham, will appear in Clanton at the City Hall with a Carr Load of Christmas Creations, Tuesday, December 11th at 7:30 under the sponsorship of The Music Appreciation Club. Tickets are available through members of the Club at $1.00 each.

Rats Destroy 200 Million In Grain Annually

Rats can squeeze through openings half their size, so all openings around drain pipes and wire conduits should be closed.

Only rat-proof construction and hardware cloth and metal sheeting.

The 200,000,000 bushels of grain destroyed by rats every year would make 12 1/2 billion loaves of bread, or 317 loaves for each of the 39,139,000 households in the United States.

The common brown rat is not native to America, but it arrived here from Europe about the time of the American Revolution. It gradually spread westward to the Pacific Coast by land and by ship and is now found in every State. Montana was the last frontier; rats were not reported in that State until about 1920.

Only rat-proof construction and sanitary environment will keep rats out permanently. Where this is not entirely practical, poisons, traps, and gasses should be used periodically.

Norway rats are natural diggers, their burrows go down about 18 inches. Rats are excellent swimmers. Rats can jump almost two feet high. Roof rats are good climbers, often running light wires.

Rats have sharp incisors, they can gnaw through lead pipes, pierce tins on jelly tumblers, work their way through poor cement walls three inches thick, cut through slate shingles, sun-dried bricks and oak planks.

Rats will kill baby chicks for sport as well as for food.

Trapping records show rats may migrate four miles in a week.

Rats look for winter quarters in the south side of farm buildings. In the spring they will migrate to outside areas and live in fence-rows and ditch banks. The best time to get them is when they start to come back into buildings in the fall.

If we realize the above facts are true we will get all the rats killed on our farms and save thousands of dollars in Chilton County.

JEMISON FFA ENTERTAINED LIONS CLUB

At the regular meeting of the T-J Lions' Club of Thorsby and Jemison, held in the auditorium of Thorsby Jr. High School, the two quartets of the FFA-FFA entertained. The girls who sang were Katie Middlebrooks, Ann Martin, Paula Lorey Cunningham and Peggy Cost; the boys were Charles Williams, Billy Conway, Kendall Martin and James Martin, accompanied by Janice Miller, all of Jemison. Everyone enjoyed the singing.

This was ladies' night meeting with more than 60 people attending. It was reported that plans were under way for the giving of blood on December 21 and it appears that this program will go over 100 per cent. The club also voted unanimously to sponsor the Jemison Boy Scout troop. The club was served turkey dinner by the Thorsby PTA.

POULTRY PRODUCTION

Food buyers have never before had available to them so great a supply of high quality poultry meat as they have now. At the same time, the consumption of poultry meat this year is higher than ever, except the three war years of 1943, 44 and 45 when shortages of other meats boosted poultry production and sales.

Eighty-Three Years Young

H. T. Pipes was eighty-three years young Wednesday of this week. He was born in 1868.

Mr. Pipes is still active despite his 83 years and visits his scores of friends in and about town every day.

The News wishes "Mr. H. T." many happy birthdays to come and admires him very much for his sunny disposition and his ability to spread sunshine wherever he goes.

There will be a Christmas program and a demonstration on making nylon corsages at each meeting.

LIVEN UP THAT OLD, DULL LOOKING DRESS

Auburn, Ala.—Many women have found that three colorful ties about one and-a-half inches wide and 28 inches long will give an old-drag-colored dress a new life.

Levice Ellis, A. P. I. Extension Service clothing specialist, points out that "red, green, blue, green, and sea yellow to well with brown. Two-tones or shades of blue are used with red."

"Ties may be made from rayon slousie crepe or taffeta," says the specialist. "To make them, cut a bias strip three inches wide and 29 inches long, then fold it lengthwise. Start stitching at one end and stitch to the middle of the tie. Break the thread, leave an opening about two inches, then stitch to the opposite end from corners and seams, turn and press, then slip-stitch the two inch opening together."

She adds that ties may be fastened in the center or they may be left free so colors can be combined for a particular frock.

DEMAND FOR FLUID MILK

For the first time in over two years Alabama dairymen are unable to meet the state's demand for fluid milk. This situation offers an excellent opportunity for more farmers to enter the gray A field.

WAY FARMERS CAN CONSERVE RUBBER

One way farmers can conserve rubber, that is once again a priority item, is to give special care to rubber tires on farm equipment.

CATTLE LICE

Lice on cattle may literally suck the profit out of a beef or dairy head.

Election Managers Please Take Note

The Board of Registrars would appreciate it very much if you would look over the poll list and mark off the dead ones and also all that have moved out of the county—J. D. Culp, Chairman Board of Registrars.

Mrs. Hugh Jones Again Appointed Cancer Head

Chilton County's fight against cancer will again be led for the next 12 months by Mrs. Hugh Jones, of Clanton.

Her appointment as Chilton County Commander for the Alabama Division of the American Cancer Society was made public here today by Mrs. Lillian G. Meade, of Birmingham, the Society's State Commander.

"As County Commander, Mrs. Jones holds one of the most important posts in what is going to be the greatest effort ever undertaken in Alabama to stop preventable deaths cancer is causing here," Mrs. Meade said.

The entire cancer education program in Chilton County—the first and most essential step, doctors say, toward cancer control—will be under Mrs. Jones' direction.

The work that Mrs. Jones will do will have a direct bearing on the future health and safety, insofar as cancer is concerned, of one of out every six men, women and children alive in Chilton County today, because that is the number medical statistics forecast will be struck by cancer at sometime during their lives—one in six.

Mrs. Jones, and all those who assist her, will serve as volunteers without compensation as a service to their community.

Mrs. Jones has always been identified with the religious, cultural and P. T. A. activities of Clanton and Chilton County. She is very active in our Lady's Catholic Women, having held various offices in both organizations.

Mrs. Jones is a member of and past President of the Clanton Study Club. She is a member of the Board of Chilton County Community Concert Association. During the War she served as County Chairman of the Women's Division of the War Finance Committee, when Chilton made such an enviable showing throughout the nation.

STARTING CHICKS

Since the most profitable time to start chicks for the laying flock is in January and February, it's very important that poultrymen place orders with their hatchermen as soon as possible.

REDUCE BLOATING OF CATTLE

Seeding of grasses on pure stands of white clover and other legumes should reduce trouble from bloat to a great extent next spring.

PRICES PAID FARMERS

Prices paid Alabama farmers began increasing in October for the first time since the downward trend that began last May.

CARRY A FOLDED SHOPPING BAG WITH YOU

MURDER IN MOSCOW

AS IT PROGRESSES

A fortnight or so ago we remarked here on the growing trend among cities to emphasize parking meters as a source of revenue rather than for the originally announced purpose of using them as a means of distributing parking space.

We don't realize how far the practice has gone. There's the experiment in Denver, for example, as reported by the City Managers' Association.

Not content with getting pennies and nickles for as many minutes and hours as there are in the day, Denver is testing a device to trip the clock on meters when motorists pull out of parking spaces before their purchased time is up. In short, this gimmick will keep a motorist from using the time another has bought but didn't use.

Its mechanism is simple. It consists of a bar set into the pavement about midway in the parking space, parallel with the curb. The bar is hooked electrically with the meter and when a driver pulls out, his wheels cross the bar and the contact resets the meter and flips up the red flag.

Denver officials are quick to point out that they are only experimenting and the meter might be illegal. After all the time a motorist buys is his—not the city's—and if he wants to waste it or lease it for another motorist that's his business.

But, and this is clear, if Denver motorists don't complain and resist, the gimmick will soon be standard equipment on all meters.

Communications are excellent these days and if the penny-pincher is accepted there, the time won't be long before it shows up elsewhere.—Dothan Eagle.

GO SLOW—MEN WORKING

"Although millions of words have been written and spoken on our current taxation program too little attention has been paid to one aspect of it which jeopardizes the nation's future," says W. Alton Jones in the magazines Service.

"In the early days of the Republic John Marshall stated that the power of tax was the power to destroy, and James Madison described one way it could be done—by eating up the seed corn.

"What is seed corn? As any farm boy knows, seed corn is that part of the year's harvest which is set aside for the next year's planting . . .

"The seed corn business is likewise the difference between what a man produces and consumes. It is called profit, or savings. . .

"When political agencies expend a nation's savings in non-wealth-producing enterprises, rather than individuals in the development of new industries, there can be no progress.

"Two-fifths of our total employed in 1930, as Senator Byrd pointed out recently, had jobs in industries which did not exist in 1900.

"Here are two facts: For twenty years, more and more of our seed corn has been consumed by Washington agencies in non-wealth producing enterprises. . .

"Thoughtful men realize that no political organization since the world began ever developed a great industry. Even water works and the post office were developed by the savings and energies of individuals who pooled their resources under private management. . .

"We advise our representatives in Congress, to whom we have given the power to tax, that they keep constantly in mind that it is also the power to destroy. They should consider whether the so-called present-day 'welfare' we are distributing so widely at home and abroad is unduly depleting our seed corn, and our eat-

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

The other day a report was made to the Sheriff's office that a fellow had a cow missing. He didn't know but what the cow had been stolen so he reported it and ask that the Sheriff investigate. Luther sent out his Chief Deputy Rubin Gore to see what he could do and make a report. Rubin found the cow alright. She was cow-drunk (that's even drunker than dog-drunk), and laying in the pasture where the Sheriff's force had wrecked a sill and dumped mash all over the ground. We never learned whether she died or just waked up with a severe hang-over. The report that some of the fellows tried to engage some of the cows milk if she recovered is not true.

Someone found a beautiful gold wrist watch on the streets of Clanton last Monday morning. The owner can come to the Chilton County News office and identify it and claim it. If you can describe the watch we will give you the name of the man who found it and he asked us to write this paragraph. The watch must have cost . . . at least.

This paragraph was taken from the West End Baptist church Bulletin and, we think is worth reprinting: The title is "A Boy Is a Bank." The boy is a bank where you may deposit your most precious treasure—the hard won wisdom, the dreams for a better world. A boy can guard and protect these and perhaps invest them wisely and win a profit—a profit larger than you ever dreamed. A boy will inherit your world. All your work will be judged by him. Tomorrow he will take your seat in Congress, own your company, run your town. The future is his, and through him, the future is yours. Perhaps he deserves a little more of your attention now.

Merry Christmas everybody. Clanton's Christmas lights are going up this week week. Hope it gives everybody the Christmas spirit and puts the urge to give to others into their hearts. When the committee visits you for a donation to the 1951 Christmas Chest dig deep. It is the best and cheapest way you can possibly get your money or gifts of food and toys to the needy. And more is needed this year than ever before.

Heard this week that Mrs. Earnest Caldwell and Mr. John Will Partillo were married recently. The news reached us a bit late but we wish for Mr. and Mrs. Partillo the happiest years together.

The fellows upstairs in the Farm Security Administration moved over to the John Higgins Building last week. For the first two or three days we spent 99 and 44-100 per cent of our time telling folks that the office had moved. We didn't know those fellows did such a wonderful business up there. Incidentally, Dr. Charles Moore says he has the upstairs for rent now and we like to get some more good neighbors up there. If you're interested see Dr. Charles Moore for the details.

Did we hear somewhere there would be a new FM Radio Station in Clanton? Seems we did. Don't know whether it's been broadcast yet or not but if it hasn't you will probably hear about it over the airways in the near future.

The Man Who Likes Others

I WALKED DOWN the street with a friend one day when I had not had the experiences that the intervening years have brought. We chanced to meet a mutual acquaintance and stopped for a few words with him. During our brief meeting this third man made a couple of cynical remarks. As we went on our way I said, "I don't like that man."

"Don't you?" answered my companion.
"Well, do you?" I asked. "You heard his embittered remarks?"

"Yes, but I don't know what engendered them. I don't like that side of his nature; but we all have more than one side."

Soon my friend and I parted. I haven't seen him in years. But he is always with me for those remarks of his will live in my memory as long as I live, and I have found that you can, and will, like most people you permit yourself to like. I recently read an article in Your Life magazine telling of Henry Ford having been asked once "Who is your best friend?"

Carnegie

Ford thought for a moment, then took out his pencil and wrote in large letters on the tablecloth, "He is your best friend who brings out of you the best that is in you." Like people, help people—and you will uncover fine qualities in them that no one suspected they possessed, that perhaps they did not possess before.

Popular people are those who take time to be human and who have developed their ability to like others sincerely and genuinely. The man who likes other people doesn't have to worry about being liked.

THIS WEEK'S TALK

Crime On The March

by

Rev. A. T. Hickman

Jesus said, "Iniquity shall abound." Paul said, "Evil men shall wax worse and worse; and that in the last days, perilous times shall come." It seems that the sayings of Jesus and Paul are now coming true to the very letter. Crime in the United States continues to increase.

There seems to be no bounds to the growth to the evil that now is. Such will continue till Jesus returns. According to the latest report of the F. B. I. covering the first six months of 1951. Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, Chief Director for the F. B. I. states that crime rose 5.1% in the cities and 4 per cent in the rural areas during the first half of 1951, as compared with the same period in 1950. This shows that evil is spreading over all parts of the country. The automobile, the radio, and television, etc., have planted the seed of Ungodliness in the rural areas as well as in the cities. The arrest of girls under 21 years of age increased 7.2 per cent. Arrests of girls in this age group for offenses against property increased 3.8 per cent while arrests for offenses against common decency (prostitution, commercialized vice, disorderly conduct, vagrancy, etc.) increased 12.6 per cent.

There was a decrease of 7 per cent in the arrests of boys under age 21. The armed Service could be responsible for this decrease. But the arrests of boys under age 21 for offenses against decency increased 2.5 per cent. Auto thefts rose 18.6 per cent in cities, and 20 per cent in the rural areas. Larcenies increased 7.9 per cent in cities and 12.9 per cent in rural districts. Rape increased 6 per cent in the cities, but down 2.4 per cent in rural areas.

A total of 419,451 fingerprint records were examined by the F. B. I. in the first six months of 1951, setting a new record. Among males, 621 per cent of those who were fingerprinted had prior arrests records. For females 46 per cent had prior arrest records. In other words, nearly half of the individuals arrested during the first half of 1951 were first-offenders. This shows that we are getting a new crop of law breakers. Those youngsters who have been kept out of Sunday School and Church for the past few years are fast becoming offenders of the law and society. This decay of moral character is a sign of the last days, and of the return of Christ. The church cannot and must not slacken her efforts to stem the tide of lawlessness. May God give us a national spiritual revival.

Your Health

EXERCISE

Exercise alone cannot maintain good health, yet many people believe it can. Good health, meaning that warm inner state of well-being and its accompanying energy, together with freedom from disease, comes not from exercise alone but from a balanced understanding of every-day living—the proper food, sufficient rest and a normal outlook on life.

Exercise, however, is a step forward in the whole process of good health-living. As in everything else, moderation is required in the output of physical effort. Planned exercise, carried on-in moderation, keeps the body flexible and supple. The abdomen, for example, can be kept flat and smooth by regular bending and stretching.

Too much emphasis cannot be placed on the circulation of the blood within the body, since it is this process that maintains at a high level the normal functions of the body. A chief value of exercise is to stimulate the general chemistry and physiology of the body through its effect on the circulation and on elimination.

This stimulation keeps the action of the muscles smooth and improves the coordination of nerves and muscles. That is particularly true in persons beyond twenty years of age. In young persons, exercise serves to stimulate body growth generally. Vigorous sports can be considered useful up to age 30, but after that, more harm than good may result from overactivity.

Suitable and mild exercise for persons at all ages includes swimming, walking, golf, horseback riding, fishing and gardening. Certain exercise, if excessive, will cause severe muscle strain and exhaustion, leaving the body in a state of susceptibility to many conditions that will cause pain and discomfort.

Exercise then, taken regularly instead of in spurts, can be beneficial, keeping the machinery of the body functioning smoothly. Exercise is an individual problem, and it is well to remember that "what is one man's meat is another's poison."

Worry

Is a thin stream of fear trickling thru the mind. Encouraged it cuts a channel into which all other thoughts are drained. Perhaps someone has told you to quit worrying. These kindly souls, not having any worries of their own, think this fear can be turned off much like the water tap.

No one can quit worrying unless they are given some assurance that their fears are unfounded.

CHIROPRACTIC care given carefully and scientifically will dispel the fear of worry by proving to you that it can maintain your body in a state of health perhaps never before experienced by you. When you understand the simple principles of this wonderful healing science you attain a peace of mind which coupled with the increased tonicity of your body will permit you to face life with a smile, to be stronger and live longer. Whether its a new born babe or a person looking forward to hitting his hundredth birthday, Chiropractic care is never too early or too late.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bryant (nee Jean Williams) announce the arrival of a baby boy, born Nov. 28, at West End Baptist Hospital in Birmingham whom they have named Stephen Benet. Mother and baby are doing nicely at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bryant here.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR:

To: Editor, Chilton County News

The proposed amendment to the State Constitution, to be voted on in the election Tuesday December 11, is of vital interest and concern to the National Guard of Alabama. However, passage of this amendment should be of primary importance to every voter in Alabama. This proposed amendment represents an effort on the part of the legislature to remove the National Guard of this state from the field of politics. It was introduced by Dallas County's Sen. George Quarles, long an outstanding leader in the Alabama National Guard, who saw the need for such legislation. This amendment passed both houses of the legislature without a dissenting vote but must be ratified by the voters of the state.

In short the amendment will supercede the present state law which permits the removal or elimination of any or all officers on changes of administration or the discretion of politicians.

Under the amendment an officer would not be removed except for proper military cause and after following proper military procedure. Also the officers would be appointed on the basis of military qualifications, service, ability and character. All the officers in the Calera unit were appointed under this procedure, appearing before a board of regular army officers before the appointments were granted.

At a meeting of the National Guard Association of Alabama early this month, the amendment was unanimously endorsed.

We as members of the 657th Transportation Truck Company, a unit in the Alabama National Guard stationed in Chilton County, heartily endorse this amendment No. 3 and urge all voters in Chilton County and vicinity to vote YES for Amendment No. 3 at the polls on Tuesday, Dec. 11.

For the Commanding Officer,
JAMES C. MARTIN, WOJG

Parents' Problems

By DONALD M. MAYNARD

How are parents to teach their children the value of keeping clean morally?

I suppose fear of the stigma attached to immoral behavior has been a factor in some cases in keeping one morally straight, so far as behavior itself is concerned. At the same time, it is quite apparent that this fear has not been too effective in the past.

The basic cause for wholesome, clean living is not so much fear of the stigma that may be attached to a violation of the moral code, as it is an intrinsic appreciation of all that which is fine and true and good, and a respect for the sacredness of personality. This appreciation must be developed through the years and begins in early childhood. It develops in a home where parents and brothers and sisters maintain high ideals and have happy experiences together. One cannot overestimate the importance of example.

But example is not enough. Boys and girls need to be educated about sex and its place in life. As their questions are answered honestly in the home, as they are helped through books and classes in boy and girl relationships to understand the other sex, as they have opportunities to consider with skilled and understanding teachers what is involved in preparation for marriage, they are receiving the finest kind of foundation for clean and wholesome living.

Let us not minimize, also, the contribution of religion to the building of high ideals and standards. An appreciation of the sacredness of all persons and a desire to help others become their best selves are tremendous deterrents to immoral behavior.

It should not be forgotten, furthermore, that our boys and girls need to learn the art of self-discipline. Children who are given everything that they want, whose whims are always catered to, and who grow up utterly self-centered and selfish, have not developed those inner disciplines that provide a steady force when faced with temptation and the pull of intense emotional desires.

We have two children—a boy of seven and a girl of three. How can we handle this business of Santa Claus? Is there danger of disillusionment when the children find out about him?

This problem of what to tell their children about Santa Claus is a real one to many conscientious parents. It may be helpful to look at three different ways parents have dealt with the problem.

1. There are those who feel it is wrong to tell their children there is a Santa Claus. A young man brought up in such a family as this, reports that so far as he can recall, he and his brothers and sisters never did believe in Santa Claus and that their Christmas was as joyous as was the Christmas of those in homes where Santa was the center of attention.

2. At the other extreme, we find parents who scoff at the above viewpoint and feel that it robs children of one of the most precious memories of childhood. They frankly tell their children that there is a Santa Claus, that he lives at the North Pole, that he receives letters from boys and girls, and may even go so far as to say that he is especially eager to please "good" little boys and girls. There is no hemming and hawing on their part when children ask questions about him. They take the position that when a child becomes old enough to know different, he will realize the truth without any great disillusionment. Experience suggests that whereas this is true for many children, for others the discovery that Santa is not an actual person is a tragic experience.

3. Between these two extremes are the parents who neither tell their children there is or there isn't a Santa Claus. At the same time, they go ahead and talk about Santa Claus, and may even encourage their children to write to him. In their conversation about Santa, however, they frequently refer to him as the "spirit of giving"; they encourage their children to notice that there are several Santa's in the stores at Christmas time; and as the children get older and begin to share gifts with others, they talk about "our playing Santa to this child or that."

With respect to your seven-year-old boy, is it not possible for you to talk to him about how much the idea of Santa Claus meant to him when he was young and that now he has an opportunity to help his little sister enjoy the make-believe story of Santa? Help him realize that gradually his sister will realize it is a make-believe story, but that in the meantime all of you will be on playing Santa at Christmas.

POPLA RSPPINGS

Glad to have each one who was out at Sunday School and Training Union Sunday. We are hoping to have many more there next Sunday. Everyone who can be sure to come. We will draw names for Christmas Sunday morning. So if you can't be present, please send in your name if you want it included.

We still have a good many messes about. We hope and pray all our sick folks will soon be well and back at church.

MISS MIMS WEDS MR. WRIGHT

Miss Sara Nell Mims and Elvin V. Wright were married November the twenty-first at five o'clock in the afternoon at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Mims of Clanton, with the Rev. Homer Carroll of Jemison officiating at the double ring ceremony, which took place before an altar of palms, white gladiolas and white chrysanthemums flanked by seven branched candelabra holding white tapers.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Mims, Route four, Clanton. Mr. Wright's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Wright of Pine Hill, Ala.

Miss Jeanette Mims, sister of the bride and Miss Sara Elizabeth Mims, cousin of the bride lighted the candles.

Miss Brenda Bradford, niece of the bride-groom was ring bearer.

Nuptial music was presented by Miss Warren Willis.

The bride was lovely in a dress of Navy wool crepe and a winter white hat, with accessories of snakeskin. Her corsage was of lavender orchids.

After the ceremony, the wedding party and guests were entertained at a reception in the Mims home.

An exquisite lace cloth covered the bride table which was centered with the two-tiered beautifully embossed wedding cake, centered with a miniature bride and groom. Burning white candles in crystal holders completed the table appointments.

The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Herman LeCroy. Mrs. Luther Mims presided at the punch service.

After a Florida wedding trip, the couple will be at home in Lenden, where they are members of the faculty of Linden High School. Mrs. Wright, head of the Vocational home economics department, is a graduate of Alabama College, Montevallo. Mr. Wright, a graduate of A. P. T. is head of the High School's department of Vocational agriculture.

Out of town guests at the wedding were Mrs. J. M. Wright, mother of the groom, of Pine Hill; Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Bradford and daughter, Brenda, of Linden; Mrs. W. M. Agee of Selma and Mrs. Gerald Wright of Pine Hill.

Future Homemakers of America

The Future Homemakers of America of C. C. H. S. held their regular meeting Tuesday, November 27, 1951, in the library for the purpose of electing Miss F. H. A. for this year, to represent our organization in the county.

The executive board presented to the club the following nominations, Barbara Davidson, Jean Thompson, and Elinor Warr. The following were added from the floor, Nannette Nivens, and Patricia Broadhead.

There were a total of 62 votes cast by secret ballot, 32 votes being a majority, were received by Patricia Broadhead. Her runner up were Barbara Davidson and Nannette Nivens. Patricia, an active member of the Sr. I club is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Broadhead of Clanton, Ala.

Plans were made for our Chapter president, Elinor Warr, to meet with the Christmas Community Chest Committee. Each year this work is one of Clanton's chapter projects.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to the many friends for their kindness shown us during the illness of our son Hershell. We especially wish to thank Liberty Hill church for their nice Love offering and above all for the prayers of all the Christian people every where. May God's richest blessings be with each and every one of you.

Mr. and Mrs. Clint Billingsley and boys.

Vote Against Road-Bond Amendment Number 1

It cannot be right to say that we do not have money to match Federal Aid when the gas tax this year is almost 50 per cent greater than it was during the 1st year of the previous administration.

It cannot be right to say that with a bond issue there will be more money for building roads when the cost of the issue reduces the amount by 25 to 30 per cent.

It cannot be right to pyramid the money of four administrations and spend it in one year.

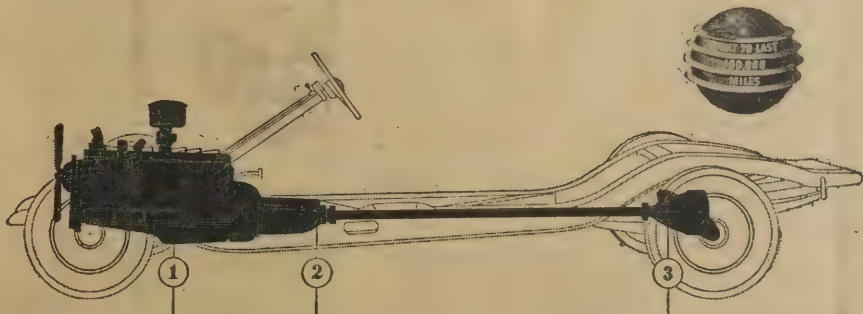

It cannot be right to glut the market with contracts to rob the State and make a few people richer.

It cannot be right to deplore inflation, then issue bonds and pyramid spending to increase it.

Congregational Church

We are glad to welcome as new associate members of our church Miss Daisy MacBrayne and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Johnson.

On Saturday, December 8, there will be a meeting for Laymen from the churches of the Central Alabama Congregational Christian Association. The meeting will start at 4:00 p.m. Mr. Herman Cook, president of the state Laymen's Fellowship will speak. Supper will be served at 6:00 p.m. All the men who are members and friends of our church are urged to come.

Thorsby Institute News—

The students making "A" Department Honor Roll for the second term are Earlene Baggett, Lawayne Collins, Nell Deason, Heidi Dismuke, Lewis Johnson, Sara Ruth Manning, Marylou Markovitz, Imogene Marold, Peggy Parrish, W. A. Perry, Shirley Peterson, Lois Popwell, Mable Williams, and Martha Jo Woodson.

Make your plans now to attend the Literary Society Christmas program which will be held on December 14, at 7:30 p.m.

Legion To Observe "Go to Church" Sunday

The Thorsby American Legion Post No. 206 will observe next Sunday, December 9, as "Go to Church Sunday." The Legion always observes this custom on the Sunday nearest Pearl Harbor. All members are to meet Sunday morning near 10:30 o'clock and go in a body to the church. They plan to attend the services Sunday morning at the Baptist church and Sunday evening at the Congregational church. The morning service at the Baptist church will be held at 11:00 and the evening service at the Congregational church will be at 7:15. All members of the Post are urged to attend these services, if at all possible.

P.-T. A. Serves Lions Thanksgiving Dinner

The Thorsby PTA served the Lion's Club with a Thanksgiving dinner at the Junior high school on Thursday evening, November 29. A very interesting program was enjoyed by all who were present. Two local quartets furnished music.

Mrs. Clorine Littleton, president of the PTA, decorated the tables in a very attractive arrangement. Pine boughs were used as greenery, running down the center of the entire length of the U shaped tables. On the inside of the bend of the U, was an improvised turkey and a horn of plenty, out of which poured a variety of seasonal fruits and vegetables. This with the addition of individual dishes of colorful salad served to sharpen appetites of those who enjoyed the well filled plates which held the chicken and dressing, cranberry sauce, celery sticks, english peas, giblet gravy and the desert dishes filled with fruited jello with lemon cheese cake and coffee.

As the dinner came to a close, Lloyd Howard, who is a member of the Lions club and P.-T. A., was presented, to his astonishment, a lovely birthday cake with all 39 candles burning.

Everything seemed to add to the merry making and started the Christmas spirit of "Good will to all men" which is just in the offing. All funds realized from this dinner went to the PTA.

Mrs. Grover Rice and Mrs. Carl McDowell spent Saturday in Birmingham. Mrs. C. J. Turner and her parents were visitors to the Magic City on Saturday.

The Union Baptist church Missionary Society held its monthly meeting at the church with all the circles making good reports and also a nice Thanksgiving offering was raised. Mrs. M. L. Dorse, pres., Mrs. Elena White, Sec.

The Odd Sewing Club met Tuesday with (Miss) Martha Moore as hostess. A tasty fish plate was served which all enjoyed.

Sunday, Dec. 2, 1951 the Ruth Bible Class met at the home of Mrs. Minnie Davis. After a timely devotion the scripture lesson was read by Mrs. J. S. Stephen and was beautifully taught by Mrs. M. B. Coker. A nice program was rendered, then refreshments were served to the following: Mesd. L. M. Draper, A. L. McCall, Aldotha Banks, L. M. Gunn, Elma Bell, E. L. White, Gladys Stone, Emma Trimble, Mary Kate Griffin, Annie Pearson, Mary Austin, Ada Lane, Odett Chapell, Martha Moore, Mrs. L. M. Draper, Pres. Elma Bell, Sec.

Mr. Sammie Hicks of Alton, Ala., was home last week to attend the funeral of his aunt Mrs. Hattie Robinson. Funeral was Wednesday Nov. 28th at the Fountain Chapel church. Rev. A. F. Abercrombia officiating.

Mrs. Nomia Wright and daughter Lonnie Fay spent the week end in Birmingham, Ala., visiting relatives.

Rev. N. H. Smith, Jr., and Miss Leslie M. Edwards visited Rev. Smith's sister and family, Rev. and Mrs. D. L. Motley of Union Springs on Monday of last week.

Providence Beat 13

We had a nice attendance at Sunday School Sunday but we would still like to have more next Sunday.

Our pastor, Brother Crumpton, is still in the hospital. Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Harrell and Phyllis and Mrs. Eunice Cox visited him Sunday afternoon. All the church joins in wishing him a speedy recovery.

The children of Mrs. F. B. Waits gave their mother a birthday dinner Sunday. We all wish her many more happy birthdays.

Miss Rosa Green was the Sunday guest of Mrs. Margaret Blewster.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Sample and son visited Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Killingsworth.

We all missed Patsy Shaw at Sunday School. She has the measles, we all hope she will be back next Sunday.

We were glad to see Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Cates, Mrs. Hazel Martin, Mrs. Catherine Horton at Church Sunday regular.

We all can tell Christmas is right around the corner. The aroma of fruitcake is in the air around the community.

We invite everyone to come to our second Sunday night singing next Sunday night.

BOWLES NEWS

On our sick list this week are Mrs. J. T. Bowles and Miss Clydie Ruth Chandler. We wish them a speedy recovery.

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Williams last week end were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Nelson an daughter of Bessemer, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Meeks and children of Talladega, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Colburn and children of Ashley and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. DeFreeze of Brighton.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Chandler had as their guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Harley Mims, Mr. Harvey Chandler and children and Mr. Erby Headley, all of Clanton.

Mr. and Mrs. Hershel Weldon of Stanton visited Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Williams Sunday.

LOCAL RECRUITING NEWS

Mr. John D. Avery, Route 4 Clanton, Ala., has enlisted in the Army to attend Officers Candidate School.

Recruiting News

The nation-wide campaign to increase to 112,000 the number of women in the Armed Services has pointed up, once again, that manpower includes womanpower.

At least it does as far as the Department of Defense is concerned. With the Armed Forces expanding to three and a half million by July, 1952, the need for WACS and WAF, likewise has expanded.

Assigning women to jobs they can do so that men in turn can concentrate on jobs that require men is simply a case of using manpower to the best advantage.

Appealing especially to women in the 18-34 year age group who are high school graduates, and have no dependents under 18 years of age.

Having served efficiently in World War II, women have now become a permanent part of the national military establishment. Today 40,000 women are filling important assignments essential to our military readiness and national security.

The realization of what women can do had been slow to gain recognition in this country. As recently as the beginning of World War II it was felt women could fill only four jobs in the military service clerks, telephone operators, typists and cooks. Today military women perform literally thousands of useful jobs.

Young women, with their capacity for progress, should join the service men and women already contributing their share of service for freedom.

Women working alongside the men of our Services are an important part of the team that keeps America free.

IRISH POTATO GOAL IS SET AT 33,000 ACRES

An announcement from the office of W. B. Crawley, chairman of the Production and Marketing Administration Committee, sets Alabama's 1952 Irish potato goal at 33,000 acres.

Mr. Crawley says that state acreage goals are based upon the volume of commercial marketings plus farm use in each state during recent postwar years, but not including that part of the crop which the government had to buy under mandatory price support programs.

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

Many local farmers learned during last summer's drought that sericea lespedeza is dry weather grazing insurance.

They and others who want grazing for their cattle in dry springs and summer months will be interested in a new bulletin written by R. Y. Bailey, Southeastern regional research representative of the Soil Conservation Service on "Sericea in Southern Agriculture." Copies of this bulletin may be obtained from the Soil Conservation office.

Bailey's bulletin stresses the value of sericea for erosion control and good land use. He also tells where and how to grow sericea and gives information on sericea for hay, grazing, seed production and others.

To go verify Bailey's statements, J. N. Dennis, Leo and J. J. Headley, C. R. Childers, Joe Smith, Joe Gowan, Sam Johnson, W. A. Williams, O. H. Lawrence, Joe Johnson, Russell Shelton, Hunter Reese, B. O. Williams, O. H. Arledge, George Jarrell, and others can give dollar and cent value of good sericea grazing.

Idle land that will be planted to sericea lespedeza should be turned immediately so the litter will have time to decay and the soil firm. Plan to plant in very early spring.

PREACH AT FRIENDSHIP

Rev. Amos Hughes will preach at Friendship church Sunday, Nov. 25 at the eleven o'clock service.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLDTIMERS

From Harvey Haught, Middlebourne, W. Va.: I wonder how many old timers remember when it was customary to have some one toll the village bell the last mile of a funeral procession. The undertaker would have the bell start tolling when the procession was far enough away so the last stroke of the bell would sound as the corpse was carried into the church. The bell was struck with a heavy hammer for each year the deceased was of age. For the family of the dead, that was the saddest sound they ever heard. It chilled every drop of blood in their bodies every time the bell tolled.

From the Old Cuss, Chicago: Booze ruined my father. But not drinking it. He was a fanatic on prohibition and spent so much time battling against whisky that he neglected his business and went broke. He believed gambling, smoking, Sunday baseball and reading fiction were evil too, but they aren't what ruined him. It was liquor—trying to keep everybody from getting it. He just couldn't leave it alone.

Things We See and Hear

BY "TUCK"

Nanette Nivens says since they couldn't win any ball games this year they'd just have to take over the F. F. A. drink stand. Speaking of the cheerleaders of course. Well they were operating the stand last Wednesday night but I think they did a mighty fine job as cheerleaders this year.

From the looks of last week's English six-weeks exam some of the Seniors had better be getting on the ball. And we thought that poetry was going to be easy. Wow! At least next six-weeks we'll know what to look for.

Well, looks like we've played our last football game this year and I must say we didn't come out of it all with a very good average. One thing for sure though, the law of averages says we'll have a good team next year. Here's hoping the law of averages still holds good.

Well fellow classmen, I have just been informed that the (Dignified Seniors) class rings are here. And we're gonna throw a party. Whoopee!

I hope the Yankees from the North don't get mad at us for sporting the You'll Suthin' flag 'cause we have, strictly turned it into a fast spreading fad. Say Mr. Keer, just where did you all get that tie with the flag on it? I sure would like to have one like it.

rather large head and I think the effects will soon wear off. If they don't in the near future I'll let you know how he came out.

Marion Deaton turned his car over the other day and there wasn't another car within seeing distance. He swears he wasn't making over 35 miles per hour and who am I to argue? Now they call him "Reckless" Deaton. There was some poor boy in the back seat with three shotguns. You know, I been wonderin' why I haven't seen him around lately. One of the shotguns must've gone off. Poor guy!

How mean can a guy get? ? ? I went to a movie the other night and the main character was walking through an amusement park. A small boy playing cowboy ran up and pretended to shoot him. The boy was carrying a balloon so our hero just sticks his lighted cigarette to the balloon and bursts it. Like I said, how mean can you get?

From all I can gather Grace Lawrence and Ruby Crew are going to be great poets. They spent all of the seventh period the other day just trying to figure out a name for their poem. Went something like this: "Why the bear wears hair at the fair."

NOTICE TO VOTERS
I am running for the title of Miss Silver Shield of 1952 and would appreciate your vote and support.

(Paid political Adv. by the backers of Miss Grace Lawrence).

Speaking of advertising, I don't believe I have ever seen the Chilton County High School with as much enthusiasm over an election as they are over this Silver Shield contest. I guess to a girl it's much more important than the president's position anyhow.

Couple! Edgar A. Poe's aren't they. Oh, well, everybody can't be poets! Can you imagine anyone getting tired handling money? Well Pat Hiddleston did the other day. Richard Thompson fell in love with her the minute he saw al that cash. Can't say that I blame him a bit. Poor girl, he wanted her to clope with him.

HIGHLAND

Our congregation was smaller than usual last Sunday for Sunday School and worship services, due to the large number either sick with the measles or convalescing after being sick with them.

Herschel, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Clint Billingsley was taken to the Baptist hospital in Selma Sunday afternoon in a very critical condition. The last report we have had at this writing is that he is improving some.

The prayers and wishes of this community is that Herschel may soon be well and able to be back home very soon.

We miss everyone who has been sick and unable to attend church lately and hope to see them all back real soon.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Nail two empty spoons to the wall of your kitchen on the inside of your closet so idle brooms won't be forever falling over. Hang the broom upside down on the spoons.

Your dressing table will stay immaculate if you keep your face powder in a decorative salt shaker. You can put just the right amount of powder on your puff and won't spill any.

You don't have to "borrow" your husband when you want to roll a skein of yarn into a ball. Just loosen the screw on top of one of your lamp shades and put the skein around the shade. It will revolve as you wind.

Do you find cheese-slicing difficult? If you cut cheese with strong thread you'll find it easier and the slices neater.

Don't throw away old woolen socks. Put them over your shoes when you start painting walls or furniture. If paint spills you can wipe it up with your foot.

Flowerpots won't fall off your window sill if you place a curtain rod across the window. It won't be noticeable if you paint the rod the same color as the windows.

Empty upstairs waste baskets into one large paper bag. With one trip to abatement of outdoor trash can you can get rid of all upstairs trash and you won't have to return baskets to their proper place again. Keep a supply of heavy-duty paper bags handy upstairs.

THE MIRACLE OF FROZEN FOODS

The miracle of frozen foods makes it possible for us to have fresh strawberries in December and perfect ears of fresh golden corn in March.

With your deep freezer in your home you can buy fruits and vegetables when they're at their prime and prices are lowest, freeze and store them for next winter's use. Save yourself many trips to the market as well.

Although most foods can be frozen satisfactorily, there are a few exceptions. Here's a quick roundup of the foods which promise best results when frozen.

Fruits—practically all kinds.

Vegetables—all except those which are to be served raw and crisp for salads, such as tomatoes, lettuce, cucumbers, onions, celery, radishes, cabbage, endives, and green peppers.

Meat—Beef, pork, lamb, veal and variety meats.

Poultry—chickens, ducks, turkeys, geese.

Game—game birds, rabbits and other small game, venison and other large game.

Fish—Shellfish, fresh and salt water fish.

Dairy products—Ice cream, sherberts, butter, cheese and eggs.

Cooked foods—Cakes, cookies, pies, pudding, bread, rolls, baked beans, chicken a-la-king, spaghetti, macaroni, meat stew, soups, leftover meats, poultry and others.

Fruit juices and purees—apple juice, cherry juice, raspberry juice, orange juice, grapefruit juice, tomato juice. Frozen foods are almost identical applesauce, strawberry puree and etc. with fresh foods in appearance, flavor and food value. When you taste the delicate flavors of foods from your freezer you'll be glad that you let frozen foods bring the garden to your table.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

A perfect outline of a Negro's face can be seen at various times of the day in the window of Carrollton's courthouse. The face appears on a window pane on the side of the building. The story goes that the owner of the face was convicted of murder and hanged many years ago. Before he went to his death, he swore he was going to come back and "haunt" the town. Local talent tells it that some years back, when a hailstorm struck the town, every window on "the face side" of the courthouse was broken except the "haunted" pane.

Alabama is the first state in which an academic diploma was issued to a woman by a chartered educational institution authorized to confer degrees. It was also the first of the "cotton states" to establish a common school system.

Bluff Hall, a 20-room ante-bellum mansion at Demopolis, was built in 1832 by Allen Glover at a reported cash price of $500. Though this is almost beyond the imagination of today, the exceedingly low construction cost is accounted for in part by the fact that the solid walls, two feet in thickness, are built in entirety from slave-made brick. All of the hardware was forged, also by slave labor, in Glover's own foundry, while the lumber that went into the floors and roof was hewn from the forest of the Glover dove domain.

Telephone Service is Growing, too
...and the price is up far less than most things you buy!

LONG DISTANCE CALLS
go through faster when you give the operator the out-of-town telephone number.

RAPID GROWTH—that's one thing this young fellow has had in common with telephone service since his babyhood.

ACTUALLY, in just five years the number of local telephones Alabamians can call has more than doubled. And this year's increase in Alabama telephones is expected to reach about 32,000.

BEST OF ALL, this bigger, better "package" of service has gone up on the average far less than prices in general ... and less than the cost of providing the service.

ALWAYS one of your biggest bargains, telephone service is today an even better buy than it was ten years ago, and a smaller part of your family budget.

SOUTHERN BELL TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY

There's extra protection for your family in a CONCRETE HOUSE

...it affords protection from

- FIRE. Concrete can't burn! That's important because every two minutes some one's house goes up in flames. Don't take chances! Protect your family and prized possessions—build with firesafe concrete.
- STORMS. Sturdy, durable concrete is weather-resistant. It turns back wind, rain, hail, storms and twisters. You'll enjoy security and peace of mind in a concrete house that gives lifelong protection.
- TERMITES. They can't penetrate concrete. Guard against this insect that can literally eat your house from under you. Build with concrete foundations, walls and subfloors and free yourself from worry.
- HIGH UPKEEP. Being durable and weather-tight, a concrete house costs far less to own over the years because: Moderate first cost + low maintenance expense = long years of worry-free service = low annual cost.

CHEVROLET

More people buy Chevrolets than any other car!

WE'LL put it up to you! There must be plenty of good reasons why more people buy Chevrolets than any other car.

Here are some things to think about.

There's the way Chevrolet looks. Nice clean, curved lines—like cars in the high-price field! Chevrolet's Body by Fisher sets the pace among low-priced cars.

There's the way Chevrolet rides and handles. The smoothness and big-car comfort of Unitized Knee-Action. Bigger brakes—biggest in the field—for safer, surer stops. Finest no-shift and standard driving at lowest cost with Powerglide or Synchro-Mesh transmission.

There's the way Chevrolet saves. Chevrolet is the lowest-priced line in the field and the savings go on and on with low operating costs.

There are plenty more reasons why Chevrolet is America's favorite. Come in and let us show them to you.

Chevrolet's time-proved POWERglide automatic transmission

Finest no-shift driving at lowest cost. Combination of Powerglide Automatic Transmission and 105-h.p. Engine optional on De Luxe models at extra cost.

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at the Regular Session of 1901, created a committee to report upon the qualifications of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which said amendment is herein set out, and ordered that said committee report to the first Tuesday following the expiration of three months after the final adjournment of the session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed; and

AND WHEREAS, the first Tuesday following the expiration of three months after the final adjournment of the session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed will

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law, and by the provisions of the act submitting the amendment, to be given by a proclamation of the Governor to be published in each county in the State of Alabama once a week for four successive weeks next preceding the day appointed for the election:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Gordon Persons, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday, the 11th day of December 1951, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama, in the manner and form provided by law, upon the

"STATE MILITARY FORCES sections 274, 273 and 276, Article
XV, of the Constitution of Alabama are amended to read as follows:

"§274. The Legislature, in providing for the establishment of the military discipline of the State military forces, shall conform as nearly as practicable to the general principles of the military discipline of the United States, and the laws of the United States, governing the military forces of the United States. All affairs pertaining to the State military forces shall be under the supervision of the Military Department, which shall be headed by the Adjutant General, and who shall report to the Governor as Commander-in-Chief.

"§273. Officers of the State military forces, including the Adjutant General, shall be subject to suspension, discharge, removal, or other punishment, as determined by the Military Department, on the basis of military proficiency, character and service, as determined by Departmental action, and for any other military usages sanctioned by the military laws of the United States, anything in this Constitution to the contrary notwithstanding.

withstanding. The qualifications of personnel of the Federally recognized National Guard shall be as prescribed in pertinent regulations and policies of the United States Department of Defense.

"276. The Governor shall, with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint The Adjutant General and all general officers. The Governor shall appoint his own staff, as may be provided by law."

I further direct and recommend that notice of the action upon these bills be taken by the Governor on or before 1955 upon the expiration of the term of the Governor, so that the Governor-elect of the State of Arkansas in 1956 be given the opportunity to make his selection from the list of names submitted to the Senate for the purpose of appointing the staff of the Adjutant General.

to the public. The publication of the report has been given the highest priority by the publisher, the National Bureau of Economic Research, and the report is being published in the "Journal of Economic Literature," the leading journal in the field.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15, 1934.—The National Bureau of Economic Research, Inc., has announced that it has received from the Federal Reserve Bank of New York a copy of the report of the Committee on the Monetary and Financial Conditions of the United States, which was published in the "Journal of Economic Literature," the leading journal in the field.

"In addition to all taxes now or hereafter authorized by the Constitution and Laws of the United States, Fayette County shall have the power to levy and collect a special ad valorem tax to be levied on each one hundred dollars worth of taxable property in Jayette County, the proceeds of which shall be used exclusively for public purposes; provided that such tax and the purpose thereof shall have been first submitted to the vote of the qualified electors of the county and voted for by a majority of those voting at such election. If the proposal to levy the tax is defeated in an election, subsequent elections thereon may be held at any time. The tax, if levied, shall continue for a period of twenty-five years. The elections provided for herein shall be called, held, conducted, paid for, and governed otherwise in the manner provided for by election on school district tax authorized under Article XIX of the Constitution of Alabama, by Article 7, Chapter 10, Title 52, Code of Alabama, 1901. The collection of the tax and the use of the proceeds shall also be governed by the provisions of Article 7, Chapter 10, Title 52, Code of Alabama, 1901.

I further direct and proclaim that notice of this election upon Tuesday the 11th day of December 1931, upon above set forth amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama, shall be given by publishing the same once a week for four successive weeks in the State of Alabama, beginning on December 1931, in each county in the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said county.

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS
By OLIN G. FIELDS

Corn and cotton stalks should be cut and left on top of the ground. Such a practice will serve as a stubble mulch to protect the soil from erosion and will also cause the stalks to rot quicker and be less in the way for the next crop.

Kudzu planting time is just around the corner. If crop land is the place you desire kudzu, crown planting will be best. On sedge, new ground, or other land that has been idle long enough so that crab grass is not a pest, then kudzu seed will be better. If you plan on planting kudzu seed please call by the office to get planting instructions and the probable price. A. D. Collins states, "Kudzu is one of the best plants I have. I want an acre of it for each cow."

To insure plenty of summer and frosted grazing, kudzu will fill the bill if managed so as to keep a cover of leaves over the ground at all times. For hog grazing kudzu is tops for supplying the feed, protein, and palatability that is desired, plus erosion control for your soil.

Established fescue is now filling a gap between summer and spring grazing on the following farms in Chilton County: James Kincaid, Jack Roberts, Malcolm Manning, C. C. Mims, George Jarrell, A. D. Collins, Jim Lockhart, G. U. Mims and others. Young fescue should not be grazed until well established and the ground, dry so that the cows will not pull it up.

Timber is one of Chilton County's poisoning or otherwise deadening the undesirable hard wood, the young pine will not be smothered and held back. Remember, a good stand of unburned timber will never cause an erosion problem.

Quail hunting season is now here. Most birds will be found where there is plenty of cover plus plenty of food. Plan now to plant an acre next spring for your quail.

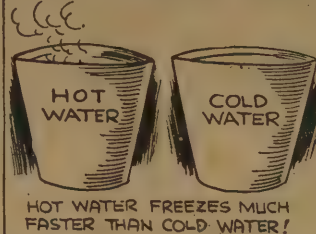

W. A. Williams and G. U. Mims have harvested Mims' lespedeza sericea to expand the planting on both farms. Williams will use his sericea for summer grazing for milk cows. Mims will use his sericea for summer grazing for beef cows.

Joe Johnson, C. R. Childress planted their fescue grass last week. The fescue was planted of Kobe and Sericea lespedeza stubble.

O. H. Lawrence will apply 100 pounds of ammonium sulfate per acre on his Grady Bryant and Woodrow Hunter are preparing land for a planting of kudzu. Kudzu is one of the best soil conserving crops and Bryant and Hunter will utilize their kudzu with hogs.

If you don't believe Kudzu and Fescue will extend your grazing system over the driest or coldest of weather, ask Ed Clapp or Dr. H. M. Nix at Maplesville, Ala.

Unburned woodland will absorb a lot of water which will keep soil and mud out of streams. Good business and good conservation farming are essential to a good country community.

She states that Axminsters still lead all other kinds of carpets in sales, but consumers are showing a preference for the twist-type with the harder surface and nubby or pebbly look.

Reasons consumers give for preferring this type are that it shows soil and footprints less easily, has good scuff resistance, is of plain color, yet may give a two-tone effect because the uneven surface provides highlights and shadows.

W. M. U. Circles Held Meeting

The two circles of W. M. U. came together at the church for a program from Royal Service on Monday afternoon, November 26th at three o'clock. Miss Ola Rogers was program chairman. The topic of study was Asia.

The devotional was given by Mrs. George Naikh, who read Daniel 3:8-18, then the song "I Would be True" was sung. Then Daniel 3:19-25 was read. This scripture told of the three men who refused to bow down to a golden image and were cast into the fiery furnace. They believed God would deliver them, "But if not," they believed God and served him anyway. Mrs. E. L. Coffey brought the topic "Whither Asia." Mrs. Jewel Peterson gave the part "Fires of Discontent." Two desires possess the people of Asia today. One is the desire for freedom, then to be free from hardships. They long for the Material good things of life. The hymn "The Light of the World is Jesus" was sung. Mrs. Jack Lenoir read a part on "Communism". Mrs. Susie Middlebrooks read "Southern Baptists in Asia." During the business session it was decided to continue with the same members in each circle for another year. Plans were made for the "week of prayer" program. Envelopes were given out for the Lottie Moon Christmas offering. Seventeen members were present.

The attendance at the services is steadily increasing. The Training Union attendance is above the average. The theme for December is "Self or Others." The aim is to inspire us to live lives of fruitful Christian service. It is a very fitting aim, as we are nearing the Christmas season, the time God gave His son that all might be saved. It is a time of giving for us, may we give sacrificially, that others may have the needed material things of life and that others may have Christ in their lives. May we say in truth, "O Master let me walk with Thee." The director of the Training Union is Mrs. Seymour Reynolds. She has had quite a bit of experience in this work and is leading the Union to gain in numbers as well as spirit. Mrs. B. C. Lenoir is her able associate leader.

The Sunday School Superintendent is Mr. S. L. Griffin. The attendance has increased since he began his work. There is a monthly officers and teachers meeting on Wednesday night after the first Sunday. These young men were appointed as Junior ushers, William Vines, organizer and chairman, Floyd Guy, Edgar Peterson, Oscar Blow and Bobby Jones. These will serve through December. Others will be appointed to serve each month. Rev. Carroll brought very forceful sermons morning and evening. The scripture for the morning service was from Matt 14th:24-30. The topic used, "What do You Fear?" This scripture used in the evening service was Psalms 103. "Bless the Lord, O My Soul and Forget Not all His Benefits." What Jesus does for the Soul.

Ordination Service of Deacons
Sunday afternoon at 2:40 o'clock an ordination service was held at the church. Rev. G. H. Carroll, pastor, Rev. B. B. Burks of Thorby and Rev. Lowery of Liberty Hill, composed the presbytery. Mr. Russell Scott led the song service. The Rev. Fred Lowery examined the candidates, Messrs. J. O. Cobb, S. L. Griffin, J. A. Chandler, V. O. Lenoir and J. L. Stephens. The Rev. B. B. Burks preached the ordination sermon. The service was closed by the Ordination prayer by Rev. Carroll and the laying of hands, song "Bless Be the Tie That Binds." Benediction.

The W. M. U. observed the week of prayer for Foreign Missions, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the church, from 3:00 o'clock to 5:00 o'clock.

Christmas Cantata
The adult choir will present a Christmas Cantata on Sunday night, Dec. 23 at 7:30. All are invited to attend.

Plans are being made for a Christmas program, including a Christmas tree. This will appeal to children from 1 year to 60 and more. Let's all enter into the spirit of the time. The Children's Home will be remembered with a liberal cash offering.

Methodist News
The W. S. C. S. met at the home of Mrs. A. C. Bratton, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Plans were made for the joint meeting of W. S. C. S. and the W. M. U. of Baptist church. This is to be a Christmas party, with the Baptist ladies presenting the program. Members of the W. S. C. S. will serve refreshments. The meeting will be held at the Methodist church, Sunday afternoon, Dec. 16th.

Mr. Frank Merchant, of Birmingham, spent the week end with his daughter, Mrs. Lonnie Cobb and family.

Mrs. Vines of Clanton was with her son, William and family over Sunday.

Attending the Auburn-Alabama game on Saturday were Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. V. O. Lenoir, Charles Cobb, Joe Frank, Cobb and Joe Frank's room mate, John Young of Jackson, Miss.

Mrs. Dezzie Littlejohn has returned from a two weeks visit with Dr. and Mrs. James T. Littlejohn and little daughter, Laura Ann of Asheville, N. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Woodley, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wood and Mrs. E. H. Woodley spent Monday with the Sam Woodleys.

Mrs. Marvin Durbin spent Saturday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bratton.

Rev and Mrs. Richard Peterson were with his people several days last week.

The Harmonettes, a quintet of Jemison girls, Barbara Jo Beaman, Alyce Jo Langston, Janice Jones, Sut Beaton and June Handy, sang at the Lions Club meeting at Alexander City, on Tuesday night, December 4th. Mrs. C. L. Walton was accompanist.

Pfc. John Shofner, of Gunter A. F. B. was the Sunday dinner guest of Betty Glass.

The Farmer's Stake in Stabilization

Farm income and farm savings have gone up steadily in the past 10 years. Average income per farm rose from $713 in 1940 to $2,178 in 1950, while total farm income in the United States jumped from $4 1/2 billion to $13 billion.

Although the average income per farm was more than three times as much in 1950 as in 1940, there was a decline of 27 percent between 1947 and 1950. Dollar earnings this year will be back near their 1947 peak. But because of the inflation which took place before the general price freeze, the 1951 income will not buy as much as the 1947 income.

Farmers' savings in cash, checking accounts, Defense bonds, and other financial assets total more than $21 billion. But the things the farmer's earnings can buy and the protection given his savings depend upon how successfully the United States wages the battle against inflation.

Inflation undermines the value of savings and earnings. Dollar earnings of farmers this year will be near their 1947 peak, but due to the inflation that took place before the OPS price freeze, those earnings will not buy as much as the 1947 earnings.

During the next year, the defense production program will cost a billion dollars a week and inflationary pressures will be greater and greater. The farmers of America have a big stake in helping the Nation to stabilize prices and curb inflation.

FARMERS HAVE REASON TO BE PROUD OF THEIR LAND BANK SYSTEM

Farmers of Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana are proud of the Federal Land Bank and the 79 National Farm Loan Associations in the three states. The banks and the associations have a net worth of over 26 million dollars. They are owned entirely by the farmers who use them.

The bank and the associations are operated for the sole benefit of farmers. The long-term loans and small annual payments make it easy for members to repay their loans. If the member has a crop failure or some other disaster, the National Farm Loan Association—with a local board of directors—neighbors in many cases—will lend an attentive ear to the member's problems.

Local servicing of a member's loan affords many advantages. Consider now consolidating your debts into a land bank loan, or borrowing for any necessary agricultural purpose. Visit, Telephone or Write the Secretary-Treasurer of your

SECTION OF - CHILTON COUNTY NEWS - CLANTON, ALA.

What's In The Future?

WHILE winding up the year's work on the farm this month, it's a good idea to study the successes and defeats of 1951 and begin making plans for 1952. Although it is difficult, in fact practically impossible, to predict what is going to happen next year, it is possible and wise to lay out a plan based on the results of this year's work.

If the farming plan you followed this year made money—it probably will be a good one to follow next year. However, if some parts of the program failed to pan out as expected, perhaps some changes are needed.

At any rate, some facts about the next 12 months are fairly certain. Farmers will likely be called on for high production of many crops—namely corn, cotton, dairy and poultry products, beef cattle, and some fruits and vegetables. The crops in this group that made you money are the ones to concentrate on next year.

And while struggling to produce more, farmers are likely to run into several difficult problems. Farm machinery may be less plentiful and higher priced. Repair parts and new equipment will be difficult to obtain.

Farm labor will likely be scarce again next year. Make the best use of the labor you have by using good machinery, working for high crop yields, combining crops and livestock, and maintaining productive employment throughout the year.

Chambers And Lee Form New D. H. I. A. Testing Unit

ON November 1, the 13th Dairy Herd Improvement Association was organized in Alabama. This newest testing organization is made up of farmers in Chambers and Lee Counties.

Over 8,000 dairy cows in 23 counties are now being tested monthly through the D. H. I. A. program. Each association is a farmers' cooperative and is run by an elected board of directors. Monthly fees are paid by members to operate the organization.

The annual conference for D. H. I. A. members is scheduled for Auburn on December 19. Members and supervisors are invited to attend the one-day session which begins at 10 a. m. in Duncan Hall on the API campus.

Records compiled in the associations are helping dairy farmers get the maximum amount of milk from their animals by keeping a close check on low producers and replacing them with profitable animals.

In August and September 177 dairy animals were culled from Alabama herds for the following reasons: low production, 80; udder trouble, 35; sterility, 4; bangs, 4; other reasons, 54.

D. H. I. A. is proving its value to dairymen all over the state. Accurate records show that those compiled in testing work might easily mean the difference in success or failure.

"Just Like My Daddy's Dog"

THERE'S nothing

like a good book for relaxation in the opinion of four-year-old Carolyn Finley, shown at right. And the book especially strikes her fancy if it has a few good pictures of pets in it. Carolyn is perched on the back ramp of the Clarke-Washington Bookmobile while her mother, Mrs. Ben Finley, browses among the 3,000 books on the new "rolling library." Once each month the bookmobile, part of the Clarke and Washington Counties' free public library service, visits each community in the two counties.

In its first week of operation the bookmobile loaned out over 700 books to youngsters and adults. Requests range from children's books to Shakespearean plays; however, non-fiction books seem to be more popular than fiction. For more about this "rolling library service" turn to page four.

Moist Lowlands Make Excellent Pastures For Mountain Farmers

SAM BISHOP, of Pleasant View community, atop Sand Mountain, is 69 years old, but he hasn't let his age stand in the way of growing some of the finest pasture in Jackson County.

There are thousands of low, moist hollows on Sand Mountain and these areas are excellent for grazing crops. But it requires lots of hard work to get good pasture growing on some of these areas.

Bishop planted a mixture of 10 pounds of orchard grass, 10 pounds of fescue, and one and one-half pounds of Ladino clover per acre on his pasture land. He planted on a well-prepared, firm seedbed that was well fertilized.

The grasses and clovers on the Bishop farm are now more than ankle-deep and are green as any springtime grazing. There are 41 acres on the farm and all acres not in permanent pasture are planted in crimson clover or crimson and oats.

The farmer has done well with other crops this year, too. On three acres of corn and six acres of grain sorghum, he averaged producing 116 bushels of corn and 50 bushels of grain sorghum per acre.

Some Corn! For A Dry Year

REX CROCKER, of Thomaston, says he almost beat his last year's corn production record—and that's going some.

With a yield of 128 bushels per acre on two acres and an average of 75 bushels on eight acres, Rex certainly has no apologizing to do for his 1951 corn crop.

There's no secret to the success of this farmer, explains County Agent Frank Jones. He just turned under a good crop of hairy vetch last spring and applied 500 pounds of 4-10-7 fertilizer before planting on May 7. He used the Dixie 18 variety and planted it in 30-inch rows; then 33 days after planting, Crocker top-dressed his corn with 200 pounds of nitrate of soda. He plowed the crop just twice.

Because pure seed of the Dixie Runner peanut have been found to give yields almost double the old Alabama Runner, farmers have come to give more and more attention to the importance of using certified seed of the new variety.

THAT EXTRA TOUGH—Protein supplement is good for the fattening shoats as well as the brood herd in the opinion of A. F. Cheshire, of Midland City, Rt. 1. He is shown at right passing out supplement pellets to a group of shoats in a peanut field.

If Cheshire should explain his "master's touch" in hog growing, he would call it close supervision. That's how he established an enviable record of high production. He is shown (inset) with his pig-chain sow and one of her large litters.

Dale Farmer Says

Close Work With Small Herd Spells Success

A. F. CHESHIRE isn't a big hog farmer, not by any means. But records show that his small operation is highly successful.

In fact Mr. Cheshire doesn't want to be a big producer, he's much happier doing a better job with his small herd. "Why should I have a whole bunch of sows that I can't give the proper attention to," he asks? "I'd probably raise about six pigs per litter, and any good hog man knows that's just breaking even."

The way he figures, it's much more profitable to keep a small brood herd and concentrate his efforts on those animals. "He's got a good point there and his record backs up his idea," admits Assistant County Agent P. C. Bartley.

"But to make the hog business pay," advises Cheshire, "you've got to have good hogs to begin with." That's why he started building up the quality of his hogs a few years ago. In 1948, the Midland City farmer got a purebred gilt from the Junior Chamber of Commerce pig chain in Ozark. It was the runt of the litter, too. However, under the expert attention of A. F. Cheshire this "runt" has outstripped the performance record of any brood sow in the county.

During the past three years this sow has farrowed six litters with a total of 82 pigs. She raised 67 of them, an average of more than 11 pigs per litter.

That isn't half of the story though. In one 12-month period this purebred Duroc farrowed 49 pigs and raised a record number of them. Thirty-seven of these pigs were grown out to market weight.

The Cheshire success formula is close supervision. He separates sow and pigs except at feeding time. When pigs are suckling, he keeps a close watch to see that none are injured. After the pigs get a couple of weeks old this isn't necessary—they are pretty well able to take care of themselves.

"The amazing thing about Mr. Cheshire's brood sows is the fact that they are always in good condition," says Agent Bartley. Mr. Cheshire has a simple explanation for this. He feeds protein supplement to his brood herd throughout the year. And the small pigs get a good start in life on a balanced ration including plenty of minerals.

During the three years since Cheshire got his "runt pig" from the chain, the "runt" has produced almost eight tons of pork.

In terms of dollars and cents that means over $3,000 worth of pork. And most any hog producer will agree that's a mighty hard record to beat.

STATE'S BEST CLUB—Fort Davis is Alabama's "outstanding home demonstration club of 1951." This bit of good news was reason enough for the broad smiles displayed by the club's president, Mrs. Ira Vail, right, and Miss Mary Thompson, Macon County home agent. Congratulating the Fort Davis Club president at left is Mrs. Lillie M. Alexander, A.P.I. Extension state home demonstration agent, of Auburn.

The state-wide contest to find the outstanding club is sponsored each year by the Alabama Farm Bureau Insurance Companies. The winning club received a $100 cash prize and the club's president received a free trip to the annual meeting of the Alabama Council of Home Demonstration Clubs held in Biloxi, November 5-7.

District winners in the contest each received a $25 cash prize and a trip to the Biloxi meeting for their presidents. District winners were the Waco club, Franklin County; North Brewton club, Escambia County; and Fish Hatchery club, Calhoun County.

Along the Way

FARMERS will be free to plant cotton again in 1952. There'll be no quotas or acreage allotments. This has been announced officially by the secretary of agriculture in Washington.

It is based on the fact that the total supply of cotton is almost two million bales below "normal" supply—the level at which quotas are automatic.

While farmers will have no official restrictions on planting cotton, many other factors will be involved. Each farmer, in planning his cotton acreage should consider: (1) labor, (2) fertilizer available, (3) equipment, and (4) insecticides and other needed items.

Experiences of 1949 and 1950 convinced farmers of the danger of unpreparedness for insect control. This can recur in 1952.

The aim of every farmer, of course, is high production per acre at a low cost per pound. Another big need is to fit cotton into a good combination with other crops and livestock for a balanced operation and a high profit while the land is improved.

This brings us up to a major objective for 1952. It will be that of more emphasis upon food crops, without neglecting fiber crops, of which cotton is No. 1 in Alabama.

With U. S. population increasing at a daily rate of 6,000 and more people abroad crying for more food, the demand for production of more food is urgent. This is especially true of corn and other feed crops needed for making meat, milk, and eggs. Each is essential.

There is still much discussion as to what farmers may expect in the way of fertilizer and equipment. The supply of fertilizer, especially phosphate, is expected to be tight. Some shortages may occur.

But one fact is now certain. It is that farmers should buy fertilizer well in advance of time to use it. If stored on a producer's farm, he'll have no doubt about it, and early buying will enable mixers and manufacturers of fertilizer to keep operating their plants.

If military preparations continue—as now appears certain—there'll be more shortages of steel, copper, aluminum, and other materials going into farm and home equipment. The urgency of enough farm equipment is being made known to those who make allotments of these materials for different uses.

Emphasis is being placed on the fact that more food will be needed, and that there'll be fewer people on farms to produce these products. Fiber production must be continued at a high level. Cotton, of course, is both a fiber and a food crop.

A good way to offset a labor shortage is to use more power and equipment of the right kind. The same is true of more fertilizer per acre—and of the right kind.

On the farm labor situation two facts are clear. One is that industry will be employing more workers, and the other is that more men will be called into the armed services.

Another highly important factor in farming next year—and every other year—will be sound information properly applied at the right time. With fewer people on farms to produce more farm products, it is imperative that each farmer get and use the best information available on every need or subject. So county agents will be in greater demand next year than ever before.

When farm income was low, farmers earned very little per day working on their own farms. But farm income is much higher now and to earn a high daily income for himself a farmer must use all of the know-how available. Otherwise he doesn't succeed.

Before winter sets in, is a good time for the livestock producer carrying eight, ten, or more brood sows to build and have a central farrowing barn ready for next spring's litters. Constructed and used properly, they are pig-savers, labor savers, and feed savers, because little pigs can be started with less danger of parasites. County agents have a supply of plans for homemade central farrowing barns that are not costly to build.

Watch For Poisonous Plants In Pastures

By HENRY S. WARD, JR., Associate Botanist
A.P.I. Agricultural Experiment Station

POISONING of livestock from certain species of plants has probably occurred among domestic animals in Alabama since the days of the early settlers. However, it is only when wholesome forage becomes unavailable during periods of severe winter killing and droughts that illness and death in livestock become frequent as a result of eating poisonous plants. Such periods of scarcity of forage occurred during the past winter, spring, and summer, and illness and death from poisonous plants in livestock on Alabama farms was more prevalent than usual.

Of the 50 known poisonous plants, investigations have shown that only seven plants cause a majority of the illness and death in livestock. These plants are yellow jessamine, mountain laurel, oleander, scrub oaks, bracken fern, white snakeroot, and ergot on Dallis grass.

During the winter and spring the evergreen type of plant is the source of trouble. The most common plant of this group which occurs throughout the state is a vine called yellow jessamine. This vine is often intertwined with the honeysuckle vine and is eaten by the animal when browsing on honeysuckle. Mountain laurel often causes poisoning. This shrub is usually found along streams and rocky hillsides from the central portion of the state northward.

Oleander, an ornamental evergreen shrub that grows from Central Alabama southward, is sometimes a source of poisoning. This shrub is eaten by animals when they have access to grazing near dwellings, or when pruned limbs from the oleander bush are thrown into the feeding area of the animals.

During the late spring and early summer dry period of 1951, several cases of death in cattle were found to be caused from eating excessive amounts of scrub oak leaves. In each of the cases the cattle had been allowed to graze in a cutover woodland area with a large amount of scrub oak present and a scarcity of forage.

In many areas of the state where grazing was scarce during the summer because of the drought, several deaths in cattle were traced

Lesson In Forestry

GENEVA County Assistant Agent Dalton Shields, right, gives a few pointers on wood lot improvement to Reuben Mayo, 14, Walon Mayo, 12, Roger Dannelley, 16, and L. L. Mayo, all of Samson, Rt. 3. The topic is selecting trees to be removed from the wood lot. Shields pointed out that this tree would never make good quality lumber, so it should be removed to allow surrounding trees to grow faster. Reuben and Walon Mayo are undertaking a large scale 4-H Club forestry project. In addition to looking after 180 acres of pine timber they are setting out 5,000 pine seedlings.

The group is shown in a tract of timber on the Mayo farm.

EXPERT TRACTOR DRIVER—Wisecracks about women drivers don't bother Jean Wise, of Kinston, Rt. 1. She can handle the farm tractor as well as her dad and spends much of her time driving it.

She Cooks, Sews, Sings, And Farms

State 4-H Song Leader Handy With Many Projects

ALABAMA's new state 4-H Club song leader, Jean Wise, of Kinston, Rt. 1, is well prepared for her job. She's been singing since she was two years old.

But having a leader in the family is no new experience for this Coffee County family. Members of the J. T. Wise family have been farm and community leaders for many years.

Jean began her leadership career three years ago when she helped to organize a neighborhood 4-H Club in her community. She has been a leader in recreation, singing, and project achievement ever since. But she has other interests too.

In fact, Jean is right at home on the farm tractor, looking after her flock of hens, cooking cakes, or making a new dress. But she is at her best when leading the singing for a 4-H Club or community meeting.

Perhaps Jean inherited her talents, because Taylor Wise, her dad, has long been known in South Alabama as a singing teacher and community leader.

But it isn't all play for members of the Wise family. Each member is responsible for his part in running the farm and home.

June Wise, 17, is the family seamstress and did all of the sewing until last year. She still makes her own clothes and those of Mrs.

Wise, but Jean has started turning out some designs of her own. June also does most of the cooking, but Jean takes over the job of canning and freezing for the family table.

Jean explains the sharing of responsibilities in her family as a cooperative project. "When there's work to do we all work," she says, "and when the work is done we all play together."

This system has proven sound too. Under the joint management of Taylor Wise, Mrs. Wise, June, and Jean, their farm has prospered. The 80 acres surrounding the neat, brick farmhouse tell a story of good farm living. This living comes from a well planned system using corn, cotton, peanuts, hogs, and poultry as cash crops.

Mrs. Wise, the silent power behind this outstanding family, is a leader in Coffee County home demonstration work. Taylor Wise has been a county Farm Bureau director for three years. And they both are active in youth work. Last year the whole family helped to start a monthly recreational meeting in the community. This "youth night" is now a favorite of youngsters and adults near Kinston.

Folks who know Jean Wise are sure that the pretty 12-year-old singer will be one of the best state 4-H Club officers in the organization. "For Jean wouldn't be satisfied doing an ordinary job, she would only do the best," they say.

RUN RABBIT RUN

THERE is little wonder that "Brer Rabbit" runs so fast. He has a good reason for being so speedy because he is the most hunted of all Alabama forest animals.

According to figures gathered by the Alabama Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit, squirrels are second on the Alabama hunters' popularity list, and quail rank third.

The researchers reveal that successful squirrel hunters bag their game either by still-hunting or dog-hunting. Early morning is the best time to hunt the "bushy-tails" because studies have shown that they are most active from dawn until around 9:00 A. M.

Still-hunters report that they are more successful when they remain quiet among acorn or other nut producing trees which are used for food by the squirrels. Ninety per cent of all squirrel hunters use shotguns, but the hunter who uses the 22 rifle not only gives the squirrel a more sporting chance but gets more kick out of his sport.

COMMUNITY STOP-OVER—Young and old alike flock to the loaded shelves of the Clarke-Washington Bookmobile when it visits a community. Here the new traveling library makes its regular monthly stop-over in the Mt. Vernon community near Thomasville. At right Mrs. J. C. Connerly, of Cortelyou, picks out a book at a scheduled stop in Washington County. The rolling library visits every community once each month.

Pulling Together

Farm Groups Join Hands To Build Library Service

THE crowd at the crossroads in the small Clarke County community gradually grew larger. Everyone was there for the same purpose, and yet each had a different mission. Mrs. W. L. Finley needed to borrow a new cookbook; Mrs. Alma Phillips was interested in poultry; the 80-year-old colored farmer quoted Shakespeare, and four-year-old Carolyn Finley wanted to see pictures of dogs.

The news had traveled fast—through the newspapers, on the radio, and by the local grapevine. This was the day—the first visit to the community of the new Clarke-Washington Bookmobile. And these book-hungry people were out to get a first look at this new library service.

Mrs. D. H. Bloomer, bookmobile librarian, checked out the books and answered questions. "No, I am not selling books. . . Yes, you may keep the books for one month free." Requests were for cookbooks, religious books, agricultural books, and fiction. And strangely enough, non-fiction books were more popular than fiction.

But the story of this traveling library began long before this day in a meeting of the Clarke County Home Demonstration Council. Miss Lucile Burson, home agent, first presented the bookmobile idea to the club leaders in 1937. They liked the idea and appointed Mrs. C. A. Coats, Mrs. Vernon Cammack, and Mrs. A. Baize Fleming as a committee to work out some plan of organization. They decided to sponsor a bookmobile, but first a base library must be established to feed the traveling library.

With $100 donated by the clubs in the county, a Ladies' Birthday Almanac, and a set of encyclopedia, the Clarke County Public Library Service was born. Donations of books started coming in and soon the library committee found themselves with books, but no library. So Probate Judge Coma Garrett, Jr., offered the use of a small attic room in the courthouse, known as the "Crow's Nest." Club members made curtains, dug up shelves, and turned the place into a presentable library.

The library continued to grow, and by this time each home demonstration club had established a community library shelf. These neighborhood shelves began with only nine books each—three children's books, three technical books, and three fiction. But at last the club women were able to see their goal of a bookmobile in sight. Through the combined efforts of the Grove Hill Community Study Club, the County Commissioners' Court, and dozens of other organizations, the Grove Hill Memorial Library moved into its new brick home in 1950. Now the base library was ready.

And in the spring of 1951, the Clarke County Board of Commissioners appropriated $3,500 for a regional library service program. Washington County also put up $3,500, and the Bookmobile was a reality.

The Alabama Public Library Service, with Mrs. Lois Rainer Green as director, loaned a truck to get the rolling library under way. The state will also give $8,000 a year for three years to buy more books for the library. Next year the Clarke-Washington library will buy the bookmobile. After three years it will be supported entirely by local funds.

However, there's little chance that the rolling library will fail to get local support. Long ago these far-sighted community and civic leaders realized that "reading people are growing people." And folks in Washington and Clarke Counties are confident that their rolling library service will continue to grow right along with the people.

"Early grazing means extra milk now and a better milk base next summer, when the surplus period comes," is the explanation Willie L. Jenkins gives for getting his winter grazing program off to an early start. And Jenkins can convince you that it pays to have that grazing too, when he starts talking about the extra can of milk his cows began producing shortly after he turned them on 30 acres of oats and clover. The Opelika, Rt. 2, dairyman is shown at left, above, with Lee County Agent Jack Taylor in a field of oats and clover planted on Sept. 3. Jenkins turned his cows in on the crop on Oct. 5 and four days later they were producing an extra can of milk per day.

This Month on the Farm by API-EXTENSION SPECIALISTS

FIRE equipment recommended for farms includes ladders long enough to reach the top of the highest building, hose and buckets of water, and approved fire extinguishers located just inside the door of the house, the barn, and other buildings.

THE lumber market is getting stronger as restrictions on building are eased. It is beginning to appear that this winter will be a good time to hold out for a high price for stumpage, especially if the timber is on a good site suitable for all-weather logging.

WITH summer crops harvested and winter crops planted, December is a good time for farmers to plan next year's operations. To conserve and make the best possible use of every acre should be the goal of every farmer.

TO prevent mice and rabbits from destroying young fruit trees this winter by girdling them near the ground line, place a protector of quarter-inch hardware cloth around the trunk of the trees. It should be pushed about two inches into the ground to prevent mice from burrowing under it. All grass and trash should be cleared from around the trees to destroy hiding places.

DECEMBER is a good time to thin overcrowded pecan groves, prune all types of fruit trees and vines, set new plantings of fruit and berries, and clean up all trash and rotted fruit from the orchard. Trees that are infested with scale should be sprayed with an oil emulsion. The scale will be easier to kill now than later.

NOW is a good time for farmers who saved their own planting seed to make definite arrangements for getting cottonseed re-ginned and treated for planting the 1952 crop. Re-ginned and treated seed should be put in good sacks and stored in a dry place. All treated seed should carry a tag labeled "poison."

CAN you bring more land into use by clearing up bottom lands that are not now in use and making them into permanent pastures? Clearing up bottom land is a mighty good way to invest time in December. Many farmers can add to the acreage they are using by clearing up the creek and branch bottoms that are usually so well suited to permanent pastures.

IT is a paying practice to cut your cotton and corn stalks as soon after harvest as practicable. If they have not already been cut this should be done in December. If the stalks are cut and left on the surface of the soil, they will help control erosion, decay faster, and save good organic matter. You cannot afford to burn or remove the stalks from the field.

BULLS that have been kept away from cow herds should be put back with cows if calves are desired next September. If October calves are wanted, the bulls should be brought back January 1.

SORTING RAW MATERIALS—At left, Mrs. James Falkenberry, of Tunnel Springs, sorts broom corn while her seven-year-old son, James Dowling, looks on. The Falkenberry Broom and Mop Factory is operated entirely by handicapped workers. At center, James Falkenberry places a bundle of new brooms near the sewing stand. His small home factory turns out an average of 50 dozen brooms and 30 dozen mops each month. James Falkenberry is shown at right trimming the rough broom corn and binding into shape with steel wire. In his job he must handle razor-sharp knives, yet the blind worker never makes a wrong cut.

"Out Of The Darkness"

Blind Farmer Is Successful With Broom Factory

JAMES FALKENBERRY deftly trimmed the ragged straw with the razor-sharp knife, and expertly fitted the bundle on the wrapping machine. Then as he wound a tight coil of steel wire around the end of the bundle, the article began to take on its true shape.

He handed the strange looking article to Bud Brown who added the finishing touches with a huge needle and thread. The article was complete, yet neither of them had seen it. You see, both James Falkenberry and his helper are blind.

The Falkenberry Broom and Mop Factory, near Tunnel Springs in Monroe County, is operated entirely by handicapped workers. The plant force consists of Mr. Falkenberry, who has lost 99 per cent of his sight; Mrs. Falkenberry, a paralytic cripple, and totally blind Jeremiah (Bud) Brown.

Mrs. Falkenberry does all of the sorting of broom corn and mop yarn, James does the trimming and molding of the brooms, and Bud Brown does the final sewing. The small factory, located in the back room of a service station, turns out an average of 50 dozen brooms and 30 dozen mops per month.

Falkenberry owns his own trucks and employs two regular drivers to distribute the brooms to customers. All products are sold wholesale only to retail merchants in Monroe, Conecuh, Clarke, and Escambia Counties.

And although the factory has been in operation a little less than two years, "Red Bird" brooms have become a favorite with merchants and housewives alike.

When James graduated from high school in 1939, his sight was almost normal, and he began work as a mechanic. But gradually the tissues in his eyes began to die—before long he would be totally blind. "I have been almost totally blind only since 1945," says James, "but most of the mechanical work I did for two years before then was done by touch instead of sight."

However, despite his handicap, James leads almost a normal life. He still goes fishing occasionally, takes in the movies, and listens to the radio. "I can't do much good fishing with anything except a tight line," he says, "but I still enjoy trying for the big ones."

"The movies aren't so bad either," he insists, "it's just like listening to a play that you can't see." His favorites in movies and radio programs are musicals and mysteries with an occasional cowboy picture thrown in for variety.

James Falkenberry has no grudge against life though. The way he figures it he's a pretty lucky fellow. After all, he is a successful businessman and making his own way. And for that he is thankful.

Recipe For December

WITH Christmas holidays ahead, most homemakers are planning Christmas dinner around the roast turkey or chicken with the traditional trimmings. Instead of the regular type of cranberry sauce that you have always used, try this recipe for cranberry relish. It's easy to make and may be made in advance and stored in the refrigerator. In addition to being excellent with your dinner, it's also a nice food which would be most appropriate and appreciated as a gift to a friend.

CRANBERRY RELISH

1 lb. cranberries	½ c. chopped nuts
2 oranges	1 c. sugar

Wash cranberries and oranges. Slice oranges in sections and remove seeds. Grind the oranges and the cranberries, using the medium-fine blade of the food chopper. Add sugar and chopped nuts. This is excellent served with meats.

PATRIOTIC PROJECT—Members of the Rinehart Girls' 4-H Club in Cherokee County are all smiles over the success of their most recent club project. The girls decided that the Rinehart School needed a new American flag so they decided to put on a fund-raising drive and buy the flag. The 7th and 8th grade girls played softball and charged the other students and visitors a small fee for the privilege of watching. And the games must have been good because the girls soon had the needed cash collected. Presenting the flag to Rinehart Principal W. Fred Browder, left, is Bobbie Ray Tallent, president of the 4-H Club. Club members looking on are, left to right, Polly Yancey, Jane Weaver, Patty Boyd, Geneva Bentley, Charlotte Cavin, Carylton Reynolds, Sue Nixon, and Sue Reynolds.

NEW LIVESTOCK SHOWPLACE—Another regional livestock coliseum was recently added in the state. The building, shown above, is located at Monroeville. The structure boasts a seating capacity of 2,500 spectators, a lobby, kitchen, display room, concession room, pantry, an office, supply rooms, and steam heat. The shelters on each side are designed for the showing of farm and home machinery and appliances. Three tie-in barns now under construction will complete the facilities for the livestock showplace.

Which Hog Do You Grow?

STYLES change. While the 1919 Model T Ford was one of the best cars of its day, it could hardly keep pace with the modern cars and trucks of today. And like the derelict vehicles of the late teens, the 1919 model hog can't stand competition with today's meaty rooters. Surpluses of lard and stronger demands for good red meat have changed the type of market hog most in demand.

Pictured below are champion purebred animals that were picked by some of the nation's outstanding judges at some of the biggest state fairs in the past years. These pictures show very clearly the difference in the "old style" and the modern type hog.

LARD was in big demand in 1919. So, while this barrow looks short, fat and ugly now, he was a grand champion Hampshire then.

LONG LEGS and cat hams were popular 22 years ago. Although he's no barrow, this pig was a 1929 champion. This type isn't very profitable now.

INTERMEDIATE type was developed several years ago when lard got into trouble. Farmers learned that "right type" and economical gains must go together. This 1946 champion Poland China is a good example.

LITTLE lard, with lots of meatiness as shown by good balance and length, was what it took for this intermediate type Chester White to place as grand champion barrow in one state fair in 1950.

Lee 4-H'er Gets Early Start In Beef Business

WILLIAM GULLATTE, JR., will always remember 1951 as a banner year. For this year the young Beulah 4-H'er started a project that he hopes to build into a beef cattle herd.

The new business is a beef cow and calf project. William is buying a Hereford brood cow and will raise his calf the practical way—on milk and grass.

The 11-year-old club boy developed a liking for beef cattle as he watched his father care for the herd of Herefords on the I. E. Maxwell farm which he manages. And the youngster grew to like the beef animals even better after the farm owner, Dr. I. E. Maxwell, gave him a steer to fatten out for the Lee County Fat Stock Show last spring.

Raising that calf just about convinced the boy that he wanted to grow up to be a beef cattleman, but the real clincher came when Mr. Gullatte and Dr. Maxwell arranged for the youngster to buy a good Hereford cow and start a brood cow and calf project.

William is one of eight Lee County Boys who started cow and calf projects this fall, and Assistant County Agent Dick Teague states that five or six more boys may join them with the new type project before the year is out.

Teague says plans are being made for the boys to enter the calves they raise in a cow and calf show to be held next fall. This show will replace the fat steer type shows that have been held in the county for the past few years.

Frequent trips to the fields where the cattle are grazing help William Gullatte keep a close check on his brood cow. And of course the youngster carries along a few choice tidbits for the pet animal.

The purpose of this project is to teach the boys how to develop a good grazing system and grow cattle on home-grown feed. This type of project will also give them a start toward building a herd if they want to stay in the cattle business.

Several Black Belt counties already have programs of this type under way.

Poison Plants

to bracken fern poisoning. It is thought that rather large amounts of bracken fern must be eaten by animals before death will occur.

In a recently established pasture area of the Black Belt, the grass and legume planted were killed during the summer drought. As a result, one of the few green plants left for grazing by the cattle was a robust perennial herbaceous weed known as white snakeroot. Investigation showed that rather large amounts of white snakeroot had been browsed by the cattle and this had resulted in the loss of several head.

Another common type of plant poisoning not associated with periods of scarce forage is ergot on Dallis grass. In damp weather after Dallis grass has formed its seed-heads, a pinkish to darkish brown mold called ergot appears on the seed-head. Cattle are often poisoned by eating these ergotized seed-heads.

It is believed that none of the seven poisonous plants cause rapid illness and death in livestock. Symptoms of poisoning usually occur in the animal only after it has eaten the poisonous plant for several days or sometimes weeks. Poisoning of this type is cumulative.

Symptomatic conditions of affected animals are generally the same from all poisonous plants. A specific species of poisonous plant is not diagnostic. Generalized symptomatic conditions of affected animals are depression, loss of weight and appetite, inability to stand, nervousness, and bloody stools. Therefore, illness and death in livestock can be definitely associated with poisonous plants only if the browsed plant is found in the grazing area or if an identifiable part of the plant is removed during post-mortem from the animal's stomach.

Now is a good time to send samples of cottonseed to the state seed laboratory in Montgomery for germination tests. Last spring many cotton farmers found out too late that their cottonseed would not come up due to low germination.

HIGH-POWERED MOWER—Merlyn Carter, 15, doesn't mind a few bushes, the rotary-type mower behind his tractor will make short work of them. Merlyn is using the mower to cut cotton stalks and stray bushes on the Carter farm. The Henry County 4-H Club member says that this new mower is really the thing for cleaning up pastures, too. It will pulverize anything that the tractor will ride over, and will cut up and shred saplings up to three inches in diameter. Young Carter says that in cutting cotton stalks he can cover 15 acres per day. The mower has heavy blades, similar to a hammer mill, that turn at a very high rate of speed. A heavy steel shell protects the tractor driver from flying debris. Merlyn lives on Abbeville, Rt. 3.

Winter Gardening

NO gardening chart is given for December. But there are several gardening chores that need attention this month.

Normally it is not risky to plant English peas in the southern part of the state at this time. Other vegetables that may be planted in southern counties now are onion sets, cabbage plants, turnip seed, and most other root crops and leafy vegetables. In this area the risk of cold injury is not great.

December and January are the best months to plant asparagus crowns.

Cabbage, lettuce, and broccoli seed may be planted in December to be set out of doors in February. Seed should be planted in seed boxes, cold frames, or hotbeds about eight weeks before time to set the plants in the ground.

Once a year the garden needs a heavy application of animal manure. December is a good time to do this job. Six to 10 tons per acre makes a good application; however, for small gardens three to five one-bushel hampers moderately packed per 100 feet of row will be equivalent to the necessary tonnage.

Another mineral element that should be applied to gardens every four or five years is lime. Except in the lime lands of the Black Belt, applications of basic slag, lime, finely crushed limestone, Selma chalk, or Ocala lime should be applied. For the lighter, sandy soils one ton of crushed limestone per acre, 100 pounds to a spot 22 feet by 100 feet, or six quarts to a row three feet wide and 100 feet long, will be sufficient. Stiff clay soils need twice as much as the lighter sand. It will require one and one-half times as much basic slag or twice as much Selma chalk or Ocala lime to achieve the same liming effect as that produced by crushed limestone.

Now is a good time to get those flat lands that dry slowly and remain cold a long time ready for the spring garden. Such land should be ridged up before winter rains begin so that it will dry out quicker next spring.

Farmers who planted breeder, certified, or pure first-year cottonseed should save an ample supply of planting seed for the 1952 crop. Be sure to store your planting seed in a dry place. It's a good idea to make arrangements now to get your seed delimited and treated. Proper treatment is very important in the control of seedling diseases. Reginned seed should be treated with a recommended dust at the rate of three ounces per 100 pounds.

Plans Made For Better Breeding Stock

"BULL SESSION"

The executive committee of the State Artificial Breeding Association has voted that eventually all unproved bulls at the Auburn stud will be replaced with desirably proved animals. This means that Alabama dairymen in counties where there are associations will have a chance to get better quality calves. The executive committee includes, left to right, bottom row—Joe Hall, Montgomery; R. H. Slaton, Loachapoka; J. I. Ford, Alexander City; top row—Aubrey Abrams, Ohatchee; Dawson Day, Five Points; Carl Peinhardt, Cullman; Mark Williams, Spring Hill; Herman Bailey, Somerville; Jimmy Farnell, Mobile, and John Louis Whitley, Opelika.

Starting The 4-H Club Year

NEW OFFICERS—Newly elected officers of the Needham 4-H Club in Choctaw County are eager to take over their duties. They were elected recently at the first meeting of the club this fall and will serve until the end of the school term next spring. Shown at left above, talking over their many plans for the coming year are, left to right, Mary Booker, vice-president; Geraldine Kelley, secretary-treasurer; Patsy Faircloth, reporter; Norma Jean Manley, song leader; Miss Nettie Grace Meadows, assistant home agent, and Dorothy Wright, song leader. Seated is President Betty Joyce Todd. At right are the boys' officers. They are Jack Todd, president; Thomas Earl Huckaby, vice-president; Larry Hearn, secretary-treasurer; Gaynor Turner, song leader, and in front, Earl Jenkins, song leader.

Better Seeds And Varieties Boost Farm Income

By RALPH R. JONES
A.P.I. Extension Marketing Specialist

DURING the past decade many changes have occurred in Alabama agriculture. Most of them, of course, have come about as results of applied research on the farm and in the home. Our farmers are doing a better job of protecting their soil resources; crop yields are higher; more livestock have been added; farm families are living better; and possibly most important, the farm income has risen.

Many factors are responsible for this progress on Alabama farms. Some accredited advancement to better fertilizers; some to better machinery; others to more efficient use of labor or land resources. Often overlooked, and possibly one of the most important factors, has been the use of new and better plants or crop varieties.

These plants and new and improved crops have enabled Alabama farmers to virtually lift themselves by their boot-straps from a period of farm uncertainties to an era of progress and prosperity.

The story of these new and better crops had its beginning on the A.P.I. Experiment Station. New crops, clovers, and grasses are continually selected, bred, and tested, on the main station and substations located throughout the state. Unnoticed by most of us, this work was started some 20 or more years ago. From this research have come many new and better crop varieties. The progress was slow but positive.

As new crops were bred and tested, or as new uses were found for old crops, seed of such crops had to be increased in order to provide for their widespread uses. This problem brought about the beginning of seed certification work which was started in Alabama in 1945. Prior to this date pure seed of the more desirable plants or crop varieties were scarce. The job of seed certification was to make abundant supplies of pure seed of the better plants available, in order to increase crop yields and establish our pasture lands.

The first year, 1945, only 510 acres of certified crop seed were produced. But from this small beginning, farmers have made almost unbelievable progress. This year more than 57,000 acres of certified seed crops have been produced. These crops are of varieties which have been bred or tested by our Experiment Station; they furnish seed which will give increased yields of 15 to 20 per cent more than old varieties which were in use 10 or 20 years ago.

Here are the acreages and yields of different certified seed crops produced by more than 500 Alabama farmers this year: wheat, 18 acres, 760 bushels; oats, 744 acres, 29,760 bushels; hybrid corn, 2,635 acres, 70,536 bushels; open-pollinated corn, 585 acres, 12,370 bushels; cotton, 25,237 acres, 408,266 bushels; grain sorghum, 60 acres, 2,400 bushels; watermelons, 200 acres, 8,467 pounds; fescue, 3,190 acres, 525,750 pounds; reseeded crimson clover, 20,344 acres, 4,069,200 pounds; peanuts, 4,726 acres, 4,726,000 pounds, and soybeans, 62 acres, 1,240 bushels.

MACHINE AGE FARMING—Mechanized farming has come to many Alabama farms, but on the Frank Allison farm in Sumter County, it has just about taken over the corn harvesting job. At left above D. P. Stewart, Jr., operates the two-row corn picker. This machine can harvest from 25 to 30 acres of corn per day and does just as complete a job as the farmer. A two-row picker such as this can do the work of a dozen farm hands. At right, Bryant Powell rakes corn from a truck onto a corn elevator which carries the crop into the crib. On the Allison farm corn is grown and harvested entirely by machines. Everything from planting, cultivating, harvesting, storing, and chopping for feed is handled by machinery.

Well Dressed Ducks

SINCE a better crop of waterfowl is expected this year than last, wild duck may be on the menu for many sportsmen this winter.

For the lucky hunter who bags the high-flying fowl, there is a better way of removing the feathers than the old methods of dry picking or scalding. The paraffin method saves time and will leave the skin on the duck.

To remove the feathers with paraffin simply fill a large bucket with water, bring to a boil, and add four or five paraffin cakes. Then remove the large wing and tail feathers of the duck. Hold the duck by the feet and dip it beneath the melted paraffin and withdraw the bird slowly.

Lay the dipped ducks on clean paper for 10 or 15 minutes to cool. It is amazing how easily the paraffin can be pulled off in large pieces taking all the feathers with it. The ducks can then be singed to remove the tiny hair-like feathers that remain.

"WINTER GREENS"—If this "turnip patch" wouldn't prove the point, an 11-foot freezer chock-full of frozen vegetables would convince anyone that Mrs. Lela Redman, of Oneonta, Rt. 2, is a champion gardener. A garden result demonstrator for the Tallapoosa Gap Home Demonstration Club, Mrs. Redman tied for first place in the county-wide contest to find the best club gardener in Blount County. The other champion gardener was Mrs. G. T. Pearce, of Reimag Club.

Farm Home Needs Revealed In Seven-State Survey

INTERESTING facts about farm housing in Alabama were revealed in a recent regional survey of housing conditions in seven southeastern states. About 200 farm families in 11 representative counties of Alabama were interviewed.

The survey brought out the fact that over 60 per cent of the state's farm people live in one-story frame houses consisting of five rooms or less. About 80 per cent of the farm houses have electricity, 24 per cent running water, and 11 per cent a bathroom. About 70 per cent of the households consist of two, three, and four members with the percentage of each being about equal. About 55 per cent of the farm homes are heated by range or fireplace; 55 per cent use wood for heating; and 72 per cent use wood for cooking.

More than 1,500 homemakers were interviewed in the survey. Through the questions asked, home economists were able to list the major needs and preferences of farm women of this section in planning homes. The homemakers were almost unanimous in their desire for more adequate storage facilities. Almost all families wanted porches—usually an open front porch and a screened back porch. Three-fourths of the 1,500 homemakers interviewed preferred a one-story house.

The regional survey was conducted under the Research and Marketing Act of 1946 by home economists in Agricultural Experiment Stations in Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia, South Carolina, and Virginia, and the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. In Alabama, Miss Florence Davis, formerly associate in the department of home economics research, A.P.I. Agricultural Experiment Station, supervised the collection of data.

Copies of the bulletin, "Farm Housing in the South," can be obtained from the A.P.I. Agricultural Experiment Station, Auburn.

Make plans now for next year's laying flock. Place your order now for chicks to be delivered in January or February. A high quality laying strain of chicks may be hard to get when you want them. So place orders well in advance of time chicks are actually needed. Early started flocks will be in production next summer when egg prices are high.

Research Results

in brief
from A.P.I. AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION

THE AUBURN STRAIN OF WHITE LEGHORNS was further improved during the past year in its ability to resist diseases as is shown by adult mortality of only 14 per cent. This is two and one-half per cent better than the 1950 flock and four per cent better than 1949. The low adult mortality was accomplished under extreme exposure to common diseases, and without culling. Auburn-strain chicks can now be purchased from many Alabama hatcheries.

FOR BEST PRODUCTION OF EGGS during the fall and winter months, baby chicks should be started early, preferably in February. A recent study of poultry practices indicates that only a fourth of the rural families selling eggs in Alabama obtain their baby chicks before April 1. And only three-fourths obtain them before May 1.

FARM POWER COSTS are 25 per cent higher per hour used on farms that use both tractors and workstock than on farms that are completely mechanized or that use no mechanical power at all. The additional overhead expense involved in maintaining two sources of farm power often seriously reduces profits and lowers production efficiency.

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE for careful, proper handling and planting of tree seedlings. Arizona cypress seedlings experimentally treated with wax emulsion to reduce transpiration did not show any better survival than properly handled and planted seedlings that had not been treated. Loss of seedlings after planting in both cases did not exceed 10 per cent.

MODERN POWER EQUIPMENT of the most economical size requires more land than most farmers are now operating. Many farmers have bought equipment faster than they increased the size of their farms. During periods of high farm prices, farmers should attempt to adjust farm size to equipment needs.

INSECTICIDAL DUSTS USED ON COTTON have held up over winter in good condition in tests performed by the Experiment Station. The dusts must be kept in a dry place in the original containers.

Concentrates used in preparing sprays have broken down when kept in an unlined container. When stored in the lined containers in which they were purchased, these concentrates have held up in good condition. If the lining is broken by damage to the container, deterioration of the concentrate will result.

THE STORAGE LIFE OF FALL IRISH POTATOES can be lengthened by treating them with either of two sprout-preventive dusts—Barsprout or Sprout Inhibitor. Potatoes treated with either of these materials at the rate of one and one-half ounces per bushel have remained sound throughout the winter. This has been the case when the potatoes were protected against freezing while in storage.

SCOUT TROOP PRESENTED FLAG

The Jemison Boy Scout Troop No. 91 was presented an American flag by the Thorsby American Legion Post No. 206 in an impressive ceremony at the Jemison high school the past Friday night. E. R. Yeargan made the presentation for the American Legion Post. The flag was accepted on behalf of the Scout Troop by Scout Jimmy Brewer.

Post members present and taking part in the ceremony were E. R. Yeargan, James H. Kincaid, S. L. McNeill, Jerry Littlejohn, Amos Glass, Tom Maddox, Fred Smith, Leonard Bosworth, Lewis Johnson and Jim Collins.

American Legion Auxiliary member present were Mabel Thompson, Mrs. J. H. Kincaid, Kathryn Johnson, Myrtle Yeargan, Glennie Collins, Blanche Bosworth and Nettie Littlejohn.

Other parents and friends present were Melba Patton, Mae McNeill, Mrs. Andy Beaman, G. C. Sewell, Lee Shamp and Jesse McFerrin.

Bill Crane, assistant Council Executive conducted a Tenderfoot Institute for twelve Jemison Scouts.

Thorsby Troop 157 were guests of the Jemison Troop. Scout Leader J. H. Kincaid of Thorsby and Scout Leaders C. E. Brewer and R. R. Black of Jemison directed Troop competition in Scouting skills. A basket ball game between the two Troops closed the program.

S. L. McNeill, chairman of the Jemison Troop committee announced that the Troop would be sponsored by the Jemison-Thorsby Lions club.

HIGH SCHOOL P. T. A.

The High School P. T. A. met on Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 11th in the Gym at the school and enjoyed one of the loveliest Christmas programs ever presented at the school.

A group of High School boys and girls presented the Christmas Story in music and a four act play. The characters were portrayed most excellently and the choir of forty voices rendered Christmas carols and hymns in a very inspiring manner under the direction of Miss Patricia Huddleston accompanied at the piano by Miss Annette Broadhead. Miss Dorothy Blalock was instructor for the entire program.

After the program the P. T. A. group retired to the school library for the business session which was presided over by the president, Mrs. James Parr. Minutes were read and reports made and in the line of new business plans were made for the Christmas entertainment for the students which will be on the closing day of School Dec. 20th.

Room count was made and the meeting adjourned.

NAMED DIRECTOR MARCH OF DIMES

REV. J. M. MCKINNEY

Rev. J. M. McKinney, local pastor of the Clanton Methodist church has been named Chilton County Director of the March of Dimes drive for 1932.

The drive will open on Jan. 2, and continue until January 31. Process of setting up the county organization is now underway. Bro. McKinney stated this week, with the hope that the response will be the best ever for Chilton County.

Bro. McKinney stated that polio has become a wide spread and dreaded enemy to the health of the people over the nation. Much is already being done to combat this disease but the hope of the 1932 Director is that Chilton County will come forward and do her part in the present drive.

U. S. GOVERNMENT HONORS LOCAL WEATHERMAN

The government has officially taken notice of the volunteer weather men serving in this area by issuing a special volume dedicated to their long and patriotic service to the nation.

Entitled "The Cooperative Weather Observer," the book lists the names of 29 observers in the state of Alabama who have served voluntarily at cooperative weather men for more than 10 years. Of this number, 9 have given the government more than 25 years service, 1 more than 40 years. For each who have served over 20 years the volume carries a short biography.

Mr. Hugh Simpson, of Clanton, Alabama, local member of this group, has served between 20 and 30 years.

CIRCLE FIVE HELD CHRISTMAS MEETING

Circle 5 of the Methodist W. S. C. S. of Clanton was guests of Mrs. R. M. Tucker on Monday evening at her home. There were seventeen members and three visitors present.

Mrs. C. D. Messer presented the program for December, after which Mrs. Tucker, circle chairman, presided over the business.

For the social hour, the group enjoyed a Christmas party which included games of fun and excitement, directed by Miss Jean Lake.

Gifts were presented to each member from the Christmas tree and each member placed a gift in a Christmas box, which will be sent to the Selma Orphanage.

Miss Ada Bennett assisted the hostess in serving a plate of Christmas goodies and hot coffee.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Maddox Find A Profit In Dairy Cattle

Mrs. W. B. Maddox of Thorsby, Route 1, gives her milk handling equipment a thorough scrubbing after straining the milk. According to Mrs. Maddox, it takes very little time to clean and sterilize pails, strainers, and cooler since none of the equipment has open seams. In the background is the sun-rack constructed to drain and sun all of the equipment.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Maddox of Thorsby have found that a few good cows can contribute greatly to their farm income. They have also found that milk sales can provide a steady year-round income.

Mr. and Mrs. Maddox started selling milk on a very small scale shortly after the Carpanit Milk route started "just to see if it would pay off." By August of this year the milking herd had been increased to four mature cows and one heifer. During the month of August $107.53 worth of milk was sold after hauling charges were deducted. At the present, three cows are being milked and during the past month, milk sales amounted to $84.37.

Practically all the feed is being grown on the farm. The feed that has been bought was cotton seed meal.

Mr. Maddox is continuing to increase and improve his pasture. As soon as possible he plans to increase the herd to eight or nine cows. Heifer calves from the best cows are being saved to add to the herd and to replace lower producers.

Mr. and Mrs. Maddox plan to reduce their truck crops and cotton acreage as they increase their dairy cattle and pasture. Perhaps they will never entirely cut out cash crops such as cotton and truck crops, but it is almost a certainty that they will never depend entirely on these crops for their only source of income.

Mr. and Mrs. Maddox are trying to put their dairy program on a sound basis. A detailed record is being kept on the cows and at any time either Mr. or Mrs. Maddox can tell to the penny just what their cows are doing.

In the case of the Maddox family the milk check fits a very definite need. As Mr. Maddox stated, "I don't know what we would do without a milk check. We have a daughter in business college and without the money from the milk sales it would be difficult for us to meet expenses."

Courthouse Bond Issue Soundly Defeated In Chilton County

2ND MEETING OF 1931 CHRISTMAS CHEST HELD

The second meeting of the 1931 Christmas Chest was held on December 10th in the WKLF auditorium with twenty seven present.

Reports were made by various committees with the finance chairman Rev. A. T. Hickman, reporting $579.05 in the treasury to date.

The packing of boxes will begin Thursday morning, Dec. 20th in the basement of the Methodist church.

Contributions of toys, clothing, fruit, etc., are being delivered to Willingham Hotel. Anyone who is unable to deliver their gifts may contact Ralph Morrison or Winifred (Bing) Lecroy and the Scouts will call for them.

SANTA CLAUS TO FLY IN SATURDAY

Santa's airplane will land with the old gent himself aboard at Gragg Field at 10:00 o'clock Saturday morning, December 15.

"According to his statement he will remain in Clanton all next week and will be on the streets of Clanton to greet the little kiddies."

LIBERTY HILL W. M. U.

Dec. 3 was the regular meeting day for circles one and two. Circle one had fourteen present with Mrs. Mary Kelly and Mrs. W. E. Edwards as hostesses. We had a very good program and discussed plans for extra community missions work for this month.

Circle two met with fifteen present, and Mrs. Rosa Foshee was hostess to this circle. Their mission program was taken from the Royal Service and enjoyed very much.

Circle 3 met Dec. 4th with eleven present and one visitor at the home of Mrs. C. M. Bearden. There were four taking part on the program which was enjoyed by all.

Our circles met at the church Friday, Dec. 7th to observe the week of prayer. Each person carried sandwiches and cookies and enjoyed the day together.

Our W. M. U. is growing but there is still some we want to invite to join in our work. We have four new members joining us this month and hope there will be more before Christmas. We extend a special invitation to all of you to meet us at our meeting at the church the 17th of Dec. at 2:30 o'clock.

MR. ONNIE C. MATTHEWS

Mr. Onnie C. Matthews, age 58, died in a Veteran's hospital Saturday, Dec. 8 at Lake City, Fla. The remains arrived by the L & N railroad Co. Sunday 9:40 a.m.

Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock p.m. Monday, Dec. 10, from Oak Grove church, conducted by Rev. Robert Cost. Burial was in church cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Nina Matthews of Lake City, Fla., 3 brothers, J. M. Matthews of Birmingham, Ivey and Jessie Matthews of Jemison, Ala.; three sisters, Mrs. R. L. Glasscock of Chattanooga, Tenn. Mrs. Calvin Bice and Mrs. Huston Porter of Jemison.

Pallbearers were Luther Avery, Carl Anderson, V. M. Northcutt, Charlie Matthews, Norman Porter and Troy Wilson. Spigner Funeral Home in charge.

NOTICE

Clanton Chapter, 271 O. E. S. will hold the regular meeting on Thursday night, Dec. 13. Time 7:30 o'clock. This will be followed with the Christmas party and pot luck supper.

Each member is asked to come, to bring a covered dish and a gift, the price not exceeding fifty cents.

TO RECEIVE DEGREE

Among the candidates who will receive degrees at the fall quarter commencement exercises to be held at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute on December 15 is Pome Roy Satterthwaite of Clanton. He will receive his Bachelor of Science degree in Agriculture.

Mrs. Sallie Williams of Jemison is seriously ill at the home of her son Dr. John L. Kincaid in Maplesville.

The 500,000 dollar Courthouse Bond Issue was badly defeated at the polls Tuesday. Only about 25 per cent of the registered voters were interested enough to cast their vote.

Out of approximately seven thousand voters in the county, only 1502 votes were cast. 501 for Bonds and 992 against. Bonds were cast. Amendment number 1, although less than two to one in the county was ahead in the state vote by 62,850 for and 44,994 against at noon Wednesday.

GARDEN CLUB MEETS

The Garden Club of Clanton met December 11 at the home of Mrs. L. H. Boddens. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. A. H. McKenna and after the business at hand was disposed of the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Claude Craig. Mrs. Craig made decorations for a typical mantle table and center piece, chimney and front door.

Mrs. Craig showed and explained materials used and how to achieve effects with materials near to hand. She also gave helpful suggestions of gift wrapping.

The tea guest were served from a table decorated to represent a Christmas Gift. Small Christmas cookies and sandwiches were served with coffee and tea.

POPLAR SPRINGS CHURCH

Even though several of our people are still sick we had a good crowd at church Sunday, as always. Brother Cook brought a very good message. His subject was "Am I My Brother's Keeper?" Making it plain, we should all be concerned about our fellow man. Also service was good Sunday night.

We are very sorry our pastor's mother is worse. Let's pray for her and also very sick with measles.

Our W. M. U. observed the week of prayer, having the program last Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Webster Hill. Those present for this good service were, Mrs. Ben Wells, Mrs. Myrtle Bradberry, Mrs. Jessie Thornton, Miss Lena Downs, Mrs. Gaines Glenn, Mrs. T. J. Stewart, Mrs. N. E. Cook, Mrs. Clifton Jones, Mrs. Thea Preston, Mrs. Dave Jones, and Mrs. Preston Traywick. Also little Barbara Ann Cook and Tommy Stewart. The ladies brought a ham and at noon we enjoyed a good dinner.

Lets all come to prayer service each Wednesday night.

Mrs. J. T. Bowles, Mrs. Ada Friday and Betty Jo spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell Mims at Clanton.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Colburn and children of Asby and Mr. G. W. DeFreese of Brighton visited Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Williams Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bowles and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Edwards and family in Enterprise Community Sunday.

Miss Clyde Ruth Chandler is still on the sick list.

Mrs. Charles Jackson of Prattmont spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Williams.

Miss Flora Ann Williams and Charles Jackson, Jr., spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Gibson in Big Springs Community.

Clanton has put on her Christmas dress. The Christmas lights make everything look real Christmas-y.

White Christmas at the Methodist church will be Sunday night, Dec. 23rd. Haven't got a report on other church Christmas programs. But you can bet from here on in, plenty will be doing.

The street in front of our house hasn't been fixed yet. Don't know whether to sue, raise hell, or just holler.

Chilton County's Fourth Annual Christmas got off to a mighty good start. Most folks are thankful enough for their blessings to want to pass some of them along to the less fortunate. Collections to date have been very good according to Rev. A. T. Hickman, Finance chairman.

There was an election held Tuesday—or had you heard.

AS THE MOON RISES...

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The article below was written by Douglas C. Smith better known in Chilton County as "Billy" Smith. We know many of Billy's friends here would like to know where he is and how he is doing. He is former publisher of Chilton County News but is now at Morganton, N. C. First let us reprint a short news item handed us by a close friend. Then an article by Mr. Smith the Morganton paper.)

Douglas C. Smith, Hickory Daily Record correspondent in Morganton, has been appointed to the post of United States Commissioner in and for Burke county.

The appointment was made this week by Judge Wilson Warlick of Newton, judge for the United States District Court, Western District of North Carolina.

Smith succeeds Glenn H. Walker of Morganton, who resigned the post August 1. The new appointment is for a period of four years and Smith said today he would continue his daily newspaper writing and radio work as usual, in addition to his duties as U. S. Commissioner.

MORGANTON—There's a full moon scheduled to rise over Burke County—and other parts of the nation—on December 12. To most people that fact means little or nothing. But, to some Burke county law enforcement officers, ambulance drivers, the county coroner, and for this newspaper correspondent it may have some significance.

It's been a little too obvious hereabouts that on the rise of the full moon business picks up for law enforcement departments, ambulance drivers, the coroner and newspaper reporters.

And, it isn't good business, either. Some who have noted the coincidence of the full moon and various forms of violence; increased numbers of traffic accidents and other unfortunate happenings

Christmas Giving

by Rev. A. T. Hickman

Christmas had its beginning with a Gift. Good so loved this world that He gave his only son to be the Savior of all who will believe in Him." And at this season of the year we commemorate that event, the birth date of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. The real spirit of Christmas then is to appreciate the Gift that God gave us 1951 years ago, and then manifest the same spirit of giving to those around us who are in need as much as we needed a Savior.

The Scriptures declare that God loves a cheerful giver; and that it is more blessed to give than to receive; and that for us to give, and it would be given back to us. Giving is a grace that we all should yearns here in Chilton County the Churches, the civic clubs, lodges, and other such-like organizations; with individuals, have given together into our Chest Organization. This co-ordinated giving has proved a great blessing to the underprivileged children of our county. Last year the Christmas Chest gave Christmas boxes to 107 families who lived in every corner of the county. We were able to make 149 girls, and 194 boys happy with our gifts. These boys and girls would not have received any thing had it not been for the Chilton County Christmas Chest. 151 adults received a nice Christmas that would not have received any thing had it not been for our Christmas Chest organization. This year there will be many more added to the list. This calls for a greater giving on our part. We will not be able to give to all, unless more people give into the Christmas Chest. Mr. Jimmie Bell, Chairman of the organization this year, is working with every committee to make this the biggest and the best. He needs your co-operation. If you have not given into the Chest funds already, please do so today. Call Jimmie Bell by telephone, or Pastor A. T. Hickman, who is chairman of the finance committee, and we will gladly call for your contribution. Help make some boy or girl happy this Christmas by giving a gift. Shame on any one who cannot feel the Christmas spirit, which is the spirit of giving. May God bless all, and give every one a very happy and merry Christmas.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

Mr. H. T. Pipes tells us we were wrong about his birth date. He was born in 1883 instead of 1885. We were there of course but had just been so long that we had forgotten the exact date.

Our teen age daughter told us the other day of the man who came to town to report his wife had been blown away in a wind storm. A friend was sympathizing with him. "Oh, it wasn't so bad," he said. "She had been wanting to take a trip anyway."

Steve Baker is campaigning for Roy Mahan to get his quartet back on the air waves. He wants to hear "live" quartet music on the air again and is asking his friends throughout the county to stand up and speak their piece for same. Personally we cast our vote for the "live" music too.

Joe Jackson says the signs that the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce ordered to be placed at the County lines have been completed and will be placed in the near future. One will be placed at the intersection of the highway just beyond Maplesville and one on U. S. 31 North and South. Permits must be obtained to place the signs before the program can be completed.

Someone is always asking us what broke the front window at the News office. Haven't you heard the old axiom a printer is supposed to follow copy—even if it goes out the window.

R. C. Williams and the wife attended the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce Fifty-Eighth Annual meeting at the Thomas Jefferson Hotel last Thursday. They report a wonderful meeting. On the program was a pageant presented by the Masquers from Howard College in which Clanton's Lloyd Warr took part. Clanton Peaches also appeared on the menu.

Our Girl Friday suggest the City put little bells on parking meters so that when a motorist's hour is up the bell will ring, thereby signaling for another nickel. She has a hard time keeping the boss out of the lock-up.

Wont some basketball fan come to our aid and give us a writeup each week on the basketball games. We understand CCHS has won three straight games this season and is headed for more wins. To date they have won over Isabella, Maplesville, and Sylacauga. This week they play Sidney Lanier at Montgomery and Selma. The standings might be different then but we'll keep our fingers crossed and bet on the boys from CCHS.

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

Go to the Man Higher up

UNTIL RAY ADEY, Akron, Ohio, was 30 years old, he did not realize he was afraid of anyone.

He had a job selling petroleum products. He did very well from the start, but called only on garages, service stations and small consumer accounts.

There were some sizable accounts in the territory and the company continued to question why he was doing nothing about obtaining some of their business.

Finally one day he decided to call on one of these customers. It was necessary to drive 30 miles to do so and during the trip he thought of the things his predecessor had told him regarding these people. He said he had "worked on" the entire organization and had even in desperation, gone over the purchasing agent's head and had contacted the president. He also had told about the discouraging efforts of previous salesmen.

The result was that after parking the car and looking up at the building that housed their office, Ray got back into the car and returned home.

But this act of failure on his part bothered him for weeks until he finally picked up the phone and made an appointment with the purchasing agent. He filled the appointment, made several more calls, and finally secured their business.

What he learned from this experience was that we should never fear the large business men. They are usually better educated and most of them, having started at the bottom themselves, are far more considerate of people than the "back yard mechanic." It also taught him not to rely too much on the word of former salesmen as they might be handing out a line to scare you into falling in order that their own weaknesses might not be shown up. Possibly they never had the courage to call on the account.

A HAPPY HOLIDAY

The advent of the Christmas season should mean happiness for everyone; but, unfortunately, because of carelessness and thoughtlessness, the holiday spirit will be marred by accidents and illness. Much of this could be avoided if common sense could be included in the holiday planning.

Hurrying about in crowded stores, the doing of one man's thing as shopping, baking or wrapping of packages may end in a fatigue so acute that the strain of "keeping up" will result in sickness instead. With the lowering of the body's resistance, there is greater susceptibility to the diseases prevalent during the season, such as colds, pneumonia and influenza.

Christmas trees give a cheerful glow to the home, but a short circuit in faulty wiring of electric lights may bring death of a child or destroy the entire home by fire. Trimming the tree from an insecure ladder or chair may result in a fall that ends in death or injury to the patient.

"One more think" may be responsible for falls, accounting for broken arms and legs, or ribs, or skulls. It may cause unnecessary quarrels, resulting in mental and physical discomfort. One more drink! Before driving to another party may also result in an automobile accident, causing death or injury.

At holiday time, people tend to overeat. Moderation in eating, as well as in everything else, should be a "must" for everyone. The misery of an upset stomach will do little to keep the home bright and happy.

The Medical Association of the State of Alabama wishes you a truly happy holiday season, mentally and physically, but urges you to use caution in your plans so that broken bones, burns, sickness, or death, will not bring tragedy into your home.

Dr. W. J. Terry, state superintendent of schools has announced the appointment of S. D. Collier, Montgomery, as chief architect for Alabama schools. Collier will serve as an advisor to the Department of Education in building new schools, and in some cases will have direct supervision of construction. Collier is a graduate of Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Gafford, Miss Jolleen Kay Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Kennedy were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Parrish.

Mrs. Eiland Entertains

Mrs. William B. Eiland was hostess at her home on Samaria Road Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 5, when she entertained at bridge.

Green pine boughs and red nandina berries were used for decorations, to emphasize the seasonal motif.

After several rounds of bridge, high score prize went to Mrs. J. C. Carlisle.

The hostess served delicious refreshments.

Flowers at the two tables were Mrs. Carlisle, Mrs. John Higgins, Mrs. Guy McKee, Mrs. Charles Patterson, Mrs. Guy M. Higgins, Mrs. W. C. Maddox, Mrs. L. H. Bolden, and Mrs. Crit Jones.

Baptist Circle News

Circle one of the Womens Missionary Society of the First Baptist church of Clanton met in the home of Mrs. Marion Wood.

Mrs. W. J. Duke presided over the business session, after which Mrs. E. L. Mullins, program chairman, presented a very inspiring program fitting to the Christmas season. First, group singing of Silent Night, followed by scripture reading of the Christmas story, by Mrs. Watts Moore, prayer by Mrs. Russell Williams. Two G. A. girls, Ann Jester and Janice Wood told the interesting stories, "Christmas near Bethlehem" and "Christmas in other States."

Mrs. Mullins read a beautiful poem entitled, "The Great Guest Comes," followed by prayer by Mrs. Duke.

Kathy Wade concluded the program by reciting a delightful poem "Twas The Night Before Christmas."

Mrs. Duke was presented a lovely gift by Mrs. Mullins in behalf of the circle members. The meeting was dismissed with Mizpah.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess to ten members and visitors who were, Mrs. J. Gilbert Hutchinson, Ann Jester, Janice Wood, Kathy Wade, Patsy Minor and Mike Cox.

Mrs. W. C. Maddox, chairman of circle two entertained the members in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Rockett.

Red snaddragons with greenery, linked by tall black tapers made an unique arrangements for the living room mantle reflecting in the large mirror.

The hostess, assisted by the co-hostess, Mrs. Joe Moore, pinned a lovely Christmas shoulder corsage on each guest as she arrived.

Business was presided over by the chairman. Names of our Baptist service men were given each member to mail a Christmas greeting card to. This being the December Community Mission work for the W. M. S.

Mrs. Joe Moore lead the group in singing "Silent Night, Holy Night." What Christmas parties have meant to individuals was told by Mrs. Dewey Eubanks, who also offered prayer.

Members present enjoyed the exchange of Christmas gifts.

The hostess was assisted in serving refreshments by her little daughter Beth and Mrs. Joe Moore, to the sixteen guests.

Circle five met with Mrs. Lester Jones in her home on Selma Road.

Red carnations with greenery, Christmas candles and a miniature Christmas tree adorned the living and dining rooms.

Mrs. J. E. Gowan brought the devotional, appropriate for the yuletide season. Mrs. Charles Patterson told a Christmas story, taken from the Royal Service magazine. After the business period, presided over by Mrs. Jones, the chairman, the ladies enjoyed a social hour at which time Christmas gifts were exchanged.

Benediction prayer was by Mrs. W. C. Golden.

The Christmas motif was repeated in the party sandwiches, cake and coffee served by the hostess to sixteen members and one visitor, Mrs. Clarence Cox, W. M. S. president.

Mrs. Alice Dubose returned home Tuesday from Birmingham where she had been visiting her son and family for several days.

Mrs. Marguerite McDowell and son Mr. Raymond and James Brown visited Mrs. R. W. Corthan Tuesday.

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Lynn Williams was five years old last Saturday, Dec. 8th and he celebrated the day at home with a big party, with the help of his mother, Mrs. William R. Popwell.

After a round of games the little host opened each gift wrapped package brought by his little friends.

The party room and yard were decorated with streamers of red tissue paper. Story books were given the guests as favors.

Chocolate milks, cake and candy were served to the following boys and girls: Jimmy Edwards, Harp Popwell, Pat and Connie Baker, Gala and Peggy Robinson, Shirley and Geraldine Edwards, Glenda Sue Robinson, Joey and Eddy Morris and Mrs. E. J. Morris.

Bobby Is Nine Years Old

Bobby McKenzie, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. McKenzie celebrated his ninth birthday anniversary on Wednesday, Dec. 5, when twenty of his classmates gathered at his home for games and refreshments.

Christmas Dinner Party

"Camp Lora Rose" on Blue Creek was the scene of a lovely dinner party on Wednesday evening of this week when Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Bell entertained, honoring their son, Jimmy, home from the U. S. Navy, and Lt. and Mrs. Ray Bonanno, of Phenix City, Ariz.

The camp house was bright with Christmas lights and other colorful decorations, filling the atmosphere with the yuletide spirit.

Invited guests were the employees of Bell Hardware and their families who were Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Davis, Miss Sue Davis, Ed Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Grady Popwell, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Headley, Mr. and Mrs. Mason F. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Foster, Jr., the honor guest, Martha and Henry Bell.

son of Mitchell Dam, Monday, Dec. 10. The chairman for the month, Mrs. Jackson, presided over the business session, during which it was decided to send a CARE package to Korea as a Christmas project; also to send Christmas cards to all boys in service who are connected with the church in any way.

Mrs. Edgar, who was in charge of the program, gave the story of Christmas, assisted by Mrs. Annie Ree Traywick.

Refreshments were served to the following, Mesdames T. C. McSwain Hollis Jackson, J. E. Edgar, O. D. Deloach, Omar Reynolds, Florence Wilbanks, Annie Ree Traywick, and the hostess, Mrs. Woodson, also Mrs. Robertson.

Things We See And Hear BY TUCK

If anyone figures out my column I wrote last week they're better than I. Because I haven't figured it out yet. Man, I never saw anything so doggedly messed up in my whole life. Bad part of it is, it was my fault so I can't blame any of the other fellows here at the office. Pretty good! Messin' up your own column. Oh well, we can't all be "Brains."

Had a visitor down at the school the other day, one of our old school mates in fact. Name's Benny Ray Tucker (MACK) for short and he says he's liking Phillips in Birmingham just fine. 'Course a small school like that can't measure up to ours but he says he finally got used to it. However he says school is harder up there than down here and he has to study a lot more. Maybe that's the reason I haven't seen him in about a year. Anyway we were glad to see you "Mack" and hope you can visit us again before long.

Well looks like Christmas finally made it again and everyone seems to be kinda' hard to do this year. I don't know if it's the weather or what but I still don't feel like Christmas.

Looks like "Sonny" Gaylor could use just a little practice on his spelling. The other day we were having a spelling match in Mr. Kerr's room and he asked Ruby to spell teaspoonful. Here's how it came out, teaspoonable. How it ever came out that way I'll never know. He musta' been thinking about something else. Could it be??

Well from the looks of the last three ball games we're doing pretty well this year aren't we fans? Looks like we're going to make a pretty good bid for the tournament championship.

I've heard a lot of beefs and jokes about OCHS being a place with bars but now I've seen everything. The school pictures surely do look like a bunch of gangsters to me. 'Course they could have the pictures mixed up with some other school. The truth is, what we really are is coming to the surface don't you think? If that be the case, I guess we'll really have to get the bars installed.

That was sure a fine bunch of imitation of Angels in the Christmas Program the Glee Club put on the other day. I'm afraid the big majority of them are not the Angels they were supposed to represent, however.

MINUTES OF THE BOARD OF REVENUE AND CONTROL OF CHILTON COUNTY, ALABAMA, OF NOVEMBER 29, 1951

BOARD MEETING NOVEMBER 29, 1951

The Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama, met in adjourned regular session at the county courthouse at Clanton, Alabama, on November 29, 1951, at 9:00 o'clock, a.m. in adjournment and continuation of the regular meeting held on November 26, 1951. The following were present: W. L. Parrish, Judge of Probate and Chairman of said Board, and the following Associate Members of said Board: V. O. Lenoir, Welch Roebuck and J. M. Dunlap; absent: A. H. Smith. Judge Parrish presided as Chairman of the meeting and, a quorum being present, declared the meeting open for the transaction of business.

Mr. Dunlap offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Roebuck: BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That the reading of the minutes of the Board meeting of November 26, 1951, be deferred until the next Board meeting.

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of the members present.

Mr. Lenoir offered the following preamble and resolution for adoption; which were duly seconded by Mr. Roebuck:

WHEREAS, on November 16, 1951, J. D. Bullington, County Engineer, filed Requisition No. 223 with Harold H. Smyer, Purchasing Agent of Chilton County, requisitioning a 1/2 yard or 3/4 yard Heavy Duty Shovel to be used in the maintenance and construction of the public roads in Chilton County; and

WHEREAS, invitations for bids were posted on the bulletin board in the courthouse and sent to eight prospective suppliers at least five calendar days before the final date for submitting said bids; and

WHEREAS, said Board obtained eight written, sealed, competitive bids for said shovel; and

WHEREAS, said Board requested information from the Division of Purchases and Stores of the Department of Finance of the State of Alabama concerning the price to the State for such item; and

WHEREAS, said Board was informed by the State Purchasing Agent, acting through James B. King, that he had advised the suppliers of such article to place their bids direct to the Board; and

ONE-MAN COPTER . . . One of the "fantastic weapons" referred to by Truman is the one-man midjet helicopter, now in the planning stage. This is a drawing.

WHEREAS, said bids were opened publicly at the time and place stated in said invitation; and

WHEREAS, the bid of Leary & Owens Machinery Company was the lowest responsible bidder;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That the bid of said Leary & Owens Machinery Company be and the same is hereby accepted by the Board and the Purchasing Agent is hereby directed to issue a purchase order for the same in the amount of $12,060.00.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That the County Engineer upon the delivery of said new shovel to him by Leary & Owens Machinery Company, deliver to Leary & Owens Machinery Company, the 1/2 yard General Motor Crane equipped with G. M. C. Diesel Motor, Serial Number 290785, Shovel and pile driving attachments as trade-in Shovel as shown in said bid and invitation.

The above stated preamble and resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of the members present.

Mr. Lenoir offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Dunlap:

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: There being no further business to come before the meeting, that said Board adjourn to continue said session at 9:00 o'clock, a.m. Tuesday, December 4, 1951.

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of the members present.

I, Harold H. Smyer, Clerk of the Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama, hereby certify that the foregoing minutes of the proceedings of said Board meeting held on November 29, 1951, were entered and recorded in this minute book, reproduced and filed in the office of the Probate Judge, a copy of same furnished to the Chilton County News, and a copy of the same was posted in a conspicuous place in the courthouse on the 8th day of December, 1951.

HAROLD H. SMYER,
Clerk of The Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama.

Judge of Probate and Chairman of The Board of Revenue and Control.

Clerk of The Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama.

CORN AND RICE CROPS GET THE GREEN LIGHT

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has announced there will be no marketing quotas and no acreage allotments on the 1952 crops of corn and rice.

The Department stated that the supply of each of these commodities is below the quantity which would require marketing quotas under provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1948, as amended.

Action in dispensing with acreage allotments, as permitted by the Act, has been taken to help maintain a continuous and stable supply of both corn and rice during the defense emergency. The Department stated particularly, with regard to corn, that because of the decline in the supply of this feed grain, no action should be taken at this time which might discourage the planting of an increased acreage of corn in 1952.

CIRCUIT COURT No 251 IN CHILTON COUNTY. THE STATE OF ALABAMA.

James E. Mims, Complainant, vs. Doris Dean Mims, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of James E. Mims that the Defendant is a non-resident, and that her place of residence and post office address is unknown, and that such address cannot be ascertained after reasonable effort; and, further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Chilton County News a newspaper published in the County of Chilton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, to be read, answer, or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 10th day of January, 1952, or, in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against her.

Done at office in Clanton, Alabama, this 26th day of November, 1951.

MRS. JOHNSON AND MRS. CORBITT GUEST ARTISTS AT STUDY CLUB MEETING

Mrs. J. P. Hayes and Mrs. James Wade were hostesses to the Clanton Study club at the home of Mrs. Wade on Friday, Dec. 7th.

Mrs. Grady Heflin presided over the business session, and committees reported on the progress being made concerning different projects for the year.

At the conclusion of business Mrs. John Higgins presented the guest artists for the afternoon. Mrs. Sam Johnson, soprano, and Mrs. Roy Corbitt of Tuskegee, pianist. These two young musicians gave a most worthy performance and greatly pleased the listeners throughout their program.

In her first group Mrs. Johnson sang with delicate feeling and beautiful interpretation the following:

The Violet—Mozart

The Lass with the Delicate Air—Arne.

Hedge-Roses—Shubert.

My Johanna—Grieg.

Mrs. Corbitt's selections for the piano were done with superb artistry and showed a masterful technique.

Her group included:

Etude in C Minor, op. 10, No. 12—Chopin.

Intermezzo, op. 188, No. 6—Brahms.

Prelude from "Pour le Piano"—Debussy.

Mrs. Johnson's lovely soprano voice is well suited for all the selections on the program, and she thrilled those present as she sang for her second group:

Absence—Rogers.

Thy Sweet Singing—Olmstead
Love's In My Heart—Hyde.
A very pleasant social hour followed during which the hostesses served a delicious salad plate to club members and guests.

High Blood Pressure

The blood pressure of the human body is dependent on two conditions—the strength of the heart beat and the resistance offered by the

the resistance arteries to th flow of blood
The pressure has a norma

variation: a higher pressure always following exercise, emotion, and the taking of stimulants and food. This rise in pressure is brought about by contractions of tiny muscle fibers in the walls of the arteries. The action of these muscle fibers gives elasticity to the artery wall, and when they are contracted the resistance to the flow of blood is increased and blood pressure is higher.

The increased pressure due to the force conditions mentioned is temporary and occurs in all healthy bodies. Permanent high blood pressure is unhealthy, and if not corrected, will lead to trouble.

When the resistance to the flow of blood is great the heart must work harder to maintain circulation. If this resistance is permanent the heart muscle is overworked. Nearly all cases are due to failure of the kidneys to eliminate waste materials from the blood stream. These waste materials produce harmful effects upon the artery walls in three ways: (1) Minute particles are deposited on the vessel walls making them hard and inelastic. (2) The vessel walls are injured by the foreign materials which causes a growth of the harder tissues in the walls and also renders them hard and inelastic. (3) The delicate nerve endings in the artery wall are irritated and produce a contraction in the muscle fibers so that the walls become tense and contracted. In all three of these conditions the cause lies in failure of the kidneys to eliminate the waste materials from the blood stream.

The kidneys are supplied with nerve force through nerves arising from the spinal cord, and it is because these nerves are impinged and cannot convey the nerve force properly that the kidneys fail to do their work.

High blood pressure can be readily brought down by Chiropractic adjustment.

Maplesville News

MAPLESVILLE F. F. A.

The Maplesville chapter of the Future Farmers of America is now working on a project to improve hog farming in the community.

The chapter owns one purebred Duroc sow and one purebred Duroc gilt. It also has ten purebred gilts out on the pig chains. The chapter has been responsible for the placing of several purebred hogs in the community.

Dr. Nix has recently leased about four acres of land to the chapter. This land will be fenced and planted to pasture for carrying out a better balanced hog project. The chapter plans to keep three sows in this plot. Members are contributing corn to feed the sows, therefore all the gilts farrowed will be given to F. F. A. members for them to become established in hog farming.

We are indeed grateful to the Bank of Maplesville for the contribution of two purebred gilts to the chapter.

Our goal is a pig for each boy next year.

The deacons of the Baptist church held their regular monthly meeting last Sunday afternoon at 2:00 p.m. All groups of the W. M. U., including the G. A.'s and R. A.'s met at the church last Monday afternoon and carried gifts for the Children's Home at Troy for Christmas.

Lutheran Church News

The Lutheran church takes great pleasure in announcing services for Christmas Eve when Pastor Luther Fulmer of Augusta Ga., will occupy the pulpit. This will be a mid-night service and will begin at 11 o'clock p.m. and continue one hour, ushering in Christmas Day. It is planned to have special music which we are sure you will all enjoy, and we know it will be a pleasure to again have Mr. Fulmer with us, having enjoyed him so much while he was pastor of this church last summer. We urge all members of this church as well as its many friends, to make plans for attending this service on Christmas Eve.

On Sunday afternoon December 23 the Episcopalians will have a Communion Service at the Lutheran church at 3:30 in the afternoon. This will also be in the way of a Christmas service. The Rev. Horn of Selma will conduct the service and all are cordially invited to attend. You are also invited to take part in the Lord's Supper if you so wish.

Flag Presenting Program. Friday night, Dec. 7, 1951 the American Legion Thorsby Post 206, and the Ladies Auxiliary and the Thorsby Boy Scout Troop went to Jemison to take part in a flag presenting program to the Boy Scout Troop of Jemison.

Thorsby Post 206 bought and presented the U. S. flag to the Jemison troop, thus signifying that the American Legion of Thorsby is ready and willing to assist the Scouts of Jemison any time we are called upon. We are anticipating with great anxiety the forward progress of the Jemison Scouts.

Before the flag presentation, Mr. Bill Crane of Selma, awarded some of the Scouts of Jemison their first medal. This program was very impressive and we feel sure that the boys receiving these awards are very deserving and in the near future will be the recipients of other worthy awards.

Speaking of Boy Scouts we cannot forget our own Troop here in Thorsby. We are very grateful to Mr. James Kincaid, who has trained, organized and chartered Thorsby's own troop number 157. This is a splendid group of boys which we may be proud of. They gave a good account of themselves Friday night at Jemison in winning the rope tying contest. We are very proud of our Boy Scouts. They are deserving and request the cooperation of every patriotic citizen of this community. You will be seeing much of these boys in the future, give them a helping hand. We hope to see them in full uniform before long.

Christmas Program

The American Legion and Auxiliary are presenting a Christmas Program at the Thorsby Institute Tuesday night Dec. 18, at 7:30.

Rev. David F. Conrod of Birmingham will be guest speaker.

Special music will be furnished by the Girls Glee Club and other special music.

Boy Scout Troop 157, Thorsby's own troop, will be ushers.

The Legion and Auxiliary are still accepting donations for Chilton County Christmas Chest. If you haven't turned in your donation they will be accepted that night.

The public is cordially invited.

Mrs. Chester McClain left last week for Shreveport, La., to visit her son, Sgt. Chester McClain and family. Sgt. McClain is the proud father of a son whom they have named, Donald Melvin. From there Mrs. McClain hopes to visit a brother, Alfred Buckner of San Benita, Texas.

STANTON NEWS

MISS RUTH HICKS

Many of our readers have been deeply interested in Dr. Eugene Callaway, Sr., of Selma, Ala., during his confinement in New England Baptist hospital in Boston. Dr. Callaway spent several weeks in Boston and underwent a serious operation while there. I am glad to report that Dr. Callaway returned to his Selma home on November 19. His improvement is such that he is able to use a part of each day, and to spend the remainder of his convalescence at his home.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Hicks of Marvel, Ala., visited their mother Mrs. Mary Hicks over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hillman (Corrie Huff) have announced the birth of a son on December 2, 1951 at the Selma Baptist hospital. This youngster tipped the scales at 7 lbs 4 ounces. Mrs. Hinton Duncan and family. In the hospital for several days.

Mrs. D. O. Burnett, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Burnett, Jr., and son and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dennis visited Mr. D. O. Burnett Sr. in Childersburg, Ala., Sunday where he is employed.

An official visit of Grand Officers of the Order of the Eastern Star, State of Alabama visited the Plantersville Eastern Star Chapter at 2:30 p.m. November 26th. A delicious plate with hot chocolate was served at the end of their visit by the hostesses, Mrs. Olivia Apperson and Mrs. Ethel Perry.

Mr. Millard Reynolds, Miss Peggy Rose O'Neal and Miss Ruth Hicks were guests of the Mobile Motorcycle Club on Sunday. They enjoyed during the afternoon a course (Woods) laid out by several members of the Mobile club. This course consisted of hills, sand, a little mud, rock, etc. three trophies were awarded as follows. The trophy for the fastest time on the course, Mr. Clarence Gray of Montgomery, Ala., winning the heavy motors. This ride was well laid out and everyone had a good time.

Mrs. Xyr Reynolds, Wilcox, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Coleman (Jean Wilcox) joined this group of spectators for a short time during the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Sammie Rogers and son of Marion Junction, Ala., Mrs. Howard Duncan and son, Mrs. Earl Pickering and children and Mrs. Beulah Warren spent Sunday with Mrs. Hinton Duncan and family. In the afternoon Mrs. Earl Pickering, Mrs. Beulah Warren, Mrs. Sammie Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Pickering attended to Montgomery, Ala., where they visited Mr. Earl Pickering in the Veterans Hospital. "Earl" seemed in good spirits.

Mr. J. W. Pickering and Mr. Douglas Pickering visited Mr. Earl Pickering Sunday in Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. Buck Burnett and sons spent last week end in Montgomery, Ala., with relatives. Erskine Atchison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Atchison is here with relatives. Mr. Doris Cook spent the week end in Birmingham with Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Cook.

Mrs. Agnes Burnett Dennis substituted in the Stanton Jr. High school 3 days recently. Mrs. Buck Burnett substituted in the same school last Thursday.

Alvin Cates, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Cates, spent his leave last week with his parents here. Alvin is stationed in San Francisco and is with the Navy.

The Ethlyn Maness of Tuscaloosa, Ala., is visiting her father Mr. Frank Reynolds and brother Millard Reynolds.

Robert Elliott Snow, age 14 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Snow of Marion, Ala., stayed from his nurse last Thursday afternoon, December 6, 1951 and was drowned in a shallow pool near their home on the Fish Hatchery Properties.

"Robert Elliott" together with his sister, Sandra, age 6 and his brother, Richard, age 3, were left in the care of their nurse, Robert Elliott. He was missed by his nurse at 3 p.m. as she went about duties in the home. Taking the two other children with her she started a search which in about thirty minutes was ended at the small concrete pool, filled with three feet of water.

Arriving just as the child was found, Rufus Taylor, an employee at the Fish Hatchery of which Mr. Snow is the biologist in charge, gave aid in taking the child from the water, and summoned the father from his office nearby. The child was rushed to a Perry County hospital where efforts at resuscitation were futile.

Mrs. Snow is the former Evelyn Martin, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. T. M. Martin of Plantersville, Alabama. Mrs. Snow was in Selma at the time of the tragedy and did not learn of the distressing news until her return home.

A large number of people from this and adjoining communities joined the family in Marion, Alabama for the funeral of Robert Elliott at 3 p.m. Friday. Services took place from the Marion Presbyterian church with the Rev. Culverhouse officiating. Interment in the Marion Cemetery.

Our deepest sympathy to the family and loved ones of this child.

Mrs. Herbert Channell, age 49 of vivid by her husband, 2 sons, Aaron Channell, Jr., died in Birmingham, Ala. Friday afternoon. She is survived by her husband, 2 sons, Aaron Channell, Jr., 3 brothers and 2 sisters. Funeral services were held Monday, Dec 10 at 2 p.m. from the Wesleyan Methodist church, Tuscaloosa, Ala., Rev. J. L.

Averett and Rev. Willie Hill officiated. Interment Alberta Cemetery. John-Ridout directing. The Channell family lived at Jones, Ala., for a number of years and were members of the Wesleyan Methodist church at Stanton, Ala.

Sympathy is extended the loved ones of their loss.

PTA met at the Stanton Jr. high school at 8:00 p.m. last night. Attendance was poor. Mr. John Maples of the Bank of Maplesville showed the film on "Banking". Jimmie Green, president of the PTA, made a very good speech. Mrs. John Parnell is vice president but could not attend due to illness in her family. Therefore, Mrs. Alma Huff was asked to serve as president for last Monday night.

Every parent should attend the meetings of the PTA and support the school.

Mrs. Will D. Rush is doing nicely at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Benton from Anniston, Ala., spent Sunday night with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Benton and family. They motored to Tuscaloosa to attend the funeral of Mrs. Channell Monday afternoon.

Thomas Earl Benton, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Benton entered the Baptist Hospital last Tuesday afternoon. He was suffering with pneumonia. He was allowed to return to his home late Thursday afternoon and is doing nicely at this writing.

News has reached this section that Mrs. Ida Rush suffered a stroke recently. She has many friends and relatives in this section who regret to learn of her illness.

Friends and relatives are getting cards and letters from Mrs. Mattie Reynolds Bleh from Williamsport, Pa. Mrs. Bleh writes that she has such a lovely visit here with her brother, Mr. Frank Reynolds and other relatives and friends. She recalls with much happiness all the visits that she made while here and seeing all her old friends brought back many, many happy memories.

Going to Butler, Alabama for a deer hunt last Wednesday were Mr. Millard Reynolds, Mr. S. B. Rogers and Mr. Russell Shoults where they joined a large party of fellows from over the State of Louisiana. Millard Reynolds and Russell Shoults were lucky and got a deer. This was their first deer hunt and they thoroughly enjoyed the day. That night after the hunt the party was entertained at a cat fish supper on the river.

Mr. Carter Davis has completed his training at the University of Alabama. Mr. and Mrs. Davis (Dorothy Dennis) left Birmingham last Tuesday night for Long Island, New York where he will be stationed in the army.

Mr. and Mrs. Dock Dennis and family of Maplesville, Ala., spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hayes and family.

Mrs. Annie McCormick of Selma, Ala., is spending this week with her brother, Mr. Doris Cook. She spent last week in Tuscaloosa, Ala., with her sister.

The Garden Study Club of Marion, Ala., are extending an invitation to "Holiday House" which will be open to the public on December 12th. to all interested persons between the hours of two and nine. Door prizes will be awarded hourly during the afternoon and evening. The lovely old Carlisle home ante bellum dwelling is near Marion and will be fully dressed in Christmas attire. The house is said to be truly reminiscent of the castle from which it was copied. Members of the Marion club will have charge of the tower room, where they will sell Christmas wreaths and other evergreen arrangements, together with cookies, candy and a collection of antiques, suitable for Christmas giving. This home is a show place and is owned by Judge of Probate, Jim Griffin and Mrs. Griffin. Judge and Mrs. Griffin are the parents of lovely Mary Lear Griffin, District Supervisor, Perry-Chilton counties with offices in Clanton, Ala.

Miss Grace Harris, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Harris, a bride-to-be of mid-winter, was honored Saturday evening at a tressou shower given by Mrs. Eddie Browning and Mrs. Huey Manderson at the home of the latter in Selma, Ala. Fourteen close friends participated in the informal affair. Miss Harris will be married in January to Judge Walton E. Callen, the date and plans for the ceremony to be made known later.

Mrs. Melton Rush of Plantersville has returned from a four months vacation. While away she visited relatives in San Francisco and Los Angeles, California, and Florence Oregon. She made her trip to California via plane and enjoyed flying very much. On her return to Alabama she visited her son, Willie Carroll, and family in New Orleans. Mr. Carroll's daughter, Wyona Carroll, was crowned "Miss New Orleans of 1951" some weeks ago and her pictures have appeared in a number of the leading newspapers. She has received so many, many useful gifts as well as many nice trips since she was crowned.

The 16th birthday of Miss Norma Jean Sherrer was celebrated last Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Hinton Duncan. Games and marshmallow toasting were enjoyed by the following couples: Norma Jean Sherrer, Cherry Nichols, Barbara Ann Lovelady, Huey Nichols, Shirley Warren, Earl Walker, Ruth Ann Lovelady, Billy Walker, Ann Osburn, Horace Harrison, Barbara Ann Heifner, Murray Duncan, Bob Ed McKinney, Mrs. Bill Coleman, and Leo Milton of Selma, Ala.

"A living truth," Mrs. Sue Seale of Selma, a native Chilton County, announced December 7th, as a "winner of the 'Tell Your Neighbor' broadcast's Golden Rule Award. Her me was submitted to the Mutual Broadcasting System by Mrs. E. M. loss for consideration. Special emphasis is being placed on the goodwill project which Mrs. Seale carried on for almost a year past at the Methodist Children's Home. As owner-operator of Sue's Beauty Shop, Mrs. Seale has been giving one afternoon each week to children of the home, to correct their hair problems in what has been one of the most popular innovations from which the youngsters have benefited.

A letter of congratulation from Walter Mason, of "Tell Your Neighbor," accompanied the "Golden Rule" certificate received by Mrs. Seale Friday. The being inscribed as a "symbol of esteem from all your neighbors, for your gift of healing and kindness." She is also being presented an electric blanket as added recognition.

The early morning broadcast which first made public the news of the award to the popular Selman was missed by Mrs. Seale, but was heard by many of her friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Fulford are on an extended visit in Los Angeles, California, with their son, Robert Fulford, his wife and son.

Mrs. Earl Pickering, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Pickering visited Mr. Earl Pickering in the Veterans Hospital in Montgomery Sunday. They were accompanied by Mrs. Julius Goodwin who visited her husband who is also confined to the Veterans Hospital. Earl is improving to the delight of his many, many friends. (Sorry I did not learn about Mr. Goodwin's condition.)

Jim Hogg of Plantersville, was rushed to the Baptist Hospital over the week end and underwent an operation on Saturday night. His condition is of a serious nature. His many friends are pulling hard for his recovery.

News reached this section early Friday morning of the death of Richard Letcher, age 77, better known by his friends here as Dick Letcher. Mr. Letcher died Thursday afternoon in Tuscaloosa. He has a sister, Mrs. Ruby Harville, in Plantersville. Mr. Letcher was a brother of the late Wiley Letcher of Plantersville.

The Letcher family have many, many friends throughout this section who were grieved to learn of his death. Funeral services were held in Sylacauga at 2 p.m. Sunday from a Funeral Home. Attending from this section were Mrs. Ruby Harville, Mrs. Walter Herrod, Mr. and Mrs. Lavon Harville.

Mr. Richard Letcher married Miss Laura Reynolds, sister of the late Judge L. H. Reynolds of Clanton. Mrs. Richard Letcher died some six months and their son passed since her death. Mr. Letcher was survived by 4 daughters and 5 sons. One brother, Clyde and five sisters: Mrs. Jennie Reedy of Birmingham; Mrs. Ruby Harville of Plantersville; Mrs. Minnie Gandy and Mrs. Mamie Mills of Billingsley; Mrs. Bessie Elders of Bessemer.

Sympathy is extended the loved ones of Mr. Richard Letcher.

A plastic party at the home of Mrs. W. C. Herrod, Jr., last Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. at which Mrs. Guy Osborn was co-hostess with Mrs. Herrod as hostess. Mrs. Tworek of Selma put on the demonstration of Firestone plastic products, displaying many useful nice articles, such as bedspreads, aprons, plastic yard goods, cosmetic cases, etc. This was a very enjoyable party. Mrs. Herrod served ice cream at home made cocoanut cake to the following ladies: Mrs. Nora Pickering, Mrs. Barney Lewis, Mrs. Ethel Perry, Mrs. W. C. Herrod, Sr., Miss Frances Hull, Mrs. Guy Osburn, Mrs. Estelle Pickering, Mrs. Guy Heifner, Mrs. Claud Fulford, Mrs. Helen Lindstrand, Mrs. Leila Smith, Mrs. Alice Reynolds, Mrs. Lou Sherrer, Mrs. Bill Dement, Mrs. Albert Barnes and Mrs. J. T. Little. Mrs. Herrod was presented with a bedspread and string of pearls for her successful party. The home was beautifully decorated for this party. Christmas colors were used throughout.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Davis of Scottsboro, Ala., spent the week end with Rev. and Mrs. Joe Davis and family.

Mrs. Dock Dennis, Raymond Davis Rev. and Mrs. Joe Davis, accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Carter Davis to Birmingham to catch their bus to New York, last Tuesday. This party had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Hicks and family before their departure.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Herrod, Jr., entertained Mr. and Mrs. Bill Dement, Mr. and Mrs. Boris Lewis and children, Coach Ezell and Mr. Pettus Rush at an oyster supper last Friday night at their home.

Mrs. Willie Claud Friday and children of Selma spent Sunday afternoon with the Rev. Joe Davis.

Rev. and Mrs. Joe Davis motored to Pleasant Grove Sunday morning for regular preaching services. Sunday afternoon at 2:30 Ordination services were held at this church ordaining Grady Harrison as deacon of this church. Assisting in this service were Rev. Fred Lowery of Liberty Hill and Rev. R. W. Stuckey of Concord Baptist Church. A large attendance was at both services.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Davis and Cynthia of Craig Field, Ala., spent the week end with Rev. and Mrs. Joe Davis and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lusk have moved to the Prude Ferry Place. Mr. Lusk is a writer for the W. E. Belcher Lumber Company.

The Plantersville Baptist Church W. M. U. climaxed their Special Week of Prayer for Foreign Missions last Friday. Mrs. Walter Herrod, Sr., invited these members to come to her house for the day; each carrying a covered dish. This day was spent in prayer. Mrs. Rubie Mae Biscoe had charge of the program. Sallie Houston is the president of the W. M. U. and is doing an excellent job. Miss Beena Jones has charge of the programs and certainly much credit is due her for the success of this W. M. U. More than 20 ladies enjoyed the day with Mrs. Herrod last Friday.

The Lottie Moon Offering went over their quota.

The ladies of the W. M. U. distributed Sunshine Baskets late Friday afternoon. One basket was delivered locally and one basket went to the inmates of Bryce Hospital in Tuscaloosa. Bobby O'Neal is on our sick list and trust he will soon be able to return to school.

Mrs. Harvey Barnes was called to Prattville over the week end due to the death of her sister-in-law.

Rev. and Mrs. Joe Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Carter Davis and Raymond Davis will Monday night dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Buck Carter and family.

Gayle, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene C. Willis of Selma, spent Sunday with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Buck Carter, while her parents were in Birmingham.

CHILTON COUNTY NEWS PRESENTS ANOTHER CHRISTMAS STORY

On Christmas afternoon at 3:45 p.m. the Chilton County News will present "The Angel With a Cold Nose" over radio station WKLF. This is a Christmas Story featuring Margaret O'Brien Tune in to hear this beautiful Christmas story.

Suggestion Made To Change Name, Purpose Of Chest

The Chilton County Christmas Chest that has operated so successfully for the past four years ends another good year and a suggestion has been made to make it a Community Chest that will operate throughout the entire year.

The Chest has grown steadily having started with collections amounting to approximately $500.00. The second year the collections reached a thousand dollars and the third year saw a grand total of 12 to 13 hundred dollars.

In conversation with Rev. A. T. Hickman this week he expressed himself as being heartily for the change and Louise Smith, present treasurer brought the suggestion before the Monday night meeting of the organization.

The plan will be discussed and decided upon at the next regular meeting of the Chest on Jan. 7th, 1952.

White Christmas

First Methodist Sunday Afternoon

The Clanton First Methodist church will present their "White Christmas" program next Sunday afternoon at the church at 5 o'clock. Members and friends of all churches are cordially invited to attend the Christmas service.

Collection at the services will go to the Methodist Childrens Home at Selma, Ala.

Title of the pageant this year is "Love was Born at Christmas" and is being presented by the Childrens Department of the church with the Youth Choir presenting special Christmas music. Several violin numbers will be given by Mr. Kent Bailey of Montgomery.

Peoples Savings Bank Gives Check To 4-H Club Council

James Duke Hefflin, on behalf of the Peoples Savings Bank, presents a $500 check to the 4-H Club Council. Council officers seated left to right are: Lucille Connel, Phillip Robinson, Alex Tyndal and Mary Griffin. Council members standing are: Clyde Edwards, Tommie Edwards, Thomas Payton, Von Baker, Billy Gies, Carl Hayes, Patricia Lee Kim, Beisy Sue Kim, Betty Jean Milford, Culma Nel Payton, John Marvin Williams, Mack Yeargan, Myrtis Vines, Eddie Higginbotham, Brenda Higginbotham, L. C. Sandlin, Myra Nell Foshee, Tommy Bowman, Sonya Childers, Cora Sue Smith, Jimmy Northcutt, Zed Williams, Herman Kendrick, Loretta Davis, Bettie Harper, Hoyt Ellis Burgess, Jerry Lane Davis, Randal Marcus, Joann Davis, Charles Hudson, Anna Ruth Brown, Don DeLoach, Anne Collins, Edward Morris, Joseph Morris, Audfaw Mae Baker, Annette Minor, Lucille Connel, Frances Murr Mary Edna Griffin, Charles Wilson Jimmy Nabors, Charles Hoyt Lowery and Howard Pitts.

In 1950 all Chilton County banks sponsored a mail box and home improvement program. Under this program, each 4-H Club member was awarded an attractive 4-H metal sign with the inscription, "A 4-H Club Member's Lives Here," when he had repaired, painted and printed the name and initials of the head of the family on the mailbox, and cleaned up the yards around the house. Approximately 600 signs were awarded throughout the county as a result of the Banks' interest and cooperation in 4-H Club activities.

Mr. Grady Hefflin, President of the Peoples Savings Bank, saw a need for extending the mail box improvement program in 1952. He voluntarily without any form of soliciting, presented the $500.00 to the 4-H County Council in behalf of the Peoples Savings Bank, to extend the Mail box improvement program.

Fire Destroys Feed Store At Maplesville, Ala.

A fire of unknown origin destroyed the Latham Feed Store and did considerable damage to the J. E. Smith Mercantile Co. and the G. W. Foshee Grocery, early Tuesday morning.

Fire fighting equipment from Clanton, Thorsby and Montgomery, was called out to help fight the blaze and to prevent spreading to adjoining buildings. The loss is reported to be between thirty and forty thousand dollars.

The Clanton fire department was first on the scene but the fire was well underway at that time. Maplesville's new water system had just been completed and water had just been turned into the mains Monday. A fire truck is on order it is reported but delivery is not expected before Spring.

CHRISTMAS CANTATA

The choir of the Jemison Baptist church and other singers will present a Christmas Cantata, "Carols of the Bells," Sunday night Dec. 23, at 7:30 at the church. The public is invited to attend.

CHILTON W. M. U. EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING

The Executive Committee of Chilton W. M. U. Association will meet at the home of Mrs. L. D. Hughes, Friday, December 28th, at 1:30 o'clock. All members of committee, group captains, and presidents are urged to be present.—Mrs. George Naish, Sec.

MUSIC APPRECIATION CLUB

The music appreciation club held its regular monthly meeting in the auditorium of the Presbyterian church with the observance of the Christmas season.

The outstanding feature of the afternoon's program was a story in song of Christmas in America, sung by fifteen members of the High School Glee Club, accompanied at the piano by Donie Klunker and directed by Pat Huddleston. Their program consisted of: God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen, Away in a Manger, We Three Kings of Orient are and Break Forth O Beauteous Light.

Each Club member shared this program with a guest.

NOTICE TO HIGH SCHOOL PRINCIPALS AND CONTESTANTS IN CONTEST

Because of the delay in getting proper information from Washington and elsewhere, it has been decided by the Know Chilton County Contest committee of the Chamber of Commerce, to delay naming the winners in the contest until Feb. 7th. This will enable many of the contestants to further study the questions and secure the information needed.

Let it be impressed upon the contestants that their questionnaires should be turned in to the judges whether the form is entirely complete or not. What the Chamber of Commerce needs is the answers to the questions and your form might contain one of the bits of information that is sorely needed by the Chamber.

Your entry should be turned in on or before Feb. 1, 1952.

Christmas Program Assembly Of God

There will be a Christmas program presented at the First Assembly of God church, located 3 blocks East of Post Office, Friday night, December 21, at 7:30. Titled, "A Drunkard's Home at Christmas." Every body invited to come and bring your family. There will be fruit for the kiddies. Bring your gift for the family Christmas tree. Don't miss this program. J. H. Apelin, pastor.

Thorsby Christmas Tree Decorations

Thorsby's Christmas trees beautifully decorated along the highway give the town an air of quiet, peace and contentment at this holiday season. The trees were left there several years ago when the parkway was cleared and landscaped, and according to the citizens of Thorsby they are content with the trees remaining the exact size they are now. They are perfect in size for decorating at Christmas time.

JOHNSON-HIGGINS

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Johnson, of Birmingham, announce the marriage of their daughter, Barbara Estelle, to Robert Fleming Higgins, Jr., of Clanton.

The marriage took place Dec. 9, 1951.

CENTRAL ALABAMA LIVESTOCK YARD CONTINUE TO HOLD STRONG SALES

Monday, December 17th's sale totaled over $11,000 gross. In this week's sale over 100 cattle, 79 hogs, 7 work animals and 17 goats sold through the local yard. Packer buyers representing Zeigler Packing Company, Seegar Packing Company as well as quick freeze slaughter buyers purchased cattle and hogs at the Chilton county market at prices in excess of Montgomery Alabama and Nashville, Tennessee quotations for Monday, December 17.

Extreme top hog prices reached $18.30 per hundred weight and killer calves sold in Clanton at prices up to $30.00 per hundred weight.

Central Alabama Livestock Incorporated's new sale will be held December 19th. Auctioneers and farm-raised livestockmen throughout the local stock yard are generally well pleased with the volume of sale and the prices obtained for their farm stock.

The Stapps Moving To Greenville, Ala.

Mr. and Mrs. Cohen Stapp are moving to Greenville, Alabama on January 1st. They have purchased the Greenville Packing Co. and will assume management Jan. 1st.

Cohen and Lillian Stapp have been identified on the 1940 U.S. Census in Clanton and Chilton County for more than a decade and nearly all of their missing relatives have been identified as well as the whereabouts of the even more recent ones.

They have a multitude of friends here who will regret their leaving.

1950 CENSUS FACTS

A round-up of 1950 facts about Chilton County, issued today by District Supervisor Mary L. Griffin of Clanton, reveals that Dwelling units number 7,550, an increase of 528 over the 7,012 reported in 1940;

Farms number 3,368; the average size of farm is 82.2 acres;

The average value of land and buildings of farms in the county amounts to $3,707 per farm;

11,487 farmers reported that other income of the family in 1949 was greater than the value of farm products sold;

15 farms have 1,000 acres or more;

1,915 of the county's 3,368 farms are fully owned by the operators;

379 farms have telephones and 2,737 have electricity;

Farm products sold in 1949 amounted to $2,723,507. Field crops, other than vegetables and fruits and nuts, accounted for $1,089,356 of the total.

THIS WAY TO DICTATORSHIP!

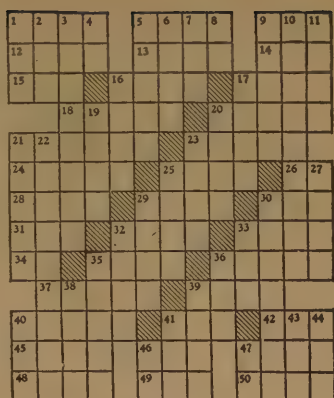

In a recent talk, the head of a national organization of retailers* said, "Price controls imposed in the current emergency add many man-hours of effort to the merchandising business, but these problems are not insurmountable. All these efforts to set prices by means other than the simple operation of supply and demand provide significant demonstration of the service rendered our economy by free competitive market prices. Such prices are the heart of the American economy. Free market prices determine what is to be produced and whom the buyer is to be. The dislocation, confusion and injustice caused by price control efforts should serve as a constant reminder of the need to return to free market prices at the earliest possible moment."

It would be a tragedy if the American people ever got the idea that price and other controls should be a permanent activity of the government. The whole idea of economic control by fiat is repugnant to every American tradition. And, going from theory to practice, these controls, long enough continued, must inevitably undermine ambition, enterprise, and eventually representative government itself. This country was built by free men working as free agents in a free economy. It wasn't built under laws which give government dictatorial power over industry and the individual.

A short time ago Economic Stabilization Director Eric Johnston said that controls should be removed from the economic picture within two years. But other men in government obviously wish to make controls permanent. It is that attitude against which the nation must be on eternal guard.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

We know not whether Santa Claus is ready for us, but we're ready for Santa Claus.

Funny thing happened to us the other morning and scared the living daylight out of us. We waked up seeing two or three of everything. Stone sober too. The doctor called it double vision and you can't imagine how confusing it is. Can you imagine trying to put on two pair of pants at the same time? Or trying to make your way to the breakfast table seeing two or three doors and not knowing which two door facings to go between. But let me tell you the worst of it. Think of getting to the office and finding two scuttles full of unpaid bills instead of the usual one scuttle full. The whole thing was quite trying to say the least. We got our sight back that night alright and were mighty thankful. One scuttle full of bills at a time is about all we can stand.

Funny thing. The wife can't watch the Television for trying to get things done, and we can't get anything done for watching the television.

This is what you call big-time trading: A man noticed that his newsboy had a puppy on his stand with a "For Sale" sign over him. Curious, he asked the boy how much he expected to get for the dog. "Fifty thousand dollars," replied the youngster. "I won't take a cent less." The man whistled and passed along. A few mornings later the man noticed the dog was gone. "Sell your dog?" he inquired. "Yep," the boy grinned. "Did you get your price for him?" "Yep. Swapped him for a couple of $25.000 cats."

M. C. Jack Hayes, tax collector, notifies one and all this week that taxes will become delinquent soon and they had better get down to his office and settle up. You know the old saying: Nothing sure but death and taxes.

Saw Cecil Ramsey, popular manager of the A. & P. Tea Co., over at De Vaughn Food Center the other day. But we don't think he was buying groceries.

Some poor fellow was in bad trouble Sunday when he was out to see if he could find Ellis Jones, our neighbor. He had broken his ignition key in half and couldn't use his automobile, it was cold outside. Claud Craig couldn't be reached because he was visiting wife Eleanor, who is recovering from an appendectomy in a Montgomery hospital. Brother Jones wasn't found so we don't know how that fellow got a key made to fit his car. Saw in Clanton Motors ad last week where Santa was trading his sled for a Clanton Motors used car. Maybe that fellow traded his car for the sled.

Opinions about the Common Cold

OUR BEST AUTHORITIES in medical science declare they have not yet discovered the cause of the common cold. Well, far be it from me to give advice where our most learned doctors have failed, but here are some suggestions garnered here and there from friends in this section of the country, in and around New York City, where the common cold gets a good grip.

Emily Sturges of Hackensack, N.J., says, "I never get a cold unless I am tired out. When I am, the least little thing, exposure to draft, contact with someone else with a cold, eating food difficult to digest, will result in a terrific cold."

Arthur Ellis, Lynbrook, Long Island, says a cold will follow a wrothy period with him. "Just let me get depressed over anything at all, and nine times out of ten I catch a cold."

"If I don't sleep well at night," said James Rennie, Bronxville, N.Y., "it naturally results in fatigue and unless I soon catch up with my sleep, I take a cold."

Mrs. Frank Bayes, Hoboken, N.J., says, "I have found that when I am desperately tired, after a trying day, maybe a rainy day—with the children, or after a day of house cleaning, I must take a good rest, either by going to bed early or dropping down for a nap before dinner, and if I don't do this, the chances are the second day after I come down with a fearful cold."

Mrs. Thomas Burton says that when her children's bathroom habits are not all they should be, they usually take a cold. But when they run smoothly, and no poisons are collecting in their systems, they go long, long periods without having a cold.

George Hayden, Manhattan, New York City, says that worry always precedes a cold with him.

Miss Ella Burnstrom, also of Manhattan, New York City, says anger followed by disagreeable thoughts will nearly always bring on a bad cold with her.

Check up on yourself and let's find out what had happened to you just before you have had a cold. Then you tell me about it and give me permission to tell our other readers. Heaven knows, if we can do anything, however small, to rout the common cold, we will be serving mankind.

THIS WEEK'S TALK

Story Of Nativity

by
Rev. A. T. Hickman

The Prime Minister, W. E. Gladstone, was asked by Queen Victoria "What is the most beautiful story you have ever read." His reply was, "The most beautiful story I have ever read or heard, Your Majesty, is the story of Nativity, as given in the Gospel of St. Luke." This story is the one of the birth of Jesus Christ, our Lord and Savior. At this season of the year everyone should refresh his mind and soul with the beauty of this story as told in the New Testament. Also read the prophetic Scriptures relating to the birth of Jesus in the Old Testament. Read of the appearance of the angel to the Virgin Mary. The appearance of the angel to Joseph, in Matt. 1st chapter. The second chapter of Luke tells why Joseph and Mary were in the city of Bethlehem when the Holy Babe was born. The place of birth of the Messiah had been foretold by the Prophet Micah. Note the shepherds outside of the city keeping watch over their flock by night; the light that shone down upon them; the appearance of the angel, and the multitude of the heavenly hosts praising God and saying, "Glory to God in the Highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." Note how the shepherds returned to the city to see the thing that the angels had made known to them, that of the Savior being born. They found Him wrapped in swaddling clothes, and lying in a manger; just as the angel had said. When the shepherds had seen the Babe they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning the Child. They then returned, glorifying and praising God for what they had seen and heard, but Mary kept all things pondered in her heart. . . . Read of the visit of the Wise Men from the East in the second chapter of Matthew. Those men were astrologers, studying the stars. While doing so, they discovered the Star of David in the Eastern sky. They knew too well what it meant. They followed it to Jerusalem, and on into the City of Bethlehem to where the young Child was. There they fell down and worshipped Him. They opened their treasures and presented unto Him gifts, gold, frankincense, and myrrh. This story is wonderful, and should be read and known by every one. It flows freely through its supply arteries with all the materials it needs for good health. If the body is in poor condition, it will be reflected in the skin. That is why, beyond good general health, nearly all that can be done for the skin is to keep it clean.

There are many medical conditions that affect the skin, causing sallowness and a worn-out drab look, or producing redness, pallor, various rashes and other symptoms. Symptoms of allergy often appear in the skin and some of them are due to the ingredients of cosmetic preparations.

However, proper diet, sufficient exercise, adequate rest and personal cleanliness are a team of beauty aids that have no competition.

Your Health
YOUR SKIN

The Skin is an active organ of the body. In most adult animals, it is the largest organ in mass (with the liver ranking second). Like other organs it is composed of living tissue and is affected by all the agents which affect other parts of the body—nutrition, for instance, heat, cold, irradiation. As an organ, too, it has specific functions—to contain the other organs and the fluids of the body, to carry the nerves with which we maintain our contact with the outer world, to help regulate temperature, to protect the body against infection, and to mirror disease within the body. Its role as a thing of beauty is, in nature, relatively unimportant, though it would be difficult to make many women believe that. Like other organs, too, the skin is nourished, repaired and maintained in normal condition by materials brought to it by the blood—the same materials which nourish the heart, brain, liver

Parents Problems

My three-year-old goes to play with the three-year-old neighbor girl (always asking my permission) and when I call her home for lunch or dinner she doesn't come. I usually call her once, go to the home and take her by the hand and try to get her home without tears. However, she will pull away from me, stand, and point. Almost always it ends up with a spanking. I have explained and talked to her so much about it, and she will always say, "I'll try." What more could we do to ease this situation?

A three-year-old is not especially time-conscious and if she is having a good time at play, it is not at all unusual that she should not even hear you when you call, or, having heard, forget very quickly that you have done so. You will want to be patient with her, therefore, as you are helping her to develop the habit of coming when called.

I am not sure from your question whether you give her a warning call. It is important that you do so, letting her know, for example, that in a few minutes she will be expected to come for dinner. This gives her and her playmate a chance to get ready for the breakup of their play if lunch is ready. Even then, she may not come immediately. You will want to be tolerant at this point, but it would be well to give her a little extra time. After all, a little girl can move quite slowly at times!

I am wondering how you approach her when you go to get her. If you approach her as if she has done something wrong and you get hold of her hand and begin to yank her along, it is not surprising that she should try to pull away and create more or less of a scene than, as you say, usually ends in a spanking. Your very attitude, you see, creates a feeling of antagonism on her part; even a three-year-old doesn't want to be bossed around.

On the other hand, if you should go over, show an interest in what the children are doing, perhaps play with them yourself for a few minutes, and then make a sort of "game" of walking home for lunch, you might have better success.

What should I do to help my child meet situations more positively? She is five years old, only child and grandchild. I try to appeal to her to want to go places without pressure, but she doesn't want to pull away from her own neighborhood group. I would like for her to approach situations more enthusiastically.

Children differ markedly in the enthusiasm and positiveness with which they face situations, such differences being due frequently to temperament and physical energy. It is quite possible, therefore, that your daughter's temperament is different from your own and that she never will enter into situations with the enthusiasm and energy that you think she should manifest.

If this is the case, you will need to guard both against trying to get her into your own particular pattern of behavior and against giving her the impression that you are disappointed in her because of her lack of enthusiasm. At the same time, you will want to show real approval when she is enthusiastic and positive. If you have not already done so, you may be interested in reading the comments in my booklet, Your Child Today, about individual differences in children.

On the other hand, your daughter's reticence may be due largely to lack of experience with playmates of her own age. An only child is likely either to try to dominate her playmates, or to be shy in their presence. Your daughter evidently does not feel quite secure in the presence of strange children. She prefers, therefore, to remain with the neighborhood group rather than to go to the vacation church school. This is to be expected and although there is no harm in urging her to attend, you should not force her against her will to go.

This does not mean, however, that you should not attempt to get her to want to go to the school. Perhaps this can be done by getting some of the children in the neighborhood to attend it. Visits in the home by those who are in charge of the school and an interesting description by them of what is going to be done at the school may be of help in developing in her an interest in it and a willingness to go.

Facts About Your OPS

Under OPS ceiling price regulation on beef sold at retail the selling price of beef products must be put on display and the grade must be posted where the customer can see and read it.

The construction industry, which does $46 billions of business a year has been placed under a ceiling price regulation that sets prices for construction and related services on the basis of current costs for labor, materials and equipment plus 9-10th of the seller had in effect for a similar job in the period July 1, 1949 to June 24, 1950. Except for actual material and labor cost increases, no general increase in construction costs are expected to result, OPS states.

Defense is by far the largest item in our national budget, OPS points out. If inflation is allowed to go unchecked, it would add billions to the cost of our defense. Each rise of 1 per cent in prices would add one billion dollars to our defense bill, the price stabilization agency calculates.

Both buyers and sellers of new automobiles are prohibited by OPS ceiling price regulation of the Office of Price Stabilization from selling, receiving or delivering any new car at a price higher than the ceiling price set by OPS. Nothing in the regulation prevents the charging, offering or paying of prices less than ceiling.

Price controls make a current American experiment in democratic discipline in the opinion of Michael V. DiSalle, Director of Price Stabilization Agency. He says: "I am sure that as our system of education continues to broaden and improve, and as our means of mass communication improve, the American people will be better and better able to know and to judge the problems of the Nation. As this process goes on, we must continue to insure in the democratic way ample room for honest dissent while we maintain the means of protecting the 'law-abiding majority from the selfish few'."

The recent Herlong amendment to the Defense Production Act and other factors require the Office of Price Stabilization to allow wholesalers and retailers a percentage markup on the manufacturers' excise taxes in those cases where such sellers customarily have treated the amount of excise taxes as part of the cost for markup purposes. Where such taxes are traditionally listed separately by reseller, no percentage markup on them is permitted.

The underlying forces of inflation billion dollars a week—as defense production last February, will grow stronger and which the nation has held back since stronger as defense spending hits a duction bites into manpower and materials available for civilian production—and as rising income create more purchasing power, warns Michael V. DiSalle, Director of Price Stabilization.

Anti-freeze made of natural methanol, or wood alcohol, which may be offered for sale this season will carry the same dollar-and-cents ceiling price as anti-freeze made from synthetic methanol and will be classified as Type S or Type SC, depending on concealing prices where buyers can see Stabilization. Sellers must post this centration, says the Office of Price them.

If a customer requests that beef be ground, cubed, diced, rolled or boned in a special way, no charge can be made for such service and the customer must be permitted to see it, according to the beef ceiling price regulation of OPS.

Inflation fact: For every $10,000 of life insurance carried by American husbands for their families, inflation robbed them of about $800 worth of this protection from the time of the Korean invasion to the February 1951 date that the OPS price freeze regulation took hold.

The next time you order regular ground beef, which is 25 per cent fat and can't get it, remember that under OPS regulation the store must sell you lean ground beef at the regular price. Retail meat dealers are required to have a sign on their lean ground beef reading: "Lean ground beef may be purchased at the regular ground beef ceiling price whenever we are unable to fill your order for regular ground beef."

"Fishermen's luck" cut this year's pack of Maine sardines to only 1,000,000 cases as compared with an average of 3,000,000 cases during the past 10 years, and has made necessary an upward revision in the OPS ceiling price. OPS estimates that the new canner ceilings will increase the retail ceilings by not more than two cents a can, but will enable the producers to still make a fair profit despite lessened volume.

Farmers' markets depend on how much buying power is in the hands of 152 million Americans. OPS says that if inflation is permitted to undermine the American buying power, farmers eventually will sell less and earn less. The prosperity of farmers depends on how successfully price stabilization protects the buying power of all citizens, which is an important part of the job of the Office of Price Stabilization.

OPS enforcement representative, between September 23 and mid-October inspected the records of 3,814 slaughtering establishments and found 1,408 plants in violation of OPS slaughtering regulation, says a report by the government agency.

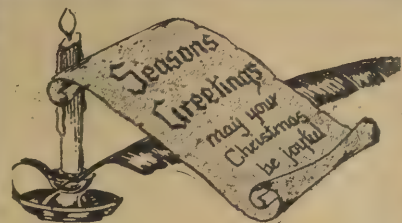

The new lamb and veal ceiling price regulation of OPS provides for weekly recalculation of costs by retailers so that prices to consumers can reflect changes at wholesale in the price retailers must pay for these meats. Retailers must decrease prices by the percentage amount of the change in their average cost when decreases occur. Retailers are of course permitted to reflect any increases.

The complexities of the American economy were shown by the simple instance of the removal from price controls of corn cobs. The Office of Price Stabilization took this action because of the need to encourage collection of corn cobs to meet stepped up demand by processing plants that use them in making furfural. Furfural is a chemical in demand in over 50 uses including synthetic rubber, nylon, corrosion resistors and naval stores.

Monroe Boles Taking Dairy Program Seriously

Mr. Monroe Boles and Thomas Elders look over a group of heifers that will be added to the milking herd next fall.
The above shows children at play at the state Baptist orphanage at Troy. Superintendent E. E. Cox has recently made his annual appeal for a liberal Christmas offering from the half-million Baptists of Alabama to provide the living expenses of the home for the coming year. Goal is $140,000.

Monroe Boles of Thorsby, Route 1 is taking his dairy program quite seriously. Not only is he adding animals to his herd but he is adding feed crops and grazing to keep his program in balance.

At the present, Mr. Boles is selling milk from two cows. His milk check for the month amounted to $45.00. By next fall Mr. Boles plans to increase his milking herd to 10-12 producing cows. He feels that he is establishing enough pasture to furnish adequate grazing for a herd of this size. Eighteen acres of permanent pasture, including sericea, fescue and clover, has been established. In addition to the permanent grazing, ten acres of oats and button clover have been planted for temporary grazing. Mr. Boles realizes that his dairy program can be no sounder than his grazing program and he is taking the proper steps to insure a profitable undertaking. Not only does Mr. Boles plan to increase milk production by adding more cows he intends to increase the production

Area School Officials Study Citizenship Education Plans

An active program of citizenship education in school is necessary to meet the threats of totalitarianism and to promote a greater appreciation of our freedom as Americans.

With this theme, Dr. Robert Street, of Teachers College, Columbia University, addressed 80 teachers and school administrators representing most areas of the state as they met this morning for a week-long Citizenship Education Project workshop in the Education Building of the First Baptist church.

The workshop is sponsored by the Associated Public School Systems, in cooperation with Teachers College of Columbia. Dr. Rayburn J. Fisher, assistant superintendent of Jefferson County Schools, is coordinator of the workshop.

In describing the purpose of the Citizenship Education Project, which was developed by Columbia in 1949 under the direction of General Dwight D. Eisenhower and which has functioned in more than 150 school systems throughout the country, Dr. Street said:

"Teaching citizenship has always been a primary function of schools. However, the Citizenship Education project is concerned with teaching the skills of good citizenship on a far more ambitious scale than ever before attempted. Our goal is to help students discover for themselves the skills of citizenship we require to remain free."

"All of us realize that you can't teach effective citizenship exclusively through textbooks on civics and history—any more than you can teach a person to drive a car by handing him a book on the subject. In each of the workshops, we devote as much time as possible to considering projects which involve actual application of citizenship skills."

Dr. Street cited a number of examples of good citizenship practices which have been developed by schools in cooperation with the C. E. P. in Williamsburg, Va., he said, students gained an insight into the meaning of freedom of the press by working with a local editor and studying the newspapers' functions and influence. This resulted in the production of playlets and a commencement program which focused community attention on the subject.

In Paris, Ill., students initiated action which led to a street improvement program. Hillsdale, N. J., students made a thorough survey of the community's human resources available to Civil Defense in case of attack. In another New Jersey school, students sponsored a political rally and helped put the vote in an important municipal election.

Operating with a grant of $150,000 supplied by the Carnegie Corporation, the Citizenship Education Project, under the supervision of Dr. William S. Vincent, executive officer, has gathered materials, held workshops, and in other ways has tried to stimulate appreciation and understanding of how citizenship functions help guarantee our freedom and American way of life.

Under the plan, each community chooses its own project—one which seeks solution of an existing local problem, whether this may be arousing interest in an election or improving traffic conditions. All of the ideas for programs which will be examined in the workshop are based on premises found in the Declaration of Independence, Constitution of the United States, Supreme Court decisions and other historic documents.

UNIVERSITY, Ala.—Dollar volume of Alabama retail sales increased in September for the second straight month, rising to the third highest peak on record, according to the "Retail Trade Report" released today by the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Alabama.

Total sales were five per cent above August and six per cent higher than in September, 1950; the Bureau reports the unadjusted index for retail sales at 115.4 per cent of the 1948 average month.

Only six of the state's 7 counties had indexes below 100, while 21 counties recorded all-time highs.

Net retail sales for Chilton County in September showed a 25 per cent increase from August, compared with an average state increase of 5.4 per cent.

The three biggest increases of retail sales in Alabama for September were chalked up by the following types of concerns: clothing, 39 per cent increase over August; general merchandise, 19.7 per cent and hardware and farm implements up 17.7 per cent.

Across the nation, retail prices of goods and services bought by moderate-income urban families averaged 0.6 per cent higher in September than in August. Chiefly responsible for the rise was a 2.7 per cent increase in the apparel index; it was reported by the U. S. Dept. of Labor Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Employment as well as trade activity was at a high level in September. Estimates by the State Department of Industrial Relations place the Alabama Employment figure for September at 646,000 which is an all-time high.

But other business indicators for September were off. Industrial production and construction contracts dropped below the previous month as well as below September, 1950.

Of the seven industrial series included in the Bureau's composite index only cement production increased. The biggest slump was a 19 per cent drop in the consumption of cotton by textile mills.

Bank debits also fell below August and the September index was the second lowest this year.

No fruit is easier to grow than muscadines if the vines are provided with a fence or a wire trellis.

Orders should be placed well in advance of the time chicks are actually needed because a high quality laying strain of chicks may be hard to get later on in the season.

SIXTEEN YEAR OLDS MUST HAVE CERTIFICATES

Montgomery, Ala.—Alabama employers were cautioned this week to observe the State's child labor laws regarding employment of minors during the Christmas holidays. Mrs. Daisy Donovan, Chief Child Labor Inspector, Department of Industrial Relations, said that children under 16 may do certain kinds of work which will not injure their health or morals, but they must have certificates. These may be secured from school superintendents or their authorized representatives.

Mrs. Donovan said that the child labor law is designed to safeguard children from premature toil and unsuitable conditions of work and to insure for them the benefits of education.

"It is not a prohibitive measure in the sense of preventing children from doing something they should be allowed to do," she said. "It is an enabling measure in that it guarantees an opportunity for education and establishes certain standards of work for their protection."

Mrs. Donovan said that Alabama citizens can aid in securing better compliance with the law by refusing to buy articles sold on streets from children without badges and by reporting violations to school authorities or child labor inspectors.

Mrs. Donovan added that citizens can aid greatly by using their influence individually and collectively in securing amendments to the law that will further protect minors from the evils resulting from child labor.

HUNTINGDON COLLEGE CLOSURES FOR THE CHRISTMAS SEASON

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 19—After a gay season of pre-Christmas activities, Huntingdon College closed for the Christmas holidays. Classes will be resumed Thursday morning, January 3.

Largest of the festivities on the campus before school closed was the formal Christmas dinner in the dining hall. Adding to the spirit of the occasion were the table decorations with which the dining room groups vied for prizes offered for the most beautiful and most original tables. Prizes were cakes presented by Mrs.

Marylee Collins, dean of women. A Christmas program was presented under the leadership of a jolly Santa Claus.

On Sunday afternoon the students living in Pratt and Hanson Halls held open house for the entire student body and faculty. There were also club parties and hall parties in each dormitory.

Much of the true spirit of Christmas was evident, however. A Christmas pageant was presented in the chapel by the Student Christian Association. All of the students, faculty and staff joined together in the Huntingdon Christmas Tree, an annual occasion marked by a religious program and the distribution of gifts to all of the college servants. And, instead of having a Christmas party for themselves the students living in Massey Hall decorated a Christmas tree and prepared gifts of clothing and toys for children from the public welfare rolls.

Huntingdon students spending the Christmas holidays at home include Mary Ann Oglesby, of Clanton, and Mary Jo Morgan, of Cooper.

1951 CHRISTMAS CHEST GOAL OF $2,000.00 IN SIGHT

The last meeting in 1951 of the Christmas Chest was held Monday night and the treasurer reported that total collections had reached nearly two thousand dollars and that before the week was out he was sure of going over the goal set.

All is in readiness and the packing committee under the direction of Zebben Stapp, will start packing the Christmas boxes Friday morning. Deliveries will be made Christmas eve to families in all parts of Chilton County.

J. D. Bell, the 1951 Chairman, thanked his co-workers for their untiring efforts in behalf of the Christmas drive. The next meeting of the group will be at a 4:00 p.m. luncheon at the Dixie Cafe on January 7th, 1952.

Local Social Items

Mr. and Mrs. Morrison Entertains
Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Morrison were hosts to thirty five of their friends at an informal Christmas buffet supper last Friday night at the Clanton Country club. The club room was attractively decorated with holly tied with red ribbon.

The buffet table featured a most attractive centerpiece of frosted boughs, large red candles, red Christmas balls and was splashed with lovely red carnations.

After a most delicious supper, music by records was enjoyed.

Bride Elect Honored

Mrs. W. K. Gillespie entertained informally at a miscellaneous tea shower on Friday afternoon Dec. 14 in her home, complimenting Miss Betty Sue Owens, of Clanton and Washington, D. C.

Miss Owens will arrive home on Dec. 22 to be married to Sgt. Otis D. Williams on Dec. 26.

Since the honoree was unable to attend the shower party it will be quite a surprise to her.

Guest were greeted by the hostess and Mrs. W. E. Owens, mother of the honoree.

The Dream of All Mankind at Christmas

God grant that we all may live and thrive together in peace and harmony on this day and always. We wish you a Joyful Christmas and may choicest blessings be yours forever.

Clanton Jewelry Co.

Mrs. I. I. Spiller registered the guests. Gifts were received and displayed by Mrs. Hilton Owens. Assisting in the dining room where coffee and cake were served were Mrs. Thomas Martin and Mrs. Paul Huie.

The refreshment table was covered with a white linen cloth with a centerpiece of lovely poinsettias flanked by white candles in crystal holders.

Potted poinsettias and greenery were used for further adornments of the home.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams Hosts to Directors

One of the loveliest festivities of the yuletide season was on Tuesday evening, Dec. 14, when Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Williams were host to the Clanton Kiwanis Board of Directors, their wives and other guests at a Christmas dinner party in their spacious home on the Selma Road.

The reception rooms were decorated with holly, mistletoe and evergreens. The living room mantle was marked with a lighted miniature church. Little choir boys dressed in white robes were marching into the church. Large red candles on either side were tied with frosted greens and green balls. A large brass urn under the pier mirror held a Christmas arrangement of Florida holly mistletoe, monkey pine and cedar. Potted poinsettias completed the adornment of the living room.

Guests found their places at the dinner table by place cards and favors of miniature Santa Claus boots filled with mints in the yuletide colors.

The Rev. Hickman brought an inspiring message to the dinner guests. After dinner the guests enjoyed singing Christmas Carols in the living room, with Mrs. W. E. Huddleston accompanying at the piano.

The club officers were presented with a little token of appreciation for their years work.

The ladies received beautiful jewel studded compacts as favors from "Old Santa," played by Mr. Willingham. The men received a toy from Santa which they donated to the Christmas Chest.

Mrs. Williams was assisted in entertainment by Mrs. Willingham, Mrs. Arnold and Mrs. Jackson.

Club officers and directors and wives present were Mr. Watson Yeager, Mrs. Yeager, Mr. Dick Arnold, Mrs. Arnold, Howard Bookholdt, Mrs. Bookholdt, J. D. Bell, Mrs. Bell, Mr. C. C. Carlton, Mrs. Carlton, Rev. A. T. Hickman, Mrs. Hickman, Hollis Jackson, Mrs. Jackson, Houston Nivens, Mrs. Nivens, Leo Thompson, Mrs. Thompson, Mr. George Willingham, Mrs. Willingham, the host and hostess.

Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Huddleston and Miss Margaret Platt.

The Doreen Owen girls' auxiliary group met Monday afternoon in Mrs. L. C. Warr's room at the Grammar school for their last December meeting.

The room had been beautifully decorated by Mrs. Warr and her pupils which gave the girls the excitement of the Christmas spirit.

Group singing of the G. A. hymn was first on the program. A lovely devotional, fitting to the yuletide season was brought by Mrs. R. R. Suter, followed by prayer.

The girls worked on their "Forward Step" and they had the enjoyment of packing a "Love" or "Sunshine" box with gifts they had brought to be given to a shut-in at Christmas.

Thirty-six girls and their counselor Mrs. Suter, Mrs. George Jester and Mrs. W. C. Dickinson, were present.

Light refreshments were served.

Clanton O. E. S. News

The Clanton Chapter 271 O. E. S. held the regular monthly meeting Thursday night at the hall. After the business meeting a covered dish Christmas party with the exchanging of gifts was enjoyed by twenty-five or more members.

Mrs. Jones Fetes Mrs. Bonnano

Mrs. Ray Bonnano, nee Audrey Maude Popwell, a recent bride, was the honoree at a lovely miscellaneous tea shower given by Mrs. I. V. Jones on Tuesday afternoon Dec. 11th, at her home.

Mrs. Shelby Cargile welcomed guest at the door. Receiving with the hostess and the honoree was Mrs. Grady Popwell, the bride's mother. Mrs. Cargile also registered friends who called during the tea hours.

A bowl of lovely magnolia leaves, with white flowers reflected in a mirror plaque on the buffet. An arrangement of white glads, mums and snaps interspersed with fern, flanked by tall burning white tapers in silver holders formed the centerpiece of the table.

POPLAR SPRINGS CHURCH

Glad to have the good crowd at Sunday School Sunday. Even though the weather was rough. We still miss a good many of the people who are sick with measles. We certainly hope and pray that everyone will be able to be at church Sunday.

We are hoping to have a good Christmas program Sunday night, entitled "A Light in My Window." Everyone who can come and enjoy the services with us. We will have a Christmas tree and maybe "Ole Santa" will slip in to see good little boys and girls.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Bowden visited Mr. and Mrs. Lester Warmock at Popperell Sunday.

Let's remember all our sick in prayer, especially our pastor's mother who is suffering so much. Also remember prayer service on Wednesday night.

CARD OF THANKS

We want to express our thanks to the many friends and neighbors for their thoughtful acts and the kind

JACK LANGSTON

Mr. Jack Langston, age 38, of Jemison, Ala., died in Mobile Dec. 17. The remains arrived here Tuesday, Dec. 18 at 7:22 p.m. Funeral services were held at Mars Hill church at 2:00 p.m. Wednesday.

He is survived by four brothers, W. F. Langston of Birmingham, Thomas Langston of Bessemer, Eric Langston of Jemison and Ervin Langston of Newnan, Ga.; six sisters, Mrs. Ethel Scott of Huey Town, Mrs. Bessie McCarty of Siluria, Mrs. Ivie Northcutt of Anniston, Mrs. Mary B. Bates of Newnan, Ga.; Mrs. Lizzie Williams of Sylacauga, Mrs. Marie Rich of Opelika, Ala.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Never wash the hands with water after peeling onions. Simply rub them with coarse salt and the odor will disappear.

Has milk ever boiled over on your stove? It is difficult and messy to remove unless you sprinkle a layer of salt on the milk. Salt and water soaking in a charred steak pan also loosens the dirt and makes cleaning easier.

In making uncooked frosting, if a hot liquid is used for moistening, it will take away that unattractive raw taste which uncooked icing has.

To keep the coffee pot sweet, boil a strong solution of borax in it occasionally.

MRS. SALLIE WILLIAMS

Mrs. Sallie Williams, age 87, of Jemison, Ala., died at the home of her son, Dr. John Kincaid in Maplesville, Ala., Tuesday p.m., Dec. 18. Funeral services were held Wednesday Dec. 19 at 2:00 p.m. at Mulberry church, conducted by Rev. Homer Carroll and Rev. J. W. Jones. Interment in Mulberry cemetery.

She is survived by 4 sons, Dr. John Kincaid and Fulton Kincaid of Maplesville, Ala., Clayton Kincaid of Jemison, R. L. Kincaid of Birmingham; three daughters, Mrs. Maggie Coburn of Clanton, Mrs. Sadie Shaw of Jemison, Mrs. Eric Bates of Maplesville, Ala.; 25 grandchildren and 46 great grandchildren.

JEMISON NEWS

MRS. GEORGE NAIISH

Jemison H. S. Student Wins Scholarship at Vanderbilt

Charles R. Jones, son of Mrs. Charles Donald Jones, of Jemison, Ala. has just been notified of his award of a scholarship at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tennessee.

Charles is completing his Senior year at Jemison high school this term. He has starred the past four years in football, basketball and baseball. He weighs 185 pounds and is 18 years of age and is 6 ft. 2 inches tall.

His scholarship is listed in Chemical Engineering.

During his high school days Charles has always endeavored to conduct himself above reproach. He is very popular with the entire faculty and student body. Only last week his high school coach, Alton Cobb, remarked to your reporter that during his entire 4-year coaching of Charles that he never one time was compelled to reprimand him for any misdeed of word or action. What a fine tribute to coach can pay to a player who has always given his best to win for him and his Alma Mater.

Charles is very modest in his disposition. He has never entertained a flair for the fanciful display. On the ball field he doesn't impress the spectators with a high degree of flashy and spectacular mannerisms.

He was loyal to his team mates faithful to his coach, respectful to the officials, considerate of his opponents and reverent to his teachers.

He served as Captain of this years football team.

Many times the Jemison Athletic fans have watched him play, when he was battered and bruised from the rigors of the game. Only an individual with courage and perseverance and a strong will to win, will go out on the field and play under those treacherous handicaps. Such was Charles Jones disposition.

Today the Varsity basketball team misses his presence due to several injuries sustained in his efforts to win for Jemison high school.

He recently returned from Nashville where he conferred with Backfield coach Terlap and line coach Belinckick.

With Charles goes the well wishes of his many friends for a pleasant and successful sojourn at Vanderbilt Robert B. Johnson, Sports reporter.

Jemison High Trips

Isabella 42-40

After rolling up a 16 point lead deep in the third quarter the Jemison Panthers had some real pressure turned loose on them last Friday night by the Isabella boys, who overcame the deficit and tied it up 38-38 with only four minutes left in the game. C. Cobb came through with a field tally to put J. H. S. out ahead, but a minute later Baker, the flashy little guard for Isabella tied her up again 40-40. With a minute and half to go Bean slammed one through the net from the side line for Jemison. The visitors failed in their return attempt, and the J. H. S. boys gained possession of the ball and put on the deep freeze to clinch the victory. The Isabella team gave the spectators a genuine thrill, when they all but the monkey wagon in that final quarter. The J. H. S. boys demonstrated their pluck by not allowing the late rally to break their spirit to win. J. W. Langston, Carroll Sorrell and John Cannady led the Jemison scoring with 9, 7, and 8 points respectively.

For Isabella, Baker shot the big gun with 15 points, followed by his mate, H. Hayes with 7.

This was Jemison's 3rd win of the current season against no losses. Their first game was a 26 to 25 victory over Calera high. Their second game was a 47 to 46 win over the fast breaking little quint from Billingsley high. Apparently the Jemison team is out to set some kind of a peculiar record. In all three games they build up a good lead then allow their opponents to pull up and knot the count in the final minutes of play.

But with grit and determination they have overcome the odds and managed to squeeze through the necessary win point. This may be good for the team but its rough on the coach and tough on home town supporters.

Coach Alton Cobb is having to mold a team around the only two veteran players, Langston and Sorrell, left from last year's squad. The ne wplayers coming up from last years B-team are Charles Cobb, Wayne Guin, John Cannady, Donnie Bean, and Tommie Martin. Glenn Madcup who came on for this year's team has plugged hard to win a berth on the A-squad. He is fast developing into a cracker jack good defensive man, and a good team player, Ray, another new comer rounds out the A-list.

The Jemison B's have not had the difficulty of winning as the Varsity team has experienced. They too have captured all their three games thus far Scoring as follows: 1st-Jemison 25 Calera 19; 2nd-Jemison 30, Billingsley 15; 3rd-Jemison 36, Isabella 16.

This years B-team is composed of James Martin, Floyd Guy, Charlie Williams, Jerry Conway, Henry Hiller, Bobby Jones, Royce Smith, Kendall Martin, Edgar Peterson, Leslie Guy, E. Hilyer, H. Martin and "Blondy" Barrett.

The above players that have really produced the win-margins this season are, J. Martin, C. Williams, F. Guy, J. Conway, H. Hilyer, K. Martin and Barrett. The other members of the Junior squad are each filling in nicely to give the team balance and precision. Coach Mack Smith is giving these boys some real grueling tests that should assure Jemison High a winning team of the future.

The Jemison teams went to Verbena Tuesday night to tangle with the boys with Coach Porch's basketballers. The results of these games will be published later, as your reporter cannot get the Tuesday night games in ir time for publication the next day.

The game announcement for tomorrow night (Friday) will be found elsewhere under separate heading.

Jemison High Meets Columbiana Tomorrow

Tomorrow night, (Friday, Dec. 21), the Jemison High School Panthers play the husky team from Columbiana at Jemison. B-game at 7:00 p.m., with A-game on tap for 8:00 p.m., with two games for two good reasons: first this will be the last game until after the holidays; second, the Jemison Athletic Association is giving away a brand new automobile to the holder of some lucky number. A full house is expected, so he on hand to share the fun and thrills with your friends and neighbors.

JEMISON HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

The Beta Club at Jemison is sponsoring the first annual that the school has had. This week the first shipment of layouts were mailed to the publisher. Another shipment will be sent in the spring, this will include material about basketball and other subjects that were not ready at this time.

The first shipment of layouts included individual pictures of the six classes in high school; group pictures of elementary grades, individual pictures of faculty, the dedication, football, Beta Club, Future Homemakers, Future Farmers, Future Teachers, Glee Club band, school newspaper staff, Homecoming Queen, Harvest Queen, Good Citizenship Girl, snapshots made during football games, snapshots made at the homecoming program and the Halloween party, the Who's Who winners and many other pictures.

After the holidays there will be a contest to select "Miss Jemison," the prettiest girl. The annual will have a beauty section with the first place winner and the runners up.

The annual is supposed to be ready for delivery on May 1. June Handley is the editor and Sue Bratton the business manager.

Recently the FTA Club was organized at Jemison High School. The officers are: President, Kathryn Carroll; vice-president, Frances Black; Secretary and Treasurer, Alyce Jo Langston; Reporter, Janice Jones.

Christmas Program of W. M. U. And W. S. C. S.

Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock the W. M. U. and the W. S. C. S. met at church for the Christmas program.

When all had arrived the Methodist ladies served refreshments, which were delicious, as well as attractive. Each one received a gaily colored corsage.

The program was opened by all joining in singing, "O! Come All Ye Faithful." Prayer by Mrs. George Naish. Robert Earl Holly sang "Down from His Glory." The scripture was read by Miss Mary Clements, John 1:1-14.

Rev. Homer Carroll read "Prince of Peace." A film strip was shown, "And on Earth Peace." A Christmas tree completed the program.

P-T-A. Meeting

The regular PTA meeting was held Wednesday, at 3:00 o'clock in the high school library. Miss Yvonne Thrash read the scripture, Luke 2:1-12. Prayer by Rev. Homer Carroll.

The topic, Foundation for Better Health and Fitness. Orville Moore gave a paper on How Physical Education helps a pupil. Mrs. Mac Smith presented a play, "Preparing a program for Christmas." This play was thoroughly enjoyed.

Mrs. Lester Pate, president, was in charge of the business session. Mrs. Jewel Peterson, read the minutes and gave the treasurer's report. It was agreed that the organization purchase books for the library.

The PTA served dinner to the Lions club on Thursday night.

The community will be humming with activity soon. The boys and girls from college will be home. Dan Walton, already home from Southern, Joe Bratton, will be in from Dental School, Carolyn McNeil, Betty Norwood, Mary Edna and Annette Reynolds, Mary Julia Blewster from Alabama College. Joe Frank Cobb from Auburn and James Lester Pate from Huntingdon. We are always happy to see these young people and wish them well.

WHITE CHRISTMAS AT METHODIST CHILDREN'S HOME

This Sunday will be a big day in the lives of a lot of needy girls and boys at the Methodist Children's Home.

It is "White Christmas" Sunday in all Methodist churches throughout Alabama and West Florida.

It is the day they have been looking forward to. And they are depending on Methodists and all other denominations to remember them this holiday season and in the long months ahead with "White Christmas" contributions.

They are asking a chance in life—something they are getting in tender care and training at the Methodist home at Selma.

There are scores and scores of these dependent youngsters—some of them tiny tots—who are gaining a new hold on life at the home.

These kiddies are healthy youngsters with bright faces and tinkling laughter. They are normal in every way except one. When sleepy time comes at night, they have no mother or father to hear their prayers, tuck them in bed and kiss them goodnight.

These little boys and girls got off to a wretched start in life, with many of them coming from broken homes. A place had to be found for them that place was the Methodist home.

But demands on this home are constantly increasing. More room is needed to care for dozens and dozens of children who desperately need help.

And More funds are needed, not only to enlarge facilities at the home but to maintain and operate it. After all, prices have been going up at this home, too. It costs more to buy clothing and food for these needy youngsters, just as it costs more to feed and clothe your own children.

This home is giving the dependent youngsters a chance to grow up into sturdy, useful citizens. The children are taught how to help themselves.

Older boys do farming, dairying, gardening, furnace-firing and yard work. Cooking, housekeeping, laundry work and other household chores are some of the responsibilities of the older girls.

To insure that this work continues church leaders again are making a "White Christmas" appeal to raise necessary funds. Those who care are asked to give.

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

By OLIN G. FIELDS

R. R. Stutts is doing an excellent job of poisoning undesirable hardwood in pines. Ammate is the poison used. A nice chip is removed or a cup made for each three of four inches in diameter of the tree and a teaspoon of ammate per chip is used.

Cleo Cofer plans to clear a brushy-hardwood hill where no commercial timber is growing or will grow unless planted to expand his grazing crops. It was recommended that where a stand of quality hardwood and pines are now growing to leave to develop into saw logs.

C. R. Childress has an excellent stand of rene grass that reseeded behind Kobe lespedeza.

R. M. Foshee is thinning some thick and diseased pine for post. They have been peeled and as soon as they dry they will be treated.

Aking Collins and T. R. Carter have excellent stands of Kentucky 31 Fescue.

G. W. Allen has done a good job of obtaining a stand of Kentucky 31 Fescue and is trying to decide where the summer pasture will be planted.

MAPLE SPRINGS

The services last Sunday and Sunday evening were well attended with several visitors to worship and enjoy the messages with us.

Everyone is welcome and invited to be with us Sunday. The gifts will be given in each Sunday School class. The Christmas Program will be Sunday evening before B. T. U. Service. We know this program will be grand so we'll be looking forward to you being there and remain for the Training Union and preaching service.

TRY SLOWING IT DOWN

If your pump is too fast for your Service specialist in farm buildings, well, try slowing the pump down.

William T. Cox, A. P. I. Extension says this applies primarily to piston type pumps. Use a larger pulley on the pump or a smaller one on the motor. The capacity of centrifugal and most jet type pumps may be reduced by placing a throttling valve in the discharge pipe.

GRAVEYARD" AUTOMOBILES MUST GO TO MARKET

Operators of automobile "graveyards" in Chilton county are now required to get their old cars moving in market to help the nation solve the present problem of steel shortages which they may be found in violation of federal regulations.

According to information received from Merrill C. Lofton, regional director of the U. S. Department of Commerce in Atlanta, the National Production Authority has just issued an order under which owners of automobile "graveyards" must send that agency an inventory report by December 20 detailing the number of motor vehicles, car units and amount of loose scrap they had on hand on December 1 of this year.

The order also prohibits any wrecker from accepting delivery of any automobile or car unit during the three-month period beginning March 1, 1952 and the first day of June, September, December and March thereafter unless during the preceding three-month period he had disposed of all automobiles manufactured prior to 1946.

The order makes it mandatory for prompt and complete compliance with any directive issued by NPA to allocate motor vehicles, car units and loose scrap from yards for delivery or disposal to scrap dealers or consumers.

NPA has defined a "car unit" as a motor vehicle stripped of salvageable parts, "loose scrap" as the non salvageable sections or parts removed from cars, such as miscellaneous fenders, doors and gears, and the term "motor vehicle" as including trucks up to one and a half tons in weight.

The sum and substance of the NPA order, Mr. Lofton said, is to make it a Federal offense for any owner of an automobile "graveyard" to keep his old cars on the yard and not get them into commercial scrap channels. Compliance investigators working out of the Atlanta regional and district offices will conduct a patriotic check to make certain there are no violations of the order, and if any are found the offenders will be subject to penalties provided in the Defense Production Act of 1951, he said.

The order was issued, Mr. Lofton stated, because the present scrap iron and steel shortage, which has become a grave national emergency, is causing many mills to operate on a "hand-to-mouth" basis. Millions of tons of scrap iron and steel, such as is contained in cast-off automobiles in car "graveyards" are lying dormant and must be moved to market or the national program of defense cannot be carried out, he said.

11,600 PERSONS RECEIVED JOB INSURANCE DURING NOV.

Montgomery, Ala. —An estimate of 11,600 persons received job insurance payments totalling $619,517 in Alabama during November, according to Joe L. Coleman, Director of Industrial Relations. The average payment for a week of total unemployment climbed from $15.98 in October to $16.47 in November.

Coleman said that this increase was ascribed chiefly to a larger proportion of payments made under the revised schedule which raised benefit rates for claimant who established benefit years on or after October 1, 1951. This factor caused an increase in the amount of benefits paid, he said, as contrasted with a decrease in the number of payments.

During the same period, 10,727 persons filed new applications for work at local employment offices. At the end of the month, these offices reported 34,678 active job seekers.

An over-all increase in the number of persons claiming unemployment insurance was exceeded by the combined increase in the three local offices serving Jefferson County. The prime factor inflating the claims load in that area was the complete cessation of activities in all production units of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company. Operations of this firm were paralyzed by a work stoppage resulting from a labor dispute involving United Steelworkers which idled approximately 26,000 workers during the first twelve days of November. Many of these workers were laid off between October 26 and November 1, Coleman said, and a number of workers, particularly coal miners, were eligible for benefits since the labor dispute was not in the establishment in which they were employed. The industrial Relations Director said that only part of these claims were cleared for payment in time to be processed in November. The December claims load will include many of these payments.

Coleman said that the unsettled labor conditions plus a general lull in hiring brought the number of November job replacements to 9,869. This was some 2,500 below the October figure but approximately the same number as were placed in Nov. 1951.

1627 NAMES DRAGGED FROM WELFARE ROLL

Montgomery, Ala.— State Welfare Commissioner Bill Dorrough says that 1,627 names were trimmed from Alabama welfare rolls during October because they didn't qualify under the new property limitation.

Dr. Dorrough said 108,823 beneficiaries got an average of $23.47 during the month, a total of $2,553,560. The 1951 legislature changed the property limitation to fix a maximum of $890 worth of property one could own and still draw a welfare check.

Previously the figure was $1,200 assessed value, less encumbrances.

TO OPEN HEARING ON NEWS RATES

Montgomery, Ala.—Hearing will be resumed in Montgomery on Dec. 26 on a Southern Bell Telephone Company request to hike its rates by $4,350,000 during the next year.

During a two-day Service Commission hearing in Montgomery, telephone company officials had testified that expenses were increasing more rapidly than revenues. Among the proposals was one to raise the pay station call from five cents to 10 cents.

The petition also calls for increases ranging from 30 cents to $1.25 a month in service charges for residential phone service, and from 50 cents to $2.25 on business phones, in addition to higher rates on Alabama long distance calls.

The Southern Bell has received two

FIN-FAN ITEMS

This has been a grand fishing year on the Coosa and Tallapoosa Lakes, as was shown by the many outstanding entries made in the Alabama Power Company Fishing Contest. Some of the large entries are as follows: Largemouth Bass 7 pounds 12 ounces; Smallmouth Bass 7 pounds 4 ounces; White Bass or stripe 3 pounds 8 ounces; Crappie 3 pounds; Bluegill Bream 1 pound 7 ounces; Shelleracker Bream 1 pounds 9 ounces. The above mentioned Smallmouth Bass was also entered in the Field & Stream National Contest and is understood to be a prize winning entry.

All weigh-in stations please mail all entries made through November 30th as previously instructed. The contest judges: Mr. Pete Kelly, Wetumpka Rod and Reel Club; Mr. J. Andy Matchan, Sylacauga Fishermen's Club;

Mr. Frank M. Jackson, Alexander City Sportsman; Mr. M. D. Fisher, Jr., Clanton Sportsman; will review all entries, and according to the rules of the contest, will announce the winners within the next two weeks. The November winner of the merchandise certificate good for $10.00 in trade at the winners favorite sporting goods store will be announced at the same time. November entries reported last week are as follows:

Lake Yates

Mrs. Joe Orr, Storekeeper, Martin Dam, reports: C. B. McCullar, P. O. Box 7, Tallapoosa, used a Coosa Nugget and reeled in a fighting 4 pound Smallmouth Bass.

Lake Lay

Paul Burton's Service Station, Shelby, reports: Charles N. Small, 724 South 29th Street, Birmingham, fished about the mouth of Spring Creek with a Lucky 13 and creeled a 5 pound Largemouth Bass. James L. Brasher, Jr., Route 4, Box 184A, Birmingham, also fished the mouth of Spring Creek, but with a Cripple Shad and after a hard fight, creeled a 6 pound 8 ounce Largemouth Bass.

Lake Mitchell

Raymond Wyatt's Fishing Camp, Walnut Creek, reports: J. R. Lorino, 1321 16th Street SW, Birmingham, had good luck with a Heddon River Runt by hauling in a 4 pound 8 ounce Smallmouth Bass.

Lake Jordan

Powell's River Road Store, near Clanton, reports: G. E. Parr, 3032 Sterling Road, Birmingham, earned a Whopper Catcher Certificate with a Black Hulla Popper by reeling in a 3 pound 12 1/2 ounce Smallmouth Bass.

Joe Smith, Log Cabin Beach Fishing Camp, near the Ferry, reports: Joe Tobia, 1315 South 13th Place, Birmingham, hit the jack pot with a Heddon River Runt and caught the creel limit of Smallmouth Bass. The largest tilted the scales to the tune of 5 pounds 11 ounces.

Watch for the announcement of the final contest winners and here is hoping that your name will be included in the list.

No matter how busy they are, the neighbors in the block keep thinking of new decorating ideas for the holidays.

The neighbor next door is using her Christmas cards to decorate the door and window facings in her living room. By the time the weary postman delivers the final batch of cards, she'll have all the windows and doors framed with bright greetings from her friends.

Even the youngest children can make their own Christmas cards by following the suggestions of the neighbor around the corner.

She gives the youngsters squares of paper, cookie cutters shaped like Christmas trees, pencils, green crayons and tiny silver stars. The children trace the trees on the paper, color them green and decorate them with the stars.

When the two-year-old and the four-year-old come in from playing with the kittens and have washed their hands very, very thoroughly, they're going to make some candy to give to their playmates. Here's the simple recipe they'll use:

For chocolate milk candy they'll mix 1-2 cup of chocolate syrup, a teaspoon of vanilla extract and a cup of dry skim milk. After mixing well, spread on greased waxed paper and chill. Then cut into squares.

Chewy molasses balls are made by pouring 1-4 cup of molasses into a mixing bowl and gradually adding 1-2 cup of crushed graham cracker crumbs and 3-4 cup dry skim milk. Knead lightly and shape into small balls. The balls may be rolled in confectioner sugar if desired.

Every Christmas the neighbor down the street delights her friends with gift packages of her special candied walnuts. Here's her recipe.

Cook gently 1 cup of sugar, 1-2 cup of water, 1-4 cup of light corn syrup and a pinch of salt until the mixture forms a soft ball when tested in cold water. Remove from heat and stir in six marshmallows. Then add three drops of oil of peppermint and 2 1-2 cups of walnut halves, stirring until all the nuts are coated. Cool on unglazed paper and break into pieces.

60 MI SPEED LIMIT EXTENDED TO SIX HI WAYS

Montgomery, Ala.— Gov. Gordon Persons today ordered the day-time speed limit of 60 miles per hour, and a night limit of 50 miles per hour extended to six state highways, effective Dec. 15.

They are Alabama Highways 15, 11, 20, 37, 38, and 91.

"Thirty-four Alabamians who were scheduled to die between Nov. 15 and Dec. 6, are alive today. That convinces me that this order is a good one," Governor Persons said today.

"Between Dec. 6 and Nov. 15, 1950, there were 65 persons killed in Alabama traffic accidents," he said. "On Nov. 15 of this year, we put 60 and 50 miles per hour limits on Alabama U. S. Highways. Public Safety Department figures disclose that only 31 persons were killed between these dates this year."

"In other words, 34 Alabama citizens who according to the formula worked out by the National Public Safety Council would have been killed, are still living today," the governor explained.

On Nov. 15, Governor Persons had ordered the speed limit in effect on 14 U. S. Highways 31, 90, 78, 23h 11, 29, 80, 72, 241, 411, 43, 82, 84 and 278.

The new speed limit of 60 and 50 miles per hour came in the governor's drive to cut down on Alabama's traffic fatality rate.

"Public response to the Nov. 15 order was most cooperative," he said "And of the hundreds of letters which have been received, only one or two have protested the order."

"Strict observance of traffic safety regulations, reasonable speed limits and improved highways," are necessary to cut down the state's accident rates Persons said. "This administration has been working, and will continue to work hard for all three," the governor said.

Today's order, like that of Nov. 15 followed a traffic investigation of motor vehicles, pedestrian, and other traffic use of the roads effected. The survey was conducted by the State Highway and Public Safety Departments.

As in the original order, today's ruling has no effect on the 40 miles per hour day and night limit for motor trucks, semi-trailer trucks, or motor vehicles used primarily for transportation of property.

The 50 miles per hour "during hours of darkness," includes the period from a half hour before sunrise to a half hour after sunset.

NAMED TO HALL OF FAME BOARD

Montgomery, Ala.—Dr. Hallie Farmer, Alabama College professor, has been named chairman of Alabama's Hall of Fame Board. In its first meeting in Montgomery, Mrs. Laura Groon Hill Hancock, was named vice chairman. Other board members are L. E. Sellers, Jr., Alexander City; Carl Morning, Jr., Huntsville; Charles Doster Jr., Anniston; Myron Ross Rubey Mobile; Joe N. Greene, Birmingham Mrs. E. R. Mattingly, Jasper, and Archie D. Carmichael, Dothan.

ARTHUR NAMED TO AERONAUTICS COMMISSION

Montgomery, Ala.—Richard Arthur Fayette, has been elected chairman of the Alabama Aeronautics Commission Arthur succeeded W. Hayden Brooks Birmingham, whose term expired.

Other new officers elected were Duke Paterson, Montgomery, vice chairman, succeeding Harold F. Wood Birmingham, and W. G. Pruett, secretary, succeeding Arthur, Patterson and L. B. Sullivan are now members of the commission.

ACCIDENTS MUST BE REPORTED UNDER NEW STATE LAW

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 19 —Accident report forms that motorists must use under Alabama's new safety responsibility law, will be available and may be obtained from the Department of Public Safety, Sheriff's offices, City Police and your local Highway Patrol Post, Mr. Sullivan, Director of Public Safety, announced today.

"Every motor vehicle owner or operator may follow his or her individual judgment, of course," Mr. Sullivan said "but I would suggest that the wisest ones will obtain a copy of the form before the law becomes effective, familiarize themselves with what it requires in the way of information, and keep it in the glove box of their car just in case they do have the hard luck to be in an accident. The new law as everyone must know by this time goes into effect January 1. Enforcement will begin promptly."

Here are the steps a driver will follow if he or she is involved in an accident:

1. Review the damage immediately. If no one has been killed or injured or property damage to any one person does not exceed $500.00, the accident is not reportable to the Director of Public Safety. If, however, a person was killed or even slightly injured, or if property damage to any one person exceeds $500.00, the accident must be reported within 10 days to the Director of Public Safety, Montgomery, Alabama.

2. If the driver of one of the involved cars is physically unable to file the report, then the registered owner must report within 10 days after learning of the accident. Failure to report an accident under the Safety Responsibility Law is punishable by a fine and by suspension of driving license.

"That's all there is to it," Mr. Sullivan said. "Motorists may save themselves considerable annoyance, of course if they are familiar with the report form before they become involved in an accident. Let me repeat again, incidentally, that every driver must report within 10 days, regardless of who caused the accident."

44 DEATHS IN CHILTON 3RD QUARTER OF 1951

Montgomery.—The 6,361 deaths from all causes reported from the entire state in July, August and September included 44 reported from Chilton County. The announcement was made today by the State Department of Health.

The announcement pointed out that its figures covering both state and county deaths were based upon provisional reports prepared by the Department's Bureau of Vital Statistics. These may differ slightly from the final reports not yet available.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES AT A. P. I. DEC. 15

Auburn, Ala.—Fall quarter commencement exercises for 255 candidates for degrees will be held at Alabama Polytechnic Institute at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, December 15, in the Student Activities Building.

P. Stewart Macaulay, provost of the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore Maryland, will deliver the commencement address.

Mr. Macaulay is a graduate of The Johns Hopkins University and joined the administration staff of the University in 1942. Before returning to the University he was on the editorial staff of the Baltimore Sun.

He has also been a member of the Board of Trustees of Associated Universities, Inc., a group of nine American Universities administering Brookhaven National Laboratories at Upton, N. Y., established to carry on nuclear research.

Among the candidates for degrees is Evelyn Elaine Weidman, of Clanton who will receive a Bachelor of Science degree in Home Economics Education.

Also among candidates for degrees is Claud Clark Ruthven of Clanton who will receive a Bachelor of Industrial Management degree.

SOUND FARM PROGRAM

There is no substitute for study and plans when building a sound farming program.

FARMERS MUST ACT TO PREVENT ROT AND RUST

Most farm homes and service buildings in Alabama are built of wood, a product subject to rotting. Also, many homes and service buildings are roofed with steel which, after years of usage is subject to rusting.

"Therefore," states William T. Cox, API Extension Service specialist in farm buildings, "steel roofing should be painted with a metallic paint containing zinc, or aluminum pigment. Wooden structures should be preserved with an oil or paint."

FOOD CROPS FOR QUAIL HELPS CONSERVE SOIL

Auburn, Ala.—Bicolor lespedeza is a preferred quail food, and other kinds of wildlife do not compete with quail for this valuable food, according to S. R. McDughty, API Extension Service soil conservationist.

He points out that every year this crop produces seed throughout Alabama. It is a personal shrub-like legume which may be established from either seed or seedlings.

"On most farms," says Doughty "there are non-productive eroding woodland borders that should be established in bicolor lespedeza. It withstands shade and competition from trees, and when it is well established erosion is controlled, soil is improved and quail have an abundance of food."

The specialist also reminds farmers that there are small, rough, idle, and inaccessible corners where bicolor lespedeza may be grown to good advantage. Of course, since livestock relish bicolor, it should be planted in border areas where grazing is excluded.

USE RIGHT SEASONING TO ACCENT THE FLAVOR

"Remember that the seasoning can over-power or enhance a food," warns

Mary Huley, API Extension Service nutritionist.

She says that the easiest way to season a root vegetable is to add salt and pepper to taste and a little meat drippings or melted fat.

To give root vegetables a "lift" and then, use a little chopped onion, green pepper, parsley, or chives. For variety, add left over bits of meat, fish, hard-cooked egg, or grated cheese to the white sauce prepared for root vegetables.

To bring out their best flavor, cook root vegetables only until tender.

WANT TO PLAY SANTA TO 200 NEEDY CHILDREN?

One man in Alabama wants $140,000 for his Christmas present. He does not ask it for himself, however. He seeks it for "his children."

He is E. E. Cox and he is superintendent of the state Baptist Children's Home in Troy. That is the goal for the annual Christmas offering from the 2600 Baptist churches in Alabama.

Whatever the gifts amount to, it will be used to provide the essentials of living for the 200 children throughout the coming year, Cox explained. Actually, he said, the Christmas offering supplies the need for some eleven months of each year. Churches in this area are expected to participate.

Other gifts and sources of income he went on, are sufficient for only about one month's operation at the orphanage. So he emphasizes the importance of each church making a liberal contribution at this season.

Some bequests from wills and legacies are received from time to time he continued, and people of means are encouraged to remember the home in disposition of their estate. Certain individuals and church groups occasionally adopt a child for whom they provide clothing and other personal items, he volunteered.

Freight carloads and truckloads of farm products from various areas of the state are sent each Fall to the home to provide many staple needs of the orphanage family. Some canned goods are also included, but Supt. Cox reemphasized the cash offering as Christmas as being absolutely essential to care for his charges.

The children live in eight cottages on the Troy campus and each unit has at least one "cottage mother," a study reveals. This is said to be in line with best approved methods for this type of institution.

The facility also provides a full program of health, education and religion for the youngsters, he assured, with farm work and recreational activities added.

WHEN TO LIME AND HOW MUCH TO USE

Auburn, Ala.—Farmers know that the right kind of lime applied at the right rate per acre where it is needed will pay.

However, the question that confronts the farmer is one involving the proper time to use lime and how much. There are a number of things to consider in deciding if lime should be applied. For example, if a legume is not used in the rotation on a particular field, the chances are lime will not pay unless grain sorghum, Sudan grass of Johnson grass is grown. These non-legume crops do respond to lime.

D. R. Harbor, API Extension Service agronomist, says that all clover-grass permanent pastures in Alabama except those on the lime soils of the Black Belt and Limestone Valleys should be limed every five to 10 years.

He adds that the local county agent can help farmers determine their lime needs. But a rule of thumb to use in liming soils for most crops is to use one ton per acre on sandy soils and two tons per acre on clay soils every five to 10 years.

GRASS "FREEZER JARS" FOR THE HOME FREEZER

Auburn, Ala.—Here are some of the advantages and disadvantages of the comparatively new "freezer jars."

According to Levada Curtis, API Extension Service food preservation specialist, the jars are moisture-vapor-proof; can be re-used; need no heat-sealing as paper containers do; and though food must be thawed somewhat for removal, there is no leakage from the container in thawing.

Now here are the disadvantages of glass jars: they are breakable, and they become frosty on the surface when removed from the freezer which makes them slippery to handle without tongs.

The "freezer jars" are more convenient than ordinary glass jars because the sides are straight so that food slips out easily after slight defrosting.

IT PAYS TO CONTROL SCALE INSECT DAMAGE

Fruit trees in many home orchards do not do well and often die because of scale insects.

John Bagby, API Extension Service horticulturist, says that oil sprays give the best control of these pests. The usual dilution is one part oil emulsion with 19 parts of water. Stir mixture for a few minutes to insure thorough mixing. If, after stirring, oil comes to the top the spray should not be used.

SEEK SITE FOR SCHOOL

Montgomery, Ala.—State School Head Dr. W. J. Terry said a new site is being sought for a new trade school in the Mobile area.

Terry said the site originally chosen at the Mobile Fairground is not available because of a projected expansion at Brookley Air Force Base.

Although school authorities had already decided on that location, Terry said it is realized that the military "has priority over everything."

Mark Whetstone, state trade schools supervisor, has been in Mobile studying alternate sites.

OPS is working on a regulation of retail ceiling prices of both new and used farm equipment, which represents an important cost to farmers.

EVOLUTION OF SANTA CLAUS

Christmas has rolled around once again and Santa Claus with round red cheeks, jolly smile and chunky figure looks the same as he did nearly 90 years ago.

His creator was Thomas Nast, one of America's greatest cartoonists. During the early 1860's he was asked to illustrate Clement Clark Moore's poem A Visit to St. Nicholas, better known to us as "It Was The Night Before Christmas." The result was Santa Claus as we know him.

Santa's creator was born in Bavaria in 1840, son of a musician in a Bavarian army band. When he was a fat little boy of six, Thomas' father left Germany to enlist in the United States navy, and Thomas' mother brought the boy to New York to live.

Along about the time stocky Tommy was 15 he landed his first job as an illustrator for Leslie's Weekly at $4 a week. By the time he was 20 he was sent to England by the New York Illustrated News to sketch the Heenan-Sayers fight, an outstanding sport event of the day.

In 1862 he joined the staff of Harper's Weekly and began the series of emblematic drawings which continued throughout the Civil War. From those he created certain trademarks that have been the inspiration of cartoonists down to the present—notably the Republican elephant and the Democratic donkey.

Famous as the political symbols are today, Nast's Santa Claus probably holds first place in the hearts of Americans. Before Nast's day, a few artists had drawn Santa on one occasion or another, but could not seem to agree on how the old gentleman should look. Nast changed all that.

He located Santa's home at the North Pole and gave him a sleigh drawn by reindeer. He drew the familiar, fat merry old fellow with red cheeks and white beard, dressed in red, wearing a cap and boots, carrying a pack of toys and smoking a short pipe.

The artist then gave Santa a spy glass so that during the year he might pick out the good children from the bad, and also a big book in which to write their names and keep their records.

This conception of Santa first appeared in 1863. Since that time, the present Santa has been the same, although the spy-glass and pipe seem to have been dropped by the way.

RECRUITING NEWS

It was announced today by M-Sgt. Westerman your local recruiting Sergeant that men enlisting in the U. S. Army may choose from the following branches the one in which they would like to enlist: The Airborne, Far East Command, and Regular Army Unassigned. Men with prior service may choose the Armored, Artillery, Corps of Engineers, Infantry, Chemical Corps, Corps of Military Police, the Army Medical Service, Ordnance Corps, Quartermaster Corps, Signal Corps and Transportation Corps. This is the first time in nearly a year that direct enlistments have been open in these branches.

It is also announced that individuals who have prior service in the 11th Airborne, the 82nd Airborne, the 1st Cavalry Division, the 2nd Infantry Division, the 7th Infantry Division, the 24th Infantry Division, or the 25th Infantry Division, may be enlisted and assigned directly to their former unit.

ATTENTION OF SERVICE TRADES CALLED TO FILING PROVISIONS

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—In connection with the enforcement survey just launched in South Alabama among the service trades, covered by Ceiling Price Regulation #4, OPS Director Charles Dobbins today called attention to the required filing and posting provisions of the law.

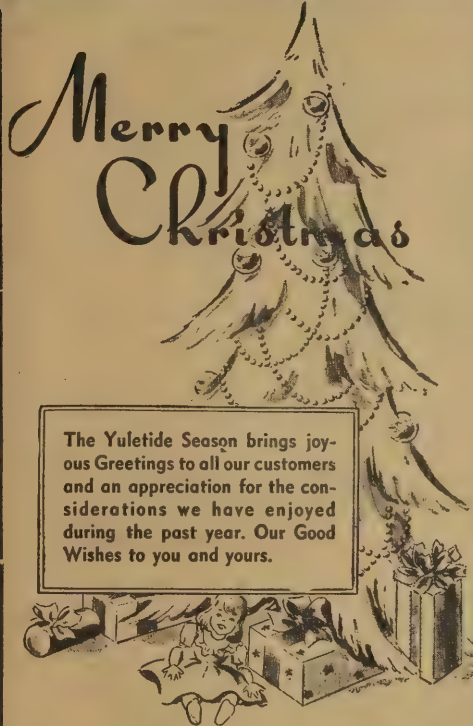

"All retail service establishments are required to post their ceiling prices for the services they supply," OPS Director Dobbins said. "Each firm's legal ceilings are the highest prices charged for their services in the period of last December 19 to January 25."

In addition, each seller must prepare, make available for inspection, and file a duplicate with the OPS district office in Montgomery, a statement of ceiling prices and other information," the OPS director said. "Detailed instruction may be obtained from OPS at 14 Commerce Street, Montgomery."

"After enforcement agents check compliance with posting and filing requirements, they will check the accuracy of the material filed with OPS and prices being charged now," he said.

WISE LAND USE

Farmers who use all the different portions of their farms wisely, and practice good land management, can expect to harvest above-average crops at lower costs.

PROOF THAT AMERICANS ARE PRAYER MINDED

A prayer for peace was recently sent out by church and interfaith groups to educational, political and business leaders and was broadcast by a nationally-known radio team. The response was amazing. Hundred of thousands are now using this daily prayer:

From the point of Light within the Mind of God

Let light stream forth into the minds of men.

Let Light descend on Earth.

From the point of love within the Heart of God

Let love stream forth into the hearts of men.

May Christ return to Earth.

From the center where the Will of God is known

Let purpose guide the little wills of men.

The purpose which the Master knows and serves.

From the center which we call the race of men
Let the Plan of Love and Light work out.

And may it seal the door where evil dwells.

Let Light and Love and Power restore the Plan on Earth.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

The Cajaps of Washington County proudly claim that today that some of their ancestors were sailors under the notorious buccaner, Jean Lafitte. According to these people, their forebears eventually tired of pirate life on the high seas and sought out the seclusion of the great wooded areas of South Alabama. Here they married Indian girls and settle down to the less exciting life of becoming farmers.

The story of heroism during early pioneer days rings louder than the tale of Sam Dale and the Canoe Flight which took place on our own Alabama River near Claiborne in the First Creek War.

The story goes that Dale, Jeremiah Austill, and a fellow named Smith encountered a canoe of nine Creek Indians paddling swiftly down the river. Dale and his companions attacked the Indians in midstream. While a Negro boatman, Caesar, held the two canoes together, the backwoodsmen killed all nine of the Creeks in hand-to-hand combat.

The Axis Club Building in Anniston's Zinn Park was once a part of the old Anniston Inn. The Inn, built in the 1880's was demolished by fire in 1901. It was in this old hostelry that Tom Edison's incandescent lamps were used for the first time in Alabama. The Axis Club Building has been used in recent years as a meeting place for the cities civic organizations.

In the northern tip of Baldwin County is located the ruins of old Fort Montpelier, a frontier barricade established by Andrew Jackson. Montpelier's most distinctive claim to fame comes from the fact that it was here in 1821 that Gen. Jackson resigned from the U. S. Army, and once again became a private citizen shortly before taking up political life.

The lighthouse on Sand Island at the entrance of Mobile Bay is lighted with an incandescent vapor-oil lamp. The 17,000 candlepower lamp spews a beam which can be seen by ships 18 miles out at sea.

Rare rubies have been found in the bed of Alabama's Coosa River.

Many old fishermen in Alabama still cling to the belief that fish bite best when dogwood is in bloom.

Mobile's Bankhead Tunnel is constructed of some of the longest steel pilings which have ever been driven. They are 97 feet in length, and equal in height to a seven story building.

FERTILIZER SHORTAGES
CALL FOR EARLY PLANS

Farmers are faced with possible shortages of fertilizers, according to J. C. Lowery, A. P. I. Extension Service agronomist.

He points out that heavy demands for sulphur in the defense effort, as well as the fertilizer industry, are hitting the sulphur supply very seriously. Sulphur, of course, is needed for the manufacture of superphosphate.

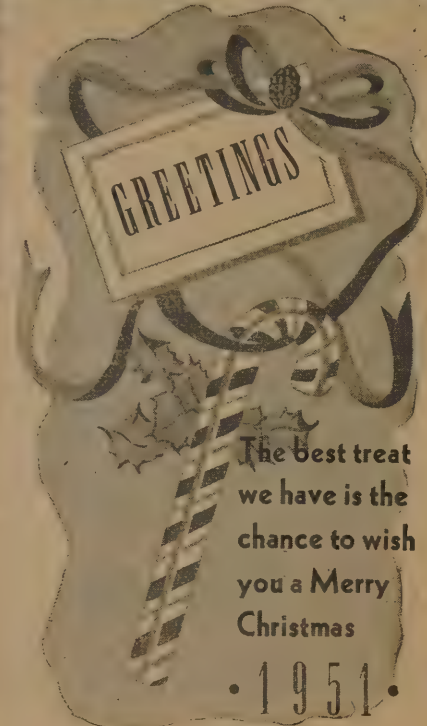

"Also," states Lowery, "farmers everywhere appreciate more and more the value of fertilizer in increasing yields. Therefore, all of these facts make it necessary for farmers to do some early planning and arranging for 1952 fertilizer needs."

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

Although the War Between the State, ended in 1865, federal troops were not removed from Alabama until after President Rutherford Hayes was inaugurated in 1876.

Col. J. G. Cullman, of Cincinnati, with the encouragement of prominent Alabamians and the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, in 1873 founded a German colony at the present town of Cullman.

A U. S. census report of 1870 showed that the value of Alabama farms had decreased from $175,824,622 in 1860, to $67,739,036. During the same from 19,104,545 acres, to 14,961,178.

In 1874 the Democratic legislature passed a "sunset" law in Alabama making it a penal offense to sell farm produce after nightfall. This resulted from the fact that so much was being stolen from the planters.

During the War Between the States, Yankee soldiers burned the coal and iron establishments in Alabama to the roots. But the Federal soldiers, soldiers who marched through the mineral region were impressed with its richness, and the high quality of the ordnance captured at Selma and carried to the East attracted the attention of other Northerners. A few of these men came to Alabama and helped local leaders and Southern men from Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia and Virginia to lay the foundations of the coal and iron industries. Between 1868 and 1873 the iron works at Irondale, Shelby, Brierfield, Round Mountain, and Ocmor were reconstructed, and coal mines were opened in the Cahaba field—the Montevallo, Shelby, Mobile, Selma etc.

Levin S. Goodrich and Milton H. Smith, of Kentucky, and Truman Aldrich, of New York and Pennsylvania, proved the wealth of the Birmingham district and laid the foundations of the coal and iron industries of Alabama. When others thought that Red Mountain rock was useful only for dyeing breeches and Pittsburgh laughed at "the fools in Alabama" for exulting over ferruginous sandstones, these men had faith in Red Mountain and the nearby lime cliffs and boulders, and in the coal beds known or imagined to exist.

What worries most men is the amount of money that is taken out of their take-home pay, after they've taken it home.

MUST FURNISH BEEF TO MILITARY SERVICES

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 13—"The national Office of Price Stabilization has just issued a regulation requiring certain meat slaughterers to furnish beef to the military services," Charles G. Dobbins, district director of the South Alabama Office of Price Stabilization, said today.

The new regulation becomes effective today, December 5.

"The new law requires all federally-inspected slaughterers to furnish certain excess beef to the armed forces," Dobbins said.

Federally-inspected slaughterers who killed more cattle during their 1951 accounting periods than they did during their 1950 accounting periods, are required to give the military first call on this excess cattle.

"When slaughterer quotas were in effect," the OPS director added, "OPS was able to help the armed forces get their beef by increasing the quotas of slaughterers who filled military orders on a voluntary basis."

"Since the elimination of quotas, however, many packers who in the past have supplied the military with beef have been unable to do so because their kill was reduced; while the slaughterers of other cattle have exceeded their normal supply."

Details information may be obtained from the OPS District Office in Montgomery.

A JOY NO EARTHLY WEALTH CAN GIVE

There is an old tale which becomes apropos chiefly at the Christmas time. An agnostic—a disbeliever in God—made this offer to a nine year old "I will give you an orange if you will tell me where God is."

The youngster was equal to the challenge. "I will give you two oranges," he said, "if you will tell me where He is not."

Many great men have always felt the spirituality of Christmas, and some have managed to put it into words. For instance, when Woodrow Wilson was asked to prove the greatness of Christianity, whose founder was the Christchild, he said simply, "Try it." Cardinal Spellman had a Christmas gift for the mind when he said: "The joy of Christmas is a joy—that was cannot kill, for it is a joy of the soul and the soul cannot die. Poverty cannot prevent the joy of Christmas, for it is a joy no earthly wealth can give. Time cannot wither Christmas, for it belongs to eternity. The world cannot shatter it, for it is a union with Him who has overcome the world."

The late Franklin D. Roosevelt once illustrated the spirit of Christmas with this story.

"A thief broke into the home of a priest and stole his purse. That night the priest wrote in his diary: 'Let me be thankful. First because I was never robbed before. Second because although he took my purse, he never took my life. Third because although he took all I had it was not much. And fourth because it was he who stole, and not I.'"

Jemison Man Is Killed In Auto Accident In N. C.

Birmingham relatives have been notified that 22-year-old William Crogan Holley was killed in a North Carolina automobile accident Monday.

Holley, a former resident of Birmingham, was on his way home from a head-on collision near Burlington, N.C. when his car was involved in the crash. He was a sailor stationed at Little Creek, Virginia.

Funeral services will be held in Birmingham. Survivors include the father, J. L. Holley, and two brothers, J. L. Holley, Jr., and Robert Earle Holley, all of Jemison, Ala.

THE STATE OFFICE BUILDING PERMIT IS DENIED

Montgomery, Ala.—The Washington National Production Authority has denied the state proposal to build a new $300,000 office building in the state capital group here.

The 1951 legislature approved the plan for the building to house several state agencies. The federal authority rejected the application for permission because of the scarcity of building materials. Plans for the new building were prepared several years ago when the legislature created a state building commission. It will be across from the state highway department building, and will be of similar design, although larger.

Chamber Of Commerce Road Signs Up

The road signs to be placed at the county line by the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce have been installed according to Joe Jackson, a member of the committee.

One sign was placed at the intersection of the Tuscaloosa Selma highways, one at the "Y" below Verbena and one at the Shelby County Line.

Statement Of Hon. Karl Harrison

"The year 1951 will go down as the start of a new era in Alabama progress. The approval of Alabama voters Bond Issue set the stage for this month of the $25,000,000 Road new era.

As Chairman of the Alabama Good Roads Committee, I wish to thank every person in your county who voted for, supported and helped to pass the bond issue. The newspapers of this state specifically are to be commended for their vigorous support.

"Each person who contributed his or her time and effort will in months to come feel even prouder of this progressive step taken by the people of Alabama.

"The money from the bond issue will be spent to give us a safer and more progressive system of highways. "It will insure that the $28,000,000 each four years now going to build mail box and farm-to-market roads can continue to be used for that time and necessary road program.

"We people of Alabama can now have a well balanced system of roads and highways leading all the way from the farm right up to, and into the towns and cities."

On the beach of Mobile Bay at Fairhope is an age-old magnolia tree that was once used as a post office. In a hole high up in its trunk Confederate officers used to hide secret documents for exchange between the various commands operating in the area. There are many such "post office" trees in the surrounding vicinity.

747 Die In Four Day Holiday

From last Friday afternoon at 6 o'clock until Tuesday midnight 740 people died in accidents in the United States. More than 500 were killed in automobile accidents.

This does not include the 119 who died in the mine accident at West Frankfort, Ill., last Friday.

Of the 740 who died in accidents 12 were killed in Alabama.

This was the greatest number killed since the four-day Christmas holiday of 1936 when 761 lost their lives in accidents.

Alabama Press Announces 1952 Convention

Birmingham, Ala.—President Clarence B. Hanson, Jr., of the Alabama Press Association, has announced the annual convention of state newspaper men in Montgomery, Jan. 17-19.

Hanson said the three-day meeting would feature a discussion by political leaders on "Political Courses for Alabama."

Members of the Association planning committee are Hanson, of the Birmingham News, R. F. Hudson, Jr., the Montgomery Advertiser; Charles Dobbins, the Montgomery Examiner; Cecil Hornady, the Talladega News; Neil O. Davis, Lee County Bulletin, and Billy Golsen, the Wetumpka Herald.

Take Advantage Of Security Benefits

Montgomery, Ala.—State Secretary Agnes Baggett said this week that Alabama judges from the circuit bench to the supreme court had decided to take advantage of Social Security benefits.

Mrs. Baggett also said that court reporters and state department heads appointed by the governor also had voted to come under the security law. They, like other employees, will contribute 1 1/2 per cent of their salaries up to $3,600 a year and the state will match it.

She said state employees and officials not already protected by the retirement system are eligible for the federal benefits.

Poultry Production Will Rise In 1952

The poultry industry can expect another banner year in 1952, according to latest figures of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Increase in production of eggs and broilers is expected and turkey production may exceed the 1951 level, which was a record high. Indications are that strong demand for poultry products will continue and prices are expected to average about the same.

While the total value of poultry products in 1952 may be as much as 5 per cent higher than the estimated $4 billion for 1951, costs will also rise and net returns to producers may be a little lower.

Commercial broiler production will probably continue its long-time increase, assisted by the new aureomycin-vitamin B12 feed supplement, which helps bring birds to maturity faster and on less feed. Broilers today are supplying almost half of the nation's chicken meat, compared to a negligible amount 15 years ago.

Turkey growers are expected to raise more small birds, which are proving popular and economical for year-round use. A record 528 million turkeys were produced in 1951, and indications are that the production of small and large turkeys will increase in 1952.

Study Made Of River System At Mobile

Montgomery, Ala.—The State Planning Board has authorized a study of Mobile and Baldwin counties, along the river system northward from Mobile, as a potential industrial area.

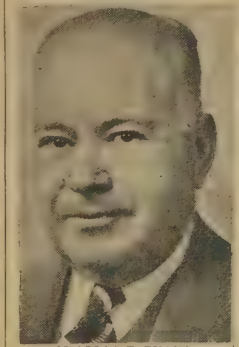

Alabama Planning Board Director, W. O. Dobbins said the area possessed outstanding potential advantages.

Members of the board are W. G. Henderson, Wetumpka; C. J. Settles, Birmingham; George C. Wallace, Clay; V. G. Johnston, Leroy, and Fred Ogden, Sulligent.

FIGS, GRAPES, AND PEARS

Any farmer can have plenty of figs and grapes with very little trouble. Figs and bunch grapes will grow readily from cuttings, and a fair percentage of pear cuttings will take root and grow.

Charles T. Evans Will Speak At Cattleman's Assn.

CHARLES T. EVANS

R. T. CLARK

Montgomery, Ala.—One of the nation's most outstanding speakers, Charles T. Evans, will make the principal address at the Annual meeting of the Alabama Cattleman's Association in Mobile Jan. 11 and 12, J. Ernest Lambert, Darlington, president said yesterday.

Evans, Executive Consultant, Arkansas Power & Light Co., Little Rock, will speak at the annual dinner the night of Jan. 11 in the Admiral Semmes Hotel. He has made two other speaking engagements in Alabama in recent months, appearing before the annual meeting of the Alabama State Chamber of Commerce in Birmingham in November, 1950, and at the Montgomery Chamber of Commerce annual dinner early this year.

In addition to Evans, the Cattleman will hear: R. T. Clark of the U. S. Department of Agriculture; F. E. Molin, executive secretary, American National Cattleman's Association, and see a meat cutting demonstration by the National Live Stock and Meat Board during the afternoon session Jan. 11.

Registration will begin the morning of Jan. 11 in the Admiral Semmes and all meetings will be held there.

Jan. 12, the Cattleman will hear J. H. Knox of the Mexico College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, and a panel discussion will be held on: "Financing of Pasture Development." Appearing on the panel will be: W. M. Drenner, First National Bank of Memphis, Tenn.; Rex Morthland, Peoples Bank & Trust Co., of Selma; Harry Gimore, First National Bank of Montgomery; T. J. Cottingham, State National Bank of Decatur; and Will Howard Smith, Prattville, a member of the Board of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, Ga.

The membership of the Cattleman's Association has nearly doubled in 1951, Lambert said, and the membership now totals 2500. There are forty Alabama county associations affiliated with the State group this year, he added.

More than a thousand Cattlemen are expected in Mobile for the meeting which will include boat trips and a tour of Bellingrath Gardens, Lambert concluded.

SERVICE STATIONS DISTRIBUTING INSURANCE LAW INFORMATION

Montgomery, Ala.—State Public Safety Director L. B. Sullivan said Alabama gasoline stations had been requested to distribute leaflets explaining the new motor vehicle safety act which becomes effective Jan. 1, 1952.

Distribution of the leaflets is a first to acquaint the public with the new law, Sullivan said.

He said the leaflet explains what the law is, who it affects, what a motorist must do after an accident, and how quickly a motorist can lose his motorizing privilege, and what he can do to avoid that misfortune.

J. H. Morgan Hurt In Street Accident

The only accident of any consequence during the holidays, was that of J. H. Morgan of Clanton. Mr. Morgan was hit by a pickup truck, in the business section of town Monday. After first aid it was thought he was not seriously injured but Christmas Day he was taken by Martin ambulance to the Veterans Hospital at Montgomery. It is feared he has a fractured hip. Mr. Morgan resides at the home of Mrs. Andy Jones.

No arrests were made in the accident.

Bids Let On Road To Enterprise

Montgomery, Ala.—State Highway Department officials said bids on 17 Alabama road and bridge construction projects, valued at approximately $1,450,931, will be opened here on Jan. 11.

Money for the projects comes from the regular program and will not come from the $25,000,000 Road Bond Issue approved in the Dec. 11 voting.

The projects included:

- Montgomery County—2,262 miles grading, drainage and bituminous treatment on county road, Cecil to Matthews.
- Chilton County—7,655 miles grading, drainage, surface treatments and bridges on the Clanton-Enterprise road.
- Lamar County—5,662 miles grading and drainage on a county road between Vernon and the Mississippi state line toward Steens, Miss.
- Lee County—11,376 miles base and bituminous treatment on the road from Auburn to Alabama Highway 739 toward Crawford.
- Geneva County—8,547 miles grading, drainage and bituminous treatment on the road from Slocumb to the Florida State line.
- Etowah County—632 mile bridge on county road between Attalla and Galt.
- Talladega County—66 mile bridge over Talladega Creek on the Talladega-Albion Mill road.
- Bibb County—4,384 miles base and bituminous treatment on the road from Alabama Highway 25 northwest toward Marvel.
- Henry County—3,198 miles base and bituminous treatment on a county road from Elliott's Store to Haleburg.
- Randolph County—1,349 miles base and bituminous treatment on a county road from Alabama Highway 63 north to Compressor Station.
- Monroe County—4,945 miles grading, drainage, bituminous treatments and bridge culvert on the Hybart-Vredenburgh road.
- Russell County—4,287 miles grading, drainage and bituminous treatments on a county road between Ft. Mitchell and Oswitchee.
- Houston County—618 mile culverts on a county road from Columbia west toward Whaley Cross Roads.
- Sumter County—3,345 mile culverts on the Epes-Emelle road.
- Jefferson County—526 mile approaches at Gurley Creek on the Pinson-Cleveland Road.
- Baldwin County—283 mile improvements on bridge and approaches on U. S. 31 at Bay Minette.
- Covington County—921 mile grading, drainage, bituminous treatments and bridge over Conecuh River at River Falls.

State Lets Contract For New Blount County Hospital

Montgomery, Alabama.—The State Health Department has let a contract for a new $404,984 Blount County hospital at Oneonta, Ala., to J. F. Halley, of Birmingham.

Clay H. Dean, director of the hospital planning division said construction of the 33-bed hospital will get underway immediately. He said bids on other hospitals to be opened this month will include those in Rosscoe, Randolph County; Conecuh County Hospital, Evergreen and the Bryan Whitfield Memorial hospital Demopolis.

INSULATE TO REDUCE THE COST OF HEATING

One of the important considerations in reducing housing costs for farm families is insulation of new houses—and old ones where possible.

Stella Mitchell, API Extension Service home management specialist, points out that insulation adds very little to the original cost of the house, but it reduces heating costs considerably. In fact, U. S. Bureau of Mines engineers estimate that one-third to one-half of the heat paid for escapes through walls and roof of an uninsulated house.

THE MARCH OF DIMES

The 1952 March of Dimes campaign begins on Jan. 2, and will continue through Jan. 31, 1952. Rev. J. M. McKinney has been chosen County Director and he has appointed Mrs. R. M. Tucker County Mother's Chairman.

Although the strain on the pocketbook has been somewhat trying for the past 30 days for all of us we should do our best to aid the local committee in reaching the county goal in this campaign.

It is for a most important work and experience of the past summer should teach us that "it can happen here." There were more cases of polio reported the past summer than in a decade.

Get behind your Director and help him in the protection of your child.

THE COHEN STAPPS

The moving of the Cohen Stapps to Greenville this week will be a great loss to Clanton and Chilton county. Both Mr. and Mrs. Stapp have meant much to the civic, political and religious life of the county. Each has stood ready at all times to serve in any capacity necessary to the fulfilling of a community project. It is with deep regret that we see the Stapps leave Clanton. It will be difficult to fill their place.

NOT USING PROPER LANES

Traffic through downtown Clanton would be much faster and less complicated if motorists would pay attention and use the proper driving lanes.
The lanes are clearly marked but careless motorists still drive down the right lane and then try to make a left-turn. That ties-up traffic and causes confusion.
Try aiding the local traffic officers by driving in the lane marked off for you. It will speed you through traffic, make the officer happy, and save the religion of the motorists in automobiles in front and back of you.

SLEEPY KISSES MANICURIST... Sleepy, star performer in international livestock exposition in Chicago, gets the works in a barber shop.

? Have You Ever Wondered... ?

Q: Are light waves and radio waves the same?
A: Yes, except for length. Waves of visible light vary from those of violet, the shortest, which are about 1/70,000th of an inch long, to those of red, the longest, about 1/40,000th of an inch in length. Invisible waves shorter than the violet are called ultraviolet; while still others that are very much shorter are those of the X-rays. The waves longer than the red are called infrared and these extend to lengths of about one-twenty fifth of an inch, where they overlap with the shortest radio waves. The longest radio waves are several miles in length.

Q: How can I clean off the hard-ened film that has formed on the tiles of my bathroom from the plaster used between the joints when the tile was laid?
A: Try a dilute solution of muriatic (hydrochloric) acid, about one part of the acid to ten parts of water. Apply it with a scrub brush and, after cleaning, wash the tiles with clear water. The acid, of course, should be used with great care.

Q: Who was the first man to study living things under the microscope?
A: The compound microscope was invented about 1590, probably by a Hollander named Jansen, but the early ones gave very imperfect images. No one knows who was actually the first to use it to look at living tissues—perhaps it was Jansen himself. By the middle of the 17th century improvements were made and a number of people used it and reported on their work. One was an Englishman, named Robert Hooke, who discovered the cells in plant tissue and published a book on his work in 1665. The real founder of the microscope anatomy of plants and animals, however, was an Italian, Marcello Malpighi, who also was actively at work in the 1660's, and who first described the capillaries which carry blood to the tissues. About the same time Anton van Leeuwenhoek was working in the Netherlands, and he is credited with the discovery of red blood corpuscles, spermatozoa, the structure of muscle fiber and many bacteria.

Q: How long would it take a rocket ship to reach the planet Mars?
A: According to an English authority on space travel, Arthur C. Clarke, it would take a rocket ship about 239 days to reach Mars when that planet is at its mean distance from the Earth and about 237 days on the rare occasions when Mars is closest. This assumes that the ship would use the fuel only in getting away from the Earth and in landing on Mars. During the rest of the trip it would itself be a small planet, moving in an orbit that would take it close to Mars. With an unlimited fuel supply it might be possible to go more directly, and the time could be reduced considerably.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

Herbert Linton had a watermelon in his front window at Watson's during Christmas. Although he has raised many a watermelon, he didn't raise that one. He told us it belonged to D. A. Wingard. We'll get the story for you later. By the time we got around to getting the story Christmas Eve, Linton had gone home, donned his whiskers and started making like Santa Claus.

Beatrice Bryan received a mighty nice telegram Christmas Day from her uncle, J. B. Jones of Tucson, Ariz. He wanted to wish all of his old friends here in Chilton County a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. Here is the contents of the telegram: All well. Merry Christmas. Happy New Year. Notify all friends. J. B. Jones, Tucson, Ariz.

For fireworks to be prohibited in the State of Alabama we heard a mighty lot of noise from fireworks during the Christmas holidays. Seems prohibiting fireworks is like prohibiting whiskey, gambling, and sin.

Some of the local merchants are protesting the selling of fruits on the streets and from trucks during the rush season. They don't think it quite fair that "outsiders" who only come in for a few days, or weeks, use the streets for their places of business when they (the merchants), are in business 365 days each year and pay licenses and maintain established businesses that in turn maintains the city and county governments. We think they have a point there.

"Get my bag at once," shouted a doctor to his daughter. "Why?" asked the daughter. "What's the dither?" "A fellow just phoned and he can't live without me," exclaimed the doctor grabbing his hat. His daughter heaved a vast sigh of relief. "Hold it Dad," she said quietly. "I think that call was for me."

Checking with the police Wednesday morning we found that the worst accident around our town was an old gentleman getting hit by a pickup truck. We understand his injuries were not too bad and we congratulate the citizens of the county on a safe and sane holiday season. Over the nation we see the record was not so good. More than 700 deaths occurred from accidents.

In spite of everything you can do, however, there probably will be those who continue to spoil your daughter. Your clue, then, is to follow the procedure you evidently are following now; that is, you will refuse to spoil her at home. Remember that it is possible to be firm with her and at the same time to give her plenty of affection and understanding. The latter are tremendously important for your child's sense of security, as you realize, but it should be remembered that the feeling of insecurity does not arise out of firmness by parents so much as it does out of their lack of consistency.

Let me suggest, too, that you avoid putting your daughter in situations in which she is tempted to tell a lie. You must realize that an untruth does not have the moral significance for her that it has for you.

Your Health LOW BLOOD PRESSURE

The individual with low blood pressure is not a sick person for that reason alone. In fact, some authorities, after surveying statistics, maintain that other things being equal, persons with low blood pressure who have passed middle age can expect a longer life than those with high blood pressure. There is an average normal blood pressure for each person, depending on age, sex, body weight and constitution, and activity level. The average is obtained from thousands of persons without disease; it must therefore include persons with pressures both below and above the accepted figure, but all healthy.

A low blood pressure, in the absence of other symptoms, is not necessarily serious nor does it mean that disease is present. Low blood pressure is found in healthy persons. Women are more likely to develop it than men. Some persons with marked lowering of physical stamina are found, on examination, to have low blood pressure. While this person may be underweight and possess poor muscular tone he is otherwise normal. It is when he tries to outdo the physical prowess of his friends, as in golf or dancing, that trouble appears, including such symptoms as dizziness, apprehension, numbness of hands and feet, and pains resembling neuralgia in various parts of the body.

Since low blood pressure can occur in health and disease, the condition becomes an individual problem. A physician must decide on its significance after careful study. If the condition is not normal, it is a matter of understanding it and of learning not to overdo hystically. In some emotional disturbances, low pressure may disappear when the emotional situation is straightened out.

Trust your physician. He'll know whether this is a condition peculiar to you or, if not, what to do to correct it.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

White spots on furniture caused by water or heat may be removed by rubbing the spot with a cloth dampened with spirits of camphor, ammonia, or alcohol. As soon as the mark is off, rub with furniture polish or wax. White spots on highly polished furniture, caused by hot or wet dishes may be removed by rubbing the spots with essence of peppermint.

To loosen buttermilk that clings so tenaciously to the jar, glass, or pitcher, drop into it one teaspoon of baking soda and fill with water; let stand.

To prevent webworms from getting into your meal in the hot weather, sprinkle a little salt through the meal, but be careful when making bread not to add too much salt.

To freshen your garbage pan, use one tablespoon lye to one quart of hot water.

CORDUROY HAS PLACE IN SCHOOL WARDROBE

Auburn, Ala.—When care is used, corduroy is a fabric that washes beautifully.

"However," warns Levice Ellis, A. F. I. Extension Service clothing specialist, "don't wait too long to wash dark colored garments. Brush well before laundering. And be sure to wash separately—not only because the color may run just a little, but because lint clings to corduroy and it is very difficult to get off if it dries on after laundering."

Miss Ellis further states that all pockets should be emptied and brushed since even a piece of cleaning tissue can spoil all cleaning efforts.

Another thing many women discover is that corduroy is bulky when wet and will probably need to be washed in a second fresh suds for best results. Always use the same lukewarm water, towel, and shade drying treatment given wool. Also, corduroy needs a bit of brushing while it dries. This will bring up its velvety nap.

THIS WEEK'S TALK

Charity For All

by Rev. A. T. Hickman

"God loves a cheerful giver. . . And it is more blessed to give than to receive." These are words of the Master Teacher, and the greatest Giver of all mankind. None other than Jesus Himself. The Chilton County Christmas Chest has gone over the 4th time in a big way; this time greater than before. This proves that there are some people in Chilton County who are cheerful givers. They have opened their hearts and pocketbooks to the Charity Chest this time. Elsewhere in this paper you will read the report of the Chest if not this week, you will next week. The names of those who gave cash money have appeared in this paper for the last three weeks.

I have been associated with the Christmas Chest from its beginning four years ago. I have served as treasurer, as chairman, and twice as chairman of the Finance Committee. I have watched it grow from year to year. It is now my opinion that if Chilton County wants a Charity Community Chest, an organization to function all year around in time of an emergency, now is the time for such an organization.

The Christmas can be so expanded that it will become such an organization. There are needs arise all thru the year, and there were some funds available the situation could be handled wisely and to the satisfaction of all concerned. Other counties have such a Chest, why not Chilton County?

Would it not be a fine thing for all the civic clubs, and other such-like organizations of the county pledge themselves in favor of such an organization, along with their wholehearted support? A Committee could be appointed to study the possibility of expanding the Christmas Chest to meet this very need. Mr. Jimmie Bell, present Chairman of the Christmas Chest would like to hear your opinion on the matter. If you are interested, be at the luncheon and meeting of the Christmas Chest to be held at the Dixie Cafe on Jan. 8th, Noon.

Here I would like to express my thanks and appreciation for all who worked with me on the Finance Committee. You helped to do a fine job, and will see you at the Dixie Cafe, Tuesday, Jan. 8th at 12 o'clock.

Parents' Problems

By DONALD M. MAYNARD

When friends and neighbors are with our three-year-old daughter they "make over her" and spoil her in spite of what I may object to. When she is at home now she expects us to give in to her every wish or desire which, of course, we cannot do. I ask the neighbor not to feed her, which she does anyway. And this has led her to telling me untruths about what she has been doing. What should we do?

I realize how indignant you must become at friends, neighbors, and relatives who persist in spoiling your child. You must be tempted really to "bless them out" for not paying any heed to your requests. And, indeed, in a few cases this may be desirable. By and large, however, there is no particular value in antagonizing your thoughtless friends and relatives.

Take time to have a good, heart-to-heart talk with them, in which you help them to see that your daughter rapidly is becoming spoiled because of the attention she is getting from outsiders. I have no doubt that many of your friends, when they see how earnest and sincere you are, will make a definite effort to cooperate with you.

In spite of everything you can do, however, there probably will be those who continue to spoil your daughter. Your clue, then, is to follow the procedure you evidently are following now; that is, you will refuse to spoil her at home. Remember that it is possible to be firm with her and at the same time to give her plenty of affection and understanding. The latter are tremendously important for your child's sense of security, as you realize, but it should be remembered that the feeling of insecurity does not arise out of firmness by parents so much as it does out of their lack of consistency.

Let me suggest, too, that you avoid putting your daughter in situations in which she is tempted to tell a lie. You must realize that an untruth does not have the moral significance for her that it has for you.

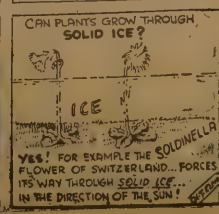

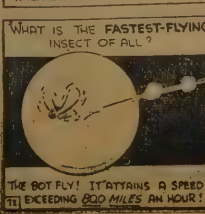

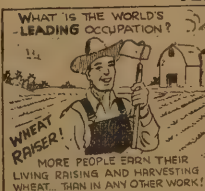

My oldest son is 2 1/2 years. He has been separated from his father most of his life as my husband is a Regular Army Officer. Each time separation and authority arises, and frequently leads to discussions as to just what can be done.

The child does not accept his father as his authority, and comes to me for all of his needs and wants. We do not like this situation, yet at the same time the boy is not to blame as he met his father for the first time when he was 13 months old, and had become entirely dependent on me. This rejection hurts my husband. Yet forcing himself as the parent upon the child is not the answer, we know. It all comes to one point—the child is dependent on me, and how can I transfer some of that dependence upon his father?

Let me congratulate you and your husband on the fine, sensible approach you are taking toward this problem, incidentally, that many returning servicemen are facing. Perhaps the following suggestions may be helpful:

1. Continue to remember that your son's dependence upon you will not be overcome immediately. It will take time for the change to occur and your husband will need to be patient and understanding.
2. Let your husband not only play with your son, but also have some definite responsibilities in connection with his care, if this is possible. Perhaps he can be responsible for dressing him or for putting him to bed.
3. It may be well for you to take a short trip and leave your son in his father's care during your absence. What I am trying to say is that every opportunity your husband has to be alone with his son and to be responsible for his care, hastens the day when the boy will accept him not only as a good playmate but as a parent.
4. If on occasions you defer to your husband's judgment (which incidentally is not a bad thing for wives do), your son will gradually realize that the father, too, has authority. It will help, too, if when talking to him you frequently say, "Let's ask Daddy what he thinks or would do."

Traffic Responsibility Law In Effect This Week

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 30—L. B. Sullivan, Director, Department of Public Safety, concluded tonight the state's public information program about the Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Law with a reminder to motorists who have been violating traffic laws or having repeated accidents that they had better mend their ways before Monday night, because thereafter they will stand a good chance of losing all of their motoring privileges for a long time and perhaps permanently.

In a radio talk to the people of Alabama that was heard around the state, Sullivan declared that the Alabama Department of Public Safety was fully prepared to carry out the mandate of the Legislature promptly on January 1, by administering and enforcing the new law "without fear or favor." Pointing out that the law gives the Department no judicial authority to determine questions of fault for accidents, he added:

"It clearly and unquestionably tells us when and how we shall apply its provisions; and that is as it should be." Sullivan devoted much of his address to answering a number of questions motor vehicle owners and operators have been asking most frequently about the law. One was how soon a motorist could have his operator's license and registration plates reinstated if they were suspended under the law. In answer, Sullivan replied:

"Obviously, the answer is, as soon as you have satisfied the law. But in some cases that might not be as easy as it sounds. You certainly must furnish unqualified proof of your ability to pay claims for damages you caused not exceeding $11,000. You probably will be able to do that if you are a safe driver and just had bad fortune once. But if you have repeated accidents, obviously it won't be long before you are off the road for keeps."

"The most sincere and friendly advice that I can give all motorists, therefore, is this: if you are among the 10 or 15 per cent who don't pay too much attention to the traffic laws, or somehow seem to get involved in repeated traffic accidents, mend your ways before next Monday night. Make an honest analysis of your driving habits; and take a long look at your past accident record. If the answers aren't too good, you had better start practicing decided improvement right now, because our new Safety Responsibility law allows no room for quibbling or compromise. You either live up to it and stay on the road, or you don't and get off the road. That is plain talk, but it is as friendly advice as you will ever get."

The new law applies only to motor vehicle traffic accidents that result in death or injury to a person, or property damage to any one person in excess of $50. The operator or owner of every vehicle involved in such an accident, regardless of fault, must furnish the Alabama Department of Public Safety, within 60 days, satisfactory evidence that he is financially able to meet claims for damages he caused, not exceeding $11,000.

This may be done by filing with the Department a certificate of insurance that was in force at the time of the accident, or collateral in the form of cash or securities. An operator or owner is not subject to the law's security requirements, however, if within 60 days he files satisfactory evidence with the Department that he has been released from liability, has signed a written legal agreement to pay his damage claims in installments, has been finally adjudicated not to be liable, or that his car was legally parked or being driven without his permission at the time of the accident.

In closing the state's educational program, Sullivan reminded motorists that the official leaflet explaining the law's principal provisions in more detail is still available without cost at any gasoline filling station in the state. He urged those who have not done so to obtain one of the leaflets and study it carefully. It can be read in five minutes and is written in non-legal language, so that any layman can understand it easily.

L. B. SULLIVAN TO EXPLAIN MOTOR VEHICLE SAFETY

L. B. Sullivan, Director, Department of Public Safety, will explain the operations of the new Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Law, Sunday, December 30, at 6:30 p.m. over the Alabama Radio Network.

Mulberry Church

There were nice congregations for both services at Mulberry Sunday. We had a special program Sunday night of Christmas carols, while Mrs. Harold Smith read the Christmas story from the Bible which was enjoyed by all.

Rev. Leon Macon Editor of Alabama will bring the message to our congregation on Jan. 20, 1952. When the corner stone will be placed in our new church. We are expecting a large crowd and good service on that day.

The Int. girls class enjoyed a nice social at the home of Myrtice Lecroy last Thursday evening with 13 girls and their teacher Mrs. L. S. Calfee present. After playing several games and contests, gifts were exchanged from a beautiful lighted Christmas tree. Refreshments of cake and punch was served by the hostess and her mother, Mrs. A. J. Lecroy.

Everybody who has seen the impressive Manger scene at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Smith on Selma Highway 7 miles from Clanton are spreading the news of how beautiful and sacred it is, with a statue to represent all the characters of this Bible scene. The people and the animals too. If you haven't already seen it, go by before the holidays are over to see it and you too will be impressed and enjoy the scene and the Christmas carols which are heard from a loud speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Smitherman of Auburn were among the visitors at Mulberry Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Conway entertained at a birthday and wedding celebration dinner at their home last Wednesday evening, Dec. 19. Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Haggard, Mr. and Mrs. Olin Bice, Jimmie Wayne and Winston and Jacqueline Smitherman, Mr. and Mrs. Hannah Owen and Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Owen and girls.

Clifford and Mickey Manning of Clemson, S. C., are spending the holidays here with Mrs. Emma Manning.

Miss Lorine Lecroy of Gadsden is spending the Christmas holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Lecroy.

Mr. Charlie Cooper remains ill at his home.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Manning of Jacksonville, Fla., spent the holidays with the former's mother Mrs. Evie Manning.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Lecroy and Myrtice, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McEwen and Mrs. Ethel Cummings attended the funeral of their aunt Mrs. Mollie Waldrop at Goodwater, Ala., Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Lecroy's guests for Sunday dinner were all the children and grandchildren which were all the boys except Odie and their families from Isabella. Their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Calfee of Isabella and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Lecroy and children of Marion, Ala.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mayfield and David of Birmingham were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Davenport.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Jones of Auburn are spending the holidays here and in Clanton with their parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Onie Bell of Lipscomb were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Lecroy.

E. J. Grooms who is in service at Indian Gap, Penn., is spending his furlough here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Grooms.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Lenoir of Tallapoosa were week end guests of their parents here.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Jones visited Dr. and Mrs. Hayes in Clanton Sunday afternoon.

Hudson and Judy Manning of Autaugaville spent Christmas Eve and Christmas Day with their grand mother Mrs. Emma Manning.

Pic. James (Jr.) Langston of Fulton, Okla., is spending a 15-day furlough here with his wife Elmore and other relatives.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

Old Sparta was, in the days before the Civil War, the county seat of Conecuh County. Located on the banks of the Conecuh River, Old Sparta became quite prosperous for a while. It boasted its own town square, numerous general stores bars, law offices, and two first-rate hotels. An academy was built and teachers were imported from the North. Then the dreaded yellow fever scourge struck the little community. The plague was soon followed by the devastation inflicted upon the town by invading Federal troopers. Today, a pile of bricks here and there are all that remain of Old Sparta, a once proud frontier city.

Alabama, long a leading lumbering state in the nation, has 22 species of oak trees growing within her boundaries.

The Mobile cotton exchange was the third cotton exchange to be established in the United States. Founded in 1871, the Mobile exchange was preceded only by those of New York and New Orleans.

During the Civil War, the Episcopal church in Alabama severed all relations with the national church. On January 17, 1866, however, at a special diocesan council in Montgomery, the church of Alabama resumed its former relation to the national church.

SOLDIERS

Sergeant First Class Olen D. Walker, Jr. of Thorsby, Ala., recently was awarded the Combat Infantryman Badge for excellent performance of duty in combat with the 7th Infantry Division.

The badge, a symbol of the front line fighting man, distinguishes the combat soldier from rear area and service troops. It consists of a miniature replica of a Revolutionary War flintlock rifle mounted on a blue background and superimposed on a wreath.

Sergeant First Class Walker is a squad leader in Company F of the 7th Division's 31 Infantry Regiment.

He entered the Army in June 1946.

Cpl. Carrell W. Mullins, TC, son of Mrs. J. D. Mullins, Rt. 2 Clanton, Ala., has been admitted to the Army and Navy Hospital, Hot Springs National Park, Arkansas, as a patient, the Public Information Office announced today.

Sergeant First Class William C. Mauldin, whose wife, Gertrude, lives on Rt. 1, Thorsby, Ala., is serving in Korea with the 15th Replacement Company which recently was awarded the Meritorious Unit Commendation for "outstanding service in support of combat operation."

During the period covered by the award, July 27, 1950, through September 30, 1951, the company processed 32,325 men including 12,315 rotations.

The citation given the unit specifically praised the orientation program given to troops going into combat.

Sergeant First Class Mauldin is serving as troop movement platoon sergeant.

After a rapid but rugged tour of duty in Korea, Private First Class Johnny K. Oates of Verbena, Alabama, a former Dixie Division soldier, was recently welcomed back to Fort Jackson by Major General A. G. Paxton, 31st Division commander.

Formerly with the 167th Infantry Regiment of the Dixie Division, Private Oates left for Korea last July 18, arrived at the front September 21, was wounded after 42 days of action, hospitalized in Japan and sent back here. Now he has asked Fort reception center authorities to reassign him to the Dixie Division.

Private Oates, who has already traveled over 10,000 miles in the last five months, is already adding a few miles to this as he journeys homeward to Verbena to see his wife Barbara, on a 30 day leave.

Amendment Count Certified By The Secretary Of State

Montgomery, Ala.—The official canvass in the office of State Secretary Agnes Baggett disclosed this week that the new voter qualification amendment was ratified by a narrow 369-vote margin in the Dec. 11 balloting.

Official returns showed 60,357 votes for the amendment, 59,988 against it.

Of the seven amendments on the ballot which affected the state as a whole, two were defeated. The 67-senator proposal lost 91,990 to 35,461.

The measure to require foreign corporations to have an office in Alabama was rejected 59,560, to 47,154.

The administration-sponsored $25,000,000 Road Bond Issue vote count showed 89,532 for the amendment, 66,546 against it.

The other three statewide amendments carried by comfortable majorities were: No. 2 (putting the state merit system into the constitution)—For 76,230, against 44,879.

No. 3 (permitting the appointment of National Guard officers)—For 67,796, against 51,636.

No. 4 (extending the poll tax exemption to Korean war veterans and all other wars)—For 97,806, against 34,848.

In perhaps the biggest demonstration of negative voting in modern times in Alabama, every one of 17 local local amendments was defeated.

POPLAR SPRINGS CHURCH

We are glad to have over a hundred at church Sunday. Had several visitors which we were proud to have. We always welcome visitors to our services.

Brother Cook brought a very good message Sunday, and a brief devotional before our Christmas program Sunday night.

We appreciate the big crowd that was out Sunday night for our Christmas program, and we trust every one enjoyed the program. We also appreciated Ole Santa paying us a visit, and helping deliver the gifts that were under the Christmas tree. He also had a large sack of fruit and candy for the children.

Sorry to know our pastor's mother is still very sick in the Selma Baptist hospital. Please remember to pray for her and all our other sick people.

Sure glad to see several of our people back at church that have been sick with measles.

Every one be sure to come to Sunday School and Training Union Sunday night. Also prayer services on Wednesday night. And let us finish up the old year and start in the New with much better attendance all through the New Year.

It is said that the great-grandmother of Will Rogers was among the Cherokee Indians which Gen. Winfield Scott was ordered to move from the area around Guntersville to the Indian Territory in 1837. The beloved comedian was always proud of his Cherokee blood and had made plans to visit Guntersville just before his fatal air crash with Wiley Post in 1935.

SEES $107.15 AUTOMOTIVE TAX BILL FOR 1952

Birmingham, Ala.—Due to recently enacted gasoline and automotive tax increases the typical Alabama vehicle owner will pay a record-breaking $107.15 in special motoring taxes next year, W. B. Timmons, Secretary-Manager of the Alabama Motorists Association predicted today. He said this figure does not include the cost of the gasoline taxes levied in ten Alabama Counties and 179 Municipalities.

The car and truck owner's special tax bill will hit an all-time high because tax rates are now at their peak, Mr. Timmons explained.

He stated that "the full impact of the heavier federal taxes will be felt in 1952, when the motorist finds how drastically they add to his driving costs."

Under the new scale of federal automotive excise taxes, which took effect on Nov. 1, the gasoline tax is increased to two cents a gallon from the previous 1 1/2 cents. The excise tax on new passenger cars is up to 10 per cent, from seven per cent, and the former five per cent taxes on trucks, buses, truck-trailers, automotive parts and accessories have been boosted to eight per cent.

"Just the higher federal gasoline tax will mean that Alabama motorists must pay 8c in state and federal taxes on every gallon of gasoline they buy," he added. "This equals 38 per cent sales tax on gasoline—the heaviest not yet available."

tax imposed on a non-luxury product in our state."

He pointed out that the federal gasoline and automotive excise taxes are not connected with highway development but are used for the support of general government. These taxes were first levied as temporary measures in 1932 "to help meet a depression emergency," he said.

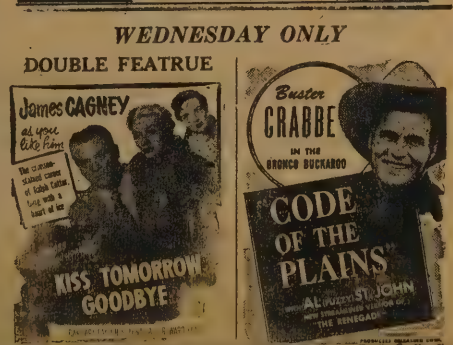

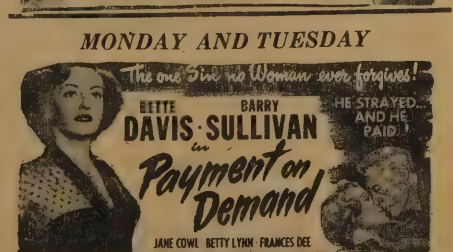

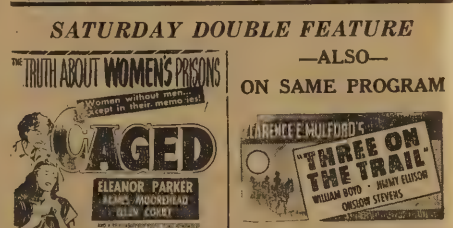

"Not only have the federal gasoline and automotive taxes been retained all these years, but they have been increased with each following emergency," he declared.

He concluded: "As soon as world conditions clear up, the heavily over-taxed owners should be the first to receive deserved—and long overdue—tax relief from their federal government."

HEART DISEASE KILLS 25 IN CHILTON COUNTY

Montgomery, Ala.—Heart disease, by far the greatest single cause of death in Alabama and elsewhere, killed 4,092 people in the state during the first six months of 1951. That was approximately a heart disease death an hour. This state total included 25 in Chilton County.

The announcement was made today by the State Department of Health. It was based upon provisional reports prepared by the Department's Bureau of Vital Statistics. These reports may differ slightly from the final reports sales tax on gasoline—the heaviest not yet available.

NEW DRIVING LAW REPORT FORMS READY

Montgomery, Ala.—State Public Safety Director L. B. Sullivan said that accident report forms required under Alabama's new safety responsibility law, effective Jan. 1, will be available at sheriff's offices, city police departments, highway patrol offices, and at the State Public Safety Department. Sullivan suggested that these forms be obtained prior to the date the law becomes effective, so drivers may familiarize themselves with its requirements.

The state safety director also suggested that drivers "keep a copy of the form in the glove box of their cars just in case they do have the hard luck to be in an accident."

Sullivan stressed that every driver involved in an accident must file a report within 10 days, regardless of who caused the accident.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

Centre was the home of John J. Pratt, the man who is claimed to have invented the first typewriter. The inventor is buried on the outskirts of his hometown.

The famous Wright Brothers made one of their first heavier-than-air flights on the site that has since become Montgomery's Maxwell Air Force Base.

There was once a town in the state known as Alabama. It was established around 1817 by John Scott, an early settler. John Scott's town was located within the city limits of the State of Alabama's capital city, Montgomery.

During the Civil War there were approximately 2,500 white Alabamians and 10,000 Negroes from this state who went North to serve in the Union ranks.

At the close of the Civil War all of Alabama's railroads were taken over by the War Department in Washington.

Authorities have held that the best cannon in America during the Civil War was made at Selma, the then industrial center of the state.

The average stagecoach operating in Alabama during the early pioneer days made approximately five miles an hour.

Alabama once had a statesman who was so fat that when he rode a stagecoach he was charged two fares, for he occupied two seats. That statesman, Dixon Hall Lewis, of Lowndesboro, tipped the scales at a ponderous 500 pounds at the time of his death.

35 Polio Deaths

First Nine Months

Montgomery, Ala.—The State Department of Public Health said that 35 poliomyelitis deaths were recorded in Alabama during the first nine months of the year.

This compared to 16 polio fatalities for the same nine months in 1950. Of the total of 35 during the first nine months of the year, 29 were reported in July, August and September.

8851 Welfare Cases Closed To Date

Montgomery, Ala.—State Welfare Director Bill Dorrough said that his department had closed out 24 cases at the request of persons receiving aid last month, but only five said it was because of the new law regulating payments.

Dorrough said two who cancelled payments said they did it because they did not want their relatives notified, and three because they did not want their names published.

The last legislature passed a law requiring relatives of a needy person to support him if possible, or state that they are unable to do so. It also makes public the names of persons receiving aid.

Dorrough said that all told, 8,851 cases were closed.

SETTING FRUIT TREES

December is the best time for setting fruit trees because they are fully dormant, moisture content of the soil is usually favorable, and the growth of feeder roots will have a chance to begin earlier than if planting were delayed.

MINUTES OF THE BOARD OF REVENUE AND CONTROL OF CHILTON COUNTY, ALABAMA OF DECEMBER 10, 1951

BOARD MEETING DECEMBER 10, 1951

The Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama, met in regular session at the county courthouse at Clanton, Alabama, on December 10, 1951, at 9:00 o'clock a.m. The following were present: W. L. Parrish, Judge of Probate and Chairman of said Board, and the following Associate Members of said Board: V. O. Lenoir, A. H. Smith, Welch Roebuck and J. M. Dunlap; absent: none. Judge Parrish presided as Chairman of the meeting and, a quorum being present, declared the meeting open for the transaction of business.

WHEREUPON, the Clerk of the Board read the minutes of the meeting of the Board held on November 29, 1951, whereupon the Chairman of the Board asked for corrections or additions to said minutes, there being no corrections or additions to said minutes and the same being correct, Mr. Dunlap made a motion that said minutes stand adopted as read, whereupon Mr. Roebuck seconded said motion, which motion was unanimously carried by a unanimous vote of the members present.

Mr. Smith, affixed their signatures to said minutes in the presence of the Board and the Clerk.

Mr. Smith offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Lenoir:

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That the reading of the minutes of the meeting of said Board held on Dec. 4, 1951, be deferred until the next meeting.

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of the members present.

Mr. Smith offered the following preamble and resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Roebuck:

WHEREAS, it appearing to the Board that among the claims this day submitted to the Board by the Clerk that certain claims presented by Leo C. Langston in the amount of $50.00 is an equitable claim or demand against the county as described in Title 12, Section 110 of the Code of Alabama;

And it further appearing to the Board that said person, firm or corporation, did in good faith, rent the property described in said claim for the use and benefit of Chilton County.

And it further appearing to the Board that Chilton County has received and used said property and has benefited in the amount of said claim;

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That said claim be and the same is hereby allowed.

The above stated preamble and resolution were unanimously adopted by the members present.

WHEREUPON, the Clerk of the Board presented to the Board a list of all claims and accounts filed with him against the County. Whereupon the Board proceeded to audit all such claims, and it appearing to the Board that each of the following claim has itemized and sworn to, as provided by law, with evidence in support of each item, the materials, machinery, equipment and supplies purchased by the county for use on public roads, bridges and ferries were inspected and approved by the County Engineer, as provided by law, and it further appearing to the Board that all said claims are just, due, correct and unpaid and no part thereof has been previously paid.

Whereupon Mr. Lenoir offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Roebuck, and unanimously adopted by the Board and the following Associate Members of the Board: BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That said claims are hereby audited, allowed, passed and approved by the Board. And be it further ordered by the Board that each of the claims as hereinafter set out, and in and insofar set out, for the materials or the amounts as hereinafter set out, be allowed.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That the Chairman of the Board is hereby directed and authorized to draw a proper county warrant on the county treasury for the correct amount in payment of each of said claims in favor of the person, firm or corporation to whom it is due, from the funds listed:

THE CALD PEN SYSTEM GROWS IN POPULARITY

The individual calf pen system, developed by the Regional Animal Disease Research Laboratory in Auburn, is quite popular with many Alabama dairymen.

In 1951 this program, designed to control parasites and diseases of dairy herd replacements, was in operation on 322 dairy farms that were using 1,283 pens in 35 Alabama counties. The value of this program is reflected in the increased number of dairy calves raised in Alabama as shown in county agents' annual reports.

J. R. Parrish, API Extension Service dairyman, says that heretofore, when he was having trouble raising calves should ask the local county agent about the calf pen system.

PLAN NOW FOR BETTER PASTURES NEXT YEAR

Now is the time to look ahead and plan for more and better pastures in 1952, according to J. C. Lowery, API Extension Service agronomist.

THIS PETTY PACE

Book Refuse

THE LETTERS of Tabset Shift. A lock, author of the best-selling historical novel, "California of Bunk," has been refused for sale by the post office department to break even on postage due on them. Shiftlock gained notoriety by leaving the picture of the well-known beauty that graces most historical novels off the cover of his novel and hiding it on page 377. "If they want to look at the picture," said Tabset, "let 'em buy the book and find it!"

The polished letters are mostly some mailed with insufficient postage and refused by the addressee who valued their pennies above Shiftlock's rare confidence. Some of the addressees are unknown in the towns indicated on the envelopes: Empress Josephine, Madame du Barry, etc. Shiftlock's prominence, vast age, and encrusted mentality give him a wide range of correspondence. Tabset would not take the letters home, but Madame Sam was stuck with them and having costs, thus the attempt to sell them.

WRITERS FIND NOTHING COMMUNIST in the movement subsidizing Submarine letters. They would like the 10¢ fast-food to buy all their submarine subsidies the way Uncle Sam does. They are not sure if they are not enough to make a good thing need little help. The letters are with the submarine.

As an example of the literary qualities of Submarine letters we give you his personal conversation to Chapman. "I have just received information that you are about to retire from the navy. Maybe you will not retire and you are about to take that. Caesar, to your house. I can offer you a dinner and a glass of wine. You remember, but if you must take a smile, I have a smile to take a vindictive spite and make a clean sweep."

OR HIS FATHERLY ADVICE TO FRANK. "You men warlike. 'Pax Volkswagen' is the word."

We would give more, but the post office printed the book on stamp paper with glue on the edge and all the pages stuck together, leaving only the front page open to the reader.
